P R E F A C E.

THE papers comprised in the present volume carry on our Calendar History of the reign of Charles I. during the greater part of the year 1637. They are exceedingly numerous, more so than in any other period of equal length throughout the whole reign. From the end of 1637 they begin to diminish in number, and after a time fall off very considerably.

The reign of Charles I. was, in every sense of the word, eventful. Not a year throughout its course but was fertile in incidents which in quiet times, and under ordinary circumstances, would have sufficed to mark a period or constitute an æra. The particular year to which the papers calendared in the present volume relate is shown by them to have been no less productive of important events than every other similar division of the reign. Indeed, there happened in the course of this year one event which gave colour to the whole remainder of our period; we allude to the commotions at Edinburgh occasioned by the endeavour to introduce into public worship the new Scottish Liturgy on the 23rd July 1637. We point attention at once to this conspicuous incident, because persons interested in this period are likely instantly to turn to our volume, in expectation of finding new information upon this momentous subject. The fact is disappointing, that there is substantially but one paper which at all relates to it. It is dated from London, the 8th October 1637, and is written in Italian, the next paper which follows being a translation of the Italian original into English, in the well-known handwriting of G. R. Weckherlin. This paper gives, in something like the form of a news-letter, a report of the determination which had then been arrived at by the King and his Secret or Cabinet Council, on the course to be adopted by the Government in relation to the Scottish tumults, and states the view taken of that determination by the English people.

The position of circumstances at that moment was such as to render the decision of the King and his advisers of the very highest public moment. It was a test of the degree in which they understood the feelings of the Scottish people, and how far they were themselves capable of dealing in a statesmanlike manner with the grave circumstances which had arisen. On the occurrence of the tumults at Edinburgh, the Council of Scotland suspended the introduction of the Liturgy until his Majesty's pleasure was further known, and within a few days afterwards, according to the national custom, adjourned all public business from Lammas Day, the 1st of August, over harvest, or until the 17th October. In the meantime, full reports of what had occurred were sent to England.

The King was exceedingly displeased with the whole proceeding. According to a letter of Archbishop Laud, his Majesty took it very ill that the business had been so weakly carried, and expressed at once his expectation that the Scottish Council "should set themselves to it," that the Liturgy might be established orderly, and with peace. Above all things he disliked what he esteemed the weakest thing of all, the suspension of the introduction of the Liturgy, which was pronounced to be a mere culpable giving way “to the insolency of the baser multitude.”

The intervention of the long vacation gave opportunity on both sides for reconsideration. There were not wanting those who advised measures of conciliation, and represented in the strongest terms the universality and unexampled character of the stir amongst the Scottish people, the extreme rashness and want of judgment of the leading Scottish clergy, and the impolicy of the King urging any thing upon “that poor kingdom” which could not be brought to pass to his contentment. The result is stated in the paper here calendared (Vol. ccclxix., No. 41.) It intimates that the determination which had been arrived at was simply that all the ceremonies and alterations ordered to be introduced into that church should thenceforth be punctually and everywhere observed. It is well known how this decision was received in Scotland. In England, as we are here informed, it was a source of great trouble to the Puritans, who foresaw that, unless the Scots should stir against this peremptory mandate, “the bridle would be free in the King’s hands to guide consciences in England, as well as in Scotland, at his pleasure.” Even the Court, it is stated, was anxious as to the result, many persons being of opinion that the Scots would not easily submit.

The Government of England certainly did not at this time display any of that timidity in dealing with their own ecclesiastical matters which was complained of in their Scottish brethren. The present volume contains many papers in reference to the cases of Prynne, Burton, and Bastwick. In them the members of the three great professions were simultaneously warned of the danger of commenting upon the notions or opinions of the constituted authorities, either in church or state. The writings objected to were, in accordance with the fashion of the times, occasionally rough in language and coarse in taste.* They were also not unfrequently tainted, like all controversial publications, by the imputation of concealed motives, and by unfairness in the statement of facts. But however high we raise the estimate of the misconduct of the persons accused, it must be allowed that their punishment was not merely excessive,—it was brutal, a disgrace to the age and to our country. The judgment formed upon it by the people at large was conclusively in opposition to that of the Government. This point could be established by a multitude of authorities, and even among the papers in the present Calendar it receives striking and unquestionable corroboration.

The inhumanity of Lord Chief Justice Finch, the Jeffreys

* A remarkable proof of the coarseness of speech and language which belonged to that period occurs in our present volume. Sir John Lambe, as is well known, was a man of station and importance. He was Dean of the Arches, and Judge of the Prerogative Court, and shortly after the time of which we write was appointed Chancellor to Queen Henrietta Maria. He was a leading spirit in the Court of High Commission, and for many years was the trusted and almost the only intimate friend and adviser of Archbishop Laud. His daughter Barbara, who ultimately married Basil Fielding, Earl of Denbigh, was at this time in her spinster state. She had many suitors, and did not always manage them with the calmness which her father deemed politic. On one occasion the young lady received a written offer from a gentleman, who seems to have dwelt in his letter quite as much upon the length of his pedigree as upon the strength of his affection or the power of his purse. Miss Barbara sent the letter to her father. He was already in communication with Lord Fielding, and treated the new applicant with infinite disdain. His genealogical explanations were made a subject of acrimonious merriment. Wit or humour Sir John had none. His raillery took the most vulgar form. So coarse was it, so merely dirty and offensive, that some of his unsavoury remarks, expressed without concealment or periphrasis, and occurring in a letter addressed to his youthful daughter, were found too nasty to be inserted in our Calendar.

of his day, in commenting at the trial on what he deemed the insufficient way in which Prynne's ears had been cut off under a previous sentence, was one incident which produced a strong impression on the public mind. Calling upon the usher of the Court, the Chief Justice directed him to put back the long hair by which the poor mangled victim sought to cover the tokens of his mutilation, and exhibited to the high authorities who composed the Court how much less cruel the hangman had been than they. Sir Thomas Roe, remarking to Lord Conway on a libel published in France, shows how this incident rankled in his memory. "I received the enclosed," he writes, "this week from my friar, as a curiosity, and because England is no air for any libel, I send it to you to sea, that it may find salt there, for it hath gall enough. I wonder how they keep their ears in France, or whether their hair abuse us not. My Lord Finch would suspect any of that nation if he had seen this paper, and considered their locks." (Vol. cccxiv., No. 47.)

As Bastwick passed from the Gatchouse where he was imprisoned, to Palace Yard, in order to undergo his sentence, "the light common people strewed herbs and flowers before him. Prynne and he stood upon one scaffold, and Mr. Burton upon another. They all three talked to the people. Bastwick said they had collar days in the King's Court, and this was his collar day in the King's palace. He was pleasant and witty all the time. Prynne protested his innocency to the people of what was laid to his charge. Mr. Burton said, it was the happiest pulpit he ever preached in. After two hours the hangman began to cut off their ears. He began with Mr. Burton's. There were very many people. They wept and grieved much for Mr. Burton, and at the cutting off

“ each ear there was such a roaring as if every one of them “ had at the same instant lost an ear. Bastwick gave the “ hangman a knife, and taught him to cut off his ears “ quickly, and very close, that he might come there no “ more. The hangman hewed off Prynne’s ears very “ seriously, which put him to much pain, but [and?]
“ after, he stood long on the scaffold before his head could “ be got out, but that was a shame.” (Vol. ccclxiii., “ No. 42.)

“ The common people,” remarks the same writer, “are extremely compassionate towards them,” (ibid., No. 119.,) and Sir Kenelm Digby, who had recently gone back to the church of Rome, tells us of the “great flocking of the people” who accompanied Prynne and Burton’s “pilgrimage to their stations in the country,” by which he means their leaving London, on their way to the places of their imprisonment in various castles in remote parts of England and Wales. He remarks also on the veneration with which the Puritans kept “the bloody sponges and “ handkerchiefs that did the hangman service in the “ cutting off their ears,” adding, with something of a sneer, “ you may see how nature leads men to respect relics of “ martyrs.” (Vol. ccclxiv., No. 68.)

Two examinations calendared in this volume (Vol. ccclxviii., No. 14.,) fully corroborate the facts stated by Sir Kenelm Digby. On the removal of Prynne, people resorted to him in the streets and highways, and some prayed for him, some gave him good wishes, some shook him by the hand, and others made presents to his keepers of money and tobacco, and entreated them to be as kind to their prisoner as they might be. At Barnet, Prynne stayed to have his branded face and mangled ears dressed, and there, doubtless by pre-arrangement, about twenty of his friends met him, and gave him a farewell dinner, little dreaming how soon the system which had converted him into a martyr would crumble to pieces, how short a period would elapse before his triumphant return. His keepers found the dinner prepared, and the hosts assembled. They partook of the friendly meal, and permitted their prisoner to do the same, asking no questions, and being unable, when examined upon the subject, to reveal the names of the entertainers.

When Burton left London there occurred a similar scene, with the exception of the parting dinner. "Great store of people" met him, some exclaiming, God bless you! some God be with you! and some giving him money.

England and Wales were found too narrow to contain places of imprisonment sufficiently secluded for culprits whom the people followed so affectionately. After a few weeks they were removed to stations presumed to be more inaccessible to kindness or fellow-feeling than the mountains of North Wales, the moors of Lancashire, or the remote district of the south-westernmost county of England. At Carnarvon, in consequence of the ruinous condition of the castle, Prynne was obliged to dwell with his keeper, which was thought to be too much like liberty, although the man could not speak a word of English. The prisoner was consequently transferred to Jersey, where he fortunately found a gentleman for his gaoler, and fell into educated and compassionate society. Some objection also was discovered against Lancaster as a place of confinement for Burton, who was consequently transferred to Guernsey, whilst Bastwick was at the same time removed from Launceston to Scilly. (Vol. ccclxvii., Nos. 90, 91, 92.)

Another legal case, which occupied a great deal of attention, especially at Court, during the year 1637, and is the subject of many papers in the present volume, was that of Bishop Williams. We have here copious notes of the long hearing of the principal suit against him which came to a sentence. In many respects it cannot be doubted that he was ill used. The spirit in which he was prosecuted was entirely that of personal spite and rancour; the means employed against him were harsh and unjustifiable; and the person principally engaged in securing his conviction, and who was not only rewarded for his pains by a gift of 1,000*l.* out of the Bishop's fine, but was even permitted to have an interview, if not several interviews, upon the subject of this case, with the King himself, was unquestionably a man of bad character. But, on the other hand, there was much in the Bishop's conduct that no one can approve. All the virtues by which he stands surrounded in the biography written by Bishop Hacket disappear before the minute acquaintance which one forms with his disposition and actions in these papers. Rash, vehement, impetuous, and yet cunning, ever ready with fulsome adulation towards the King, and not less ready with some trick or subterfuge in his war against Archbishop Laud, there is nothing in these revelations respecting him which can command respect, or be considered becoming to his cloth and dignity. We have neither space nor desire to enter upon the subject, but they who wish to do so will find a store of materials in this and our former volumes to which the indexes will direct them.

Among its many claims to notice, 1637 had the melancholy distinction of being one of the plague years of its period. A contemporary printed broadside, entitled "LONDON'S LORD HAVE MERCY UPON US," which occurs in our papers, Vol. ccclxvi., No. 81, gives an account of the deaths in London and the Liberties in each of these well-remembered years. In 1592 the interments from the plague were 11,505; in 1603, 30,583; in 1625, 35,428; in 1630, 1,317; in 1636, 12,102; in 1637, down to the end of July, when the disease was just beginning to slacken its ravages, the number of deaths had been 2,876. The papers relating to this subject, or arising out of it, are extremely numerous, and some of them particularly curious. London was at that time in a condition which clearly invited plague. Its ancient boundaries were far too narrow for its increased and still increasing population. Some one has compared it to a youth who has outgrown the garments of his childhood, and is pressing out at every seam. The difficulty the Londoners felt was to find house-room, and that difficulty was wonderfully increased, if not even created, by the acts and policy of the Government. Old mansions were divided and subdivided. Many families were crowded into the space originally designed for one. Sir Francis Clarke's house, in the ward of Dowgate, contained eleven married couples and fifteen single persons (p. 180); in a divided house in Silver Street ten several families dwelt in so many rooms, divers of whom had also lodgers (ibid.). Cellars began to be occupied, and such was the demand for accommodation, and of course the temptation of a considerable rent, that the Company of Free Masons divided off a part of their common hall, and let it out as three tenements (p. 178). The warnings and threatenings of the authorities against the too great subdivision of houses, and the taking-in of inmates, were all in vain. Equally so were the outcries against the increase of filth, and sickness, and parish rates, which were the consequences. The Government determined that London ought not to be larger than it was; and every attempt to build upon a piece of vacant ground, or any where save upon an old foundation, was severely repressed.

Commissioners of Buildings, with Inigo Jones as their surveyor, watched every paltry erection, even a lean-to against a garden wall, with the sternest jealousy, and speculative persons who ventured to build a row of new houses in the suburbs were pounced upon by the Council, and compelled to submit to their destruction.

A report from the College of Physicians to the Council, on the annoyances conceived likely to increase the sickness "in this populous city," is one of the papers on this subject which principally merit attention (Vol. ccclxvi., No. 78). It treats upon this very question of the increase of the metropolis and the subdivision of houses, but in a way entirely different from that in which experience and other principles of judgment teach us to view it. By the increase of buildings they argued that multitudes were drawn to London to inhabit, by which means the air was offended, and provision was made more scarce, which are the two prime means of begetting or increasing the plague. Without pausing to comment on the fallacies which are mixed up in this argument, we may add, that the practical suggestions with which the physicians follow it up are most of them such as nowadays every body allows. At that time it would seem that there was in London almost every possible breach of sanitary arrangement. Of inmates we have already spoken. Houses, the physicians declared, were so pestered with them, that in the last great plague—that we presume of 1625—the disease in houses in which they were allowed was most pernicious. There was great defect in cleansing the sewers and town ditches, and standing ponds in inns were permitted to become extremely offensive, even to the surrounding neighbourhood. To these the physicians add, the uncleanness of the streets and the abominable state of the gutters. They next comment on laystalls, in which the filth of the sewers was accumulated and made into hills ; “and much thereof, “ before it be well rotted, is employed to enrich common “ gardens, making thereby our cabbages, and many of our “ herbs, unwholesome.” To these sources of infection they add slaughter-houses and their enormities ; burials of the corpses of infected persons in churches and churchyards ; removals of bodies “not fully wasted” to make room for fresh interments ; carrying up funnels to the tops of houses from privies and vaults of the dead ; the use of musty corn, of unsound malt, and unclean casks ; the sale of the flesh of diseased cattle as food and of fish tainted and out of season. For the prevention of these “inconveniences, and many more,” the physicians recommended the institution of an Office of Health, and pointed out that in Spain and Italy, countries which had taken the lead in this branch of civilization, such an office or commission had been found useful.

Whenever the King was about to pass through any part of London or the suburbs, letters were addressed by the Council to the Lord Mayor, and beyond the city boundaries to the Justices of Peace or the parish constables, to cleanse the streets. Accumulations of filth were then hastily removed, and some little attention was given to the repair of dangerous places in the roads. Whilst the plague lasted, the chief authorities quitted the infected city, the visited houses were closed and watched, the inmates were supplied with necessities by the watchmen stationed in the streets to enforce the regulations prescribed for stamping out the disease, and the principal management of affairs was left to them, to the scavengers, and to the drivers of the burial carts. When the disease subsided there was a great return of inhabitants, and of course much to be done in the way of cleansing and fumigation. In the present year the King paid an unexpected visit to the outskirts of the city before the return of the Court. What he then saw and heard produced a letter to the Lord Mayor from Secretary Coke, which disclosed the exact state of things. The secretary intimated that his Majesty had been convinced that there was not sufficient care taken * * * for prevention of further contagion, and then proceeded with the following passage :

“Though his Majesty hath heard of some who by the overmuch care of themselves are so far transported [as] to have no sense of others, that they nourish a conceit as if the plague came only by Providence, and not by infection, and that it is to no purpose to endeavour to prevent it by any human means, yet his Majesty assureth himself that none [such] are thought worthy by the wisdom of the city to have any place or voice in the government, and therefore his Majesty conceiveth that the only cause of some slowness in the using of these ordinary remedies is the long absence of the aldermen and men of quality . . . which are but lately or scarce yet come to town. But, considering God’s great mercy hath in a manner ceased the mortality, so as daily multitudes of all sorts repair again to their dwellings, now, that by our wilful neglect of these ordinary means of preservation those that come out of fresh air may not be drawn into danger, and God, by our unthankfulness and presumption, provoked more to punish us, and that by a good course taken * * * both his Majesty may be invited to bring his Court back hither, that the terms may be kept here, and that trade may be recovered by the confluence of citizens and strangers, as heretofore, his Majesty * * * has required me * * * to put you again in mind of these things, not doubting but his Lords will require an account of the directions they have given, but to incite you in imitation of his own royal care of you to take care of yourselves. First * * * to cause the streets to be kept sweet * * * and then to appoint in every street some careful and discreet men to take order that in all lodgings and places where the infection hath been the glass may be taken down,* the rooms and stuff well aired, and fires made therein, with such other means of health as in your own wisdoms and by the advice of the College of Physicians shall be thought necessary." (Vol. ccclxx., No. 86.)

The plague interfered in some places very considerably with the levy of the ship-money, which, in 1637, was in the course of its fourth annual collection. Bury St. Edmunds, Hadleigh, Colchester, and other places made strong, and in some cases successful, appeals for an abatement. But by the continual watchfulness of Nicholas, the clerk of the Council, who was specially appointed to manage this business, and by the King's own personal attention given to the subject at his Sunday sittings in Council, the whole amount was more nearly collected during the current year than on any previous occasion. The sheriffs were in a manner made personally liable for the amount, and many of them, who were short in the amount received, paid in the full sum rather than appear before the King and Council, as they were summoned to do, to give account of what was esteemed their great negligence in the performance of their most important official duty. The correspondence on this account makes up a very large portion of the present volume. Scarcely a county was without its complaint; and what with charges of over-assessment on the one hand, and refractoriness, as it was termed, in nonpayment, on the other, the Council, Nicholas, and the referees in cases of difficulty, were kept fully employed in this novel business. In the meantime, the suits in which the legality of the imposition was to be brought in question in the courts of law were slowly approaching their termination. In November 1637, Hampden's suit 1567, it was recommended that when "my Lord quitted any of his castles or houses" the whole lights of every window should be taken down and be laid up in safety. Sash windows, it will be borne in mind, are of much more recent introduction.

first came on for argument, but judgment was not given until the following June.

Allusions occur in the course of the present volume to what was doing in the other still pending suit instituted for the same purpose as Hampden's by Lord Saye (pp. 155, 237, 252).

The application of the amount produced by the ship-money writs was this year both more and less satisfactory than on any previous occasion ; more so, in so far as related to an expedition to Sallee, which procured the release of about three hundred English captives, and relieved for a time our western coasts from those piratical incursions which of late years had been of almost annual recurrence.*

* A singular story is told in Vol. cccxx., No. 12, from which it may be inferred that these piratical ships were indebted for the accurate knowledge of the coast of England, which they so frequently displayed, and which rendered it so difficult to capture them, to English renegades. The story alluded to is that of Thomas Norton, a native of Devonshire. Being a ship carpenter, he was taken at sea, about the year 1620, by a Turkish pirate, and carried to Algiers. He was there sold as a slave, and continued in that condition for "divers years," at the end of which "he took an opportunity, and ran from his patron of Algiers to Sallee." Working there at his trade, he got employment at the rate of 4s. a day, and occasionally took a share in a piratical voyage. Things prospered with him, he saved money, and continued "at his own dispose" for several years. His patron of Algiers having at length discovered his whereabouts, repaired to Sallee, and claimed him as his slave. Norton ransomed himself out of his savings, and resumed his former occupation at Sallee, where he acquired the reputation of exceeding the Turks themselves in his cruelty to his own countrymen. In 1636 he sailed from Sallee as lieutenant of a piratical cruiser. On the coast of France they fell in with a ship of Dartmouth, laden with fish. They captured and rifled her, taking away her lading, crew, sails, ammunition, cables, and turning the ship adrift on a rocky coast, whither the owners saw her impelled and beaten to pieces. Now came the day of retribution. The Salleeman was lost in a storm near Rochelle, but those on board escaped. The Christians were released by the French ; the Turks were permitted to repair to Sallee. In this plight Norton took his passage on board an English ship for Dartmouth.

The course of Capt. Rainsborough's expedition, and its results, appear in our volume.

The achievements of the Great Fleet, as it was termed, commanded by the Earl of Northumberland, did not, in 1637, literally amount to anything at all. The only attempt to accomplish any specific object was so trifling, and so little to the credit of the English Government and the English name, that it would be well if it could be erased from historical memory for ever.

The fleet was appointed to be ready on the 1st April, and the ships were actually manned and provisioned very shortly afterwards. On the 15th April the Earl of Northumberland received his instructions, but before that day a considerable number of his ships were in the Downs, under the command of Vice-Admiral Sir John Pennington, in the Swiftsure. Pennington remained there in a state of inactivity and bewilderment from the beginning of April until the middle of June. The Earl then joined the fleet in the Triumph, and at the end of that month convoyed the Elector Palatine and Prince Rupert across the Channel to Holland. This was the great event of his command on this occasion. He subsequently cruised away to the west, as far as the Land's End. The weather was unusually bad. Scarcely a sail was to be seen in the Channel except those of "the poor fishers that dwell upon the coast" (p. 400); and after a few weeks the Earl returned to the Downs. On the 6th September he received

Landing there he resumed his trade of a carpenter, and so lived, until some persons, "unto whom he had been hard at Saltee," chanced to recognize him. Information was given; he was arrested; taken before a justice; committed to Exeter Gaol; was put upon his trial, and upon evidence of his complicity in many robberies and piracies was sentenced to death, and no doubt executed.

the King's permission to arrange for sending his ships some to Chatham and some to Portsmouth, except a winter fleet, which was to remain out under Pennington. That business settled, the Earl returned joyfully to land. Throughout the command he had been kept in a state of thorough annoyance; "no man," he wrote to Sir Thomas Roe, "was ever more desirous of a charge than I am to be quit of mine, being in a condition where I see I can neither do service nor gain credit." (Vol. ccclxv., No. 28.)

During the Earl's cruise to the west there occurred the solitary attempt at performing a piece of service to which we have alluded. Last year, as appeared in our previous volume, the Earl was employed to force upon the Dutch fishermen licences from his Majesty for plying their trade off the eastern coast of England. Tendered as they were by ships-of-war, the licences were received and paid for, but the Government and people of Holland instantly took fire. They were prepared to contest his Majesty's claim to the sovereignty of the seas, even by war; and in order to prevent a recurrence of the enforcement of such a claim, they sent out, on the present occasion, ships-of-war with their fishermen. There was then an endeavour made on the part of the English Government to procure a virtual recognition of the King's sovereignty from the Spanish Government in Flanders, by obtaining their passes for all fishermen who took our King's licences. This having failed, "his Majesty hath hereupon commanded me," writes Secretary Windebank to the Earl of Northumberland (Vol. ccclxiii., No. 21.), "to send your Lordship these licences, being about 200, which go herewith; and withal his pleasure is, that you despatch immediately one of the merchant ships under your charge (being not “ willing to employ any of his own until it appear what “ the success will be) toward the north with these licences, “ with order to make offer of them to the fishers, and if “ they accept them, to distribute them at the same rates

“ they were taken the last year. And if such as take “ them shall desire to be safe-conducted in their return, “ your Lordship is to assure them his Majesty will take “ them into his protection, and cause some of his fleet to “ accompany them homewards for their defence.”

Anything more futile than this cunning little proposed bye-play with the fishermen can scarcely be imagined. Northumberland seems to have been desirous to force upon the King and his Secretary a little reconsideration, and wrote for instructions upon a point which was already sufficiently clear. His letter brought further explanation.

“ The truth is, his Majesty in this present conjuncture is not willing to proceed so roundly with them [i.e. the Dutch fishermen] as he hath done heretofore, and therefore thinks fit to hold this way of inviting them fairly to acknowledge his right without sending his whole fleet, which would be a manifest engagement and obligation to him in honour to perfect the work upon any conditions, and notwithstanding any opposition whatsoever, and might be of dangerous consequence, and destructive to the present condition of his affairs. And therefore he chooses rather to attempt it with as little noise as may be, that if the business take not in this way it may receive the less blow, and in case of their refusal he may have time deliberately to consider what resolution to settle.” (Ibid. No. 41.)

Capt. Richard Fielding was sent on this employment in a merchant ship called the Unicorn of London. As soon as he arrived among the fishing busses, one of the Holland men-of-war came and lay by his lee. When the Dutch captain understood the nature of Fielding's errand, he desired him to speak with his Admiral. Fielding did so. The Admiral's answer, and that of the other commanders, was, that they durst not let Fielding's boat pass among the busses before they had order from their masters.

Thus the business came practically to an end, but not so the comments upon it, which were of a nature far from pleasant to the King. To blunt their edge, and if it were possible to make the world believe that the act of folly had been in truth an act of generosity, Mr. Secretary Windebank, shortly after Capt. Fielding's return, wrote thus to Capt. Richard Fogg, who had the command in the Downs in the absence of the Earl of Northumberland in the west :—

“ There hath been a great report raised here that the Hollanders have refused his Majesty's licences to fish in his seas intended to have been offered them by Capt. Fielding. But it is utterly mistaken, seeing Capt. Fielding was sent to the busses to offer them protection, his Majesty having understood that the Dunkirkers had prepared a great strength to intercept them in their return from the fishing, which his Majesty in love to them sent Capt. Fielding to give them notice of, and to offer them safe conduct. This you are publicly to advow whensoever there shall be occasion, and to cry down the other discourse as scandalous and derogatory to his Majesty's honour.” (Vol. ccclxv., No. 51.)

On the same day Secretary Windebank wrote also to the Earl of Northumberland on the same subject.

“ Besides the direction I have given to Capt. Fogg to suppress the report of the Holland fishers refusing his Majesty's licences offered them, whereof his Majesty is very sensible, I had special commandment from his Majesty to give the same in charge to your lordship, and that you should do it in the same way that I have directed him, namely, that his being sent to the busses was to give them notice of the forces prepared by the Dunkirkers to intercept them in their return, and to offer them his Majesty's protection, but no licences; that of the licences being to be cried down, and the other to be advowed and reported through the whole fleet. To which purpose your lordship is to instruct Capt. Fielding, whom his Majesty understands to have been too free in spreading the former report, and therefore he is to be admonished to be more reserved hereafter in such great services, and in the meantime to make reparation by divulging this and suppressing the former." (Vol. ccclxv., No. 53.)

The Earl of Northumberland, in a private letter written nearly three years after this time, declared that he believed Secretary Windebank to be "the basest and falsest creature that lives." (Sydney Papers, II., 655.) The transaction which we have disclosed may have been one of those upon which the Earl founded his belief.

The present volume, like all its predecessors, contains many valuable papers respecting the evil fortunes of the Queen of Bohemia. We have here a narrative, told piecemeal in several letters, of the endeavours made in vain by the young Elector Palatine to induce his uncle, King Charles, to give him assistance towards the recovery of his hereditary dominions. He and his brother Prince Rupert remained in England until near the end of July 1637, Rupert entering energetically into all the gaieties of the Court, and his elder brother learning by severe experience the bitterness of a long-continued series of fruitless supplications. The King, no doubt, felt an interest in his nephew's fortunes, and desired to assist him, but when definite proposals were put before him he never could see anything in them but their difficulties. There was sure to be some obstacle to his doing what was desired at the particular moment when it was asked. Worn out by a policy which looked like subterfuge, the Queen of Bohemia recalled her sons. They were dismissed with all possible kindness and show of favour. The young Elector was of a nature which rendered his residence at Court or anywhere else harmless, but Rupert was in a position of danger. His youth, remarks Sir Thomas Roe, is too precious to be trained here.

“ It is infinite pity he is not employed according to his “ genius, for whatsoever he undertakes he doth it vigor“ ously and seriously. His nature is active and spriteful, “ and may be compared to steel, which is the commanding “ mettle, if it be rightly tempered and disposed, for he
“ that hath the best sword will take any other man’s gold,

Papers in the present year, 1637, show what was probably a re-introduction into this country of the practice of voting by ballot in matters of public business. The regulation of the English churches in Holland in strict conformity with the usages of the National Church was a subject to which the active mind of Archbishop Laud did not fail to give attention. These churches afforded a harbour of refuge to dissatisfied spirits among the clergy of this country, and, under their guidance, congregations were apt to lay aside the Book of Common Prayer, and deviate into other irregularities, which were regarded with great repugnance by the Archbishop. In restraining these variations, a great deal depended upon the deputies or resident agents at the mart or staple towns of the company of Merchant Adventurers, who had large establishments in those towns for the management of their traffic in cloth, then the principal article of commerce between England and the centre of Europe. The appointment of the deputy was, therefore, a great object, ecclesiastically as well as commercially, and Archbishop Laud strove earnestly that these offices should fall into the hands of persons friendly to his views. On a particular vacancy of the deputyship at Rotterdam, the King recommended the appointment of Edward Misselden, a member of the Merchant Adventurers, and a very well-known person, but for some reasons, which it is not necessary to enter into, extremely unpopular with a large body of the company. The royal recommendation was unfavourably received. It was replied to by the production of certain charges against Mr. Misselden, and, in the end, the vote of the court or governing body of the company was not favourable to his election.

When the result was reported to the Council, it also appeared that the Company had come to their determination on the choice propounded by his Majesty by a vote taken by ballot. The King was present in Council when this report was made, and set his face very determinedly against this presumed novelty in English voting. His Majesty ordered, “ with the advice of the Board . . . that a balloting box “ shall be no more used by the said Company, nor by any “ other company in any of their elections or other businesses, as they tender his Majesty’s displeasure, and will “ answer the same at the Board.” These words occurred as part of an order which contained other matters specially applicable to the Merchant Adventurers. That there might be no mistake, another order of a general character was made on the same day, to be communicated to all corporations, and especially to the city companies, for their guidance. It runs thus :—

“ At Hampton Court this 17th of September 1637.

“ His Majesty this day sitting in Council, taking into consideration the manifold inconveniences that may arise by the use of balloting boxes, which is of late begun to be practised by some corporations and companies, did declare his utter dislike thereof, and with the advice of their lordships ordered that no corporation nor company, either within the city of London and liberties, or elsewhere in this his Majesty’s kingdom, shall use or permit to be used, in any business whatsoever, any balloting box, as they tender his Majesty’s displeasure, and will answer the contrary at their peril ; whereof as well the Lord Mayor of the city of London for the time being, and all other Mayors and head Officers of Corporations, as all Governors, Masters, and Wardens of all companies in and about the cities of London and Westminster, and elsewhere, are to take notice, and to see this his Majesty's pleasure and commandment duly observed." (Vol. ccelxvii., No. 85.)*

Papers relating to church affairs abound in our volume. As specimens, we shall refer to some few of particular curiosity or importance.

i. An explanatory order by Bishop Davenant, of Salisbury, prohibiting the removal of the communion table from the east wall of the chancel of the church of Aldbourn in Wilts. (Vol. ccelvi., No. 122.)

ii. A letter from the King to the Corporation of York, requiring them to attend the service in the cathedral on Sundays and holidays, but forbidding the Lord Mayor to use the ensigns of his authority within the church. The Lord Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen were further ordered "at some solemn times in every year" to receive the communion in the said church, "to manifest their

* It was at first too hastily concluded that these papers referred to the primary introduction of voting by ballot in public business in this country, but evidence occurs in the Repertories of the City of London that a new gilt box, brought in by the Chamberlain, whereon was written these words "Yea" and "Nay," and into which the voters dropped "white or black peas," was used for taking divisions in the Court of Aldermen for, at any event, seven years during the reign of Henry VIII. (See Orridge's Account of the Citizens of London and their Rulers. Lond. 8vo. [1867], p. 260.) A subsequent endeavour to introduce the ballot-box into the House of Commons is worthy of observation. In October 1646, when the Civil War was at an end, and the person of the King was about to be delivered up to the Parliament, a committee was appointed by the House of Commons for considering and reporting what payment ought to be made to major-generals. On the same day the question was propounded for referring to the same committee to consider of a balloting box, and the use of it, and to present their opinions to the House. On a division on the previous question Cromwell and Sir Arthur Hazelrig were tellers for the noes, who were 54, Sir Philip Stapleton and Sir William Lewes tellers of the yeas, who were 55. The original question being then put, with the same tellers, the yeas were 54 and the noes 56, "so that the question passed with the negative."—Journ. Commons, IV. 690.

“ conformity to the orders established in the said church.

iii. A certificate of the performance of penance, and consequent absolution, of the churchwardens of Beekington, Somerset, who had been excommunicated for not placing the communion table of that church under the east wall of the chancel, and had “ in most contemptuous manner ” stood excommunicated for one whole year, “ not “ regarding nor fearing the dreadful censure of the Church, “ and have likewise some days last past stood aggravated, “ and have been signified unto the King’s most excellent “ Majesty for the apprehending their bodies and committing them to the common gaol of the county of Somerset, “ the rather to compel them to their due obedience to the “ lawful command of the Church.” (Vol. ccclxiii., No. 91.)

iv. A similar certificate of the performance of penance for incontineney by Sir Edward Bellingham, in the church of Newtimber, Sussex. The penitent, being arrayed in a white linen sheet over his clothes and a long white wand in his hand, was to stand near the minister’s reading desk or pew, and immediately after the reading of the gospel, in the sight and hearing of the congregation was to say after the minister a prescribed form of what would now be deemed exceedingly coarse words. In these he acknowledged his offence, and declared that he was heartily sorry for the same, and earnestly repented thereof, and craved pardon of Almighty God, and forgiveness of all whom he had thereby offended. He added that he faithfully promised and purposed (God assisting him) never thereafter to commit the like offence, and that he might keep his promise, he desired all present to pray with him and for him, saying, Our Father, &c. (Vol. ccclxv., No. 30.)

v. Church notes taken during an ecclesiastical visitation of probably the archdeaconry of Buckingham. They comprise notes of the condition of about 120 churches in the county of Buckingham. The state of the fabric, and of the seats, the communion table with its fittings, the pulpit, reading desk, and font, the vestments of the clergy, the service books, the register, the organ, the poor man's box, and all the ordinary furniture of a church are here mentioned, and in many cases with a great variety of curious particulars. We have printed in the Calendar, at p. 398, the entry relating to Beaconsfield, from which the nature of these notes may be inferred. (Vol. ccclxvi., No. 79., and Vol. ccclxix., No. 59.) And we may add, that under Horton, the parish to which Milton's father retired from his business in Bread Street, besides many other particulars which tend to give us a notion of the state of the fabric of the church, with its ornaments and furniture, at the very time when Milton himself worshipped in it for several years, we learn that MR. MILTON's seat, like those of several of his fellow parishioners, fell under the condemnation of the archdeacon or other visitor, as being probably an inch or two above the strict uniformity of the regulation height. Other parishes will yield much matter of curiosity or interest, especially to local inquirers; we therefore add in a note * a list of all evening prayer, the parson always provided a church-feast in the church of bread and cheese and ale or beer, for the refreshing of those ancient people that repaired to evening prayer, having received the holy sacrament the same day in the morning, and also for relief of the poor of the parish that repair thither for relief, and have always had sufficient provision of bread and cheese given them by the inhabitants to serve them and their families a good space afterwards. About 50 years past it was ordered by the then Archbishop of Canterbury that this feast should be thenceforth kept, not in the church but in the parsonage house. It had been so kept until the last Easter, when Samuel Bركةley, the present rector, discontinued the custom altogether. The inhabitants appealed to the archbishop for its revival. His Grace's answer was not encouraging: "I shall not go about to break this " custom, so it be done in the parsonage house in a " neighbourly and decent way; but I cannot approve of " the continuance of it in the church, and if ever I shall " hear it be so done again I will not fail to call the " offenders into the High Commission." The peculiarities in this case are of course the ale and beer, the general dole of bread and cheese provided by the inhabitants, and that the aged recipients seem to have consumed the articles provided for their feast in the church. In these respects it differed from the distributions of bread which still continue in some churches.*

vii. In Vol. ccclxx., No. 90., there occurs a paper of articles in the Court of High Commission against Anthony

* At Benenden in Kent there is, or was until lately, a general distribution on Easter Sunday of rolls of a peculiar form to all comers. (See Brand's Popular Antiquities, ed. 1854, vol 1. p. 94, and Hone's Every Day Book, ii., 443.)

Bourne and Edmund Hewitt, churchwardens of Knotting in the county of Bedford, which discloses a state of things almost analogous to the mediæval Fête de l'Ane. Without that recollection it would be incredible. It is charged against them that upon Shrove Tuesday in the years 1634, 1635, and 1636, fighting cocks were brought into the chancel of the church of Knotting, and cock-fighting was there held in front of the communion table, in the presence of many persons assembled as spectators of the sport, who betted and laid wagers and performed "the other offices ordinarily used by cock-fighters." It was also charged that the churchwardens, with a son of Anthony Bourne, Mr. Alvey, the minister of the parish, and some of his sons, and many other persons, both youths and men, were present on the occasion, and "laughed and " sported, and used other gestures and carriages belonging " to cock-fighting." The result of the proceedings has not been discovered.

In spite of plague and all other drawbacks, the year 1637 had its share, although with maimed ceremonies, of those events which interest the general public, and furnish materials for the news writer. Our Calendar deals with many such incidents. One was the launch of the King's Great Ship, esteemed a marvel of magnitude and beauty of construction. She was in length, by the keel, 127 feet; in breadth, within side the plank, $46\frac{1}{2}$ feet; in depth, from the upper edge of the keel to the line of her extreme breadth, 19 feet 4 inches; in ton and tonnage, by the new rule, 1,522 tons, by the old rule, 1,823. (Vol. cccxi., No. 71.) The King was very anxious to have her launched. The 25th September 1637 was the earliest possible date. His Majesty determined for it. More experienced heads suggested that there would be a saving of expense and time, and that it would be more convenient in many ways if the launch were delayed until the 5th of February. The King's answer was peremptory: "I am not of your opinion." (Ibid., No. 73.) Many persons thought that his Majesty would change his mind; but it was not so. The launch took place as ordered, but with little ceremony. The ship received the proud name of the Sovereign of the Seas, and we find About Pett, the builder, or his son, petitioning that, according to the King's promise, he might have the silver forth kept, not in the had been christened, worth about 40s. (Vol. cclxx., No. 82.) After she was launched, the King directed that she should be carried down to Erith. The Officers of the Navy reported that the open river at that place was a bad situation for her to lie in. Two ships had been injured by ice in that very spot during the last winter. But the King's order was imperative, so, with much work still to be done upon her, to Erith she was floated down, there to lie exposed and useless during the winter. (Vol. cclxxi., No. 89; and see p. 544.)

Two noble marriages are mentioned in the course of this Volume. One was that of the Lady Mary Villiers, only daughter of the favourite Buckingham. Nearly three years before this time, when little more than a child, she had been united to Lord Charles Herbert, son of Philip Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, but her youthful husband died at Florence of the small pox before they came to live together. The King's influence brought about, although not without difficulty, a match between the young widow and his Majesty's relative, James, Duke of Lennox. They were united on the 3rd August 1637, with as much splendour as could be managed in a capital forsaken by all persons who could get away. Archbishop Laud informs us, in his Diary, that he married the young couple in his chapel at Lambeth; that the day was very rainy, and that the King was present. Our papers add, that the King gave away the bride, and that he and the Queen came on the occasion from Oatlands. The Duchess of Buckingham, the mother of the bride, conducted her daughter to the Archbishop's palace. Being a Roman Catholic, the Duchess did not enter the chapel, but after the service she accompanied the King, with the bride and bridegroom, to York House, which was her residence. There her Majesty was waiting for them, and there the Duchess feasted their Majesties, with their court, "extremely nobly." At night their Majesties put the bride and bridegroom in bed, and visited them the next morning on their way from Somerset House to Oatlands. There follows a list of the principal persons who were present, and it is added that there was no dancing nor any other entertainment than a comedy, wherein the Queen was better content to venture for an ill one than to choose any which she had already seen.* The only presents that are commemorated are those of Frances, Duchess Dowager of Richmond and Lennox, widow of Ludovick, the second Duke of Lennox, uncle to the bridegroom, who, on the morning of the marriage, sent 5,000*l.* worth of jewels to the bride, and 5,000*l.* in pieces to the Duke. (Vol. ccclxv., No. 25.)

The other marriage of the year was that of the Lady Anne

* Besides the Queen's fondness for dramatic entertainments, there might on this occasion be some feeling of compassion for the "poor players," whose performances had been long prohibited on account of the plague; see the passages referred to in our Index under the title "Plays and Players."

Carr, the only child of the Earl of Somerset, the favourite of James I., by the too-celebrated Frances Howard, the divorced wife of the Earl of Essex. The story of the strong attachment which sprung up between Lady Anne and Lord Russell, the heir to the earldom of Bedford, who had been warned by his father against falling in love with the daughter of such a mother, is well known. The prohibition led to its own breach; but it was very difficult to reconcile the Earl of Bedford to the family connexion. When the strength and energy of the mutual affection of the young couple became apparent, friends strove to overcome the Earl's repugnance, but in vain. Ultimately the King took upon him to be their solicitor. The Earl then yielded, and the marriage took place, but, as we are told in a paper in Vol. cccxiii., No. 119., "with all the privacy that might be. They kept their marriage at Mr. Carr's house, right against the Burse in the Strand. It was so private as there was very little notice taken of it." *

Among deaths during 1637, besides those of the Earls of Norwich, Bath, and Clare, and of Lord Petre, there was one which merits more notice than we can bestow upon it—that of RARE BEN JONSON. His mere name, and the recollection of what he had done, had for some years kept alive his art in England; poetry died for a time with him. None of his poetical sons inherited enough of his inspiration to be worthy to be regarded as his successor. His death is noticed in our volume in connexion with the vacancy it occasioned in one of his offices; that of historian or historiographer to the city of London. The King recommended Thomas May to be appointed his successor. (Vol. cccclxvi., No. 66.)

* The Earl was ultimately won over by the many good qualities of his beautiful daughter-in-law. She had a very large family, and among them was the mother of the celebrated William Lord Russell, executed in 1683. Her husband became the first Duke of Bedford, by creation in 1694.

Illustrations of manners abound throughout the volume. We will quote two examples illustrative of the then dangers of traversing the streets of London, and one connected with a popular superstition, probably not yet quite extinct.

On the 3rd of July 1637, about ten o'clock in the morning, three gentlemen who had been at the Dutch Ambassador's house in Warwick Lane were returning westwards down Snow Hill. They were Mr. John Mohun, son and heir of Lord Mohun, Cassius Borough, son of Sir John Borough, Garter, and the Rev. Obadiah Gossop, chaplain to Lord Mohun. In attendance upon them were a servant of Mr. Mohun and a page of Lord Mohun. Crossing Snow Hill to avoid a cart which was standing in the way (there was no pavement in those days,) they had scarcely got to the other side of the street when a coach crossed over, as they had done, to avoid the cart, and came suddenly upon them. Mr. Mohun was the foremost of the party, and the horses of the coach were so close to him as to put him in danger of being crushed against the houses. In self-defence, Mr. Mohun struck ~~one~~ of the horses with a cane which he had in his hand. The coachman then lashed Mr. Mohun with his whip, who in return struck at him with his cane, and thus there passed several blows on either side. Mr. Mohun's servant, whose name was John Ennis, a Dutchman, seeing the fray, drew his sword in his master's defence, and aimed at the coachman. Thereupon one that sat in the boot of the coach followed the servant's example, and made several thrusts at Mr. Mohun, which he fortunately “bore off” with his cane. Cassius Borough in the meantime perceiving that the mêlée was becoming general, drew his sword, rather, he states, to defend himself than to offend others; but at that moment Lord Savage, who was in the coach, and whose coach it was, which none of them had known up to that moment, called out to Cassius Borough by name, which occasioned him to desist. The coachman at the same time urged on his horses, and just as the coach was passing, Mr. Mohun, who had now got out his sword, struck at the coach, apparently at random, and without knowing that he ran a risk of hurting any one. It so happened that Lord Lumley, who was sitting with Lord Savage in the coach, was wounded. The Mohun party were taken before Mr. Secretary Windebank, and young Mohun was committed by order of the Council to the Fleet; to which order the King, as we are told, subsequently added a direction that the Attorney General should put an information against Mohun into the Star Chamber. (Vol. ccclxiii., Nos. 36, 37, and 119.)

The other case happened to no less a person than a grandson of Queen Elizabeth's Lord Burghley, the Earl of Exeter, who lived in the old priory house of St. John of Jerusalem in Clerkenwell. This great nobleman was riding in his coach, with all customary state, when two draymen, William Willis and John Collins, in mere wilfulness ran their cart against the Earl's vehicle, and overthrew it. It does not appear that there ensued any particular damage, but the draymen were insolent, and probably drunken. Before the collision, “those that were” with my Lord willed them to stand still till the coach “was past.” The draymen merely replied “Hold your prating!” and drove on.

The draymen were committed to the New Prison in Clerk-

enwell, and afterwards were brought before the Council. It was ordered that they should be indicted; and not satisfied with leaving them to the law, the Council further directed that they should be “whipped through the town.” The jurors either thought the whipping to be irregular, or considered it sufficient, and therefore, contrary, as it is said, “to the testimony of four witnesses,” acquitted the prisoners. The matter was again brought before the Council on the 19th July 1637, at a sitting in which the King deigned to be present, and “it was thought fit and ordered by his Majesty and the Board” that Willis and Collins should be presently whipped publicly through the town, as well for their bold and insolent carriage towards the Earl, as also for an example to deter others from the like insolencies and misdemeanours. After their whipping they were to be committed to Bridewell to be kept at work till further order.

Either this order was in the first instance humanely misunderstood by the clerk of the Council, or an imperfect copy of it was sent by mistake to the King, for on the 11th July there came a letter to Secretary Coke from Lord Holland, intimating that his Majesty, having seen the order, conceived there was a mistake in drawing it up, “his purpose being that these fellows should have a public, not a private, punishment for example to others,” thereby “to terrify and humble these rude and barbarous persons. “Sir,” the Earl continued, addressing the Secretary, “the enquiry and performance of this his Majesty hath commanded me to lay upon you, and to give him an account of it.”

On the day following the date of this letter the sentence of the Council was carried out. The prisoners were publicly whipped through the town, at a cart, and were afterwards committed to Bridewell. (Vol. cccclxiii., Nos. 18, 82, and 104.)

Several papers occur relating to a number of cures supposed to be worked by the touch of the hand of a seventh son, a case which created a great deal of excitement in the west of England. The facts are stated with minuteness in a report upon the subject by Bishop Pierce, of Bath and Wells. The child who, in November 1637, was in the sixth year of his age, was the son of a man named William Gilbert, at one time a butcher, but then a husbandman, at Priestleigh in the parish of Doultling in Somersetshire. At the child's birth, which took place on a Sunday, his grandmother, who performed the office of midwife, spread abroad the opinion that being a seventh son, without any intervening daughter, if he should touch any wen before he was christened he should heal it, and that, we presume even after the performance of the sacred rite, he should be fortunate in doing cures. The old woman's doctrine was tried on the day after the child's birth on the person of a neighbour. A wen which troubled him was stroked by the child's hand, with presumed good effect. The child was christened on the Sunday following, and at the christening dinner some one at the table gave out that this child might do great wonders. Nine months afterwards, Henry Poynting, a bone-setter, gave new currency to the opinion of the child's power, by spreading abroad that it was to be read in print, in a book called "A Thousand Notable Things," (London, 1612,) that "It is manifest by experience that the seventh " male child by just order (never a girl or wench being " born between) doth heal only with touching (through a " natural gift) the King's evil, which is a special gift of
" God given to Kings or Queens, as daily experience doth

“ witness.” The production of this printed evidence worked conviction throughout the neighbourhood. Poynting sent a niece of his to be touched for a swelling, which soon afterwards got well, and from that time the marvel grew and spread. Poynting and the schoolmaster of the parish were stated to have settled a very orderly method for the child’s proceeding, and patients began to flock to be touched. Monday mornings were set apart for the operation. The child touched fasting and the patients came fasting. They were touched three Monday mornings in a row, otherwise it was conceived there would be no cure; and when the child began to speak he was taught to say, “ I touch, and God heals.” Up to the spring of 1637 there had not been more than 20 persons touched. From that time the number rapidly increased. Early in the September following there came eight or nine on a Monday morning, and by November the applicants had numbered 30 and sometimes 40 at a time, flocking to Priestleigh out of all the surrounding counties, including persons of all ranks, and filling all the inns, alchouses, and the houses of private people in the neighbourhood. Many of the touched after a while grew better, which was accepted as sufficient proof of the marvellous power; but still some doubted, and it was admitted that some persons were never a whit the better, and that the child had touched his own mother for a great swelling in her feet, and that it did her no good at all. The Bishop’s report, which is a very able and satisfactory paper, concludes by negativing all imposture or deceit; it was a case of simple credulity. The father had been a little puffed up by the importance which the circumstances had given him in the neighbourhood, but he promised obedience to the command of the Council, conveyed to him by the Bishop, not to permit his child to touch any more, adding that he should be much troubled to put off the people who would apply. The child told the Bishop that he must take no money for touching, for then he could not heal, and it did not appear that he had received any other presents than fruit, sugar, points, garters, skarves, and such like trifles. (Vol. ccclxxi., No. 120.)

It will be seen that, viewed as a contribution to the history of the leading events of the period, or to history in that wider meaning of the word which comprehends all those things which make up the life and being, the social condition and national status of the people, our present volume will bear comparison with any of its predecessors. From the study of these materials there is imbibed a knowledge of the real character of the period, and of the causes and nature of the revolution which was hastening on, which cannot be derived from any other source.

In compiling the present volume, I am pleased to acknowledge that I have had, as on former occasions, the valuable assistance of Mr. William Douglas Hamilton and Mr. Alfred Lowson.

Volume of Entries of Minutes of Proceedings of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty. The entries in this volume run from the 15th April 1637 to the 28th February 1639-1640. They will be found calendared in our pages in their proper chronological order.

VOL. CCCLIV. APRIL 15-30, 1637.

- April 15. 1. Sir John Bankes and Sir Edward Littleton, Attorney and Solicitor-General, to the King. Report on the differences between the bishop, dean and chapter of Salisbury, and the mayor and citizens of the same city. Conceive it fit that the bishop, the mayor, the dean, the recorder, and some of the canons and some of the aldermen be justices of the peace, and that the bishop, the mayor, the dean, and the recorder, or any two of them, be of the quorum. But the mayor, recorder, and aldermen to have no power within the close. [1 p.]
- April 15. 2. William Earl of Derby to the Council. Has heard the Chester. debate of the grievances between the city of Chester and Sir William Brereton concerning watching and warding imposed upon Sir William and his tenants, and ship-money challenged of Sir William within the city. The judges were of opinion that Sir William and his tenants ought to be free of ordinary watching and warding within the city. As to ship-money, Sir William's answer was that he never refused it, and though upon the hearing he denied to pay it, alleging it to be unequal, yet since, upon second thoughts, he has paid his assessment. [Seal of crest within a garter. 1 p.]
- April 15. 3. George Langham to Sir William Becher. Has received of John Sporward the charges disbursed about the 15 pipes of wine, and prays that Sporward may have 20 days' time more to lade them aboard ship, and also an order for his releasement out of prison. [$\frac{1}{3}$ p.]

April 15. Notes by Nicholas of business to be transacted by the Lords of Whitehall. the Admiralty. Henry Dunning, master of the Swan, to answer for carrying goods to Dunkirk in vessels appointed to carry his Majesty's packets. Officers of the Navy to certify the forwardness of the fleet. Whether the Earl of Northumberland should cause the ships to fall into the Downs. Consider his instructions. The Lord Deputy says the guarding of the Severn should not be at the charge of Ireland; it was ever wont to be in the instructions given to the Admiral of the Irish coast. Peruse letter from Sir Henry Marten, and certificate for letters of reprisal for Mr. Henley. What shall be done with Clarke, a marshal's man, who arrested a surgeon pressed into the King's ships, and abused the messenger sent for him. Hear the complaint of Francis Vincent, a saltpetreman, against Swan and Sir John Rayney. Walker of Rochester attends. He refuses to pay the messenger's fees, and being sued for the same has brought a habeas corpus in the King's Bench, being a wrangling fellow, to avoid payment of the fees. [See April 3rd, Vol. ccclii., No. 23. 1 p.]
- April 15. 4. Petition of Francis Vincent, saltpetreman, to the Lords of the Admiralty. Mr. Swan of Southfleet, Kent, being required to carry a load of sea coals from Gravesend to the saltpetre house at Northfleet, not only refused, but being in Gravesend when nine other teams were loading he said that he had lived these forty years and never knew any such service done, and openly advised the rest not to perform the same; for which public contempt the justices of the peace have bound him to attend the Lords. Prays that he may be ordered to satisfy petitioner his damage and charges. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.] Annexed, 4. I. Note of the charges above mentioned; total, 2l. 15s. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]
- April 15. Lords of the Admiralty to Algernon Earl of Northumberland.
Whitehall. Instructions as Admiral of the Fleet, consisting of the Triumph (the Admiral's ship), with the Swiftsure, the St. George, the James, the Henrietta Maria, the Unicorn, the Rainbow, the Vanguard, the Bonaventure, the Dreadnought, the Convertive, the Mary Rose, with the pinnaces the Lion's First, Second, and Fifth Whelps, the Swan frigate, the Nicodemus frigate, the Greyhound, and the Roebuck; and of merchants' ships the Unicorn, the Industry, the Mayflower, the Richard and Mary, the Pleiades, the Margaret, the William, the Prudence, and the Royal Defence. Similar throughout to those given to him on the 7th April 1636, and calendared under that date. [Minute. See Vol. clvii., p. 151 b. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]
- April 15. The same to Officers of the Navy. His Majesty having bestowed on Thomas Earl of Arundel and Surrey, and his associates and adventurers in the fishing business, the Black George, with her tackle and furniture, ordnance excepted, the Officers are to deliver the same accordingly. [Admiralty Register, Vol. cccliii., fol. 1. $\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

April 15. The Lords of the Admiralty to Montjoy Earl of Newport, Master of the Ordnance. To order the ordnance of the Black George, at Portsmouth, to be taken out of her, and received into his Majesty's magazine. [Vol. cccliii., fol. 1. ½ p.]

April 15. The same to Officers of the Navy. Capt. Smith, last year
Whitehall. captain of the Black George, and some of the mariners, pretend that there is something due to them over and above their wages, and have desired that the bond given by Sir John Harvey and Hierome Hawley and others might not be delivered up. The Officers are to take order that they be satisfied what is due, so that the said bond may be cancelled. [Ibid., fol. 1 b. ½ p.]

April 15. The same to the Keeper of the Marshalsea. Warrant to receive Whitehall. into his custody John Walker, to be kept safe prisoner till further order. [Ibid. ½ p.]

April 15. Order of the same. John Draper having petitioned for leave to Whitehall. take the benefit of the law against Thomas Jenkins of Rochester, soldier in Upnor Castle, for 40*l.* due by bond two years since, it was ordered that Jenkins should satisfy petitioner within three months, after which leave was granted. [Ibid., fol. 2. ⅓ p.]

April 15. Similar Order. Upon certificate of Sir Henry Palmer, Comptroller of the Navy, that Capt. Goodlad had not carried in his voyage to Greenland any seamen that were pressed into his Majesty's service, his bond was ordered to be delivered up to him. [Ibid. ⅓ p.]

April 15. 5. Receipt of Sir William Russell for 60*l.* paid by Leonard Townsend on behalf of Henry Eldred, alderman of Stamford co. Lincoln, in part of 8,000*l.* charged on the said co. for ship-money by writ of 12th August last. [⅔ p.]

April 15. 6. Similar receipt for 2,497*l.* paid by Leonard Townsend on behalf of Sir Edward Hussey, sheriff of co. Lincoln, in part of the same 8,000*l.* [⅔ p.]

April 15. 7. Account of ship-money received by Sir William Russell, under writs issued in October 1636. Total, 71,911*l.* 13*s.* 2*d.* [1 p.]

April 15. 8. Edward Fenn to Nicholas. No money has been received upon account of last year's ship-money since the last of March. The total received for that account is 190,512*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, and the remainder unpaid is 12,001*l.* 14*s.* 4*d.* In November last he received of Sir Walter Norton, late sheriff of co. Lincoln, 81*l.* 1*s.* 3*d.*, which was 47*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* over and above the charge of that county. Has since been sent to by Sir William Pelham, also late sheriff of that county, to make the acquittance in his name, which he had refused to do, understanding there was some difference between the said sheriffs concerning that account. Prays directions therein. [1 p.]

VOL. CCCLIV.

April 15. Portsmouth. 9. John Goodwin to Nicholas. Yesterday Sir William Russell and Mr. Surveyor [Kenrick Edisbury], being at Portsmouth, made him a warrant to go master of the James into the Downs, if no other master came. Inquires whether he may leave his place at Portsmouth. P.S.—The ships will be all ready there by the day appointed if men come in. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

April 15. 10. See "Papers relating to Appointments in the Navy."

April 16. Whitehall. Order of the King in Council referring a petition of Sir Richard Ducie to the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of London, who are to give Sir Richard that ease and mitigation for payment of a sum assessed upon him for ship-money as may stand with the rule of equality and indifferency required by the King's writ and the instructions of the Board. [Draft. See Vol. cccli., No. 44. $\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

April 16. 11. Petition of Bishop Davenant of Salisbury, and of Richard Bayly, Dean of Salisbury and the Chapter there, to the King. The King on 6th June last referred the differences between petitioners and the mayor and citizens of Sarum to the Attorney and Solicitor-General, who have declared that they hold it fit that the Bishop and Dean of Salisbury, as also the mayor and recorder, be justices of peace, and that some others be joined in the commission. Pray that with the bishop, dean, mayor, and recorder, three of the canons of the church and three of the aldermen be joined in the commission of the peace. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten,

11. i. Minute of the King's pleasure to grant this petition. Whitehall, 16th April 1637. [$\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

April 16. Whitehall. 12. Order of Council. Ralph Bunn, John Ellyott, and others, being employed to work in the quarry at Portland for stones for the west end of St. Paul's, and there being certain vessels employed for bringing stone from Portland for repair of the said cathedral, it is ordered that all such persons as Inigo Jones shall certify to be employed in the said service shall be freed from impressment. [Copy certified by Nicholas. $1\frac{1}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

12. i. Minute of Certificate of Inigo Jones, that the Fortune of North Yarmouth, John Homer master, with seven mariners, whose names are stated, was employed for nine months in carrying stones for St. Paul's. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

April 16. 13. Another certified copy of the preceding Order of Council. [$1\frac{1}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

13. i. Minute of similar Certificate of Inigo Jones on behalf of the Willing Mind of Brett Hempston [Brighthelmstone?], John Humphrey master, with four mariners. 8th June 1637. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

April 16. 14. Another certified copy of the preceding Order of Council [$1\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

April 16. Chester. 15. Sir John Bridgeman and Richard Prythergh, Justices of Chester, to the Council. Certify that there has been a trial betwixt the mayor and citizens of Chester and Sir William Brereton concerning Sir William's freedom of toll in the said city, wherein there passed a verdict for Sir William. After verdict the counsel for the city moved in arrest of judgment, pretending some defect in awarding the venire facias, which the writers conceived not to be material, and gave judgment for Sir William. Will take order that Sir William be not molested with multiplicity of suits. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

April 16.
The Swiftsure
in the Downs.

16. Capt. John Pennington to Nicholas. On the 11th he came to an anchor in the Downs, and with him the Greyhound. The Nicodemus frigate is since come from Dunkirk. In the time of his being there, there were brought in nine sail of Holland ships, some richly laden, and amongst them 109 brave horses of service, and eight brave dapple grey horses for the French King's own coach. The Greyhound spoke with a bark of Guernsey, which informed Rabenett, her master, that she left six sail of French men-of-war at the Cowes of 24, 22, and 20 pieces of ordnance, all Flemish built, who gave out that they were bound for the northwards to join with the Hollanders for guarding the fishermen. Desires to hear from him at least once a week by the Sandwich or Dover post. Prays Nicholas to let him know how the Prince Elector's sea design goes on, and what Sir Henry Mervin does, and how he has been looked upon by the King and others since his coming home. The Admiral has given the writer order to make his addresses to him, so that he fears to write to the Lords, for he finds there are exceptions enough against him. Wishes to know whether Lieut. Fox has a warrant to come down to the writer's ship. [2 pp.]

April 16. 17. Certificate of Inigo Jones that the Grace of Weymouth, with John Beere, master, and eight mariners, was employed in the transport of stone from Portland to London for repair of St. Paul's. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

April 16. 18. Note of amount levied and paid for ship-money under writs issued in October 1636. Paid to Sir William Russell, 74,468*l.*; levied but remaining in the hands of the sheriffs, 26,870*l.*; in all 101,338*l.*, which is 12,192*l.* more than was expressed in the paper presented the last of March. [1 p.]

April 17. 19. Warrant to pay to James Duart, the King's jeweller, 300*l.*, Westminster. for a fair diamond in form of a heart facetted and set in a ring and presented to Frederick Landgrave of Hesse. [7 lines.]

April 17. 20. Sir Edmund Verney to the Council. Certifies his proceedings upon reference of a petition of the prisoners in the Marshalsea. [$\frac{1}{3}$ p.] Annexed, 20. I. Thirty-five poor prisoners in the Marshalsea to the Council. Certify that Sir Edmund Verney had ordered that they should be relieved to the full concerning their beer and ale; ordering also wholesome orders for their relief; also that no new, unjust, or exacted fees should be required of them. 17th April 1637. [1 p.]

April 17.
Chatham.

21. Sir Henry Palmer to the Lords of the Admiralty. The ships at Chatham being in readiness, and most of them nearly manned, he desires to know whether he shall give them order to weigh, and to what place they shall make repair; also whether he shall give them warrant on the 20th inst. to enter on sea-victual, or whether they shall longer continue in petty warrant. If the Lords appoint their speedy going out of harbour, it would be convenient that the captains were sent down to take their commands. [1 p.]

April 17.
Whitbourne.

22. Bishop Coke of Hereford to Archbishop Laud. The bearer, Mr. Toldervey, M.A. of Oxford, was put into the curateship of Orleton by the chancellor, before the bishop's coming thither. Lady Croftes, impropiator there, first brought him to that place, with promise that when Orleton fell she would commend him to it. The curateship being void she now takes occasion against him, and importunes the bishop to put him out, which he thinks not fit to do, having found him there, not knowing any right of presenting in her, and Toldervey being a man of very good worth, both for learning and life. Toldervey beseeches the archbishop that he may continue in the place. The registrar, Mr. Lawrence, refers himself wholly to the archbishop's determination of the difference about the dean and exempt jurisdiction, and has undertaken for Mr. Brasier, his fellow registrar, that he shall do the like. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

Westminster.

Nicholas to Edward Fenn. The 81*l.* 1*s.* 3*d.* received of William Trollope on behalf of Sir Walter Norton, late sheriff of co. Lincoln, being 47*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* above the charge of that county, was to be charged at the foot of the certificate until the difference between Sir Walter Norton and the gentlemen of Lincolnshire shall be determined. This acquittance for the 81*l.* 1*s.* 3*d.* may not be altered till further directions. [Copy. Nicholas's Letter Book, Dom. James I., Vol. ccxix., p. 148.]

April 17.

23. Remembrance of the service done by William Scudamore, late sheriff of co. Hereford, upon the writ for ship-money. The sum to be levied was 4,000*l.*, of which 260*l.* was charged upon the corporations. Scudamore collected and paid 3,565*l.* 10*s.* 11½*d.*, and turned over 174*l.* 9*s.* 0½*d.* of arrears to Thomas Wigmore, then sheriff. [3 pp.]

April 17.

24. Certificate of Inigo Jones that the Return of Weymouth, with William Ketch, master, and six mariners, was employed in transportation of stone from the Isle of Portland for repair of St. Paul's. [³/₄ p.]

April 17.

25. Account of Sir James Bagg, Vice-Admiral of the south of Cornwall and Devon, for things by virtue of his office seized and disposed of by him, from September 1628 to September 1634. The account includes the proceeds of the St. James, 11,515*l.* 11*s.* 11*d.*; the Lady Help, 11,016*l.* 16*s.* 3*d.*; the Anthony, 2,693*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*; Spanish wines taken from Downes the pirate, 112*l.*; a derelict found by Capt. Daniel, 606*l.*; ambergris found on the coast near St. John's in Cornwall, 3,309*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; total, 29,253*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.*; against which sums there were various charges and payments amounting to 5,703*l.* 7*s.* 9*d.*, leaving a balance of 23,550*l.* 3*s.* 5*d.*, of which he claimed a moiety as due to him by virtue of his office, and set-off against the other moiety, various payments and loans to the Exchequer, amounting to 19,211*l.* 10*s.*, leaving due to Sir James, 7,436*l.* 8*s.* 3½*d.*, besides 3,000*l.* which he had been ordered to pay in a suit then pending, and 500*l.* disbursed by his Majesty's command. [16½ pp.]

April 17. 27. See "Papers relating to Appointments in the Navy."

April 18. 28. Capt. William Rainsborough to [Walter Lord Aston]. Arrived there with the Antelope and the Mary. The Hercules, having spent her main-mast and put into Lisbon for a new one, arrived there on the 17th. Now they were four ships, yet able to do little good, the governor being an "Andiluce" and obstinate fellow, puffed up with his luck in thieving. Three days before the writer's arrival he proclaimed war against all Christians, and will not render the captives he has. The writer rides within shot of the town, and they many times shoot one at another, yet their small carvels row out in the dark night, and the writer's are all heavy ships and cannot follow them "so near the shore" as they go. Sent all their boats, being eight in number, to prove whether they could take any of them. They assaulted two of them, and did as much as men could do with boats, but came off well beaten, lost two men killed and 17 hurt. They have two pinnaces to come to them of 250 tons apiece, which row with oars, and when they are come he makes no doubt but to keep them in, and in time to render his Majesty's subjects, or to spoil their men-of-war which vex all the Christian world. They have about 40 or 50 vessels; about 20 carry from 12 to 20 pieces of ordnance. They have made many bravadoes that they will come out and fight with Rainsborough, but they dare not do it. If they were as many more he should be very glad of the occasion. Sends his letter by a Spanish man-of-war that brought soldiers to Mamora. Because he would not have him complain of loss of time, cannot write to the Lords of the Admiralty, whom he desires Lord Aston to advise that they are in safety and health. [1½ p.]

April 18. 29. Francis Windebank to his father, Sec. Windebank. Have been at Genoa ten days, but go towards Turin that day. Intend to come on towards Paris with all convenient haste. [¾ p.]

April 19. 30. Petition of John Revell, soapmaker of London, to the Council. About December 1630 petitioner, at 400*l.* fine and 50*l.* rent per annum, took a soap-house for 21 years, of John Leminge, and covenanted to continue it a soap-house, and was bound in 500*l.* to perform covenants. Being disabled by decree from making soap, he desired

Leminge to relinquish that covenant or take in his lease, giving petitioner such part of his fine as two Eastland merchants should appoint, both of which offers he refused. Although petitioner has laid out 800*l.* in fine, reparations, and dead rent, yet Leminge for 71*l.* rent behind has arrested petitioner and declared in the King's Bench in five actions against him. Prays that Leminge may relinquish that covenant, and give in the bond of 500*l.* to be cancelled, and suffer petitioner to demolish the utensils for soap, and let the house to some other use, or if it is to be continued a soap-house, that he may make petitioner some further estate in the premises. [Copy. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

30. I. Order that this petition be put into the hands of John Leminge, and that he answer thereunto, that the Lords at their next meeting may take further order. Whitehall, 19th April 1637. Copy. $\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

April 19. 31. Separate examinations of Richard Darby and William Bradford, mariners, taken before George Long, Justice of Peace for Middlesex. They were impressed and served several days on board King's ships. After which, coming up to London with leave, as they alleged, they were impressed again, and taken aboard other ships, where, being found, they were arrested and charged with departing from the King's service. [$2\frac{1}{2}$ pp.]

April 19 and 20. 32. Separate affidavits of Robert Webb Cooke and Frances his wife, Cecily Crowe, Anthony Crowe, Giles Crouch, Richard Horsey and Mary his wife, John Nailer, Margaret Allen, Cuthbert Holland, Elizabeth Godwin, Edward Freshwater, Ralph Moody, and John Greene, in opposition to statements of Francis Newton (see Vol. cccxlix., No. 116), that they had been lately perverted to Roman Catholicism by Henry Morse. Most of the parties assert that they had long been Roman Catholics. [$3\frac{1}{3}$ pp.]

[April 19.] 33. Declaration of Katherine White to the same effect. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

April 20. 34. Warrant for payment to Agmondesham Pickayes, the King's Westminister. goldsmith for the guard, of 786*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*, for fine gold and silver for making spangles for the coats of the guard, footmen, and messengers, given to them this year. [Strip of parchment. 16 lines.]

April 20. 35. The like to pay to Edmund Harrison, the King's Westminister. embroiderer, 119*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, for embroidering 250 red coats with roses and crowns imperial, whereof are given to the yeomen of the chamber 200, to the yeomen waiters of the Tower of London 41, and to 9 yeomen of the robes and wardrobe, every of them allowed at 6*s.* 8*d.* apiece, and for 45 messengers of the chamber at 16*s.* apiece; also for 72 $\frac{1}{2}$ yards of crimson satin for red roses, at 8*s.* the yard, 29*l.*; and for 38 yards of satin of Bridges [Bruges,] for white roses, at 3*s.* the yard, 5*l.* 14*s.*; and for 160 ells of canvass, at 12*d.* the ell, 8*l.* Total, 162*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* [The like. 16 lines.]

April 20. 36. Warrant to pay to Robert Reeve, clerk of the check of the Westminster. guard, 17*l.* 2*s.*, for embroidering red coats with C. R. in Venice gold, given to the grooms and pages of the King's and Queen's chamber, robes and wardrobes, and others. [Strip of parchment. 11 lines.]

April 20. 37. The like to pay to the said Robert Reeve 275*l.* for 500 yards Westminster. of red cloth for summer liveries for the guard and others.
[The like. 18 lines.]

April 20. 38. Petition of Sir John Heydon, Lieutenant of the Ordnance, to the King. After the experience of almost ten years, finds the charge of executing the manifold duties of his place have much exceeded the entertainment and remaining perquisites. Prays that he may be allowed the poundage of all monies raised by the sale of powder; and for the reimbursement of such charges as he shall make appear that he has disbursed in discharge of the duties of his place, that he may have the like debentures as the meanest officer of that office has ever been allowed. Enumerates several services for which he had not received or charged one penny, whereby it would appear that his industry had not moved from any mercenary end, as had been objected, but from the innate zeal that near 20 years since caused him wholly to devote himself to the service of so just and gracious a master, and by ten years' industry abroad to enable himself at his own charge. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

April 20. 39. Bevill Grenville and John Trefusis to the Council. According Bodmin. to their reference of the 24th February last, have called before them the mayor and burgesses of Bodmin and perused their charters.
Examined the particulars of the petition and articles exhibited, and endeavoured to compose the differences between them, but could not effect it. [In the endorsement the dispute is said to have been between the Mayor of Bodmin and Perryman. Seal with arms.

April 20. 40. Notes by Nicholas of business to be transacted by the Lords Whitehall. of the Admiralty. Officers of Ordnance to attend about renewing the saltpetremen's contracts. Letter from Officers of Navy touching the readiness of the ships at Chatham. Mr. Goodwin advertises the state of the ships at Portsmouth, and desires warrant for his going master in the James. Sir William Russell's account of shipmoney. What shall be done concerning Henry Dunning, convented for carrying money and goods to Dunkirk in the King's pinnace.
Order David Williams, employed by Officers of Navy, to apprehend runaway mariners, to prefer an indictment against them.
Mr. Cordewell gives account of the Barbary saltpetre which he has refined. [1 p.]

Whitehall.

Order of the Lords of the Admiralty. Sir David Kirke, Lewis Kirke, William Barkley, John Galliard, John Kirke, and Company having petitioned for letters of marque against the French, for non-performance of agreement made by Sir Isaac Wake and Philip Burlamachi in France, that the French should pay the charge of a ship of 400 tons for bringing home the petitioners' men employed for seizing the fort of Quebec in Canada, which was taken by petitioners, who set forth six ships and three pinnaces, which cost 23,000*l.*, by commission under the Broad Seal, and kept the said fort for three years with 150 soldiers at 2,000*l.* per annum, and in 1632 were ordered by his Majesty to surrender the same upon the said composition. The petitioners further claimed satisfaction for the ship Mary Fortune, laden with beaver skins worth 2,000*l.*, taken from them by Capt. Bontemps and carried into France, with 500*l.* expended in seeking satisfaction. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten,

1. Reference to Sir Henry Marten to examine petitioners' proofs, and to certify the same to the Lords, and whether they may not take order for petitioners' satisfaction by letters of reprisal. Whitehall, 20th April 1637. [Ibid., fol. 2 b. $\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

Whitehall.

Lords of the Admiralty to Algernon Earl of Northumberland. Understand by letter from Sir Henry Palmer at Chatham that the ships there appointed to go to sea under his command are in a readiness and nearly manned. The Lords have ordered them, as fast as they are ready, to go over the chain, and enter upon sea victuals. Pray him to order the captains to take charge of their commands and to fall into the Downs. [Ibid., fol. 3. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

April 20.
Whitehall.

The same to Officers of the Navy. To cause the ships as fast as they shall be fitted and manned to go over the chain. The Lords have given directions to the Earl of Northumberland to command the captains to take charge of their ships and carry them into the Downs. The ships at Portsmouth are also to be fitted and manned to come thence about to the Downs. [Ibid. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

April 20.
Whitehall.

The same to a messenger unnamed. To bring up in custody Sir John Rayney of Wrotham in Kent, to answer to matters to be objected against him on his Majesty's behalf. [Ibid., fol. 3 b. $\frac{1}{3}$ p.]

The Lords of the Admiralty to all mayors, justices of the peace, and other his Majesty's officers. 41. Petition of Thomas Smith, messenger of the chamber, to Lords of the Admiralty. For executing a warrant out of the High Court of Admiralty upon Nicholas Beard, petitioner repaired to the house of his father, Richard Beard, in Sussex, where the mother of Nicholas flew upon petitioner and struck him many blows, called him base rogue and rascal, and other disgraceful names, and used "many reproachful and reviling languages" against his warrant, Richard Beard and George his brother standing by and countenancing her to "lay on" petitioner, whilst they rescued Nicholas, so that petitioner was forced to fly. He went afterwards with the next constable, when the mother flew at petitioner again and hurt him much more, whereof he lay sick a long while. Prays relief. [1 p.]

March 1636, assigned, amongst other things, to petitioners, in trust for payment of his debts. Petitioners procured a warrant from the Lord Treasurer to the farmers of the customs for payment of the said pension to them, which Sir John Jacob refused, alleging that the Earl had made divers assignments to creditors to be paid out of the said 3,000*l*. This pension being the readiest money of the Earl's estate, and the funeral charges not yet paid, as also the estate being liable to a debt to his Majesty, and statutes and debts by orders of courts of justice, which petitioners conceive ought to be preferred before the assignments, they pray his Majesty to be certified by his counsel at law whether petitioners may pay those who had the former assignments before the funeral charges, his Majesty's debt, and the statutes. April 21. 47. Sir Thomas Delves, Sheriff of co. Chester, to the Council. Tenders to their consideration some other differences, besides those of Sir Thomas Aston, moved by the mayor and city of Chester. The Bishop of Chester, with the clergy, were in the last assessment for ship-money rated at 200*l*., which being assented to, was by the bishop's officers gathered; but there being complaint to the writer of the hardness of their taxings, he offered the bishop a particular of his ratings, which, for the general clergy, the bishop conceived to be fair and equal, yet for himself refused being rated for his bishopric and personalty at 13*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*., the dean and chapter at 6*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*., and the rest of the clergy there of St. Mary's, St. Peter's, Trinity, and St. Oswald's at 4*l*. 1*s*. 8*d*. Sir Thomas wrote to the mayor of Chester, entreating him to forbear taxing the bishop and clergy, conceiving they should go in aid with the rest of the clergy towards the making up of their sum this year, being abated nearly half in regard of inequalities, some being poor curates and stipendiaries which paid 10*s*. apiece last time, and some parsons 12*l*. apiece. The bishop has suffered a lesser sum of 6*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*. to be assessed upon him by the mayor of Chester, to which way the rest of the clergy there have inclined, denying payment of Sir Thomas's assessment, and therefore his rate of the clergy falls short by 24*l*. 1*s*. 8*d*. Craves directions whether the bishop, with those of the dean and chapter, shall pay with the rest of the clergy and county, or how. [Seal with arms. $\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

- April 21. 48. Sir Paul Harris, Sheriff of Salop, to Nicholas. Finds the corporations of Shrewsbury and Wenlock are very backward in providing the ship-money, being about 600*l.*, Shrewsbury having newly begun to make their assessment; and there is such divisions and factions amongst them about a preacher, that they mind nothing else; and there are such complaints about the inequality of those assessments that are made, that he fears a great part of the money will not be levied. Wenlock has not as yet begun to make any assessment, which makes other corporations more careless. The writer has no power to intermeddle with any of their assessments, or to compel them to hasten the same; therefore he hopes, when he has paid in the moneys for the body of the county, he shall have his discharge. Without some sharp letters the corporations will be careless. If there be any more taxations hereafter, it were best to give no power to the corporations. Dr. Griffith has re-delivered the writer's warrant. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

50. Richard Wyan to Edward Nicholas. Understands by means of one that came to get copies of the Lords' licence for transportation of oysters, for the Prince of Orange and the Lady Elizabeth, that there is a patent drawing up by Mr. Attorney for Dr. Caddiman, to employ six pinks about oysters, and, as it is said, for transportation. Wyan knows nothing of the intention, and if the Admiralty were eased of the trouble, it would not lose any profit; but the people, who are a nursery of seamen, would be quite destroyed, and in a very short time the coasts would be so despoiled that oysters would be more plenty beyond sea than in England. Nicholas, if he pleases, may cause the Lords to be informed of the business. [1 p.]

54. Petition of Robert Rugge, lieutenant of the fort in Holy Island, to the King. Was commanded by his captain, Sir James Ouchterlony, to attend his lady to London, whom petitioner furnished with horse, money, and other necessities, and has been detained from his charge seven months, having due from his captain for his pay and disbursements 81*l*. His captain had received the full pay for 17 besides himself, which is 369*l*. per annum, his own pay being but 72*l*. at 4*s*. per diem, disposing of the moneys for his own particular ends, paying no man, though they be but two, save that petitioner assumed the power to entertain three men at his departure to assist the old gunner and guard the ordnance. The justices of the shire having certified the Lord Treasurer not only of the abuse of the place, but of petitioner's care in his charge, with a letter likewise from the Bishop of Durham, petitioner prays order to the Lord Treasurer to advance petitioner some part of the aforesaid sum to discharge his credit in London, and to stop his pay for his own assurance, that petitioner may return to his charge and family. Also, if it be his Majesty's intention to lessen the charge of the said fort, that he would allow the old gunner, being 77 years of age, with petitioner, their pay during life, and make petitioner house-keeper, without whose care it had been ere now uninhabitable. - April 22. 58. Sir Thomas Cotton, Sheriff of co. Huntingdon, to Nicholas. Saltrey. Has sent Sir William Russell 500*l.* more ship-money for co. Huntingdon. He has now received 1,000*l.*, and there is 1,000*l.* more to be collected, whereof Huntingdon and Godmanchester are to pay 114*l.*, and the county 886*l.*, which latter shall very shortly be paid in. Has another 1,000*l.* in hand, and is going to pay it in. As to the remainder, the only obstacle is that there are divers men out of the county that have rented part of their fen grounds, and till Midsummer have no cattle to distrain. Mr. Barnardiston, of Snailwell, paid nothing last year and refuses this year; besides he has persuaded his neighbours and tenants to do the like, but they would not hearken to him. If they be tried this sessions it must be on Monday. He hears of no evidence except their own examinations, which he doubts will not be sufficient. April 23. Order of the King made on a report of certain referees of a Whitehall. petition formerly presented to his Majesty by William Howard, Robert Long, Robert Gifford, John Denny, and the rest of the assignees of Sir Nicholas Halse, deceased. Petitioners stated that the late King granted to Sir Nicholas Halse a patent of privilege for 31 years for erecting new invented kilns for drying malt, and for certain other purposes, but that before the patent could pass the seal the late King died. The present King granted Sir Nicholas a similar patent, but Nicholas Page, clerk, previously procured a patent from the present King upon knowledge he had of Sir Nicholas Halse's invention, pretending himself to be the inventor, and Henry Sibthorpe, Robert Lindsey, and John Hobart, since the date of Sir Nicholas Halse's patent, had also procured several other patents for similar ovens, boasting themselves to be the sole inventors thereof. Petitioners prayed a reference to Lord Treasurer Juxon and Lord Cottington, who with the Attorney-General were accordingly directed to call in and vacate the patents complained of. These referees having reported, on the 17th January last, against the validity of all the said grants, his Majesty now directed the Attorney-General to prepare a bill containing a revocation of the grant to Nicholas Page, and that if Sibthorpe, Lindsey, and Hobart insisted upon their grants, they should be left to their trial at law. April 23. Petition of George Warner, of Wolston, in the diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, to the King. Petitioner, being lord of the manor of Wolston, petitioned Sir Nathaniel Brent, visitor for the Archbishop of Canterbury, for a seat in the church of Wolston, which was granted to him. Afterwards Sir Peter Wentworth in petitioner's absence procured a revocation of the grant, whereupon petitioner appealed, and the cause is ready for sentence before certain judges delegates. Since which Sir Peter petitioned the King and obtained a reference, by colour whereof he has forcibly pulled down the said seat. Petitioner prays that the Court of Delegates may proceed in due course of law. [1 $\frac{1}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

April 23. 66. Sir Robert Banastre, Sheriff of co. Northampton, to the Passenham. Council. Should have been a petitioner to have attended personally to answer Mr. Cartwright's untrue petition, if Mr. Cartwright's health would have permitted him to have been present. Mr. Cartwright affected that way of six provisions and a half as best for his purpose, having not been charged anything at all since his purchase of lands in Aynho, but only assumed to himself a payment of seven shillings, charged upon the town for hens and other poultry. The high constable having affirmed that Mr. Cartwright's estate in Aynho equalled Walton pastures within 100*l.* per annum, and finding that Sir Thomas Pope by Mr. Cartwright's assessment was rated for ship-money 30*l.* and the latter but 45*s.* 6*d.*, the writer took off 6*l.* 13*s.* 3*d.* from the one and set it on the other, rating Sir Thomas at 22*l.* and Mr. Cartwright at 17*l.*, he having an office worth 400*l.* per annum, an estate equivalent with Sir Thomas within 100*l.* per annum, and lately in hand with a purchase of 1,000*l.* per annum valued at 20,000*l.* After alteration of the assessment Mr. Cartwright's son complained on behalf of his father, whereupon the writer gave day for those who could testify to attend, yet Mr. Cartwright and his son came not at all. Alleges the inequality of the last year's tax in the general and of Cartwright's in particular. This business with the detaining of the writer's assessment had bred great hindrance to the service. The writer commanded a new inmate in Ewell to remove; he refuses to obey, whereby the Lords' command and that in the King's name is scorned, and the writer laughed at. If the writer had the letter of the Lords he would send him to gaol for his contempt. Entreats Goring to return that letter. Some Londoners are come to Ewell, and more daily expected. [1 p.]

69. 1. Edward Phelipps [Phillips] to William Bassett. The constable of the hundred had showed the writer a warrant of 17th March by which Bassett commanded him to tax the writer's land at Sock Dennis with the hundred of Tintinhull to the ship-money. Sock Dennis was never rated with that hundred, but is exempted from it by ancient inquisitions and rolls. It paid the last time to this service, but without the writer's privity, he being resolved never to be brought to contribute with that hundred till either by course of law it be obtained or by the order of the Lords decreed. Does not insist upon this in opposition to the service, but only to defend his right, and not to subject it to the humour of two or three factious fellows dwelling in Tintinhull. Offers Bassett to impose on that land by his own partieular order what sum Bassett shall hold 500l. per annum fit to bear over and above the 130l. put upon the hundred, and it shall be paid. If Bassett will not do this, the writer will make it appear that he does not intend his land shall be freed from payment, or that his affection to this service shall in any sort be rendered doubtful. 23rd March 1636-7. Richard James was bound over to appear before them. In the recognizance it is expressed "for that he would not make an assessment," which yet he has not performed. His proceedings are, as is alleged, maintained by the Earl of Northampton, by relation of such as be more for their own profits than for the Earl's. Suspects the person to be Mr. Goodman, who pays the Earl 340*l.* per annum for what sufficient tenants might be had at 500*l.*, and yet brings this business in question for 3*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* Upon making out the high constable's first warrant, complaint was made by the town of Horton that they were not equally rated, which being made apparent, the writer reduced their assessment 3*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*, which he laid upon Ashby. Upon their complaint it appeared that they were still undervalued. Yet James refuses to make an assessment for the 3*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*, but tenders only the 19*l.* at which Ashby was previously assessed. Has appointed James to attend the Lords on the 28th inst. 73. Sir John Pennington to Nicholas. Thanks Nicholas for his several "newesses." Has been over to Dunkirk with a convoy, where there is no other speech, as Rabenett says, but of the surrender of the Palatinate and the Electorship, but that is out of the writer's creed. The Roebuck has come thither from Portsmouth, and the First, Second, and Fifth Whelps, with the Dreadnought and the Henrietta Maria from Chatham. Has dispatched for the west the Dreadnought, the Second Whelp, and the Greyhound pinnaces, for scouring those parts; and the First Whelp for Calais, to receive aboard Mons. D'Avaux, the French ambassador to Sweden, to be transported to Hamburgh, with other ships to Dunkirk and elsewhere. Has employment enough for all the shipping he has there. Capt. Ketelby, who arrived yesterday, tells him that the Prince Palatine's voyage is off, and that Sir Henry Mervin is to come out in the [St.] George. Prays to know the certainty thereof. Will not forget the "Gunne" [Guinea] fowls for Nicholas's bed-fellow. [Seal with arms. 2 pp.]

74. Sir William Russell to the same. Sends estimate of the full charge of the fleet commanded to the seas, which being lame in the money for the office of the Ordnance, he desires Nicholas to perfect it and to present it to the Lords. Has also sent an estimate of a surcharge for the great ship at Woolwich, to be presented to the Lord Treasurer, and afterwards to the Lords of the Admiralty, that they may inform his Majesty and take order to prevent the cessation of the works, and the clamour of the men now working at Woolwich, to whom there is already due above 1,000*l.* in wages. Has also sent the surveys and estimates of the ships remaining in harbour. Prays him to procure the Lords to sign the great estimate, the writer's privy seal warranting him to pay no more money than is demanded by estimate under their hands. [1 p.]

Dorset House. Has received his Majesty's commands for transporting Monsr. du Perron, her Majesty's almoner. When Pennington receives the Earl's warrant, which he has given to du Perron, he is to fit him with one of the ships that shall be with him. Believes the Second Whelp has come to him in [the Downs], and doubts not that he has sent away the other two to the west. It is expected some vessels should be in those parts, and the ammunition bark, called the George, of Rochester, requires speedy convoy to Portsmouth. The Second Whelp may follow alone, but he would not have any vessel designed for the Prince Elector to stir far without further order. Is informed that there is such a defect in the keel of the Nicodemus that she cannot safely stay out. Would have her speedily sent into Chatham to be made tight and victualled, unless Pennington finds her fit to keep the sea. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Petitioners, to their charge of 1,000*l.*, having made ready the St. George, of Southampton, of 70 tons, to sail on a fishing voyage to Newfoundland, most of her men being pressed away, her voyage is likely to be overthrown. April 24. 78. Bishop Juxon, Lord Treasurer, to Sir John Pennington. The captain of the Star, of Dunkirk, has attended the bishop with Pennington's certificate of the stay of his ship, which he pretends to belong to Dantzick, and not to be liable to the composition of half custom made by the factors of Flanders with his Majesty's farmers. The bishop finds that this ship, though she pretends to be of Dantzick, is of Holland, and manned by Dutchmen, and that she endeavours to draw that trade, now settled at Dover much to the advantage of Flanders merchants, to Dantzick or some other place. The bishop at first thought to have confirmed the stay of the ship until his Majesty had been acquainted therewith, and some public act of state settled for the future prevention thereof, but the captain having shown him a safe conduct from the King of Poland, and considering that the debate would require time, the bishop was content to let her proceed on her voyage. Believes his Majesty will give such order for the future as may best preserve that trade in Dover. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

the eve of St. George's Day, being the 16th April instant, betwixt Hugh Aston, Rives, and one Horne, a yeoman of the guard, in the Guard Chamber at Whitehall, Rives called Aston a dishonest man and a base fellow. Windebank reported of Aston that in all the time he had lived in Court, which was from the first year of King James, he was reputed a very civil honest man, and descended from an ancient family of gentlemen in Cheshire, whereupon Rives begged his pardon, which Aston accepted, first in obedience to his Majesty's edicts against duels, next in contemplation of Rives's relation to the Archbishop of Canterbury, and lastly in an expression of thankfulness to Sec. Windebank for appearing so favourably for his honour and safety. [$1\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

Also recites a proclamation, dated the 20th February last, for prohibiting the importation of foreign gunpowder. Indirect ways having been used to hinder the performance of this work, the King, by the present commission, authorizes the Earl of Newport to license retailers of gunpowder, and directs that no unlicensed persons should buy or sell powder, and that all licensed persons should sell the same at the price ordered by proclamation, and should observe such articles as the Master of the Ordnance should think fit, with various other regulations, amongst them, that the officers of the Ordnance should always reserve in store 150 lasts, and that the Master of the Ordnance should have power to give warrant to persons to search

85. Petition of masters and owners of ships trading to Newcastle for coals to the King. That trade has been a great increase of shipping, and a great nursery of seamen ever ready within the realm. Some few of the free hostmen of Newcastle, being lately questioned for defrauding the customs by short entries of coals, have endeavoured to procure their discharge by propounding to yield his Majesty a new payment of 12*d.* for every chaldron of coals shipped from thence. They also endeavour to procure a grant that some few of them may have the sole vending of all coals at Newcastle, and the lading of ships with coals. The shippers have ever had a free market; but these few persons having the sole trade, compel owners of ships to take coals mingled of all sorts, and deliver the coals by a deceitful way of weight in the keels. Although the new impost of 12*d.* a chaldron was imposed as a redemption of the hostmen's wrongs, they lay the whole on petitioners, receiving from them 12*s.* for every chaldron, for which they before paid but 11*s.* Some years ago the like engrossing of coals was condemned by the Council for an innovation and monopoly. Petitioners pray that they may be left to their ancient liberty to buy of what free hostmen they may receive best commodity and justest dealing, and that the hostmen may be ordered to deliver their coals by a just measure, which is by an upright bowl. Petitioners offer to pay the new impost of 12*d.* upon every chaldron, which will yield a greater revenue by free and open trade than by this restraint, as may appear by an estimate formerly made of 20,000 tons vended annually, which will amount to 10,000*l.* by the year, and will much encourage the building of ships and educating mariners. Underwritten,

91. Petition of Thomas Hitchcock to Archbishop Laud. The Bishop of Lincoln should see the archbishop's orders maintained, and he is a light to pull them down, for he has sold a parsonage for 2,600*l.*, and his chaplain helped to break down all the chancel windows, and the communion table thrown out, and the chancel made a jakes-house of, and this has been complained to the bishop, and he will not hear. Petitioner desires that the archbishop will refer the hearing to Sir John Lambe. Petitioner, by reason of the plague, has been in Lancashire, where all the orders of the Church go down the wind, for they call the surplices the rags of Rome; they do it at Preston and at Manchester, and will suffer no organs, nor sign no children with the sign of the cross when they are christened, and the altars are pulled down. When petitioner was returning into Lincolnshire to go to Boston, to bring the names of those that abused the archbishop, at his lodging-house there were two of Stamford who threatened to thrust a knife through him, and he was fain to fly from his lodging, and almost perished in the field all night. They rid up and down to seek him, and he left his clothes behind him and durst not fetch them. Beseeches the archbishop that the articles in the High Commission Court concerning Barkworth and Littler may proceed, with reference to whom and to Mr. Richard Wolfe and Mr. Vicars there are various scandalous statements. Petitioner concludes with a humble request for some allowance for his victuals, having lost his purse between Ware and London with 16*s.* in it, and not being suffered to work at his trade neither within nor without the liberty. They have, as directed, consulted the sea-books of the two last years' employments, but are not able thereby to discern the difference of what was saved by the musters of their clerks in 1635 and the muster of Mr. Barlow in 1636. In 1635 they find divers dead pays lined out of the sea-books and none in 1636, yet they conceive Mr. Barlow's musters to be so strictly kept that captains and pursers did not enter into their sea-books any names to make trial of obtaining their wages. Part of the said marsh being recently converted to tillage, the farmers of the impropriations have not only received the tithes thereof, but prosecute petitioner in the Arches Court for the tithe of a small parcel of the marsh which he has in occupation. The remainder of the marsh being shortly to be embanked, petitioner's means and the future good of the church will be much impoverished, as by accompanying certificates may appear. Two sessions were called and he attended, but no parties came in to question him; yet now the ship being bound to sea again, he had been dismissed for this present voyage. Most of the oil was long since delivered, and the Soapers compelling petitioner to deliver the rest, petitioner has made provision of the same to be brought to London, his Majesty's customs and duties for the same being paid on the 4th of March last. By order of the 8th March last, the Lords ordered all oil brought in by any save the Greenland merchants should be exported again or seized to his Majesty's use. By virtue of that order Newman and Measer, two of his Majesty's officers, have hung locks on petitioner's warehouse doors, and pretend to have petitioner's oil exported or seized, although it was at Yarmouth, and there the custom was paid before the 8th March, but it was detained by contrary winds. many countries in search of precious stones, Polman in the year 1631 put himself on board an English East Indiaman in Persia, on his way home. He had with him a large collection of gems and precious stones, collected during the previous 30 years. On the homeward voyage Polman was poisoned by Abraham Porter, surgeon of the East Indiaman, and his goods were divided among the crew of the ship. The crime becoming known, parts of his estate ultimately came into the hands of the East India Company; of the Earl of Lindsey, to whom letters of administration were granted in trust for the true heirs; of Nicholas Pope, goldsmith in Fleet Street, and Rachel his wife; of one Nowel, a goldsmith on Holborn Bridge; and also of Christopher Adams. Understanding that the French "Satta" has divers men of Sallee aboard him, the writer has sent the bearer, one of his master's mates, to search for them and to see what other munitions he has more than his bill of lading speaks of. Desires that with Carteret's assistance he may search the ship and bring away the Moors if there be any. [⅔ p.]

April 28. 108. Sir Henry Palmer to Nicholas. Received a letter from him with an extract of a letter from the Vice-Admiral of Essex, intimating that the writer had freed some fishermen at Barking. This is no new thing, but an ancient order from the Greencloth to the Comptrollers of the Navy, and continued ever since Mr. Houlstock's times, for which, at first, the fishermen presented the Comptroller every Friday in Lent with oysters and other fish, but since in the writer's father's time and Sir Guildford Slingsby's, at the request

April 29. Lords of the Admiralty to Bishop Morton, of Durham. Recite Whitehall. the petition of Robert Rugge, lieutenant of the fort in Holy Island, calendared in the present Vol., under date of April 22, No. 54. Pray the bishop to examine the truth of the said complaint; what number of men ought to be kept upon the said fort, and how many have of late been maintained; what pay is allowed by his Majesty, and how paid; what ordnance belongs to the same, and in what state; whether it be, in the opinion of the gentlemen of the country adjoining, fit to maintain or demolish the said fort, and in case of demolition whether it be necessary for his Majesty to have a house-keeper there, and how fit Rugge is for that trust, and what is his condition and behaviour. April 29. The same to Mark Carr, John Davies, and other the executors of Sir Whitehall. James Parrett [Perrott], late Deputy Vice-Admiral of co. Pembroke. Complaint is made by the Spanish ambassador, in the name of John le Drue, master of the Waterhound, taken by Dunkirkers from the Hollanders, and by tempest driven into Tenby, where for want of the copy of the captain's commission the ship was by Sir James Parrett arrested, the said Sir James afterwards treating to buy the same in his own name, but chiefly for the use of John More and Richard Wyatt. It is also informed that the persons addressed being executors of Sir James with More and Wyatt, combining with two of the mariners, seized the said ship (she being at that time under seizure of the customer for his Majesty's use), and that putting out all the mariners they detain her to this present. They are to send an inventory of the ship, furniture, and lading, and to see that the same be kept in safe custody till further order. [Copy. Ibid., fol. 10. $\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

April 29. The same to the Sheriff of co. Pembroke and the Mayor of Tenby. Whitehall. The Lords have received complaint that John le Drue, master of the Waterhound, was arrested by the mayor of Tenby, and is still detained in prison (he being a stranger) till he can find sureties, in regard of words spoken against John More and for some small debt. Drue has been long imprisoned, and has suffered much injury by some persons in that town, for which cause they have been sent for to answer the complaints made against them. The ship and goods brought into Tenby being much more

Order of the Lords of the Admiralty on the complaint of Francis Vincent, saltpetreman, against Sir John Rayney, of Wrotham, Kent, Baronet of Scotland, for refusing to carry a load of liquor to Maidstone for the saltpetre works, alleging that he was exempted as being a knight and baronet, as certified under the hands of Edward Woodin and Jacob Heath, constables of Wrotham. It appeared also under the hands of Sir John Sedley and Sir John Howell, two justices of peace of the said county, that Woodin repairing to them to know whether Sir John were exempt or not, they told him that he was no more exempt than any other gentleman, for that they knew he had not received the honour of knighthood. The Lords having heard Sir John Rayney, ordered that he should remain in the messenger's custody until he paid the costs and charges of the saltpetreman and likewise the messenger's fees. [*Copy. Similar Order. - April 29. 113. Considerations presented by the Officers of the Navy to the Lords of the Admiralty, touching the punishment of abuses in pressing of seamen for his Majesty's service. First, what punishment may be inflicted on Oliver Pope and Richard Darby, two pressed men, and William Bradford, commanded to serve in his Majesty's ships bound to sea, who have been prisoners in gaol about three weeks, Mr. Recorder of London and the justices of that bench not being well resolved for their trial without more exact proofs. After full statement of the particulars of these several cases, the officers mention various questions relating to what is the proper mode of impressment, how men may be prevented taking money from several prestmasters without really intending to serve at all, and how those may be punished who absent themselves from the prestmaster, and those who never appear after receiving money, or who after appearance run away. In all these cases and questions the officers desire the direction of the Lords. [2½ pp.]
- April 29. 114. Officers of Navy to Lords of the Admiralty. According to Mincing Lane. their letter of the 20th of March, mentioning a complaint of much ill cordage in his Majesty's ships at sea in 1636, the writers find that the quantity remaining in Deptford storehouse of Russia cordage is only 22 tons 5 cwt., whereof there are 4 cables of 11 inches and the rest is in halsers and small cordage. Conceive there is little or none left in other places except in the ships lately returned from sea, being not considerable enough to spend time and charges to go to Chatham, Portsmouth, and the Downs to view the same, finding none of that in the storehouse but may be used, though not altogether so strong and good as home-made cordage. They have conferred with John Giffard and five others of the saltpetremen. State the grievances of which they complain, which were principally the rise in the prices of wood ashes and coals, the

April 29. 116. Petition of Capt. William Smith to Lords of the Admiralty. By warrant of 13th March 1635, petitioner took charge of and gave attendance upon the Black George, with his four servants, who were kept at Portsmouth at his sole charge from the 13th March to 11th September following, petitioner not having been allowed one penny. His Majesty gives bounty to captains of a full month's pay, in consideration of their travelling charges, which is denied to petitioner; though he was more charged than any other captain, being compelled by reason of the leakiness of the Black George to take many journeys to London, Deptford, and other places in the interim, keeping his servants at Portsmouth, a most chargeable place, so that his expenses amounted to 300*l*. Prays order that he may receive his wages for himself and retinue from the 13th of March to the 11th September, together with his month's pay of advancement. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

April 29. 117. Dr. Thomas Rives, Dr. Richard Zouch, Edward Nicholas, and Richard Wyan to the same. Have entered upon the auditing of the accounts of vice-admirals, and find that divers of them neglect to bring in their accounts yearly, being for the most part peers of the realm or his Majesty's servants, against whom no legal process without special leave may be awarded; besides which no fees are settled for the officer executing such process. Propound that letters be written to every vice-admiral who is a peer or his Majesty's servant, that he appoint some deputy who may be responsible for the execution of the vice-admiral's office, and the profits accruing to his Majesty out of the same. And further to give warrant to the Registrar of the Admiralty that in case the vice-admiral shall not give in his annual account, process be issued against his deputy, and that the officer employed to execute the same may have messenger's fees. attendance in the Black George. Smith showed them his warrant to be captain of that ship, under the Earl of Northumberland, dated 13th March 1635[-6]. Saw him divers times attending at the Council Chamber door with Sir John Harvey since the latter had a grant to borrow that ship. Saw him also at Portsmouth aboard that ship with Sir John Harvey, and since Captain Smith's return he has attended the Lord Treasurer at Fulham and the Lords of the Admiralty at London, which must have been a great charge to him. For all which he has had no allowance but his sea pay from the 11th September to the discharge of the ship, neither can they allow him anything without special warrant, because the ship was lent for private men's use. April 29. 121. Bishop Coke, of Hereford, to Archbishop Laud. As he has Whitbourne. referred the business concerning the dean's exempts, so leaves it to the archbishop to determine. Disposed his power to the dean and his registrar, rather than to the chancellor and his, to prevent offence to the former. Neither was it any indisposition in the writer towards the chancellor, who is a man of good worth, nor yet the fees that moved him, neither is he any ways further solicitous for the event than to be content with the archbishop's pleasure, who knows best his Majesty's meaning and will consider what may concern the bishop and his interest. For Mr. Toldervey the writer will do as the archbishop has directed. Many curateships to chapels in that diocese are supplied by 2*l.* or 4*l.* per annum allowed by the impropiators, who take upon them to collate for what allowance they can agree with some poor scholar by reading prayers once a month or perhaps not so oft. April 29. 122. Petition of John Cox, of Wotton-under-Edge, to the same. In May last petitioner, by petition, made known to the archbishop and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners how he was threatened to be ruined by Mr. Exon, minister of Wotton-under-Edge, for speaking the truth and performing service commanded by the bishop of the diocese and his chancellor's surrogate, and according to the archbishop's directions given to Sir Nathaniel Brent at the time of the visitation. Mr. Exon having made a common purse to prosecute petitioner, has preferred articles against him in the High Commission, to which petitioner made his answer, and obtained the archbishop's directions to Sir John Lambe to give him an account what was fit to be done therein, to the end, as petitioner conceived, that he might be dismissed the court, but he has been obliged to put in his defence. As petitioner suffers for his conformity, and is an officer of Christ Church in Oxford, and Mr. Exon has vexed him with a suit in the Marches of Wales of purpose to take away his testimony in the High Commission (wherein petitioner obtained an order for costs for unjust vexation), he prays a peremptory day may be set for hearing his cause or that he may be dismissed. 145. Petition of John Eyre, Thomas Mansfield, William Wilde, John Burrowes, and Daniel Ragge to the same. Thomas Leake is indebted to petitioner Eyre in 1,200*l.* by statute, and has forfeited bonds of above 3,000*l.*, in which petitioners Mansfield, Wilde, and

Burrowes are interested, but one Couley having procured a protection, petitioned that Leake might likewise be protected. The Lords, conceiving Leake to be Couley's surety, declared that they wished both Couley and Leake to be protected. Leake has since greatly outraged petitioner Ragge, for which he stands bound for his good behaviour, and now shows himself abroad as a protected man, not answerable to any suits. Forasmuch as petitioners charge not Leake for any engagements concerning Couley, they pray that those to whom he is engaged for his own proper debt, and not as surety, may take their legal course against him. 146. Petition of the Mayor and Citizens of Chester to the Council. Upon their late reference to the Earl of Derby and Lord Strange of the difference between petitioners and Sir William Brereton, touching a tenant of Sir William's inhabiting in the House of the Nuns within the said city, who refused to watch in these dangerous times of infection, the said Earl, with the assistance of the judges, has certified how he found the same, whereby the cause is prepared for their judgment. The watch commanded is no ordinary watch, from which only Sir William and his tenants are to be freed by the opinion of the judges, but is enjoined by his Majesty's special directions and proclamation for prevention of spreading of infection. In former times of infection, tenants of the said house have been maintained in the city pest-house and at the city charge, and there are now several families in the said house, and most of them very poor and relieved by the charity of the city. Pray that as the tenants of the Nuns' House receive benefit by the watching, and by reason of their number and poverty and pretence of exemption are most likely to endanger the city, they may watch in their turns as their neighbours do. 147. The Council to the Governors of the Chest at Chatham. Recite commission of inquiry into the state of the Chest, and that the Commissioners have offered to the consideration of the Council the orders annexed, which they approve and have subscribed the same, and require the Governors to see that they are established. [Signed only by Sec. Windebanks, who has left a space above his name as if for the signature of the other Lords. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Annexed,

150. Petition of Martin Wighton, of Daintree [Daventry?], to the Council. About three years since Richard Crowther and John Spurdance, pretending to be searchers for the soapmakers of Westminster, broke into petitioner's house and took away 7*l.* or 8*l.* worth of Bristol soap, which by proclamation was then lawful to be sold. He since arrested Crowther and Spurdance at common law, and recovered damages. Thereupon the governor of the soapers sent his warrant to bring up petitioner, who has since come up with a messenger to the governor, who refuses to discharge him but by order of the Board. Prays that since he sold none but lawful soap, and only took a lawful course to relieve himself, the Lords would order his enlargement, with allowance for his trouble and charges. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

151. Petition of George Lascells to the same. On a complaint to the Lords against petitioner, a reference was procured to persons ill affected to him, and a report returned that he was unnatural to his own son and to his son's wife and children, though petitioner, having an unnatural son and an undutiful daughter-in-law, has been kind to them, and sought to win them to Christian duty, which if he could perceive in them, he would do more for them than either the Lords require or expect. Charges some of the referees with thirsting after part of his estate, and refers to papers annexed to show how petitioner had been reputed, and how petitioner's daughter-in-law has carried herself towards the Lords. Prays to be discharged from attendance, and either to be left to make provision for his son as he shall find him and his deserve, or else that the Lords would refer the business to persons indifferently chosen. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.] Annexed,

151. I. Certificate of George Berkeley, Endymion Porter, George Long, and five others, that George Lascells had informed them that he had been much abused by a certificate to the Council, and other informations, that all his lifetime he had carried himself as well beseemed a gentleman, and had done much good for his country and service to his Majesty. 27th April 1637. [1 p.]

151. II. *Affidavit of William Thompson of London, goldsmith, that on the 28th April instant, being in company with the daughter-in-law of George Lascells, of Elston, co. 152. Petition of Elizabeth Lascells to Lord Keeper Coventry. Her husband, John Lascells, eldest son of George Lascells, of Elston, co. Nottingham, had as much land entailed upon him by his grandfather as his father had sold for 6,000*l.*, yet the latter had suffered them to endure such misery as is a shame to relate. Upon complaint to the Council it was ordered that there should be a mark a week allowed to them by their father, for which there was an agreement drawn by the justices adjoining, and subscribed by George Lascells. He has for 32 weeks past refused to make payment. The justices have written to the Board, but by reason of the power of George Lascells, both of purse and friends, petitioner has been kept here these 12 weeks, and can have no conclusion of her business. 153. Petition of William Newton, Robert Broome, and Edmund Whiting, weavers of Colchester, in behalf of themselves and other poor weavers to the number of 2,000, to the Council. Petitioners, who work for the baymakers, saymakers, and clothiers of Colchester, are reduced to exceeding misery by the smallness of wages and the troublesomeness of their work. Thomas Reignolds, a baymaker of that town, further to oppress petitioners, had begun a new way of paying petitioners in dead commodities instead of in money. On complaint to the sessions the mayor and justices ordered him to pay petitioners a certain sum of money and to give further satisfaction, but he refused to observe the said order. Petitioners again appealed for justice, but Reignolds never appeared, save by his attorney, who in open court stated the resolution of Reignolds to be, that before he would give one penny to petitioners he would spend 100*l.*, and if they would have any they must come by it by law. Pray relief and protection. [1 p.] Annexed,

153. 1. Copy order of the sessions above mentioned. Reignolds was ordered to make restitution to Newton for selling him says for 58s. more than they were worth, and also to give recompence to Broome and Whiting for injuries done to them. 9th January 1636-7. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

154. Ralph Freeman, Sheriff of co. Hertford, to the same. Answer to a petition of the inhabitants of the greater division of the hundred of Dacorum in the same county, for which see Vol. ccclii., No. 8. Admits the facts stated in the complaint. The second charge of 38*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.* was assessed upon the certificate of Sir John Garrard, and he and the inhabitants of the lesser division pray that a day may be given them to make it appear to the Board that the complainants are no otherwise charged than according to other ancient payments. 155. Petition of James Chaloner, prisoner in the Tower, to the same. Petitioner had been in custody of a messenger for 12 days, and almost three weeks more prisoner in the Tower on the occasion of his brother Thomas Chaloner's escaping from the messenger. His escape was without the knowledge of petitioner until the next morning that the messenger acquainted him therewith, when he was so much troubled thereat that before his apprehension he went to seek his brother and sent a messenger to Dover to persuade his return. Prays enlargement. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

156. Petition of Edmund Davenport, one of the messengers of the Chamber, to the Council. Petitioner was lately employed by warrant for Charles Cockaine, late sheriff of co. Northampton, which journey was about seven score miles. Petitioner was at extraordinary charge in horse hire, riding night and day, but cannot get his due fees of Mr. Cockaine. Prays order for Mr. Cockaine to pay the amount. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

157. Petition of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of King's Lynn to the same. They presented petitions in December and February last, wherein they expressed the great disability of their town, by reason of plague and the loss of 25 ships with their lading, which had undone many inhabitants who had formerly contributed in large measure to the ship-money. Upon the hearing of these petitions it was thought that the 250*l.* assessed upon their town should be paid, but that some relief should be given them de futuro, as appears by letter of the Lords of the 17th February last. Having paid the 250*l.*, and been always ready to perform anything commanded for the King's service, they pray for mitigation of the 250*l.* in future. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Annexed,

159. Petition of Edward Lincoln to the Lords of the Admiralty. Petitioner about half a year since, in the time of the mortality, being employed as an under-bailiff of Westminster (a place he was altogether incapable of, but for his present necessities was forced to make use of), he arrested William Brissenden at the suit of William Woolf. Brissenden having since obtained a warrant for petitioner's commital, on the ground that Brissenden was his Majesty's servant and a purser at the time of his arrest, although he did not manifest the same. Petitioner expresses contrition and prays discharge. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

April [?] 179. Answer of Nicholas Meredith to an information of Attorney-General Banks. About 15 years past there was a collection made in Bristol and other places for the Prince Elector Palatine of the Rhine and defence of his country, the sum gathered in Bristol being about 160*l*., which being ready to be paid over it was reported that the said prince's countries were past hope of defence, whereupon the contributors in Bristol were contented that the money should be applied towards the redemption of poor captives in Algiers, being mariners of Bristol, in number 40 and odd persons, and that the same should be paid to defendant for the cause aforesaid. According to that agreement defendant received about 160*l*. and retained the same for one month, during which time John Barker, alderman of Bristol, since deceased, had conference with Mr. Leete, a great trader to Algiers and Barbary, who undertook to procure the freedom of those captives of Bristol, whereupon defendant, according to the order of the contributors, paid over the money to John Barker, who paid the same over again to the said Leete, whereupon divers of the captives were released and came home. 180. Copy of information filed in the Star Chamber by Sir John Bankes, Attorney-General, against Dr. John Bastwick, Henry Burton, William Prynne, William Wakelyn, John Ash, William Bankes, Rice Boy, Robert Raworth, — Crouch, George Kendall, Edward Manning, Randall Beoug—, — Sheath, Samuel Richardson, Richard Rogers, William Watson, Thomas Jackson, Edmund Chillington, and William Chaveron, for the publication of various libellous books with intent to move the people to discontent against the King's ecclesiastical government. Bastwick was especially charged, for that by the advice and assistance of Burton, Prynne, and the other persons before named, he had published an infamous libel called Apologeticus ad Præsules Anglicanos, extracts from which were annexed to the present information. Burton, Bastwick, and Prynne had also dispersed a book styled "News from Ipswich," "a pernicious, damnable, scurrilous invective and libel," and also a pamphlet styled "A Divine Tragedy," with a libel against the memory of William Noy, the late Attorney-General; and the other defendants, Bankes, Boy, Raworth, Crouch, Kendall, Manning, Chillington, Roger Bracey, Richardson, Rogers, Peter Witherick, Jackson, Watson, and Chaveron had commended and dispersed the same. Also that Bastwick had made and published, and endeavoured to have printed, another libel which he styled a Litany, from which certain extracts were given, and the original was attached to the information; and that Burton had made and printed another libel entitled "An Apology of an Appeal," also annexed to the information. May 1. 1. Petition of the Brewers of Chester to the Council. The King, about two years since, incorporated petitioners and granted them divers privileges, and especially that none should brew beer to sell within the city but such as should be free of their incorporation. Petitioners have not yet enjoyed any benefit of his Majesty's intention, being opposed by the innkeepers and alehouse keepers, who brew all the beer expended in their houses. Petitioners have been suitors for redress, but in regard of his Majesty's purpose of a general restraint the Council had made stay of doing anything therein. Pray that they may enjoy his Majesty's favour of suppressing persons who are refractory to his grant, petitioners being willing to give his Majesty an annual rent of 40*l.* or otherwise as the Lords think fit. [1 p.]

2. Petition of John Ray, a distressed prisoner in the Fleet, to the Council. The original of his offence was ignorantly committed (May next will be seven years) in transporting contrary to proclamation a ship of fuller's earth. After his return, hearing of the proclamation, he drew a "remonstration" of the fraudulent transporting of great quantities thereof by others through the instigation of English merchants residing in Holland. About two years after Richard Cocks, being questioned for the like fault, confessed himself guilty and withall "peached" petitioner, whereupon Attorney-General Noy bound both to appear in the Star Chamber, but petitioner, lying dangerously sick, was spared, and Cocks only censured and fined, and released after 10 or 12 weeks' imprisonment. After the death of Attorney-General Noy petitioner was sent for by Attorney-General Bankes, was again committed to the Fleet, and justly sentenced in the Star Chamber. Prays order for release, for that he committed his offence seven years since, and having suffered almost three years' imprisonment, was sick and destitute. Underwritten, "Nil." [1 p.]

May 1.

3. Petition of John Apsley, executor of Sir Allen Apsley, to the same. Petitioner formerly prayed that as since Sir Allen's death he had endeavoured to pass the accounts between his Majesty and Sir Allen as Victualler of the Navy, a commission might pass the Great Seal to some persons to allow the same. Your Lordships thereupon ordered petitioner in the ordinary way to pass the account in the Exchequer. Petitioner has proceeded so far as he can, there being none that will give allowance of the accounts without order. Prays the appointment of some persons for that purpose. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

4. Petition of John Lloyd and Marie his wife to the same. Katherine Coleman, petitioner Marie's grandmother, by her will gave to Marie, then an infant, 30*l.* in money, to be paid at her day of marriage or at 21, and also gave her all her personal estate unbequeathed, amounting to 100*l.* [originally written 300*l.*] and upwards, to be paid by William Hayman, executor to the said Katherine. He dying, left the care of the said Marie to Robert Hayman, his executor, who having made great benefit of the money for 16 years, after the intermarriage of petitioners paid petitioner John 40*l.* in part payment, and combining with William Sedden, a scrivener, took from him, being illiterate, a general release. Petitioners further charge Mary Gillam, aunt to the said Marie, and Ralph Hayes and Rebecca his wife, with embezzling the goods of Marie's grandmother. Pray the Lords to call the parties before them, and give petitioners relief. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

5. Petition of Robert Gray, Francis West, John Venn, William Robinson, David Woodrooffe, John Rathley, Thomas Sadler, Henry Tooley, George Bryan, and Francis Ashley, with divers other citizens of London, to the Council. Petitioners have for many years furnished the western parts of this kingdom, with Ireland and Wales, with commodities, the usual places of meeting with their chapmen being at the fairs held in Exeter, Bristol, and West Chester. The magistrates, by reason of God's heavy hand laid upon London with the contagion of the pestilence, made an order amongst themselves to deprive petitioners of their former liberty, to the great hindrance of petitioners and intending their own private profit, wherein petitioners had exceedingly suffered but for the order of the Board for admittance of their persons and wares to the places aforesaid. Pray for a further order granting free liberty of trade and meeting upon certificate of the Lord Mayor that they and their families are free from the pestilence. [1 p.] Endorsed,

5. 1. Statement of reasons why the opposition to the above petition should not be regarded. 1. The London tradesmen were never before restrained. 2. When the opponents have denied the Londoners liberty in their own persons, they have had recourse to London and taken in their own goods brought in the same wagons with those of London. 3. Although their pretence was fear of infection, their intent was to serve the Londoners' chapmen and receive their money which they brought to pay the Londoners. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

6. Petition of William Scudamore, late Sheriff of co. Hereford, to the same. Upon the first writ to him directed for levying 4,000*l.* assessed upon that county for ship-money, he rated an equal proportion upon every hundred, and gave in charge to the constables to rate every parishioner, which was done to the general content, the city of Hereford being rated at 210*l.*, and the borough of Leominster at 50*l.* And so he collected and paid 3,564*l.* 10*s.* 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. in his year, 1635. That which is upon Hereford and Leominster he was not to levy. He delivered over his writ, with the names of those who had not paid, to Thomas Wigmore, the succeeding sheriff, who is to give account of the non-performance of the rest of the service, and for his contempt is bound with a surety to Roger Vaughan, the present sheriff, to appear in Chancery upon an attachment in the beginning of this term. Petitioner hears that himself is also put in process. Prays that he may be discharged, and Wigmore be commanded to give an account of what is in arrear. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

7. Petition of John Murray, of London, chandler, to the same. In the heat of this visitation petitioner, being at Huntingdon, lodged at the house of Thomas Walker, who for some misdemeanour done in the market-place was fined 32*l.* and two months' imprisonment. Walker was accordingly imprisoned in the house of Thomas Kilborne, sergeant of Huntingdon, where petitioner going sometimes to see him, and Walker making an escape, Kilborne, to clear himself, accused petitioner, and brought him by force before John Abbot, the mayor, who, with the advice of William Kilborne, an attorney and brother of the sergeant, committed petitioner prisoner to the sergeant's house, where no bail would be accepted (a justice of peace offering to be one), and petitioner was kept four days and nights with heavy irons upon him, until petitioner paid 34*l.* 6*s.* for his enlargement. Prays that Abbot and Kilborne may be sent for to answer for this usage of petitioner. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.] Annexed,

Were ear-witnesses, amongst many others, on a general fast-day, being the 23rd of November last past, at Easton, co. Huntingdon, that Giles Randall, clerk, curate or substitute, there publicly preached that amongst many sins which caused the wrath of God to lie heavy upon this nation, the taking of the loan and ship-money were two of them, and further that the taking of the said loan and ship-money is felony, and that without restitution there can be no salvation. 9. Answer of Thomas Soame, late Sheriff of Middlesex, to the petition of Simon Coston, Thomas Lote, and Nathaniel White. The sum of money questioned is but 17*s.* Mr. Wymonsall, rated at 5*l.*, upon complaint was abated 17*s.*, which was added to the assessments on the petitioners. States the reasonableness of the abatement and the quantities of land held by the petitioners, and not acknowledging the words scandalously objected, the respondent leaves the petitioners to be dealt withal as shall seem meet. The assessment referred to was that of Greenford. [1 p.]

14. Sir Robert Banastre [Bannister] to Nicholas. I have sent up 1,000*l.* towards ship-money for co. Northampton, and hope to send up as much more by the end of the term. Mr. Crane writes what much troubles me, that it is believed by his Majesty and most of those that sat at the Board that I forbore to follow the irregular rates of my predecessor, with intent to perplex the service. If his Majesty and the Lords would give me that protection and assistance that my predecessor had, I hope I shall not leave 1,525*l.* uncollected at the end of my year. My instructions were to rate it with equality and indifferency, which I have done sincerely and upon good ground to be maintained, although it trench deeper upon men of the best rank, being best able to bear it, and somewhat ease the poor tillage-man and day-labourer, not fit to be charged. Sir Francis Crane and myself, last year, our hundred being over assessed, became suitors to his Majesty and the Lords to be relieved. Our answer was that we must first pay the money charged and then seek relief. We thereupon paid the money, and the Lords wrote to the Judges of Assize to examine the business, whereby there was no interruption of the service. The high constables of Rothwell complain of being overrated. They after of themselves retract it, and then make new rates, to the good liking of the country. Since, by some underhand protection, they renew their suit again, which being entertained, myself, my warrants and messengers have been neglected to the prejudice of his Majesty's service, all which I desire may be made known to his Majesty and the Lords. May 2. 20. Petition of the Mayor, Jurats, and Commonalty of Dover to the King. In July last fourteen Frenchmen were condemned for piracy and committed to the custody of Maximilian Dancey, keeper of his Majesty's prison in Dover, who in February last suffered them to escape in the night-time, and at the sea-shore they took boat for France. Now Dancey and Reston, his deputy, give out that petitioners and not they are answerable, and shall be questioned in the Star Chamber. Petitioners submit that Dover is no walled town, but has very many ways into and out of it, and that Dancey is an officer by patent under the Great Seal; nor were the prisoners ever under petitioners' charge. Although advised that they neither are nor can be charged with the said prisoners' escape, yet being a poor corporation, and most unwilling to be called to make defence, in all submission petitioners pray that the matter may be referred to some of the Council and Judges. 20. II. *The Lord Keeper and Secs. Coke and Windebank to his Majesty. Report on the above reference. Conceive it requisite that the Attorney-General proceed first against the gaolers and their deputy, and against Morgun, the present searcher, and that the mayor send the names of four or five of the principal watchmen who watched the night of the escape, and that in the meantime the proceedings in the Star Chamber against petitioners be stayed. May 2. 21. Petition of John Powell, one of his Majesty's sergeants-at-arms, to the Council. There is a debt of 100*l.* due to petitioner from John Perryman, town clerk of Bodmin, for obtaining whereof petitioner has for two years taken legal courses, but through Perryman's indirect dealings with the under-sheriffs, petitioner has been remediless. Perryman being attached by virtue of a process issuing out of the Exchequer refused to obey the same, and caused the officers to be most cruelly beaten, for which he stands in contempt of that court. In respect of petitioner's daily attendance before his Majesty and the Council, he cannot intend the attaching of Perryman, who is always subterfuging and shifting from place to place; he therefore prays leave to take his legal course against Perryman, that he may be responsible for his contempts to the Court of Exchequer and to petitioner's action, petitioner having forborne since Perryman's attendance at the Board to meddle with him. 22. Sir John Pennington to [Capt. George Carteret?]. Enclosed are letters to yourself and your admiral, received in a packet from Mr. Smyth. Thereby you shall understand all the Court and city news, "which is as strange to me as to you." I have been here this month, but hear nothing. Few of the fleet have yet come down, or the ships from Portsmouth; only the Henrietta Maria has been here a few days, and the Rainbow is now turning in. I think it will not now be long before they come all, except my lord [Northumberland], who will not be ready this fourteen days. It seems the Prince Elector's fleet proceeds not, for Sir Henry Mervin is removed back into the [St.] George, and comes out Rear-Admiral. Lieutenant-Colonel Brett and some others are fallen off from the service, as being discontented with their ships and places. The Prince of Orange had likely to have surprised Hulst, but was prevented by putting in men a few hours before. "I think we shall see our old trade of fishing, and that will be all we shall do this year." Admiral Van Dorp lies to and again between Dunkirk and this place with twenty sail of stout men-of-war, but meddles with none of our convoys. [2 pp.]

Desires directions, first, whether these drained grounds shall be assessed jointly with the parish wherein they lie, and both of them to bear but the same charge towards the raising of the ship-money which the parish should have done if the same had not been drained; or that the charge of the parish shall be so much increased as may be fairly raised out of these new grounds; or that the grounds so drained shall be assessed apart, and the parish notwithstanding to bear their proportion. Secondly, whether the grounds not lying in any parish as yet known shall be assessed towards the raising of the general charge of the whole county, or whether the assessment shall be applied to the easing of such towns as formerly had common therein. 33. Sir William Slingsby to the Council. This day the doors of Stephen Smith, fishmonger, were, by the sufferance of the warder, broken open, and William Fenn, late servant to Smith, who already had been indieted for offences committed during the several infections of that house, entered thereinto and brought to the door for sale a quantity of salted fish without the privity of the officers, notwithstanding Susan Wheelyer, a maid-servant of Smith's, was then shut up and left infected with the plague at the time of Smith's unlawful abandoning his house. Fenn is now apprehended and shnt up with the late infected servant under better guard. I have committed the warder, and commanded the fish to be carried in again and the doors to be locked and guarded till you shall give further directions. These proceedings I suspect to be done by the private directions of Smith. [1 p.]

liman [Godalming], had not only withdrawn petitioner's wife's affection from him, but had undone him in his estate, and to prevent him from taking a course against the said Hull he had caused petitioner to be imprisoned upon a feigned action. The Lords ordered that Hull shall forthwith release Wisdom upon his bond to answer the action of Hull, and that the petition of Wisdom shall be sent into the court of the High Commission, where Hull shall be proceeded against ex officio. Wisdom is to furnish testimony in support of his petition, and Hull is to remain in a messenger's custody till he has released Wisdom and given bond to appear in the High Commission. [Draft. 1 p.]

May 3. 44. Petition of Henry Darell and the inhabitants of the parish of St. Giles'-in-the-Fields, Middlesex, and other parts adjoining, to the Council. Similar petition to that in Vol. cccxlvi., No. 70, calendared under the date of February last. It recited a grant of the late King of certain markets and fairs to Trinity College, Oxford, two of the former and three of the latter having been purchased by the petitioners. Under a writ of ad quod damnum a jury had found that such markets and fairs would be very convenient. Petitioners prayed that the work might go forward. May 3. 47. Order of Council upon the petition of Robert Gray, Francis West, John Venn, and others, citizens and wholesale tradesmen of London. Recites the petition as already calendared in this present Volume, No. 5. Petitioners prayed that they might have liberty of trade at the fairs in Exeter at Whitsuntide and St. Nicholas tide, in Bristol at St. James's tide and Paul's tide, and at Westchester [Chester] at Midsummer and Michaelmas, notwithstanding an order of the magistrates of the said cities, by reason of the infection in London, depriving petitioners of their former liberty in coming into the said cities with their wares. The Council ordered that such of the petitioners as should bring a certificate from the Lord Mayor that neither they, their houses, nor families have been for 6 or 8 months infected of the plague, should be permitted to come to Exeter and to trade there freely during the fair held there in the present month and the beginning of June. Nevertheless the Lord Mayor is to take special care that he give no such certificate to any person, but only to such in whose house he is well assured there is no infection, nor in any house near adjoining, and who have not received any goods from any persons visited. He complained of certain proceedings of the Court of Common Pleas in a matter of two prohibitions at once granted thereout against him, suing for tithe of hay. He also made various exceptions against the suggestions of his parishioners, William Gaywood and William Byatt, who pretended that they were discharged from tithe hay, milk, and herbage of dry cattle, by the payment of winter cheese; this mere pretence being the only ground of their prohibition. The Lords having spoken with the Lord Chief Justice and the rest of the judges of that court, declared that the said judges had done in that business nothing but what was just, and that Dr. Bury had no cause of complaint at all. They ordered that for his boldness in presuming to asperse a court of justice he should stand committed, and prayed the Lord Chief Justice and the rest of the judges to direct that the modus decimandi might have a fair trial, and rather at the bar than in the country. There is a cause depending in the High Commission against one Ackson [Exon], as cunning and as dangerous a Puritan as any in the pack. His suit is that you would so order it that the depositions against him may be fully read, for otherwise he will find many ways to blind the eyes of his judges. I beseech you to consider the man as he is, and out of your wonted aversion from men of his sect, let him find no more favour than he deserves. 54. Bishop Pierce, of Bath and Wells, to the Council. Report upon reference made to him on the 31st January 1636-7 respecting the conduct of William Stroud, of Barrington, co. Somerset, in reference to the business of shipping. Upon examination I find three things to be cleared; one concerning the assessment upon the tithing of Barrington, where Mr. Stroud dwells, whether it were an over-rate or no; another concerning how Mr. Stroud carried himself; the last concerning certain impediments conceived by Mr. Stroud to hinder the service of his Majesty. On the first of these points the bishop conceives the constable and raters did well in assessing Barrington 4*l.* 10*s.* more than Shepton Beauchamp. On the second point he reports various facts in which Stroud's own account of his conduct is contradicted, and he complains that Stroud took the boldness to tell him in the hearing of all the company that he did not examine the sheriff as he should do, and that he did not look upon this business with an indifferent eye. Stroud had been returned as a refuser in four or five places. On the third point the bishop alleges some inaccuracies in two of Stroud's allegations, and in one a personal motive; in one point he agrees with Stroud. [4½ pp.]

62. Archbishop Laud to Elizabeth, Queen of Bohemia. Upon the 6th of April I received two letters, the one by Colonel Fleetwood, concerning his employment and the state of that great business, concerning which I can yet say little till we hear again out of France; for the other letter I give most humble thanks that you are pleased to write so nobly about the mistake concerning the King's allowance of 12,000*l.* a year. Certainly, madam, though I am as much subject to error as any man, yet, in that particular, I am most sure I did not mistake my commission. Concerning giving the title of emperor to the late King of Hungary, his Majesty has not yet done it, nor I believe will he do it in haste to the prejudice of your son, the prince, yet this will be found considerable if (I say if) France and the Low Countries give it him, whether the King's denying it alone will be fit for his Majesty or behoveful for the Prince Elector. As for his Highness being vicar in the vacancy, his Majesty acknowledged you had written to him about it, and that he would give you his own answer. Concerning the fishing, I wrote clearly my own thoughts, and but my own, that the King would have other employment for his navy this summer than to think of it, and therefore I thank you for not making me the author of it. While I write freely and give my reason for what I write, I would not have my name in question. Mr. Dinglye [Dinley] has said no more than your Majesty wrote. Since you desire it, I shall write with my wonted freedom, and assure myself of your constant favour. [1¼ p.]

The Queen is not only pleased, but requires that all lawful courses be taken to right the petitioner, and punish this notorious and scandalous kind of life; unto which all justices of peace and other officers are to be aiding, and to take good bonds from Garnier never more to frequent the company of the said Lady Willoughby, to her disgrace, his ruin, and the ignominy of all good government. 67. Petition of divers baymakers of Coggeshall, Bocking, and Braintree to the Council. By reason of the decay of trading, many of them who were work-masters are become workmen. Out of compassion to the multitude of poor in the said towns, and at the request of the justices of peace, petitioners have been encouraged to engage their credits far beyond their stocks in borrowing money upon interest to keep the poor at work. His Majesty's protections granted to John de la Barre and Robert Oxwick, with moneys owing by Charles Attye, detain from them of the said towns above 5,000*l.*, as was manifested to Mr. [Sir?] Henry Nevill on the 1st May instant, so that they have been constrained of late to sell off their bays at great loss. Pray that the above-named merchants may be enjoined, in this great strait, to pay petitioners in the first place, and not to suffer them to disengage their near friends out of bonds, and the remnant of their estates, left in uncertain debts, to be cast upon petitioners. thirty [?] years ago, it is no equal way to follow, many parishes being decayed and others improved. For the rates of the clergy, I suppose you shall hear of no complaints, since those few that pay are favourably dealt withal, and many excused for their doctrine and pains in their particular parishes. This county pays with all alacrity to their abilities, but being of itself generally poor, and depending much upon the sale of cattle, are not so ready paymasters as other counties, nor can they before their markets come on. I have levied the most part of the sum imposed upon the county, being 833*l.* 6*s.*, and returned the same to Sir William Russell by our Shrewsbury drapers. The residue, being somewhat under 100*l.*, remains with the constables and collectors to be accounted for, who say that much thereof is imposed on occupants of lands dwelling in other counties, or on tenants removed, and which cannot be recovered until they find distress on the lands. - May 6. 108. Petition of Leonard Cornelison, master of the Hope, and Hubert Adriaenson, master's mate, to the Lords of the Admiralty. Petitioners being in the service of the Dutch West India Company, had taken a prize called the St. Domingo, and mistaking their course homeward had brought the prize into Milford Haven, whence, under pretext of piracy, they were carried with their ship and prize by Sir Beverley Newcomen to Dublin, and there detained eight months, none prosecuting against petitioners. The prize is become a wreck, and the Hope taken by the Lord Deputy for his use at the rate of 500*l.* Petitioners at length are released and suffered to go for England upon bail of 1,000*l.* by Theodore Scouten, factor for the Dutch, that petitioners shall not depart from London before a certificate be sent from the Admiralty Court at London to the Admiralty Court of Dublin, that nothing is objected against petitioners in the court in London, and that the goods of the ship and prize be put in the hands of the said Scouten upon bail of 3,000*l.*

Pray that a certificate may be taken out of the Court of Admiralty as required, so that, after many months' durance, they may go to their wished home, and the goods be disposed of to the best use of the owners. [1 p.] Underwritten,

108. I The Lords of the Admiralty to Sir Henry Marten. To call the parties before him, and to certify what he conceives fit to be done. [1 p.] Annexed,

108. II. Sir Henry Marten to the Lords of the Admiralty. I find in the office of the Admiralty neither accusation nor information against petitioners, yet because the Lords before acquainted me with some passages concerning this business, I sent for his Majesty's Advocate, Dr. Rives, and required him to frame some interrogatories against these petitioners, and to cause them to be examined upon oath, which is done. I conceive there is just cause to dismiss petitioners with their goods home to their country, since, by the death of Sir Beverley Newcomen, there is no further hope for them to recover satisfaction for their former sufferings. 11th May 1637. May 6. The like of petition of Rice Thomas, master-gunner of the Tenth Lion's Whelp, to the Lords of the Admiralty. Petitioner was master-gunner of the said pinnace under the Earl of Lindsey. Came short $2\frac{1}{2}$ barrels of powder in his account, for which he was committed 15 weeks, and lately again committed from the Admiralty Court to the Marshalsea, where he has remained 10 weeks, nothing being proved against him concerning the said powder. Prays his freedom and restoration to his place. [$\frac{1}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

113. I. *Similar receipt for 854*l.* paid by Edward Vye on behalf of Sir Thomas Trenchard, sheriff of Dorset (besides 1,400*l.* formerly paid), towards ship-money charged upon that county by writ of 20th October then last. Dated 28th April 1635. [1 p.]*

113. II. *The like for 220*l.* paid by John Mainwaring on behalf of John Lockier, mayor of Weymouth and Melcombe Regis, towards ship-money under writ of 20th October then last. Dated 9th May 1635. [1 p.]*

May 6.

114. Petition of Robert Laxton, clerk, parson of Normanton, co. Rutland, to Archbishop Laud. Having been careful to avoid scandal in his conversation, and to practise and preach the conformity and orthodox doctrines of his holy mother the Church of England, he has of late suffered much abuse and injury by one Thomas Bowyer, a barber, who, upon no just occasion, in the presence of some brethren of the clergy and others of good quality, not only reviled petitioner with ignominious terms, as fool, ass, stinking fellow, base fellow, and the like, but also further wronged him by pulling him by the beard in scornful manner, violently rushing his elbow upon his breast, flinging a glass of burnt wine into his eyes, beating him with his fist, kicking him with his feet, throwing a candlestick and a stool at him, striking him with a crabtree cudgel, drawing blood of him in divers places, tearing his priestly habit, and acting divers other barbarous insolencies, besides menaces of further violence hereafter. Petitioner prays, in regard he is of small estate and cannot be absent from his pastoral charge personally to prosecute this cause, that Bowyer may be prosecuted ex officio. At the Rolls.

117. Order of the Master of the Rolls, Sir Edward Salter, and Sir Edward Clarke, in the suit mentioned in the preceding paper. Recites an order of the 26th April last, whereby the sergeant-at-arms was to apprehend defendant for his contempt in not payment of 400*l.* to the plaintiff, according to a decree made in the ninth year of King Charles. It being now alleged that the said 400*l.* had been paid in manner stated in the preceding paper, it is ordered that if the plaintiff shall not in a week show cause to the contrary, the contempt prosecuted against defendant is absolutely discharged, which in the meantime is suspended. May 7.

Petition of Aubrey Earl of Oxford to the King. Aubrey York being possessed of some personal estate, and having appointed by his last will to give to petitioner, as being his next kindred, the greatest part of his estate, has lately hanged himself. Petition of John Mostyn to the same. Recites grant of the late King, of 1st March 1604, to Henry Johnes and Thomas Johnes his son, of the office of clerk in Chancery, for writing writs of Diem clausit extremum, commissions post mortem, and various others. Also a grant of the same King, of 20th February 1622, of the reversion of the said office to petitioner after the deaths of the said Henry and Thomas. Thomas, the survivor, died on 6th January last, and petitioner is admitted to his office. Thomas Johnes was questioned before the commissioners for exacted fees, and the fees now taken Petition of the inhabitants of Barking-cum-Needham, Suffolk, to the King. Recites grant of the late King to Sir Francis Needham, of the manor of Barking-cum-Needham, Sir Francis informing his Majesty that he would, within the said manor, build an almshouse for eight poor folks, and confer upon them 20*l.* per annum; and erect a free grammar school for the instruction of youth, and confer upon the master 20*l.* per annum; and upon four poor scholars out of that school, to be instructed at Cambridge or Oxford, 20*l.* per annum. For better performance of these intentions, Sir Francis besought the late King to grant him the advowsons of the parsonages of Barking and Frostenden, in Suffolk, which his Majesty granted, and Sir Francis made many promises that he would perform the same, but has not performed any part thereof. Petitioners were advised by Sergeant Crewe to prefer an English bill in the Court of Exchequer against Sir Francis, and the suit has depended six years, and much money expended. Petitioners, who are very poor, not knowing how to raise more money, pray the King to refer the hearing of the cause to such persons as he shall think meet. [$1\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

May 7.

123. Petition of Dr. [James] Chambers to the same. In petitioner's last grant for collection of certain fines and forfeitures, part of your Majesty's casual revenue, amongst other things is excepted your Majesty's settled revenue, which exception, not being in petitioner's former grant, but inserted without warrant and admitting an ambiguous interpretation, the lawyers know not what to make of it, the word "settled," as applied to revenue, not being in use among them. Please your Majesty to require Sir Robert Heath, the Attorney-General who drew up the grant, to certify what was thereby intended, whereby the Lords' referees may the better proceed to determine the difference betwixt the Earl of Berkshire and petitioner. It will not a little conduce to settling this difference to know upon what particulars of the greenwax the medium was cast up, whereupon the said Earl's patent passed; and whether these particulars were comprehended within the said medium. Please your Majesty also to command the four officers who cast up the said medium to review their certificate, and also to require the clerk of the Crown in the King's Bench, and certain other officers, to certify whether fines or forfeitures upon judgments have been usually estreated as greenwax, or have been accounted parcel of the greenwax moneys. Underwritten,

123. I. His Majesty requires Sir Robert Heath to certify the meaning of his words "settled revenue," and his reason why the same was inserted; likewise the other officers mentioned in the petition to certify as desired. [1 p.]

May 7.

124. Petition of the Mayor and Commonalty of New Sarum [Salisbury] to the King. Your Majesty, by order of the 6th of June last, referred the difference between the bishop, dean, and chapter of Salisbury and the petitioners to the Attorney and Solicitor-General, who have certified that the bishop, the mayor, the dean, and the recorder, and some of the canons and of the aldermen, should be justices of peace within the city and liberties, not delivering any opinion what number of the canons and of the aldermen they think fit. The determination of the number of justices will very much concern the good government of the city, and will prevent future differences betwixt the church and the city. They pray your Majesty to vouchsafe them a hearing of that particular, and to appoint a day for both sides by their counsel to attend. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten

127. Order of the King in Council. A book entitled an "Introduction to a Devout Life" was lately printed by Nicholas Oakes, of London, and many copies dispersed. It is ordered that the Attorney-General draw up a proclamation requiring all persons to send those books to the bishop or chancellor of the diocese to be publicly burnt, as copies already seized have been by his Majesty's command. In which proclamation, notice is to be taken of his Majesty's constant care to uphold the religion professed in the Church of England; as also that the chaplain of the Archbishop of Canterbury, who surveyed the book before it was licensed, had first expunged all the passages in the said book tending to popery; but that the author, translator, and stationer inserted again the said passages, whereof one is apprehended, and the other[s] sought for, to be proceeded against. 129. The Council to Justices of Peace for co. Hereford. 130. The same to Justices of Peace for Surrey, living near Southwark. Notwithstanding the great care taken by the Board for relief of poor infected persons in the parishes of Southwark, as well by collections in that county as by the order of the Star Chamber that the landlords shall relieve their own tenants' necessities, there is no order observed in those parishes, especially in that of St. Olaves, to separate the sick from those that are sound, nor to keep shut up houses where the contagion is. His Majesty is very sensible of this insufferable disorder, and if the justices take not a better course to suppress such disorders, the Lords will not consider them fit to hold the command his Majesty has reposed in them. Claverton. 137. William Bassett, Sheriff of Somerset, to the Council. In pursuit of the Lords' order of 16th April 1637, I called the inhabitants of Bridgwater and the tithings of Dunweare, Bower, Horsey, Chilton, and Hampe, part of the hundred of North Petherton, before me and the mayor of Bridgwater, where Bridgwater showed a later charter of the fourth year of King Charles, wherein they are allowed as great privilege within the parish of Bridgwater as they enjoyed by their former charter; and the tithings, on the other part, produced an order made at a general sessions held at Bridgwater in the eighth year of his Majesty's reign, being four years later, wherein Bridgwater with Haygrove only was to pay one-third part with the hundred of North Petherton. I have therefore ordered for this present service that the tithings shall pay wholly to the hundred, allowing the borough 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, it being by the Lords' instructions assessed at that sum more than the just third part with the hundred, and that such goods and persons as are distrained or imprisoned shall be restored; desiring also the mayor, to whom the business was also committed, to join with me in this order, who refuses. [1 p.]
- May 8. 138. Receipt of Sir William Russell for 25*l.* paid by Edward Langford on behalf of Anthony Birken, mayor of Bridgwater, in part of 8,000*l.* ship-money charged upon Somerset by writ of 12th August last. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

141. I. Certificate of William Cox, Under-sheriff, to John Malet, late Sheriff of Somerset, of the results of his application to the constables of the hundreds of Chewton, Wellow, Norton Ferris, Bruton, Horethorne, Bath Forum, Bempstone, Williton, Kilmersdon, and Whitley, and to the boroughs of Taunton and Langport Eastover. The majority of them attended the Board to complain of a second assessment made by the sheriff. The total sum in arrear from these several places was 500l. 2s. 10d. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

May 8. The Swiftsure in the Downs. 142. Capt. Sir John Pennington to Nicholas. I should gladly be resolved what alterations are to be in the fleet, for I hear that Capt. Brett and some others are fallen off; likewise who comes out Rear-Admiral; what shall be done in the Palsgrave's business; when the Admiral will be there; and whether they are to go to the northwards or not. Since my last the James, the Convertive, and the Bonaventure are arrived from Portsmouth, but there is no other captain with them but Fogg. The Rainbow and the Vanguard are likewise come from Chatham. The master of a bark which is come from the Western Islands tells me that the Roebuck, Mr. Endymion Porter's pinnace, is returned from the Red Sea and gone into Falmouth with the Dreadnought; also that their Admiral, Captain Oldfield, was cast away upon an island before they came to the Red Sea; Oldfield is dead and most of his men since; notwithstanding it seems that the pinnace has made a reasonable good voyage, for they say the men have shared 20l. a single share. [2 pp.]

May 8. West Dean. 143. Dr. Matthew Nicholas to his brother Edward Nicholas. I was last week at Winchester and spoke with the schoolmaster concerning my cousin [nephew] John, and made the proposal of sending him thither. He cheerfully entertained the business, and of himself made the offer that John should table in his house. The rate he takes of his boarders is 20l. a year. The writer recommends the schoolmaster's house as the best place. Near the college the rates of tabling are very high, unless it be in mean houses. The master promised that whensoever the writer's cousin goes thither he shall be in the fifth book that he may be altogether under his teaching. Cannot advise that his cousin should be there till after the election. Hopes that when Nicholas's month is ended he will remain in Thorpe, and have the writer's cousins thither; he will promise to accompany them. The writer's poor Betty continues languishing and his wife uncheerful and weak. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

145. Sir Thomas Roe to Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia. I cannot penetrate what will be the instructions of my Lord of Northumberland in the point of the Holland fishers. I believe his Majesty will not be engaged by any promise either to the Prince Elector nor to the States. Until they open the barricado it cannot stand with his honour to recede or begin with them. We have cause to doubt that they hope to necessitate the King by delay of the French treaty. If it be so they err in judgment. That intimation to the Prince cannot be drawn into obligation, unless they had seconded it with some offer of accommodation, in which they are as dry as red herrings. The dream of Madagascar, I think, is vanished, and the squire must conquer his own island. A blunt merchant called to deliver his opinion, said it was a gallant design, but such as wherein he would be loth to venture his younger son. There is not much preparation nor speech of hastening the Prince Elector to sea, though the ships are ready, because the delay of France gives his Majesty reason to pause. Mr. Croft is lately come with letters, that only say they are drawing near a conclusion. Upon two points the Frenchmen demur: not to give the Prince the title of Elector in the body of the treaty; secondly, that the treaty shall not be signed, but ad referendum to the settlement of a more universal league at Hamburgh, and that taking effect, the other shall be of force. For this protraction they allege the Swedes. To me this is a strange winding. The reference to Hamburgh is a child we must not father, but I hear there is some inclination, seeing it can be no otherwise, to take what can be had, and to send to Hamburgh; but that will be delayed until the return of Mr. Berkeley, of whom we have heard nothing but that he has lately passed the Sound. New offers made by the Spanish ambassador, but I see no inclination in his Majesty. If his Majesty resolve to send an ambassador to the general treaty at Hamburgh, the Prince Elector's presence will give great reputation to the cause. To be seen in the empire will encourage his friends. If at that treaty his Majesty may be induced to contribute 100,000*l.* for two years, to be disposed for the Prince, I am confident the Swedes will accept it, and his Majesty will be enabled to pay it by the ship-money. If this design be pursued, I shall revive in my hopes; if not, I despair of all projects and airy Indian conquests. Whether his Majesty will employ me or not, I know nothing but my affection to serve him. From France it has been desired; if commanded, I will obey. If this proposition proceed, Prince Rupert may be a fit admiral for his brother. Our design, mentioned in my last, has found many impediments. The projectors fall off, seeing we are so wary to offend Spain. If his Majesty declare himself, all will follow; without him, we and all our projects are but a vain breath and bubble. I have obeyed your commands to my Lord of Canterbury, who acknowledged that he had been informed by a great man that the Queen misinterpreted his affection to serve her. Who it was did this charity he would not tell me, but gave me full assurance that he had received more than satisfaction by your own letters, which he was then ready to answer, and would so fully express himself as you should have no cause to doubt his resolution to do you service. I cannot but with joy and thankfulness thank your Majesty that you have accepted my child, whom I loved because she came from you, and for your service only I bred her. [Copy. 2½ pp.]

Petition of [Dr. Christopher Wren], Dean of Windsor and Wolverhampton, and the Prebends of Wolverhampton, to the King. The said dean and prebends are an ancient foundation, and one of your Majesty's free chapels founded in the church of Wolverhampton, and have several lands belonging to every of them, but are one rector of the church with cure of souls, and used to take the tithes thereof in common until Edward VI., when some of the prebends aliened their possessions in fee-farm for small yearly rents, by means whereof Sir Walter Leveson enjoyed the same for a long time, until two of the succeeding prebends commenced suit in Chancery for recovery of the church's rights and obtained a decree. But before restoring the prebends Sir Walter died, leaving his son, Thomas Leveson, your Majesty's ward; whereupon, during his minority, the possessions have been withheld from the church. Now, as the ward is of full age, petitioners pray your Majesty to give order that the profits of the church be sequestered till the tithes be tried. [Copy. See Vol. ccxxviii., p. 78. 1¾ p.] Underwritten,

148. Petition of Paul Micklethwaite, D.D., Master of the Temple, and one of his Majesty's chaplains in ordinary, to the King. There is a legacy of 100*l.* given by Sir John Fenner, deceased, some years since, for plate and other ornaments of the communion table or altar in the Temple church (now to be disposed of), in which church the altar or holy table, pulpit, and reading-place are not placed so decently as in other churches. The church of the Temple has ever been a church of eminency, and a choir church, exempt from episcopal jurisdiction, and first subject to the Knights Templars, then after to the Hospitallers, and now immediately to your Majesty. Petitioner being appointed by your Majesty to rule and govern House and Church, and all ministers of the Church, as well lay as clergy, being most ready to observe conformity to the Royal Chapel and other churches of this quality in disposing the said places, yet fearing some exceptions in these times, petitioner prays the manifestation of your Majesty's pleasure touching the premises. Petitioner further shows that there is no vestry in the said church, for want whereof the ornaments of the church have been hitherto stolen and embezzled, and that the Fine Office, without any title, detains a consecrated chapel annexed to the church to keep their records. Prays his Majesty to command the master of the said office to provide some other place for keeping his records, that so this consecrated place may be restored to the church and serve for a vestry. 149. Order of Thomas Earl of Arundel and Surrey, the Earl Marshal, and Edward Earl of Dorset, under his Majesty's reference of the 22nd April last, upon a petition of Matthew Foster [Forster?], vintner of London, calendared under that day, No. 53. We having convened before us William Kempster, Alexander Ovid, John Lee, vintners of London, and Thomas Hungate, for a false and malicious scandal raised by them and by one John Idle, who had contemptuously made default, they being convinced by proof to have contrived and published that the said Foster was broken and had a protection, which was affirmed to be so published by the said Idle to the farmers of the Great Customs, and both in the city and county to his great disadvantage and the profit of the contrivers. All which upon examination appearing to be utterly false and maliciously contrived, we thought good to commit Kempster, Ovid, Lee, and Hungate to the Marshalsea, there to remain until they shall become bound with good sureties in the sum of 500*l.* apiece to appear and answer Foster in such of his Majesty's courts of justice as he shall think fit to proceed against them, we conceiving the damage thereby sustained by him to be exceeding great. We have further ordered that John Idle shall be sent for by a messenger to answer his accusation and contempt, with this further direction, that the commitment of the said persons is to deter others from raising like false and scandalous reports of men in trade. Whitehall. 155. Order of Council. The Lords being informed by Mr. Comptroller of his Majesty's Household that whereas heretofore they were wont to take up of foreign bay salt imported a sufficient proportion for the use of the household at a low rate, now, since foreign salt is prohibited, there has not been enough brought into the port of London to furnish the city of London and to supply his Majesty's occasions. It is ordered that the English and Scottish corporations shall be required to furnish his Majesty's household with a sufficient proportion of good salt at the same rates as formerly, or else that the officers of the green cloth shall take up of the said corporations or elsewhere such quantity as shall be requisite, and at the same prices as were accustomed before the said incorporations were granted. It is ordered that no new works be henceforth erected or any old works enlarged for refining or melting salt, but that works already erected are to be continued so long as they use no other salt but that which they shall receive from the English or Scottish company. 161. Capt. William Rainsborough to Sir Henry Vane, Comptroller of the Household. I have written to the Lords of the Admiralty giving account of my proceedings. They are not answerable to that I conceived, but I have done as much as it is possible for man to do, and have hazarded his Majesty's ships, both nearer the shore and within shot of the castle than I would have done had I had the pinnaces with me; and for the galleys out of Spain I cannot hear of them, neither do I think any will come. It is not possible in this place to take or destroy any of them without pinnaces that may row with oars, to go as near the shore as they do, and I am so much grieved that they do not come that I am almost out of heart, neither can I guess the cause, but I will do what possible I can. After they are come I believe that neither bark nor boat shall go out. I am not skilled in making articles of peace, and therefore if they be not altogether so punctual as they should be I desire you to excuse me to his Majesty. If I cannot get the captives before, I purpose to tarry till I have but a month's victuals to bring me home. The last year by this time the pirates had brought in 500 of his Majesty's subjects, and they would have taken many more this year, having prepared treble the force they did last year. It was happy we came as we did, for within 14 days after they had all been out. I hope before we go away to make most of them unserviceable. I had a design to have fired them with boats, but that was frustrated. Now I am in hand to bring a piece of ordnance to spoil them as they ride, desiring that all my proceedings may have favourable construction till I come myself to give account. [1 p.]

162. Petition of Thomas Reynolds to the Council, in answer to the petition of William Newton, Robert Broome, and Edmund Whiting, calendared 5th May inst., No. 93. Petitioner never forced any men to take commodity for their work, for that his workmen for the most part have ever money beforehand, but at the request of Newton, and when he was in prison for debt, petitioner let him have two says at the same price petitioner sold of the same sort to the merchants for money, the money for them to be set off weekly in work, and laid him in a chaldron of coals for 17s., which shortly would have cost 26s. 8d., for which also he set off in work. Petitioner, also at the request of Broome, let him have a loom for 20s., and he was to pay for it at 8*l.* per week. Also, at the request of Whiting, petitioner let him have a loom for 25s., to be paid out of his work at 12*l.* the week, and nine months after took the same at the same price. Finding Newton, Broome, and Whiting deal deceitfully, petitioner accounted with them, and made all even to their content, as by the affidavits annexed appears, and delivered them no more work, whereat they threatened revenge, and petitioned the mayor and justices of Colchester, who never made any order against petitioner. In March last petitioner sustained great loss by fire, having great part of his house burnt down, with goods amounting to 500*l.*, being wilfully fired as petitioner and others vehemently suspect, whereby petitioner is become poor; yet this last month, by borrowing at interest 400*l.*, he hoped to have continued all his honest workfolks, being 400 households of spinners, 52 of weavers, and 33 of others, whose certificate for his true payment of them all, he can in a small time obtain; but now through petitioner's great loss and the disgrace done to him by Newton, Broome, and Whiting, who have not only injured him in his goods, but have reported him to be a bankrupt and a thief, he is without hope to continue his trade unless the Lords in commiseration settle his quiet, and protect him against Newton, Broome, and Whiting. 166. Order of Council. Upon complaint made against the Earl of Dover to the Commissioners of Sewers for some part of Yorkshire, for raising a mill-dam upon the river Dunne [Don] about 20 years before, in the lordship of Conisborough, to serve some ironworks there to the prejudice of the town of Mexborough, the commissioners first made an order to respite the cause, and then, without showing any new matter, immediately made a decree against the Earl. The Lords referred the examination of the whole proceedings to Mr. Justice Hutton, Mr. Justice Vernon, and Mr. Justice Berkeley, who are to settle these differences, or otherwise to certify their opinions to the Board. In the meantime all proceedings upon the decree aforesaid are to be suspended, but this reference is to be without blemish to the reputation of the Commissioners of Sewers. [$1\frac{1}{3}$ p.]

mayor and commonalty of that borough for the usurpations upon his rights stated in the preceding paper, and also concerning the patronage of the said vicarage. Mr. Glanville, the recorder, and Mr. Fewall, town clerk, having submitted all the right of patronage of the vicarage to his Majesty's disposal, being unwilling to dispute their title therein with his Majesty, yet besought that in the new grant to be passed to the mayor and commonalty the grammar school might be established and some maintenance be settled upon the same. It was ordered that the counsel of the town shall attend the attorney and solicitor-general and receive their directions for such surrender and assurance as the mayor and commonalty are to make to his Majesty of the said patronage. As concerning the question of encroachment on the churchyard the same was by the said vicar waived; the duties payable to the vicar on interments in the churchyard and the church were to be settled by the bishop of the diocese; the disposing of pews in the church is to remain in the vicar and churchwardens, subject to the order of the bishop or his chancellor and to various minute regulations respecting pews for certain persons; the money collected for the poor at the communion is to be received by the churchwardens and to be given amongst the poor as hath been formerly used; the clerk's wages to be paid by the churchwardens as formerly; collections upon briefs to be made at the church doors as formerly; fees on marriages to be regulated according to the table in the office of the Archbishop of Canterbury; all the suits instituted by the vicar for tithes to be determined by the decision in the case against Nicholas Sherwell. May 10. 171. The Council to William Walter, Sheriff of co. Oxford. We send you petition of Thomas Merriot, vicar of Swalecliffe, complaining of very hard measure offered him in the rate assessed on him for ship-money by his parishioners. The vicarage is of very small value, and the vicar poor, though very well affected to any public work for church or commonwealth. We hold it very unjust that his parishioners should make the service of the shipping a stale to wreak their spleen upon him for another occasion wherein his forwardness merited encouragement and their disaffection was deservedly overruled. We recommend petitioner's suit to your particular care, to ease him in proportion answerable to the Council's instructions as to the respect to be shown towards the clergy. [Draft. 1 p.]

ordered that George Lassells shall stand committed to the Fleet until he shall have paid to Elizabeth Lassells for the maintenance of herself, her husband and children, for every mark a week in arrear upon their former order 20s. a week, and till he shall give security to pay henceforth duly 20s. a week, which if he shall not have performed before Ascension Day next, the warden of the Fleet is required to keep him close prisoner till he shall conform thereunto. And as concerning the assurance of land to the value of 34*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per annum, with a convenient house to be settled upon John Lassells, his wife and children, as in the said certificate is expressed, their Lordships order it shall be done, and Mr. Sergeant Boone is prayed to peruse such assurances, and to see them legally passed. 173. Order of Council. His Majesty by letters patent dated 26th July 1631 gave his assent to an Act of Sewers, made at King's Lynn, 13th January 1630-1, for draining the great level of marshy grounds lying within the limits of the Commission of Sewers for cos. Northampton, Lincoln, Norfolk, Suffolk, Cambridge, Huntingdon, and the Isle of Ely, and in the same letters patent signified his pleasure that the business should be ordered by the Council as a matter of State, not to be altered or impeached. A warrant of assistance was granted by this Board in July 1631 for the execution of the said Act of Sewers, to which there has not been that conformity as is requisite. Their Lordships once more declare that they are resolved to maintain the aforesaid Act of Sewers, and if any person shall hinder the execution of the same, the Lords will proceed against him for his contempt. All mayors, sheriffs, and other officers are to be aiding to all who shall have commission for the execution

Petitioner is but a younger brother, with a wife and 11 children, and little other means to support them but the said lease, and is no way able to contend in suits with so great and powerful an adversary. Prays the Lords to call his lordship and petitioner before them, that petitioner may be relieved, and the inheritance of the church be preserved, which haply, through petitioner's side, may be wounded. Underwritten,

187. Order of Archbishop Laud and Lord Keeper Coventry, referees of a petition to his Majesty, presented in the name of the parishioners of East Betchworth, Surrey. Petitioners showed that the church of that parish being impropriate, worth 120*l.* per annum, the vicarage is not above 16*l.* per annum, albeit it has heretofore been worth 30*l.*, and the parsonage was heretofore rented out by the church of Windsor at 30*l.*, but the profit being since augmented the vicarage has yearly decreased. The parsonage is now leased out by the said church to Daniel Leer, who has been sought by Robert Tourney, the present vicar, and been sent to by Sir Nathaniel Brent for some addition of means, but without success. Upon a hearing this day the church of Windsor offered 5*l.* per annum towards the increase of the vicarage, and Mr. Leer having made the like offer, it is ordered that the said 10*l.* be duly assured to the vicar and his successors, and that this order be registered among the acts of the dean and chapter, and also on the registry of the chancellor of the diocese of Winton. 195. Petition of James Rawson, rector of Witherstone, Dorset, to Archbishop Laud. Petitioner has three causes depending in the Court of Arches against John Browne, Justinian Simms, and Thomas Larcomb for tithes. Has been many ways delayed by the dilatory courses of the defendants, who have combined themselves together with others against petitioner, and partly by their proctor. Three years is spent in the suit and they threaten to keep it in suit seven years longer. Prays that there may be no more dilatory courses used to hinder a speedy sentence. 197. A. D. [Dampton or Davenport] to Sec. Windebank. I have got Lord Finch to be moved in the Earl of Holland's name by Sir William Shelley; he promises on his part any furtherance; there will also go another from the Queen. These I get as preambles to your main assault. The Marquis of Hamilton appeared in Sir Henry Appleton's business, and the King twice commanded the judges before they would do it, besides the privy seal for their warrant. Whereby I see we must implore your immediate dealing with his Majesty to procure his absolute command, else it will not be done, though none of the other seem so feasible as this, by reason of the paucity of the matter and the pregnant reasons to persuade it. Sir Francis entirely refers himself to you. P.S.—There has since been one from the Queen with him, who spoke very effectually. His answer is that he will do what in law he may; he acknowledgeth also the precedents, and promises well in general terms. This gentleman was also employed in Sir Henry Appleton's cause; he says that the Marquis got the King to speak to him in his presence, and yet was enforced after to get his Majesty to send by the Marquis's secretary an absolute command, before it was done. place as shall be approved by the Council. [Seal with arms. $\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

May 11. 4. Petition of Edward Walker, Master of the Insurance, to the Council. Last year a ship was taken by reprisal, near Virginia, by one who had letters of marque from the States of Holland. The ship and goods were brought into Virginia and there disposed of, amongst which were four tons of campechia [campeachy] wood.
There being no intercourse of shipping from Virginia, but only from England, the said wood was put aboard petitioner's vessel, with order that if it might not be landed in England then he should send it to Middleburg. Petitioner has brought the same to London, to the Custom House Quay, where it remains in custody of the officers. Prays liberty to transport the same into parts beyond seas. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Annexed,

I must not omit to give answer to the lewd proceedings of the high constables of the hundred of Rothwell, being contrary to what I now send under their hands, alleging inequality of the tax in the town of Desborough, worth 600*l.*, charged at 25*s.*, and Sulby, being not above 1,000*l.* per annum, rated at 13*s.* 6*d.* Sulby is charged at 40*l.*, which is at their own valuation, and Desborough at 17*l.* 10*s.*, being not worth above 400*l.* I have now in all sent up 1,220*l.* 0*s.* 0 $\frac{3}{4}$ d., being every penny that is collected, together with the particular hundreds that have paid. 8. Petition of Sir John Stowell to the King. Petitioner has in co. Somerset, and within the hundred and parish of Tintinhull, a demesne and manor for which he and his tenants are rated to the ship-money. In 1635 Sir Robert Phillips, with William Hooper, then constable, his servant, raised upon that hundred 10*l.* above what the hundred ought to pay, whereof 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* paid Sir Robert Phillips's rates, and the residue was disposed of to private uses. In the year following the ancient rates of the hundred received a general alteration, and petitioner with divers others were taxed to unjust proportion for the ease and benefit of Sir Robert Phillips, which the now sheriff finding cause to control, Sir Robert has since caused his son to deny payment of rates for his demesnes in Sock, worth 500*l.* per annum, endeavouring thereby to lay that charge on the rest of the hundred. Petitioner prays that your Majesty will so dispose of this complaint that right may be done. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Under-written,

18. Order of Council upon petition of Peter Egerton, referred to the Lords by his Majesty. Petitioner showed that having been tenant of the manors of Stoke-upon-Tern and Turley, cos. Salop and Stafford, to Anne Corbet, now wife of Sir James Stonehouse, and late wife of Richard Corbet, for 19 years at 400*l.* per annum, Sir John Corbet, brother to Richard Corbet (upon whom the inheritance of the said lands was settled by his brother from his own issue male), endeavours to get present possession thereof, and by means of his greatness in Shropshire unduly, as is alleged, obtained a verdict against Sir James Stonehouse and his lady and petitioner, and has taken forth an execution against them, leaving the rent for two years, being the remainder of petitioner's lease, to be paid by him out of his purse. It was ordered that

21. The Council to the Mayor and Commonalty of Colchester. We have sent you a copy of a report of two of the clerks of the Council to whom we referred the hearing of the differences between your corporation and William King, one of the members thereof, touching recompence to be given to King for soliciting the business of that town. After King's diligent attendance bestowed upon the affairs of your town, we hold it very unfit that he should be turned off with a bare defraying of his expenses, and therefore order that you either pay him 100 marks according to the said report, or otherwise attend the Board. 23. Petition of Richard Brasier and Fitzwilliam Laurence, registrars to Bishop Coke, of Hereford, to Archbishop Laud. The bishop now in his primary visitation is about to visit the cathedral of Hereford and the peculiars of the dean and prebendaries there. Petitioners, being the bishop's principal registrars, conceive they are to write such acts and receive such fees as belong to the registrars in that case. The doubt being referred to the archbishop's

[May 12?] 24. Note of grievances touching the registry of the Church of Hereford. 1. The jurisdiction of the Dean and Chapter being now made visitable by several ordinaries, the records which anciently have been kept in the registry will be "distracted and carried away by other registrars." 2. The prebendaries exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction within the peculiars, and having no certain office nor officer, no man knows where to find any Act sped before them, nor any certain record. To avoid these inconveniences, the form is suggested of a new statute or resolution of the Dean and Chapter, whereby it was to be declared that their registries should thenceforth be kept in the public office of the church, there to be found at all times. For enlargement of their term they desire no other than was granted by their last contract, which is three years, until the grounds which they have made may be grown to maturity, then they will desire such increase of years as your Lordships shall think fit, and will be ready to enlarge their present proportions. Honington. 44. Sir Edward Hussey, Sheriff of co. Lincoln, to William Thornton in Clement's Inn. I pray you to request the Lords to send for John Tilson and Leonard Browne, chief constables of Elloe, to show cause why they have not distrained such as have refused or neglected to pay their ship-money. In Tilson's division about 250 persons have not paid, and 124*l.* is in arrear, and in Browne's division about 400 persons and 103*l.* behind. Neither of these chief constables has distrained any, neither will they. Browne told me he would not, and Tilson sent me word that unless I myself or my under-sheriff came, he likewise would not distrain. This hundred was most refractory in the last service, of which it has not paid all as yet. [Seal with crest. 1 p.]
- May 13. 45. William Lewis (of Anwill), Sheriff of co. Carnarvon, to the Council. Certifies his proceedings under the writ for ship-money, and sends an account of the assessment on every parish and every clergyman. Has paid Sir William Russell 404*l.* There remains unreceived 43*l.* 2*s.* 8*d.*, which he hopes to pay in Michaelmas term. [Seal with arms. $\frac{2}{3}$ p.]
- May 13. 46. William Wynne, Sheriff of co. Merioneth, to the same. Similar letter to the preceding. Has paid Sir William Russell 400*l.*, leaving 16*l.*, which he hopes to pay in Michaelmas term. [Seal similar to that to the preceding. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]
- May 13. 47. Certificate of Sir Edward Harrington, Sheriff of co. Rutland, of assessment of ship-money on the several hundreds and parishes of that county. [Parchment.]
- May 13. 48. Certified extract of an entry upon a register of the High Commission of the appearance in that court of Thomas Hull, of Godalming, and that he took oath to answer the articles objected against him. [Endorsed, "Mr. Hull about Wisdome." 1 p.] Annexed,

May 14. 50. Order of the King in Council upon the petitions of the Whitehall. Bishop, Dean and Chapter, and of the Mayor and Commonalty of New Sarum, concerning what number of the canons and of the aldermen were requisite to be justices of peace. It was ordered that there shall henceforth be in commission of the peace on the Church's part the bishop, dean, all the canons residentiaries, and the chancellor of the diocese, and on the city's side the mayor, recorder, and as many of the aldermen as shall make up 13 justices, being the number of citizens heretofore allowed to be justices of peace there. [Draft. 1 p.]

May 14. 51. Order of Council. Sir Thomas Aston, farmer of the imposts

It was ordered that in regard the custom house is situate within the city, Sir Thomas shall pay the said 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* to the city, and that the sheriff of the county shall take off the sum assessed upon him, and lay it upon some other places or persons who have been either underrated or not assessed at all. May 14. 52. The Council to Edward Bromfield, Lord Mayor of London. On the 14th February last a decree was made in the Court of Star Chamber for redress of grievances happening by the excessive number of divided tenements in London, by which decree it was provided that persons interested in such tenements should before Ascension Day now next enter into bonds to observe the orders in the said decree contained, such bonds to be taken in the names of sufficient persons of the parish where such tenements are, to the use of the parish. To the intent that the said decree might be put in due execution we addressed letters of the 8th March last to you and the aldermen and justices of peace, to make certificate to the Council, according to several articles mentioned in those letters, whereupon we have lately received certificate. These are to require you to make choice of a convenient number of sufficient persons of every parish in whose names such bonds may be taken, and that you give order to the persons appointed to enter into bond that they do so before next Ascension Day. You are also immediately after Ascension Day to return certificate to the Board of the names of persons refusing or neglecting to enter bond. [1 $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

May 14. 53. Order of Council on the petition of William Scudamore, late sheriff of co. Hereford, calendared under date of 1st May instant, No. 6. The Lords ordered that the Attorney-General take the particulars in the petition mentioned into consideration, and if petitioner shall make it appear that it is not through his default that there is not a perfect return made upon the certiorari, then to take such course as petitioner may not unduly suffer through the neglect of his successor. May 14. 58. The same to Sir Capell Bedell. We have read a letter written to you, signed by Obadiah Coysh and John Sutton, of Easton, and finding the information therein given to be such as is not to be passed by without strict examination, we require you to cause Coysh and Sutton to make their repair before us to give further information; and likewise that such others as were present be required to come up at the same time. In your direction to Coysh and Sutton you are to intimate that it is expected that they come prepared to give a reason of their concealing their accusation until so many months after the sermon was preached. The messenger sent to bring up Giles Randall will give them notice of the time of his setting forward, that they may come up accordingly. [Copy. 1 p.]

May 14. 59. William Walter, Sheriff of co. Oxford, to Nicholas. The case Sarsden. between the corporations and hundreds in some parts of the county, which was particularly stated under the names of the corporation of Chipping Norton and the hundred of Chadlington, and referred by the Lords to the Attorney and Solicitor-General to be ordered, now requires decision. It is not valuable to any particular man to solicit it, but it is every particular man's answer in the hundreds it concerns to defer payment so long as it stands in doubt. The case is fully stated and ready for a sentence, the delivery of which will much advance my proceedings. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

60. Peter Farnden to [Nicholas]. The sheriff of Sussex appointed me to receive the ship-money in the rape of Hastings, amounting to 900*l.*, which I have done. My desire is that the sheriff may be commanded to take it out of my charge and pay it over as appointed. He can command the strength of the county to assist him to convey it. Proclamation touching the manufacture of playing-cards and dice. For better employment and relief of card-makers and dice-makers, the King has appointed an officer for searching and sealing all cards and dice before they be put to sale. His Majesty charges all makers and importers to bring the same to the officer to be viewed, and to pay him his fee appointed by the letters patent. Cards and dice not viewed by the officer are to be forfeited, and any person buying, selling, using, or keeping them, is also to forfeit 12*l.* for every pair of cards or "bale" (i.e. couple) of dice. Prays a reference to the Lord Keeper and some of the judges to certify their opinions; and in case they shall certify that there is no other way to end it but by a trial in law, that then Mr. Page may be ordered to prepare himself for a speedy hearing, summer being a season to build kilns, and winter to use them. 63. Lord Chief Justices Bramston and Finch, and Sir Humphrey Davenport, Lord Chief Baron, to the Council. According to the Lords' order of the 25th May 1636, we have informed ourselves of the best ways of raising moneys to repair the decays of the harbour of Plymouth, which, according to estimate, will cost 2,255*l*. We conceive it reasonable that the mayor and commonalty of Plymouth should receive one penny per ton of all ships coming within the Sound of Plymouth, or any of its members on the south coast of Cornwall, during three years, and one penny per ton of all ships belonging to Plymouth for every voyage they shall make during the same term, and sixpence per ton of all pilchards laden aboard any ship within the Sound to be exported during three years, unless sufficient money be collected in shorter time, and then these dues to cease. Forasmuch as great part of the said decays have been occasioned by the neglect of the mayor and burgesses of Saltash, water-bailiffs of the said harbour, who take the anchorage and other profits of the same, in suffering a ship long since sunk in the said harbour to lie there still, and permitting great quantities of ballast to be cast into the harbour, we conceive it reasonable that they speedily remove the said ship, or that a moiety of the said profits be converted to repairing the said harbour during the three years; but it being parcel of the Duchy of Cornwall, and no person appearing before us on their behalf, we submit the further consideration thereof to your Lordships. For preservation of the harbour in future, we conceive the propositions made by the mayor and commonalty of Plymouth reasonable, viz., that the care of the harbour and the sole sale and delivery of all ballast be committed to the mayor and commonalty and not left at large as formerly, they taking for every ton of ballast stones delivered aboard 10*l*., and for every ton taken ashore 6*l*., and for every ton of ballast sand or gravel 6*d*., to be applied towards repair of the harbour; and that every lighter belonging to Plymouth or using to dredge for sea-sand, shall once every year, for making of deeper water, take away one load of gravel and sand driven by the rivers Plym and Mew into the harbour of Catwater, and lay the same upon the southern part of the fretted neck of land called Howstert. I long for the coming of our admiral that we might be doing something, for I am very weary in lying here. I marvel that the rest of our fleet comes not down, and "especiall" that none of our merchants come away. I send a list of the ships that are come out and when they came. I cannot but wonder that the Prince Elector's business should not be resolved of before this, either off or on. Write me what will become of that business, when my lord will be here, where our scene lies for this summer's employment, and who is placed admiral for the Irish coast. Admiral Van Dorp continues lying to and again upon the coast of Flanders, looking out for the coming home of the Dunkirkers, but I think they have no great mind to meet, otherwise it were impossible they should miss so often. 75. Dr. Thomas Creittone [Creighton], the vicar, and four others, of Greenwich, to Henry Earl of Holland, Lord High Steward of his Majesty's manor of East Greenwich. We have, according to your letter of the 29th of April, declared the contents of the Lords' letter to the inhabitants of Greenwich, and have endeavoured to remove the inmates, lodgers, and sojourners, whom we found to be very many, yet most of them having been ancient inhabitors we could not remove; those lately come into the town we assigned short time of stay. We have found so many conversions of houses into small tenements, and many newly erected cottages all filled with people resorting to the town upon hope of preferment into one of the hospitals erected here, or to be set on work in ballasting ships, that the better sort of inhabitants find it too great a burden, the poor's book being risen within a few years from 30*l.* to above 60*l.* For reformation whereof we are constrained to be suitors to have the benefit of the late decree in the Star Chamber for reformation of the like enormities about London, with such further power, the town being frequented with all sorts of idle people, especially in times of infection, as the Lords shall think meet. P.S.—The town is in good health, but we pray that persons inhabiting here, and having trades in London, may be constrained not to go to and from London, as Thomas Paternoster, a broker, and John Grover, a brewer, often do. 88. The like. Recites petition of Henry Darrell and the inhabitants of St. Giles's-in-the-Fields, calendared under 3rd May inst., No. 44. It appeared that the late King granted to Trinity College, Oxford, six markets and twelve fairs towards building their hall, which grant having been confirmed by the present King, two of the markets and three of the fairs had been purchased by petitioner of the said college with a view to the same being settled in the parish of St. Giles. After a reference to Sir Henry Spiller, Sir Kenelm Digby, and George Gage, and the return of a writ of Ad quod damnum, the Attorney-General drew up a book for his Majesty's signature, but upon complaint of the city his Majesty commanded that it should rest till further order. In January 1636-7 his Majesty gave order to the Attorney-General to proceed, and the opposers to be left to the law, whereupon petitioners prayed for their grant. The Lords having ordered that the Lord Mayor and aldermen should have a copy of the petition and make answer thereunto, they were this day heard, and made it appear that by a charter dated 6th March, 1 Edward III., made in Parliament, it was granted that there should thenceforth be granted no market within seven miles of the city, which charter was in 7 Richard II. by authority of Parliament confirmed. It was further alleged that the erecting of a market and fairs in St. Giles's would be many ways prejudicial to the city, and amongst them that the city by their charter of 1st John have the sheriffwick of London and Middlesex granted to them, for which they pay 300*l.* per annum to his Majesty, the principal means for raising which being the toll of cattle coming to their markets. The Lords declared that they conceived it would be very inconvenient and unfit that there should be any market or fair erected at St. Giles's-in-the-Fields, and contrary to the grants in Parliament. May 17. 91. Order of Council. Recites that his Majesty at the motion of Inner Star Chamber. the Lord Lieutenants of Middlesex took notice how much that county suffered for want of a pest-house, and by an order of the 23rd of April last directed that 206*l.* divers years since collected in the county for providing a magazine of powder should be employed for that purpose, and further that some part of the ground heretofore purchased by the common purse of that county might be spared to that end. The Lords have this day received certificate that the houses of the Earls of Exeter and Newcastle are very near the place designed for erecting the pest-house, and that they with divers other persons of quality shall be enforced to forsake their dwellings or become exceedingly endangered, and that the New Prison, which yields an annual rent towards the support of the House of Correction recently built at the county's charges, will with the House of Correction become useless in time of infection if a pest-house be erected in the place appointed. The Lords thereupon declared that the place designed is altogether unfit, and ordered the justices of peace to consider of some other more fit place. [Draft. $1\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

May 17. 92. Certificate mentioned in the preceding article and signed by William Earl of Exeter, George Lord Berkeley, and nine other persons, inhabitants of Clerkenwell, and addressed to the Council. It states the situation of the place appointed for erection of a pest-house and its distance in yards from Clerkenwell Church, the House of Correction, the New Prison, and the dwelling houses of the subscribers and other persons of distinction. - May 17. 93. Petition of Thomas Reynolds, of Colchester, bay and say maker, to the Council. Petitioner stands committed on the complaint of William Newton, Robert Broome, and Edmond Whiting, and has submitted and given full satisfaction, as by a release annexed appears. Has had a loss by fire to the value of 500*l.*, and has 500 poor people set on work by his trade, his absence from which will bring them to utter ruin. Prays for his liberty. - May 17. 94. The Council to the Warden of the Fleet. To set at liberty Thomas Reynolds upon his preceding petition. [Draft minute. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]
- May 17. 95. Petition of Clement Lanieri to the Council. Emilia Lanieri, claiming 20*l.* per annum in respect of a grant for weighing hay and straw in Smithfield, Puddlewharf, and Charing Cross, exhibited her bill in Chancery against petitioner, but after answer caused her bill to be dismissed and sued petitioner in forma pauperis in the Court of Requests. On 11 November 1634 it was ordered in that court that petitioner should pay the said Emilia 20 nobles per annum until the hearing of the same cause, which petitioner accordingly paid, but she never procured the cause to be heard. Afterwards Emilia deserted that court and preferred her petition to your Lordships, who on 29th April 1636 referred the matter to the Lord Privy Seal, who on 13th May 1636 ordered petitioner to pay 5*l.* in full of all arrears, and 10*l.* yearly until petitioner could have the benefit of his grant for Smithfield and Puddlewharf. In obedience thereto petitioner paid the 5*l.*, and was willing to pay the 10*l.* per annum, but Emilia not being satisfied with any of the same orders preferred another petition to your Lordships, who on 12th April 1637 ordered petitioner to pay her 20*l.* per annum, which he is no way able to do by reason of the city's opposition to his grant. Prays appointment for petitioner and his counsel to attend

May 17. 96. Order of Council made on the preceding petition and the last petition of Emilia Lanieri therein mentioned. Their Lordships ordered that Clement Lanieri should forthwith pay to Emilia 5*l.* for all arrearages due before the date of the order of 13th May 1636, and from that time for the time to come 10*l.* per annum towards her maintenance, and the said 10*l.* per annum after her death to be continued and settled upon her grandchildren, Henry and Mary Lanieri, and the survivor of them; and if Clement Lanieri shall recover the benefit of his patent for Smithfield and Puddlewharf, thenceforward he shall pay 20*l.* per annum instead of 10*l.* [Draft. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

May 17. 97. The Council to the Sheriff of co. Hertford. By a late order made upon hearing the differences between the inhabitants of the greater and lesser division of the hundred of Dacorum, concerning the assessment for shipping, you were directed to lay the said assessment as the same was rated last year. By the petition enclosed complaint is made that you have altered the rates set last year, charging more by 3*l.* upon Hemel-Hempstead and Gaddesden than before. It was our meaning that you should govern yourself by the rates set by your predecessor, not only for the sum set upon each division, but likewise for the rates set upon particular places. Concerning the supposed inequality in this or other rates for public services we leave the same to be settled by the justices of peace at their sessions. [Draft. 1 p.]

May 17. 98. Order of Council made upon a petition of Sir John Stanhope. The Lords ordered that Sir William Becher and Thomas Meautys, clerks of the Council, should call Sergeant Francis before them and the petitioner's solicitor, and require the sergeant to restore whatsoever money shall have been taken by him or his man above ordinary fees. [Draft. 1 p.]

May 17. 99. Order of Council. Recites letter of the 28th December last, written to the Earl of Derby, to examine a difference between the town of Chester and Sir William Brereton about watching and warding, and the Earl's answer thereto of the 15th April last, calendared under that date, whereby it was certified that Sir William and his tenants ought to be free of ordinary watching and warding within the city. Their Lordships concurring in that opinion, ordered their declaration to that effect to be entered on the Council Register as a binding act to settle the said difference. - May 17. 102. Minute of appearance before the Council of James Millward, constable of Batcombe, Somerset, according to bond taken by the sheriff. [Draft. $\frac{1}{4}$ p.]
- May 17. 103. Petition of James Millward, constable of the liberty of Batcombe, in the hundred of Whitstone, Somerset, to the Council. Being by warrant from William Bassett, sheriff of that county, required to levy 30*l.* within Batcombe for ship-money, he gave notice thereof to James Bisse, Edward Bisse, and other sufficient men, who met and made a rate which is conceived to be very equal, but James Aish, of Westcombe, clothier, being warned to be an assessor, refused to be present thereat. The said Aish, whose personal estate is worth 15,000*l.*, was rated at 5*l.*, against which he excepted, pretending that Batcombe and Westcombe were several tithings and must be rated apart, and afterwards that an agreement was made some 40 years since between them that they should pay equally, which would be a burden insupportable upon Batcombe. The sheriff upon Aish's information required petitioner to make a new assessment, which he was unwilling to do; whereupon the sheriff required petitioner to levy the money assessed on Aish and others, but bound petitioner to attend the Council Board to answer the said Aish's complaints. Submits himself to the judgment of the Board. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]
- May 17. 104. Order of Council upon the preceding petition of James Star Chamber. Millward. The Lords ordered that Millward should be discharged from further attendance, and that the said James Aish should forthwith pay the 5*l.* assessed upon him for the ship-money, with all the constable's charges expended in his coming up hither and otherwise in this business. [Draft. $1\frac{2}{3}$ p.]
- May 17. 105. Petition of Hugh Lord Coleraine and Sir John Hare to the Council. Petitioners, as executors of Hugh Hare, deceased, were "interested to" a debt of 1,431*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, owing by Sir Thomas Bromley and long forborne, being secured by statute. Sir Thomas,

being desirous to pay this and other of his debts, married Henry Bromley, his son and heir, to a daughter of Sir Richard Newport, of Shropshire. The portion he was to receive was 5,000*l.*, which together with rents of lands in Salop, being 2,000*l.*, was to remain in Sir Richard's hands and to be by him issued in discharge of Sir Thomas Bromley's debts. About June 1628 an agreement was made whereby petitioner's debt was to be paid by 300*l.* a year, and they received 681*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, but since May 1630 they have not received one penny, leaving 750*l.* unpaid. After that agreement other debts of Sir Thomas Bromley, puisne to petitioners, were assigned over to the King, and extents issued against all the lands of Sir Thomas Bromley, which were extended at low rates for supposed debts to his Majesty, but indeed the debts of subjects. Sir Richard Newport has compounded these debts and taken the assignment of the extents in the name of Henry Bromley and others, and they receive the profits of the lands to their own use. By keeping these extents on foot they prevent petitioners from extending their statute until the assigned debts be satisfied, which will not be these ten years at least. Sir Thomas is willing that petitioners' and other debts should be paid, and in Easter term, 12 Car. I., exhibited his bill in Chancery against Sir Richard Newport, to have an account of the profits of lands received by him for payment of debts, but Sir Richard pleads outlawries against Sir Thomas Bromley, so as he can have no proceeding in his suit. In Hilary term last, petitioners preferred a bill in Chancery against Sir Richard Newport, Sir Thomas Bromley, and Henry Bromley for payment of their debts, to which Sir Richard and Henry Bromley appeared in person, but for delay obtained a dedimus to take their answer in the country, which they have not returned, but do sit [sic] process of contempt, waiting the decease of Sir Thomas Bromley, who is aged and sickly, having only a life estate in his lands, so that upon his death petitioners' debt is lost, which long since should have been paid. Pray order for Sir Richard Newport and Henry Bromley to show cause wherefore petitioners' debts should not be paid. [1 p.]

[May 17.] 108. Petition of Sir William Calley to the Council. Sir Walter Titchborne, of Aldershott, and Sir Richard Titchborne, of Titchborne,

VOL. CCCLVI.

1637. both in Hants, are bound to petitioner by obligation, dated 1 December 1634, in 600*l.*, for payment of 312*l.* on 3rd June then following. Petitioner prays that the protection granted to the said Sir Richard and Sir Walter Titchborne may not be renewed until petitioner shall be satisfied. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]
- May 17. 109. Order of Council upon the preceding petition. The Secretaries of State, the Master of Requests, Clerks of the Signet, and others, should take care that no petition be presented to his Majesty for a further protection to Sir Walter and Sir Richard Titchborne unless the debt to Sir William Calley be paid. [Draft. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ p.]
- May 17. 110. Petition of John Ashburnham to the Council. Petitioner lent Sir Richard Titchborne, five years since, 600*l.* upon bond. Sir Richard has taken off 450*l.*, yet for the remainder petitioner can get no satisfaction. Prays that Sir Richard's protection may not be renewed until he has given petitioner satisfaction. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]
- May 17. 111. Order of Council similar to that in the preceding case of Sir William Calley. [Draft. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]
- May 17. 112. Petition of Sir Gerard Fleetwood to the Council. In November 1633, petitioner lent Sir Walter Titchborne and Sir Richard, his brother, 500*l.* upon their bond and that of Sir John Philpot, who is since dead, for their security. Petitioner is not, as yet, paid any part of his money, Sir Walter and Sir Richard Titchborne having since got themselves into protection royal and being sworn his Majesty's servants. Petitioner was likewise bound for them about 10 years since to Peter Corne in 400*l.* for payment of 200*l.* yet unsatisfied, and Sir Richard and Sir Walter had given an appearance to Corne by which a judgment was got against petitioner for the said 400*l.* Prays leave to seek his relief at law, and that order be given to the clerk of the signet and masters of requests that no protection pass until petitioner be satisfied. - May 17. 114. Order of Council. Recites petition of Francis Theobald, showing that Sir Richard and Sir Walter Titchborne for the proper debt of Sir Richard had acknowledged a judgment to petitioner of 600*l.* defeasanced for payment of his debt on the first of this month, which Sir Richard had neglected to pay, whereupon petitioner desired leave to take the benefit of his judgment, or that no new protection might be granted till his debt were satisfied. The Lords ordered as in the preceding similar cases. [Draft. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]
- May 17. 115. The like. Recites petition of Richard Halford and Jane his wife, showing that about five years since the petitioner Jane lent to Sir John Philpot, on his bond and that of Sir Richard and Sir Walter Titchborne, 500*l.*, but Sir John dying, made over to Sir Richard and Sir Walter leases of 600*l.* per annum for payment of that and other debts, whereupon they became bound to pay the 500*l.* in February 1634; but no payment has been made, for that they have stood upon his Majesty's royal protection. Petitioners therefore prayed that Sir Richard's protection might not be renewed until he had paid the 500*l.* or given better security for the same. The Lords made an order similar to that in the preceding cases of the like nature. [Draft. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

[May 17] 116. Petition of Anthony Birkin and Henry Mills, soapmakers of Bridgwater, to the Council. State the contents of their former petitions, with the references and report of the Lord Mayor and John Lightfoot, calendared under the dates of the 6th and 10th of this present month (Vol. ccclv., Nos. 104, 178–180). Pray for an order that the bond made by petitioners to John Mudd, a searcher for illicit soap, may be delivered up to be cancelled, and that they and David Selleck may be received into the company when the same is settled, and in the meantime may be permitted to use their trade. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

May 17. 117. Order upon the preceding petition of Anthony Birkin and Star Chamber. Henry Mills. It was ordered that John Mudd should deliver up to Birkin and Mills the bond above mentioned to be cancelled; and Birkin, Mills, and Selleck were recommended to the Lord Mayor, that when the business of soap shall be settled, such of them may be received into the company as have served seven years in the trade of soapmaking. May 17. 118. Capt. Henry Bell to the Council. Because I would be thoroughly secured that my two requests expressed in the annexed petition should be approved every way agreeable to justice and equity, I sent the same to six several persons of worth, note, and quality. They concur in one mind that my requests fully agree with Christian reason, with the law of nature, with justice and with equity, and that one of the same requests at least ought to be freely offered without any suit at all. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Annexed, 118. 1. *Petition of Capt. Henry Bell, prisoner in the Gatehouse, to the Council. The hearing of petitioner's cause during five years has been deferred, and even as long his body detained in prison. To the end it may appear to the world whether petitioner be guilty or not of the crimes wherewith he is charged, and also whether he did or did not disburse very near 4,000*l.* about 21 years past in the employments of his late Majesty and the State, he prays a speedy hearing of his cause, and that his accusers, as also himself, may have such justice administered to them as by the law is established. But if, in regard of other weighty affairs, your Lordships as yet have not had time to take his cause into hearing, then he prays that order may be taken for such maintenance as shall be fitting for a man of petitioner's rank.* [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

119. Petition of Sir John St. John to the Council. Petitioner's name being used in trust for purchase of an annuity of 100*l.* from Peter Apsley, for the maintenance of the younger children of Sir Allen Apsley, deceased, the care of which children was committed to Dame Lucy, sister of petitioner, who is since married to Sir Leventhorpe Frank, your Lordships, by order dated 10th February last, directed that thenceforward petitioner should receive said annuity and pay it over to the use of the said children. Dame Lucy, who has the custody of the younger children, desires petitioner to pay the money to Allen Apsley, one of her sons, who, with the said lady, have otherwise provided for the other children; but petitioner, by reason of the said lady's marriage with Sir Leventhorpe Frank, knows not how to dispose or what discharge to receive for the said money. 122. Copy order sent by Bishop Davenant, of Salisbury, to the parish of Aldbourn, Wilts, respecting the placing of the communion table, and which order is stated to have been entered in the register book of that parish by the curate at that time. It is as follows:—

“ John by diuine prouidence Bishopp of Sarum, to the Curate and Churchwardens with the Parishioners of Alborne in the county of Wiltes, and our diocese of Sarum, greeting. Whereas his Majestie hath been lately informed that some men factiously disposed hath taken vpon themselves to place and remooue the communion table in the Church of Alborne, and therevpon his

highnes hath required mee to take present order therein. These are to let you knowe, that both according to the Iniunctions giuen out in the reign of Queen Elizabeth for the placinge of communion tables in churches, and by the 82. Cannon agreed upon in the first year of the raigne of King James of blessed memory, it was intimated that these Tables should ordinarilie bee sett and stand with the side to the east wall of the Chauncell. I therfor requier you the Churchwardens and all other persons not to meddle with the bringinge downe or transportinge of the communion table, as you will answer it att your owne perill. And because some doe ignorantly suppose that the standinge of the communion table wher [the] alter stood in tymes of superstition hath some relishe of poperie, and some perchance may as erroneously conceive that the placing therof otherwise when the holy communion is administred sauors of inreuerence, I would haue you to take notice from the forenamed Iniunctions and Cannon, from the Rubricke par-fixed before the administration of the Lord's Supper, and from the first article not long since inquired of in the visitation of our most reuerend Metropolitan, that the placing of it higher or lower in the Chauncell or in the church is by the iudgment of the Church [of] England a thinge indifferent and to be ordered and guided by the only rule of conueniencie. Now because in thinges of this nature to judge and determine what is most conuenient belonges not to priuat persons but to those that have Ecclesiastical authoritie, I inhibitt you the Churchwardens and all other persons whatsoever to meddle with the bringing done [sic] of the Communion table or with alteringe the place therof att such tymes as the holy supper is to bee administred, and I requier you herein to yeeld obedience vnto what is all readie judged most conuenient by my Chancellor unless upon further consideration and veiwe it shalbee otherwise ordered. Now to the end that the minister may neither bee overtoyled, nor the people indecentlie and inconvenientlie thronged together when they are to drawe neere and take the holy sacrament, and that the frequent celebration therof may neuer the less bee continued, I doe further appointe that thrice in the yeare att the least, there bee publicke notice given in the church for foure communions to bee held upon foure Sundaies together, and that there come not to the communion above two hundred att the most, for the better obseruacion wherof, and that euery man may know his proper time, the Curat shall deuide the parishioners in to fower partes accordinge to his discreation [sic] and as shall most fittinglie serue to this purpose, and if they diuided into four parts, any turbeilent spiritt shall disobay this our order, hee shall bee proceeded against according to the quality of his fault and misdemeanor. In witness wherof I have herevnto sett my hand and seale Episcopall this seuentecnth day of May 1637, and in the yeare of our consecration the sixteenth."

Also that they said that Lord Cottington was a base rascal to grant any such letter, and that John Chambers, another of the King's tenants, said that what the other parties had said was all true, for that they could not speak so base of "the supposed Lord Cottington" as he deserved. 143. Order of Council. The church of St. Michael le Querne, in Cheapside, being now re-edifying, there stands at the east end of the church-close a shop built upon the waste where Edward Brooke dwells, and which shop is not only a disgrace to the street but a means of "streighting" the said church, which will not hold much above half the parish. It was ordered that Sir Henry Spiller, Inigo Jones, surveyor of his Majesty's works, Lawrence Whitaker,

John Williams, and Thomas Langden, being the commissioners for buildings, calling to them the churchwardens and some of the parishioners, cause the re-edifying of the church to be presently stayed, and that they agree with the owner of the shop for the purchase of the same, that it may be taken in as well to enlarge the church as to beautify it and the street. It is further ordered that they view the conduit at the east end of the said church, and give directions that the same may be disposed for convenience of the conduit and the better beautifying of the church and street. 145. Petition of the President, Treasurer, and Governors of Christ's Hospital, near Newgate market, to the Council. There are upon the charge of the said hospital near upon 1,000 orphans, most of whom, according to ancient custom, are kept abroad at nurse in the country until of fit age to be set to school or to be bound apprentices, there being not receipt in the hospital for above one fourth part of them. By warrant of Sir Thomas Fanshawe and Sir John Watts, justices of peace in co. Hertford, divers of the nurses living in Ware have been compelled to part with their nurse-children, and on the 17th instant about 30 were sent up in waggons to the hospital, the nurses themselves travelling on foot, guarded as if they had been offenders. The other nurses in those parts are threatened with imprisonment if they refuse to send their children up to the hospital, and it is reported that half a hundred more at the least will be sent up to the hospital this week. Ware and other parts adjoining are reported to be visited, wherefore the children coming out of a fresh into a closer air will not only endanger the whole number of children, officers, and their families in the hospital, which all last year was clear, but also the whole city. Pray that the children may have their abidance as they formerly had, otherwise petitioners shall not be able to dispose of them but in mean places in the city. [1 p.]

146. Order of Council upon the above petition. It was ordered that the president and governors of the hospital should send back the children to their nurses, and that the justices of peace, where the nurses dwell, shall be required to permit the nurses to keep the children as formerly. If inconvenience grow to Ware or other places the justices are to represent the same to the Board. No children are to be sent into the country who have mothers that run

May 19. 147. Order of Council. Recites petition of George Price, who complained that being at the entreaty of Henry Blackall, late soapmaker, bound with him in a bond of 1,000*l.* in consideration of 300*l.* per annum to be paid to Blackall by the new corporation of soapmakers to forbear his trade of making soap and do them service therein, Blackall died within a year after, without being questioned for breach of his said bond, but petitioner is sued thereon in the Exchequer. This complaint being referred to Mr. Gage, governor of the company of soapmakers of Westminster, he returned answer that Blackall failed of his undertaking, which was to vent a great quantity of soap, and never demanded any part of his pension. It was ordered that the Attorney-General cause the suit in the Exchequer against petitioner to be stayed, and he to be freed of the same. [Draft. 1½ p.]

May 19. 148. Petition of William Nead, archer, and William Nead, his son, to the Council. Petitioner William Nead the elder, being an ancient archer and practitioner in the exercise of arms, and finding recorded renowned victories obtained by the use of the bow, and observing that the pikemen stand but as a mark for the enemy's shot, petitioner therefore by long practice with an invention has produced a way to fasten the bow to the pike, whereby every pikeman is enabled to offend the enemy far off or near at hand, which warlike service by petitioner was presented to the King, who gave direction that it should be exercised in the Artillery Garden of London. Petitioner also presented the same to a committee of Parliament in the first year of his Majesty's reign, by whom it was debated and approved. It was also presented to the council of war, and performed before his Majesty by 300 of the Artillery Company in St. James's Park, and since his Majesty, in person, has exercised the same, and declared his approbation thereof in a proclamation wherein he has commanded the general exercise thereof. For the advancement thereof divers lord lieutenants have directed letters to their deputy lieutenants, who have well approved petitioner's faithful service therein. Petitioners pray the countenance and favour of the Council for advancement of this service, and that such rewards may be conferred on those employed therein as shall encourage them to perform the same. and our present Sovereign for repairing the highways according to statute, but the same have of late been much neglected and are become impassable in divers places. Many parishes have not done half their work for years together by reason that poor men are chosen surveyors who are ignorant of that service and also stand in fear of their neighbours' displeasure, so that they dare not present them according to statute. Prays power by your warrant to question the surveyors of the several parishes (where his Majesty shall resort) and where reformation is not had, that a messenger may be appointed to bring such defaulters before the Council as petitioner shall find. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

May 19. 150. Henry Dewell to the Council. Whereas you require your petitioner to give a particular note of parishes and offenders in neglect of the highways, petitioner hears of the offences wheresoever he goes, but for want of power he cannot discover the particulars. Kingston, Walton-upon-Thames, and Stepney especially have been exceedingly remiss. If your suppliant had power he would soon give an account of the particulars and offenders' names. [1 p.]

May 19. 151. Order of Council upon the above petition of Henry Dewell. It was ordered that Dewell should require the officers of places where he shall see occasion to have the highways repaired, to repair the same by Bartholomew's Day next, which if they shall refuse or neglect he is to acquaint the Board therewith, that further order may be taken. The Hague. glad to find you so much satisfied with my answer about the mistake of your letter. I entreat you to continue your confidence of me. I am sorry that the news was not true concerning the signing of the French treaty, which I wish were well done, that the King might give a good answer to the Sweden's propositions, for I believe they are the men we shall have most reason to trust. I am glad the King will not give the title of Emperor to the King of Hungary; the French king professes not to do it, and the States have not done it. I have not yet received the King's answer concerning the title of vicar of the empire. For the fishing I am glad you are satisfied with what I said. I find here that they are reasonably well satisfied with the hopes they have of it. Thanks for his books. I like the trimming and binding of them very well. Petitioner's works being now settled at Hereford, and his servants at work in the country adjacent, Humphrey Berington, of Bishopstone, when two of petitioner's servants had made a load of liquor ready to be sent to the boiling house, on the 10th inst., caused a servant of his, called Black Harry, to throw down all the tubs, to break some of them, and to spill all the liquor; and afterwards, his Majesty's commission being shown to him and satisfaction requested, he obstinately refused. Petitioner being now in London attending on the Lords, his servant has come above 100 miles to certify the truth, as appears by the annexed affidavit. Mr. Berington being a man of worth in the country, by whose example others are encouraged, petitioner prays that he may be sent for, and order taken that his Majesty's service in petitioner's charge may go on again, and that Mr. Berington may satisfy petitioner his loss. Report on matters in difference between the Earl of Dover and the Commissioners of Sewers touching the dam belonging to the Earl's mill, parcel of his manor of Conisborough, co. York. A petition was heretofore exhibited to the Commissioners of Sewers by Samuel Savile on behalf of the inhabitants of Mexborough, upon pretence that the same mill-dam about 20 years since had been raised. After a view and debate in a sessions of sewers, the matter was, on the 7th November last, respite till the next sessions. But the next morning seven of the same commissioners without any new hearing, because the Earl's servant who attended the business would not undertake that no certainari should be sued forth to remove the cause, presently made a decree for abating the mill-dam. We finding the same decree to be unwarrantable, the matter having been before adjourned to another session, hold fit that it should be suppressed and no use be made thereof in any court of justice. We also think fit that Mr. Savile or other the inhabitants of Mexborough, if they find cause, shall bring their action at law against the Earl of Dover, to which his lordship assents to appear gratis and plead the general issue, so as the matter may receive a trial by jury. The churchwardens and some of the parishioners, to save their own purses in other payments, let the said houses by their own authority and the multitude of suffrages in a vestry, in the absence of the parson and against his consent; also refusing the approbation of the ordinary, Sir John Lambe. By reason whereof the counter paines [counterparts] of the leases of the said houses are lost, the church is much prejudiced, and petitioner slighted. His Majesty observing that through the industry of the sheriff the whole county was now assessed, excepting only two parishes, which never was so before, declared that he perceived by the sheriff's prudent ordering of the assessment he had expressed a very good affection both to the service and to his country, for which he deserved double thanks; and the sheriff being called in by his Majesty's especial command, he had approbation and encouragement given him to proceed with cheerfulness to assess and levy the money of all men within his shrievalty for the lands and abilities for which they are not assessed elsewhere, and

4. The like Order. Recites petition of Sir John Stowell, calendered under date of 12th May inst., No. 8. Sir John complained of the conduct of Sir Robert Phillips and William Hooper, his servant, in reference to the assessment of ship-money for the hundred and parish of Tintinhull, co. Somerset, and also that Sir Robert had caused his son to deny payment of rates for his demesnes in Sock-Dennis in the same county, worth 500*l.* per annum, endeavouring thereby to throw the charge upon the rest of the hundred. Upon hearing, it appeared by a letter written by Edward Phillips, son of Sir Robert, to the sheriff, that he did not deny payment towards the ship-money, but only refused to pay with the hundred of Tintinhull, his land being exempt from that hundred, and offered to pay whatever sum the sheriff should hold 500*l.* per annum fit to bear, over and above the 130*l.* laid upon the hundred; which answer his Majesty and the Council took as an assured argument of Mr. Phillips's good affection to the service, deserving a far better interpretation than petitioner's complaint gave it; therefore it was ordered that Mr. Phillips's demesnes in Sock-Dennis shall not be rated as parcel of the hundred of Tintinhull, till it shall by law be so adjudged. As concerning the other charge against Sir Robert Phillips and the constable, the same was esteemed altogether frivolous, and Sir John Stowell and Sir Robert Phillips being called to the Board, it was declared to them that his Majesty found just cause to acquit Sir Robert Phillips of all the complaint, and that if Sir John Stowell had not otherwise well deserved by his former carriage in his Majesty's service, his Majesty would not so easily have passed it by. As concerning the constable, it was ordered that Sir John Stowell shall pay his charges as having causelessly troubled him; and lastly his Majesty's command was laid upon Sir John Stowell and Sir Robert Phillips, requiring them to lay aside these ways, and so to moderate their passions as that they failed not to join together in the service of his Majesty and the country, and whosoever of them shall give the first provocation,

5. The Council to Bishop Pierce, of Bath and Wells. The complaint of the inhabitants of the hundred of Bruton and Norton-Ferris, co. Somerset, about their unequal rating to the ship-money, being formerly referred to the judges of assize, they not settling the same, petitioners have renewed their suit to the Board, showing their inability to pay so great a sum as 320*l.*, when by right they ought to have been charged but with 213*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.* We have thought it good to pray your Lordship, John Malet, the late sheriff, and William Bassett, now sheriff, to settle the same according to his Majesty's writ, it being the King's pleasure that no place be favoured to the prejudice of another, but if you cannot settle the same, to certify in whom the fault remains. 6. The same to the same. The inhabitants of the hundred of Milverton, co. Somerset, complained that in the time that Mr. Hodges was sheriff, being assessed at 80*l.* towards the ship-money, they willingly collected and paid the same, as also 80*l.* more, to Mr. Bassett, now sheriff, for their rate towards the last year, yet the said present sheriff commands them to levy 80*l.* more, being double as much as ever was paid. We pray you to call before you the petitioners and others and settle the same, or certify the Board the true state of that business, with your opinions as to what is best to be done. [Draft. 1 p.]

7. The same to the same. The inhabitants of the hundred of Chewton, co. Somerset, were by Mr. Hodges, late sheriff, assessed towards the ship-money at 160*l.*, whereof they paid 143*l.* 13*s.* 2*d.*, yet long after his time of shrievalty was out he altered the rates, and inserted in his accounts 80*l.* more to be paid by petitioners, notwithstanding that by all ancient rates the hundred stands charged but with 160*l.*, which petitioners have fully paid to Mr. Malet, and desire that they may be freed from payment of the said 80*l.* We pray you to call before you these parties, and compose the matter, or certify the truth of the particulars, and especially whether the assessment was altered by Mr. Hodges after the expiration of his shrievalty, and in whom the fault remains. 8. Order of Council upon several petitions presented by divers justices of peace and other inhabitants of the three hundreds of Chiltern, co. Buckingham, complaining of an unequal tax for ship-money. It was ordered that the petitioners and such of the justices of peace of the hundreds of the Vale as are in town, together with the sheriff, shall attend the Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, and with his advice agree upon what has been the most usual rate according to which the hundreds in that county may be assessed towards the ship-money with most equality, and to certify the same. May 21. 9. The Council to William Earl of Derby. Recite the petition of Roger Anderton relative to the tithes of Childwall, co. Lancaster, calendared under the 10th inst., with the reference to Lord Strange and his reply, calendared under the 18th inst. We pray your lordship either to give petitioner satisfaction by agreeing with him without suits in law, or to appoint some one to attend our sitting in the Star Chamber on the 23rd of June, at which time we have appointed to hear the said differences. [Draft. 1 p.]

May 21. 10. Petition of divers baymakers of Coggeshall, Braintree, and Bocking to the Council. In all thankfulness to his Majesty and the Lords for their audience and care towards petitioners, they show that, according to the Lords' command to Robert Oxwick, petitioners treated with him what he could do with their debts of 2,300*l.*, of which they are in such great want to supply with work the poor people who depend upon them (see previous petition of these petitioners on the 4th inst., No. 67). His answer was that he could not promise anything at all as yet. His resolution seems to be not only that the Lords' order should not prevail with him, but that he will rather proceed in a way to defeat petitioners because they have complained. State various facts as "the causes of these suppositions," and pray redress. [1 p.]

May 21. 11. Order of the King in Council upon the above petition. That Whitehall. Robert Oxwick shall give satisfaction to the said baymakers for the debt owing by him within one month, and shall presently give security not to convey away his estate to defeat the said poor men, or else that his protection royal for so much as concerns them shall be dissolved, and it shall be free for them to take their course against him according to law. May 21. 12. The Council to the Marshal of the Admiralty or his Deputies. The Increase, of London, Robert Lees master, is going to sea, notwithstanding she has been seized to the King's use and is questioned in the Exchequer by information to be tried next term. Require you to make stay of the said ship until the trial be past or Lees has given good caution for the value of her. [Draft. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

15. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to the Lords of the Admiralty. By the enclosed abstract of a letter from Sir John Pennington you will receive information of an affair which requires your direction. By the bearer, the master of the Industry, now in his Majesty's service, you will be likewise advertised of another accident, wherein I conceive it requisite some order be speedily taken. The sooner you declare your pleasure therein the more you will oblige the "interested" parties. I by letter to Sir John Pennington yesterday gave him order to send the vessels rescued by Captain Popham into Dover, to cause the fish to be unladen, to command that the Dunkirkers be imprisoned, and the English belonging to those barks to remain there till further order. This morning I received another letter from Sir John Pennington, and send a transcript of as much as concerns the two Yarmouth men. [1 p.] Endorsed,

15. 1. Sir John Pennington to the Earl of Northumberland. Capt. Popham is come in this morning with two sail of Northseamen, which belong to Yarmouth, that a Dunkirk frigate had taken near Dieppe. Popham being at Dieppe, and hearing of the capture, rescued them, but the man-of-war got away and has carried the masters and the most of the men with him for Dunkirk, and we have nine of their men here in the place of them. Desires to know what shall be done with them and likewise with the barks, for if the fish be not suddenly landed it will be spoiled. Sends inventory of both the barks, with the names of the men, as also of those of the Dunkirk frigate. Capt. Popham has done a very good piece of service herein, and deserves to be thanked. The Swiftsure in the Downs, 17th May 1637. [Abstract. 1 p.]

15. II. *The same to the same. Last night the Swan frigate returned from Dunkirk and brought the two masters of the Northseamen and the rest of their company, and now they press hard for their discharge, alleging that their little stock of fish will be spoiled by close packing in the hold. Desires resolution herein, as also what shall be done with the nine Dunkirkers, for they are earnest for their discharge, and especially now the others are sent home; but their cases are not alike, for if his Majesty will have his subjects to have a free trade in his own seas (as he pleases to term them), then those that molest them are liable to question. Because it may perhaps be long before the Lords Commissioners meet, and some of these poor men [mentioned in the preceding letter] may in the meantime suffer, I desire that you would speak with some of the Lords, that course be taken to punish such as are faulty, and that the others may be restored to their liberty. 19. The Council to the Merchant Adventurers at Hamburgh. We formerly wrote to you on behalf of the creditors of Carew Sanders and Robert Awbrey, requiring you to call before you all his Majesty's subjects residing at Hamburgh that were indebted to them, and to cause the money to be paid to George Knight, merchant, for the use of himself and the rest of the creditors. You calling before you W. Gore, a member of that company and a partner with Sanders and Awbrey, he promised to appoint a friend in London to join with the creditors to peruse his accounts, and to pay what should be due, but the party named by Gore had refused to perform anything promised by Gore. We require you to call for Gore and command him to bring into court the books of account perused by the committee appointed for satisfying William Williams, a pretended creditor, out of the estate of Sanders and Awbrey, and to admit George Stampell and Thomas Seracold to observe the proceedings and see the said books sealed up and sent over hither to commissioners appointed under the Great Seal; and also to afford the bearer, Thomas Seracold, assistance in serving upon Gore the Privy Seal, wherein he is commanded to repair to England to answer for his unjust dealing with the creditors. You are further to call before you William Williams, and cause him to pay back for the creditors of Sanders and Awbrey moneys obtained by him out of the hands of the said Gore or otherwise belonging to Sanders and Awbrey, which if he refuse to do you are to see the Privy Seal served upon him as upon Gore. We are informed that you have done nothing therein, but have showed a great deal of unwillingness to perform this service. May 22. 25. Sir John Pennington to Nicholas. No ships come from the The Downs. southward, but some expected hourly. Then I hope to have some good tobacco for you. I received a packet last night from our Lord General for Capt. Kettleby's coming up to receive directions for his new charge; Capt. Murray is to come down in his place. He mentions not who shall come into the Bonaventure. He writes that he resolves to come down by sea, and therefore has stayed all the ships to come along with him, but I believe there is something else in it, that is not fit for me to know. I am told that Sir Henry Mainwaring rides yet rear-admiral. I should gladly know who shall have the place and what will become of the Prince Elector's business. Those of Flanders have taken from the French the castle of Ardres, a place of very great consequence, for now they may come up to the walls of Calais. The Spaniards have likewise a very great army at St. Jean de Luz, where they have fortified strongly. This will put the French much to it this summer if the Hollanders' army does not divert them. 26. Sir William Parkhurst to Sir Ralph Freeman and Sir Thomas Aylesbury, Masters of Requests. I sent the Council's letter to Vincent Cranfield, who answered that he would search his trunks for the standard pieces, but they were in the country, wherefore he desired time. Since I have spoken with him, and his answer was that the Lord Treasurer was made acquainted with the business, and he hoped he had received satisfaction. P.S.—At the last trial of the pix in February the Lords wrote to Mr. Cranfield to deliver to the warden of the Mint the indented trial pieces for the gold and silver moneys, those in the Mint being wasted with often assays. After many delays Mr. Cranfield's answer to Sir William Parkhurst was as above. The Lord Treasurer had said that he could take no satisfaction, for the letter was written from the whole Board, and the having these trial pieces is now more necessary than before. [1 p.]

27. Sir William Widdrington, Sheriff of co. Northumberland, to Nicholas. Finds a great deal of trouble in assessing the ship-money, by the inequality of the book of rates. Divers lands not rated at all, and those that are very unequally. Great part of the county before the union of the kingdoms was of very small value, but is now improved, yet continues in the book of rates as formerly. The demesnes are generally rated very low, and the towns very high, which makes the greatest burden to be upon the poorer sort, most of whom hold by lease and have no relief from their landlords. The service is not only delayed by the tediousness in rating, but the better sort are backward to pay by reason of the disproportion, and most of the meaner sort are so overcharged as they are not able to pay. Desires that course may be taken for rectifying the book of rates. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

examination of their case being referred to Sir Henry Marten, he reported that their losses ought to be satisfied out of the French goods. Sir Henry's report being referred to the Lord Treasurer, petitioners, after five years' delay, were enjoined to find out some way which might not trench on the King's occasions at that time for moneys. Petitioners suggested an improvement of the revenue on sea coals transported into foreign parts, which was approved by the King, the payment of petitioners' debt being confirmed out of the same. But the Lord Treasurer leaves the King's debt to petitioners unpaid, wherefore they pray a reference to the Lord Keeper, Lord Treasurer, the Earl of Arundel, the Lord Privy Seal, Lord Cottington, Sec. express was to be dispatched with “the authenticques.” What more it will contain I know not, but, by judgment, that a general treaty is agreed with secret articles to take life from another at Hamburgh, whither a French ambassador is gone, and it will be expected that his Majesty send thither, for so it was promised by Mr. Berkeley to the Crown of Sweden. From him I received a letter yesterday of the 15th April, relating his slow journey and late arrival at Stockholm, where he found neither Court, Council, nor Chancellor, and could only give account of a rumour that Oxenstiern was to pass into Germany with troops in the end of May. I see no preparation to send to that meeting upon which will depend the fruit of our long treaty with France. It will concern you to urge that an ambassador be “despedeed” thither. If that be done, there is a proposition sent by Col. Ferentz, not fit for me to write, that is the right way to dispose and bring abroad the Prince Elector. I hope you will approve it. If the Swedes surrender to the Prince what they promised by Fleetwood, it will follow that he must have an army, which will hedge in the Landgrave according to the conditions by him offered. If his Majesty will not enable his nephew both for reputation and action, it is not likely that he will give his money to the Landgrave. We hope that the King’s bounty shall be extended immediately to the Prince. [Copy. 1½ p.]

On complaint that petitioners interrupted the collection of ship-money, petitioners stand committed to the Fleet. The time of infection and blessed feast of Whitsuntide so near, considered, they pray discharge. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

May 24. 51. The Council to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London. Recite letters of 15th July last, whereby they took notice of the remissness in the then lord mayor and aldermen in seeing put in execution his Majesty’s command for bringing the goldsmiths to seat themselves either in Cheapside or Lombard Street, for which purpose it was required that all other tradesmen should give place unto them. Notwithstanding all which, there are yet a great number of houses of other trades both in Cheapside and Lombard Street, which neglect of his Majesty’s command being inexcusable, if speedy care be not taken to see the same duly performed, his Majesty will not pass it by without calling you to account. In the meanwhile all such shops as are not goldsmiths’, and have been taken or opened in Cheapside or Lombard Street since our said letters, are to be presently shut up. [Draft. 1 p.]

Mincing Lane. 56. Officers of the Navy to Sir John Bankes, Attorney-General. We have examined the purser's book and muster-book of the Great Neptune, employed in his Majesty's service in 1636, by which it appeared that there might have been saved in victuals and wages through the deficiency of men 650*l*. We also sent for Captain Bushell, the owner and victualler of the ship. He excepted against the purser's book, and promised to deliver a perfect book by which the ship was paid, and that the total of the wages of that ship's company would amount to 1,220*l*., but 100*l*. short of the medium, which book he sent accordingly, but in the examination we found it very erroneous, for that 16 men were twice set down and 14 others inserted who did not appear to have been in the service at all, besides many runaways and other accounts of that nature. We do not discern any just exception against the purser's book, and the musters agree therewith. We likewise demanded of the committees of the city the pay-books of the Jonas and True Love, but they have not sent them to us, but by our musters we find that in them there has been saved in the Jonas 200*l*., and in the True Love 90*l*. Recites petition of Robert Gray, Francis West, John Venn, William Robinson, and others, citizens of London, calendared under date of May 1st, No. 5, praying liberty to attend the fairs at Exeter, Bristol, and West Chester, notwithstanding the prohibition of the magistrates thereof. The Lords conceiving there is no such danger as is pretended by the magistrates, ordered that the petitioners shall be permitted to come with their servants and goods to Bristol and West Chester, and to trade freely after their accustomed manner, provided they bring certificates from the Lord Mayor of London that neither they, their houses, nor families have been for the space of six or eight months infected. 65. The like Order. The Lords having considered the certificate of Bishop Pierce, of Bath and Wells, calendared under date of 3rd May instant, No. 54, concerning a declaration of William Strode, of Barrington, co. Somerset, declare that as concerning the difference of the rates lately set upon the tithings of Barrington and Shepton Beauchamp for the business of the shipping, albeit those tithings have heretofore been equal in their payments, yet in regard there are at least 1,000 acres more in Barrington than in Shepton Beauchamp, besides the common there and 200 acres enclosed three years since out of the forest of Roche, the Lords agree that there was good reason to lay 15*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.* upon Barrington and but 11*l.* upon Shepton Beauchamp. As concerning Mr. Strode's carriage, it was ordered that he should wait on the bishop and acknowledge his sorrow for the offence which by his inconsiderate words he gave his lordship at his sitting upon the reference from this Board, and should render such further satisfaction as may move his lordship to signify that he is fully satisfied, or otherwise the Lords will proceed further against him. As concerning Strode's excuses and shifts to have freed himself from payment of the rate for ship-money, since it is affirmed by him that he has not only paid his full rate, but also withdrawn all suits concerning the same, the Lords pass that by for the present, but it being certified that the poor man who bought Strode's cow, which was distrained for the ship-money, upon replevin lost his cow, his money, and his charges in suit, it is ordered that Strode shall pay the poor man what he gave for the distress, and also his charges in suit. 67. The Council to the Bailiffs of Yarmouth. Having observed that Johnson has behaved himself with much diligence in your affairs we have referred the petition to you, requiring you upon examination to take such order as shall seem just. If you find that Seaman has thrown this aspersion upon Mr. Johnson, rather out of a refractory disposition to his Majesty's service than upon just cause, you are to lay some heavier punishment upon him for that particular, or certify this Board and bind him over to appear. After much pains taken to get the delinquents together, we found them so miserable poor and base that they were not meet to be presented before the Lords. We have committed one of them, who was the first mover of this mutiny, to the prison at Wisbech, who is by her neighbours esteemed a witch, to which opinion the messengers adhere, for they, taking boat near her house, were bitterly accursed by her, and soon after a strong man, the waterman, was stricken with such a lamentable crick in his back that he was constrained to get help. The most part of these rebels live upon the alms of the parish, therefore we thought fit that some exemplary punishment should be inflicted upon them here. I have required the messengers to take bonds of two others who have been gross offenders. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

but I find there was very great uncertainty, that the rates varied according to the discretion of the raters, and that the parties interested are hard to be brought to conformity. To the end his Majesty's service should have the best furtherance, I have assessed the hundred of Sherborne, and given order for levying all the money, except 20 marks, which makes the difference. May 27. 102. Information of George Barnard, of Sileby, co. Leicester, taken before Sir Wolstan Dixie and Thomas Babington, justices of peace. That hearing there was a letter sent from London to Bartholomew Aslin, of Sileby, an old, blind, and decrepit man, almost a hundred years of age, in which letter were some dangerous words, he procured a sight of the same, and conceiving the words to be dangerous, delivered the same to Mr. Babington, the next justice of peace. The bishop having desired to examine witnesses upon interrogatories, with the view of showing that the proceedings against him were grounded upon malice, the question before the court this day was the admissibility of the proposed interrogatories. These notes contain copies of the interrogatories; notes from the information against the bishop, and his answer, and also from the objections of the Attorney-General. 110. The King to the Lord Treasurer and other officers of the Exchequer. The cathedral church of St. Paul, famous for magnificence [of] structure, and an ornament to our city and kingdom, is fallen into decay. We, considering how the same might be not only kept from ruin but be repaired, have given divers sums towards that work, and have declared our intention for an annual contribution towards the same, and have granted commissions for a general collection from our subjects, among whom many have largely contributed, and the same is really employed, as the place itself already shows, to the great content of all such as have contributed. Heretofore some have shown backwardness out of distrust that the work was too great to be done, and that what was collected might have been otherwise employed; wherefore we have specially intrusted the Archbishop of Canterbury to see all moneys given faithfully employed in this work. And we have also taken upon us to repair the west end of the church, which being a matter of great charge, and our occasions of state requiring so great a portion of our ordinary receipts, we have thought good to assure some part of our personal revenue for that purpose; wherefore we do give and appoint all obligations and recognizances taken by order of our commissioners for causes ecclesiastical, and the penalties and forfeitures of the same, and also all fines for causes ecclesiastical imposed by the said commissioners, to be paid to the Chamberlain of the city of London, to be employed for repairing the west end and other ruinous parts of the said church, giving full power to all sheriffs, tellers of the Exchequer, and other persons to pay and receive the same accordingly. Petition of Sir William Selby, Dame Elizabeth his wife, William Selby, an infant grandchild of the said Sir William, [and — Selby] widow, late wife of William Selby, son and heir apparent of the said Sir William Selby, to the King. Sir George Selby, deceased, being seized of the manor of Winlaton and the manor of Stotfold, [Stotfield?] co. Durham, having issue daughters and no son, settled the same on himself and the heirs male of his body, and after his [death] settled the remainder as to Stotfold and part of a moiety of Winlaton upon Dame Margaret Selby (his wife) for life, and the rest of the moiety of Winlaton upon petitioner, Sir William, being his brother and next heir male, for his life, with remainder to William Selby, deceased, petitioner's son and the heirs male of his body, with the like limitations for Stotfold after the death of his wife, but charged Winlaton with the payment of 3,000*l.* to the daughters of Sir George. Sir George having died shortly after making the said settlement, petitioner expended much money in defence of his title, which was questioned by Sir George's daughters in Chancery; and Sir William's son William having also incurred a large debt in management of the collieries in Winlaton, it was resolved to cut off the entail and sell part of Winlaton for payment of the amount; but the son having unfortunately been killed before the recovery was completed, leaving eight very young children without maintenance, petitioner prays a privy seal authorizing the Justices of the Common Pleas, or the justices itinerant of Durham, to permit petitioner, William Selby, the infant son and heir of William Selby, the son deceased, to suffer the said recovery. Whitehall. King in Council dated 29th March last, and calendared under that date (Vol. cccli., No. 33), whereby the bailiffs and others of Ipswich, authorized by a statute of the 13th Elizabeth, were directed to levy competent rates for the maintenance of the ministers of five poorly endowed parish churches in that town; but touching the other similar churches in the said town, the same being presentative or inappropriate, their case was left to be examined by the two Lord Chief Justices and the Lord Chief Baron. Recites also the certificate of the said Chief Justices and Chief Baron, calendared under date of the 23rd May inst., whereby they stated that all the other poorly endowed parish churches in Ipswich, besides the said five, were comprehended within the said statute, and that the lands in the said last-mentioned parishes might in like manner be taxed for the maintenance of their ministers. It was ordered that the bailiffs and others above mentioned should assess a competent maintenance for the ministers of the others of the said parishes, as well as for the five who had been already provided for by the order of the 29th March. Also recites a certificate of Edward Nuttall, governor of the company of salt-makers of the South and West Shields, expressing content that the townsmen of Great Yarmouth should import foreign salt for supply of their herring fishing to the quantity of 300 weigh. It is ordered that the Lord Treasurer give directions to the officers of Great Yarmouth to permit the same to be brought in by Thomas Horth, who is appointed by the town for that work, he paying his Majesty's ancient customs and all other duties. The other petition was by Mr. Charleton, who claims a modus decimandi by prescription, which Mr. Wood not allowing, as his predecessors had done, but suing in the Ecclesiastical Court for tithe in kind, Charleton sued forth a prohibition at the common law, which at first failed for a mistaking in form, but suing out a new prohibition, he had a verdict for the custom and judgment thereupon. For your directions about the muniments they shall be put in execution at our next chapter, which would have prevented your trouble herein, if Dr. Peake, my common threatener in the chapter, could have had patience till then, but in this I submit two considerations, the first relating to the three keys, and secondly, respecting the private door between the library and the deanery. 3. For the petty canon's place, Mr. John Baily being opposed by three of the juniors, I entreat your determination in that business. 4. We have been brought up by a messenger upon complaint against us for neglect to distrain for ship-money. We have with all diligence pursued the service and also distrained, but our division being spacious and troublesome and many miles in circuit, and the burthen of collecting and distraining wholly imposed upon us, the time must necessarily be long before we can finish the service. We have already paid in the greatest part of the money, and if we had not thus been called before your honours, our intent was this week to have gone on in distraining. 127. Order of Council. Recites that baymakers of Coggeshall, creditors of John de la Barre, of London, merchant, have by petitions to his Majesty showed that they employ many thousands of poor people, but that through the failing of some merchants they are disabled to continue the poor at work; whereupon his Majesty gave leave for some course to be taken with John de la Barre for their satisfaction. Upon several hearings before the Lords, de la Barre had alleged that it was not in his power to divide his estate to give the said clothiers satisfaction, by reason that the major part of his creditors, as appeared by a writing dated the 7th January last, desired that he should set over his estate to certain trustees, to be equally divided among the said major part, at which time the said baymakers averred that they could not inquire out where any portion of the estate lies in England, save only some moneys due from his Majesty. The Lords thought good that de la Barre or the trustees should allot to the baymakers, viz., Henry Enew, John Gravenor, Thomas Gayon, William Tanner, Nicholas Northey, Thomas Shortland's executors, Richard Shortland, Thomas Buxton, William Gladwin, Nicholas Gladwin, and Isaac Ansell, in satisfaction of their debts, 850*l.* out moneys due from his Majesty. We require you to examine the truth of these allegations, and return certificate to the Board. [Draft. 1 p.]

135. The same to Sir Capell Bedell, Sir Robert Osborne, Adam Hill, and James Ravenscroft. Send a letter of Obadiah Coysh and John Sutton, of Easton, to Sir Capell Bedell, charging Giles Randall, curate of that town, with scandalous and seditious words that fell from him in a sermon preached the 23rd of November last. As the examination of witnesses may be better done in the country than here, we pray you consider the charge in Coysh's letter, and if you shall find the accusation true to send to the Board a certificate with the party accused. If the accusations be proved to be false, you are to order Coysh and Sutton to pay the charges which they have unjustly put Randall unto, and to cause such further punishment to be inflicted upon them as their deserts shall merit. 136. The Council to Philip Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, Lord Chamberlain and Lord Warden of the Stannaries. It appears by certificate of the mayor of Plymouth and divers justices of peace, and chief gentlemen living near that town appointed to view the harbour of Catwater, near Plymouth, that the said harbour is much decayed and "quarred up" by reason of quantities of earth carried down from the tin-work called Clasiwell, and other works near the rivers Plym and Mew. We pray you to take order that the working in the works offensive to the said harbour be forborne, or that sufficient stops be made for stay of the gravel and keeping it out of the rivers. [Draft. 1 p.]

May 31.

137. The same to Bishop Pierce, of Bath and Wells, William Bassett, now sheriff, and John Malett, late sheriff of Somerset. We send a petition of the inhabitants of the hundred of Frome Selwood, complaining that there being in the said hundred sixteen tithings and two liberties, some of the tithings are of far greater extent and value than others, and the liberties, which are of equal value with any two of the tithings, are not assessed at all, and the lesser tithings by a general rate called Henton rate are most unequally rated. We pray you to call the petitioners and some of the two liberties and other tithings before you, and either to settle some good course for equal rating that hundred, or to return certificate of the state of the difference. [Draft. 1 p.]

May 31.

138. The same to the Judges of Assize of the Western Circuit. We send you a petition of the common burgesses of Barnstaple, complaining that the richer sort oppress the inferior inhabitants by exercising byelaws not warrantable by law, that they bring in tradesmen that never served as apprentices, that upon any rate they tax more than will suffice, and put the overplus to private uses, and oft-times require rates for maintenance of private quarrels. We hold it very unfit to countenance inferiors in complaints against their governors, and therefore recommend the said petition to you, praying you to examine the truth thereof, and to inquire by what means this proceeds from the common burgesses, and if you find anything amiss, to take order for redress, yet so as may not impeach government; but if the complaint be causeless, then such punishment is to be inflicted as may be exemplary. [1 $\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

May 31.

139. The same to the same Judges of Assize. We send you two petitions of divers gentlemen of Somerset, the one addressed to his Majesty, the other to this Board; the one commending an ancient way of rating used in that county, and the other complaining of the same as unequal. We pray you to treat with the sheriff, justices of peace, and principal gentlemen of that county, and taking into consideration improvements made by disafforestations, enclosures, or the like, to put them into some way how the rates for general payments may be apportioned with equality. [Draft. 2 pp.]

[May 31 ?] 140. List of 15 gentlemen of Somerset who with many others are stated in the endorsement to make good the petition of Somerset "for Henton rate." They comprise Sir Ralph Hopton, Sir John Jacob, Ralph Hopton, and other well-known persons. [1 p.]

May 31. 141. The Council to the Judges of Assize for co. Northumberland. His Majesty and this Board have been informed that the book of rates for public payments in Northumberland is very unequal, there being divers lands not rated at all, and others very unequally, in regard that a great part of the county bordering upon Scotland, which before the uniting of the kingdoms was of small value, is now much improved, yet continues in the book of rates as formerly, and the demesnes being generally rated very low, and the towns very high, causes the greatest burthen to lie upon the poorer sort, and to be with difficulty levied. We pray you at the next assizes to treat with the sheriff, justices of peace, and principal gentlemen, and to put them into some way how the book of rates may be apportioned with equality. [Draft. 2 pp.]

May 31. 142. The same to the Judges of Assize for co. Warwick. We send you a petition of Essex Devereux, Robert Arden, and others, inhabitants of the hamlets of Water Orton and Castle Bromwich in Aston juxta Birmingham, complaining of the inequality of the levies for ship-money, they being rated at double as much for some lands, and five times as much for other, as the inhabitants of the other two hamlets within the same parish. This complaint we referred to the sheriff, but he, pretending to have no power to examine upon oath, forbore to give any order therein. We pray you at the next assizes to call before you the parties interested, and to direct some way how the rates in the said hamlets and parish may for the future be taxed with equality, but for the present the assessment for the shipping is to stand to prevent disturbance in that service. [Draft. 1 p.]

May 31. 143. The same to the Judges of Assize for Wilts. It has been represented to this Board by the sheriff that the rates for public payments in that county are very unequal, some hundreds paying after the rate of 2s. in the pound, where in other places they pay but 4d., albeit the land be of equal goodness, and there are some parts of that county, now disafforested, which pay nothing at all or very little. Pray them; as in the article No. 141, to put the county in the way to apportion all rates with equality. [Draft. 1½ p.]

May 31. 144. The Council to William Earl of Derby and the Judges of Assize for co. Chester. We enclose a petition from the mayor and citizens of Chester, complaining that the inhabitants of Gloverstone, who dwell within the walls of that city, heretofore paid subsidies, and contributed to all charges with the city, as likewise paid ship-money the two first years, and kept watch and ward, but that John Hanna and others, inhabitants of Gloverstone, now deny to pay their assessments or to watch with the city as heretofore. We pray you, with the judges of assize for co. Chester, to compose the said differences if you can, or otherwise to certify the truth of the complaint. [Draft. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]
- May 31. 145. The same to Sir Edward Hussey, sheriff of co. Lincoln. Leonard Browne, John Tilson, and William Official, high constables and collectors of ship-money, and Thomas Burton, petty constable in co. Lincoln, were sent for upon complaint for neglect of duty in not levying the ship-money, but have promised better conformity, and have given bond to do their utmost endeavours to get in the moneys, wherefore they were discharged. In regard the division of the county where they live is so many miles in circuit that the constables cannot levy with such speed as is expected, we pray you to give directions to some of the most responsible petty constables to levy upon their several parishes. Where the petty constables cannot perform the service the high constables are to put to their helping hands and see the business accomplished. [Draft 1 p.]
- May 31. Nicholas to the same. I have received a letter from Mr. Thornton, your under-sheriff, and made the Lords acquainted with the cause why the four constables were sent for. Their Lordships made the order which is mentioned in the preceding article. [Copy. Nicholas's Letter Book, Dom. James I., Vol. ccvix., p. 149. $1\frac{1}{2}$ p.]
- May 31. 146. The Council to Richard Rogers, Sheriff of Dorset. We have been made acquainted with your letter of the 25th instant to Mr. Nicholas concerning a difference in the hundred of Sherborne about rating the in-hundred and out-hundred. We pray you to call before you some of the chief inhabitants and upon view of their precedents for rating to give order that the same be assessed as has been usual, and if you find any difficulty you are to acquaint the judges at the next assizes, and with their advice to establish some equal way of rating the said hundred. [Draft. 1 p.]
- May 31. 147. The same to Sir Edward Hussey, Sheriff of co. Lincoln. Recites petition of Richard Russell, of Cowbit, showing that that town being rated towards the ship-money in 1634 at 28*l.* 16*s.* 0*d.*, the collection thereof was put upon him, and being himself assessed at 5*l.* he paid the same with 20*l.* collected from the rest of the inhabitants, returning the names of the defaulters for the 3*l.* 16*s.* 0*d.* Nevertheless in April 1635 he was distrained by Ryseing and Horne, sheriff's officers, for 8*l.* more, which he was enforced to pay. Likewise in 1635 the town was again charged at 6*l.* 17*s.*, and he to collect the same, being himself rated at 30s. 10½*d.*, which he paid with all the rest of the money; notwithstanding which, he was again distrained by other officers of the sheriff for 5*l.* more, which he also paid, amounting in all to 19*l.* 10s. 10½*d.* We pray you, having examined the truth of the allegations, to afford petitioner redress. [Draft. 1½ p.]

May 31.

148. The Council to Sir Edward Hussey, Sheriff of co. Lincoln. We send you a petition of Sir Gervase Scrope and the inhabitants of Cockerington, complaining that Eustace White, chief constable of the wapentake of Louth Eske, taxed Cockerington for ship-money at 30*l.* and more, and Louth, where he lived himself, but at 20*l.*, though in all other payments Louth bears a greater proportion than Cockerington. We recommend the complaint to you, praying you to settle such an order therein as there may be no just cause of further complaint. [Draft. 1½ p.]

May 31.

149. The same to Sir Peter Temple, Sheriff of co. Buckingham. Recite a petition of inhabitants of Biddlesden, complaining that their parish, being last year taxed at 8*l.* towards ship-money, is this year assessed at 16*l.* We recommend the consideration thereof to you, praying you to examine the truth of what is alleged, and to give petitioners such relief as you shall find cause. [Draft. ⅔ p.]

May 31.

150. The same to Henry Chester, Sheriff of co. Bedford, and Mr. Justice Crawley. The tenants and poor cottagers of Shelton complain that Mr. Manning, their parson, Mr. Lea, and Edward Woodley, taxing themselves and the rest of the freeholders, together with Mr. Mallory, lord of the manor, to the first payment of ship-money but at 2*d.* per acre for their arable land, and nothing for their meadow and pasture, taxed petitioners at 2s. 4*d.* an acre; likewise for the last year's assessment Mr. Lea and John Ivorie assessed themselves under 2½*d.* an acre and others under 1½*d.*, and petitioners some at 12*d.* and others at 4*d.* an acre, both which taxations petitioners paid. We pray you that, according to his Majesty's writ and our directions, wherein you are required to see all men assessed with equality, and especially the poorer sort not to be over-charged, petitioners may be relieved as well for the time past as the time to come. 151. The same to Bishop Pierce, of Bath and Wells, William Bassett, Sheriff of Somerset, and John Malett, the late Sheriff. Upon complaint of the inhabitants of the hundreds of Chewton, Wellow, Bruton, and Norton Ferris, we have written several letters to you, and now we must recommend to you the differences between William Cox, late under-sheriff to Mr. Malett, and the constables of Horethorne, Bath Forum, Bempstone, Kilmersdon, Taunton, and Langport Estover, for moneys alleged to be unpaid from those places towards the ship-money. We pray you to do your uttermost to accommodate the differences between them, but if you cannot, to return certificate to the Board with your opinion. [Draft. 1¼ p.]

152. The same to Sir John Hare and Sir Thomas Dereham, Justices of Peace of Norfolk. Whereas an Act of Sewers, made at King's Lynn the 13th January 1630–31, for draining the great level of the Fens extending into cos. Northampton, Lincoln, Norfolk, Suffolk, Cambridge, and Huntingdon, and the Isle of Ely, has been approved by letters patent, dated 26th July 1631, and commanded to be executed by several orders of this Board, one dated in July 1631, and another the 10th of this instant May, whereby all his Majesty's officers are required to be assisting in the execution of the said Act of Sewers, and are to bind over all persons disobedient thereunto to appear before the Lords. Notwithstanding the said orders, there have been lately some tumults raised in some parts of Norfolk in opposition to the said Act of Sewers. We are by his Majesty's special command to require you, who are justices of peace near adjoining to the places where these commotions have been, to employ your authority to suppress these tumults; and to that purpose his Majesty's command is that you put in execution the statute of Northampton, and that you imprison some of the offenders, and bind over others amongst the more refractory and best able to attend this Board, providing by the most effectual means you can to quiet the country. [Draft. 2½ pp.]

May 31. 153. The Council to Mr. Justice Bridgeman. We send you the petition of Robert Kerfoot, clerk, vicar of Oxenhall, co. Gloucester, presented to the King and referred to us. We pray you to peruse the evidences of both sides, and consider the right of the King to present, and of the church whether it be sufficiently endowed with means to maintain the vicar, and how much he is allowed, and to certify the same to us in Michaelmas term next. [Draft. 1 p.]

May 31. Commissioners for Gunpowder to Montjoy Earl of Newport, Whitehall. Master of the Ordnance. His Majesty taking notice that his magazine is well replenished with gunpowder and his ships at sea fully furnished, and considering that he is at great charge to buy foreign saltpetre to keep his powder mills on work, and that there is very little powder bought here, he is pleased that trial be made how his powder will vend in foreign parts, therefore six barrels are to be delivered to Richard Bogan, merchant, to be sent into France and to be disposed of to his Majesty's best advantage. - May. 158. Petition of William Nead, archer, and William Nead, his son, instructors in archery to the King. According to the proclamation, previously mentioned in this calendar, petitioners have employed themselves to teach the trained pikemen and others in the service of the bow with the pike together, as testified by the deputy lieutenants where petitioners have executed the same. Some delinquents have obstinately refused to conform themselves, whereby the service is much hindered, which will be the utter undoing of petitioners. Petitioners having made known this contempt to the Council were referred by the Lords to the lords lieutenants, members of the Council (see 19th inst., No. 148), but the lords lieutenants being mentioned neither by name nor number in the said reference, petitioners know not to whom they ought to address themselves. Pray a reference to the Earl Marshal, the Lord Chamberlain, the Earl of Bridgewater, and Viscount Wimbledon, and that such rewards may be conferred upon petitioners and others employed in this service as may encourage them to perform the same.
- May. 159. Session book of meetings of the Privy Council held during the present month, containing the names of the members present at every meeting. The King was present on the 2nd, 7th, 9th, 14th, 21st, and 30th. Fourteen meetings were held during the month. Archbishop Laud and Lord Keeper Coventry were present at 13 of them, the Lord Treasurer at eight; nine was the smallest number of members who attended on any occasion, 24 the largest. [28 pp., of which 13 are blank.]
- [May ?] 160. Petition of John Gibbon, one of the chief constables of the wapentake of Walshcroft, co. Lincoln, to the Council. By warrant for assessing 243*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.* on that wapentake for ship-money, petitioner assessed Thorganby at 5*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.*, and William Caldwell, a justice of the peace inhabiting there, at 4*l.* more, he being owner in fee of the greater part of the town, and of a very great personal estate. Mr. Caldwell said his town should pay but 3*l.* whatsoever it was assessed at, and complained to Sir Edward Hussey, the sheriff, who confirmed the assessment. Mr. Caldwell has since used petitioner in very disgraceful manner, telling him that he was more fit to be hanged than to be an assessor, and threatening that he would sit on his skirts, whereby petitioner is in great fear, Mr. Caldwell being a powerful man in the country. Prays letters to the justices of peace in the sessions where Mr. Caldwell and petitioner live to hear both parties, and make certificate that order be taken for petitioner's relief. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]
- May ? 161. Petition of John Murray, prisoner in the Fleet, to the same. Lately, upon petitioner's petition touching an abuse done to him by

162. Petition of John Button, Sheriff of Hants, to the Council. Has endeavoured his best in collecting the ship-money, wherein he has not only been at much charge, but has greatly suffered in the opinion of many for doing his duty. Out of his affection towards Sir Richard and Sir Walter Titchborne, he not only furnished their occasions with ready money, but stood engaged for them for other moneys, the full sum whereof amounts to 500*l.*, which has been due to him about five years. Cannot obtain satisfaction in regard of a protection which they have got, notwithstanding they have estates sufficient to make good their debts and live like themselves. Prays leave to take a legal course for recovery of his debt. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

164. Petition of Henry Burton, clerk, prisoner in the Fleet, to the Council. Your Lordships, on petitioner's former petition for obtaining some liberty from his close imprisonment, resolved to declare your pleasures therein upon the putting in of his answer into the Court of Star Chamber, which was done on the 10th inst. Prays your Lordships in favour of petitioner, who has sustained close imprisonment for above 15 weeks, to the great hazard of his life in this hot and contagious season, to allow him such enlargement as may stand with your clemency and justice, and may suit also with the great importance and exigency of his cause, in the use of all lawful ways and means to the just prosecution and defence thereof. [Underwritten, "Nil." $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

165. Petition of Gabriel Easenwood, servant to her Majesty, and of Richard Ellis, carpenter, to the same. Petitioners stand committed to the Fleet, Easenwood for building a house in Covent Garden upon ground of the Earl of Bedford, near a stable of the Earl of Salisbury, which house is in nowise contrary to the Earl's patent for building upon that ground; and Ellis for beginning a building near the same, which was desisted from before a stone or brick was laid, upon command from Justice Whitaker, notwithstanding petitioner had also a lease from the Earl of Bedford to build thereupon. Petitioners submit themselves and pray enlargement, in regard the one has present employment to attend the Queen's service, and the other is like to be undone by his imprisonment. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

167. Petition of John Holt, Mark Quested, Edmund Morgan, Thomas Clarke, Matthew Palmer, George Preston, and many others, creditors of Sir Allen Apsley, deceased, to the Council. Your Lordships on 5th inst. ordered the Auditors of the Imprest to make ready so much of Sir Allen Apsley's account as they shall warrant, and have vouchers for, and disallow the rest, viz., the accounts of 1626 and 1627, in respect they are signed but by three commissioners, namely, Sir John Wolstenholme, Sir Richard Sutton, and Dennis Fleming, which said two years will amount to 200,000*l*. Petitioners pray order to the auditors to allow so much as is already signed by the Lord Treasurer and Lord Cottington, and allowed by the three Commissioners of the Navy, in regard they were prepared by Sir Richard Sutton and auditor Bingley under an order of the Board dated 10th November 1630, now annexed, who upon examination thereof cancelled all the vouchers; or that Sec. Coke or Sir William Russell, who knew all the passages in those times, or Sir Robert Pye, there being no other commissioner now living, to sign the accounts; or to order the executors of Sir Allen Apsley to crave a privy seal for the allowance and passing of the accounts. 168. Petition of Robert Rugge, Lieutenant of the Fort in Holy Island, to the Lords of the Admiralty. The King has re-established petitioner in his place after he has been detained here at great expense nine months wanting eight days. Being hopeless of any satisfaction from his captain, he beseeches the Lords to allow him 8*d*. per day in requital of his loss of time, for which, if they also give him the title of commissary, he will see that his Majesty shall never be cheated. He also solicits an Ensign Royal for the fort, and prays letters to the Bishop of Durham to see the abuses at the fort redressed, and that the soldiers to be entertained there are not lackies, grooms, or fugitives, nor brought in by bribery, but rather old soldiers of the dissolved garrison of Berwick, now living poorly after 4*d*. per day. Petitioner also prays redress for his sufferings in being turned out of the fort, with his wife and family and his goods, by Robert Nerne, a kinsman of his captain's lady, appointed by warrant from Sir James Ouchterlony to supply the place of lieutenantancy. 169. Petition of William Waad to the Lords of the Admiralty. Petitioner, upon affidavits made by Capt. Dunning and others against him, was yesterday committed to the Marshalsea. Petitioner was sole victualler for the army in the time of Count Mansfeldt, for which his Majesty is yet indebted in a great sum to petitioner, and he to others who would come upon him to his ruin if he were known to be in custody. 172. Articles objected by the Commissioners for Causes Ecclesiastical against Thomas Purslowe, of London, Gregory Dexter, and William Tayler, stationers or printers. They were charged with having printed or published a scandalous pamphlet or epistle thereunto showed to them at their examination, and they were exhorted to declare how many of them they printed, how much each of them composed, who brought the same to them to set, and what had become of the original. Item, that about two years since they printed in their master's house some sheets of paper called "Instructions to Churchwardens, &c.," of which many copies were dispersed in several places in London by them or with their consent. They were required to declare who brought the original, how many were printed, and how many dispersed, and what became of that original. Item, that in March or April last past, Nathaniel Wickens, Mr. Prynne's man, came to the printing house where defendants were at work, and knocked at the door hard by the press, and asked Dexter for a proof, and entreated him to bring it to Wickens's father's house in Newgate Market, saying that Mr. Prynne would presently be there. Dexter did so, and Mr. Prynne being told that the printer was within with the proof he went into an inner room, and having perused the proof, Mr. Wickens, the master of the house, came forth and persuaded Mr. Prynne's keeper to go up the stairs and not stay in the open shop, which he did, and immediately after Dexter came forth and returned home, the keeper having been carried up-stairs that he might not see Dexter. Item, that the very day after the copy was brought by Nathaniel Wickens to Dexter, Wickens came again and brought the first letter of the matter, being a great C, very curiously cut in boxwood and sealed up close in paper, and told Dexter, that his master would entreat him to let that be the first letter, which Dexter took and made use of accordingly. That the reason "why Mr. Prynne sent the said letter C was because it was a new letter, not known amongst any of the printers here in London, but was cut of purpose for his use, it being a very complete letter as ever you saw, for to look upon it the usual way it seemed a complete and perfect C but turn one side of it and it appeared a pope's head, and then turn it another way and there appeared an army of men and soldiers." They were then called upon to declare who cut or carved "the said seal," what was become thereof, in whose hands they last saw it, and what they conceived was meant by the C, what by the pope's head, and what by the army of men. 173. Answer of Gregory Dexter, of the parish of Christ Church, London, printer, to the preceding articles. About Easter last, Nathaniel Wickens, Mr. Prynne's man, came to examinant at his master's house in Newgate Market, and brought him the copy of a writing close sealed up, with a letter directed to examinant from Mr. Prynne, to print the enclosed copy, and that he would give examinant and William Tayler, his fellow printer, very good content. Thereupon they printed eight pages of the said writing, it being part of a scandalous epistle to a book which examinant never saw. He and Tayler printed 500 of one part, being four pages thereof, and a thousand of the other four pages, and that the schedule now showed to him is one of the four pages. The original copy examinant threw into the fire after they had finished one perfect proof, as he was directed by Mr. Prynne in his letter. Some four or five weeks before the printing of the epistle Mr. Prynne sent to examinant a letter sealed up, wherein was a little book called "Instructions to Churchwardens, &c.," and desired examinant to print the same as privately as he could, and thereupon examinant and Tayler printed a thousand, which he carried sealed up to the house of Mr. Wiggins [Wickens], a cheesemonger in Newgate Market, as directed by Mr. Prynne, who promised to send thither for them by a certain token. What afterwards became of the said books, or who dispersed or vented them, examinant knows not. Mr. Prynne gave examinant and William Tayler 30 or 40 shillings for their pains in printing them. Deposes to his interview with Mr. Prynne at the house in Newgate Market, as alleged in the preceding articles. Mr. Prynne then perused the proof he had brought, and delivered it again to him, desiring him to make as much haste as he could. Examinant also deposes to Wickens having brought him the first letter, as stated in the articles and that it was a new letter not known among the printers in London, but cut of purpose for this use, but whether it represented a pope's head one way and an army another examinant never observed, neither does he know who cut the same, nor in whose hands it now is, but believes it to have been returned to Mr. Prynne close sealed up. The defence was that the defilement was the act of "one of Mr. Brande's sons," and that Alston did not ride into church, but that his boy, without his master's knowledge, brought a horse within the

175. Statement of Thomas Baker, of Mayfield, Sussex. On Wednesday before Easter Day last, about six o'clock at night, I received a note from Thomas Chaloner to meet him that night between Mayfield and Rotherfield in the footway, he being my ancient acquaintance in Oxford and the Inner Temple. I met him accordingly, and he told me that he was in trouble by reason of a book printed at Brussels and laid to his charge by a captain that would swear anything against him. He said he never wrote any book. I asked him if the same concerned the King or state. He told me that it concerned neither King nor state. He desired me to carry a letter for him to London, whither I was going. He delivered the same to me the next day at the inn at Penshurst. It was sealed up and directed to his brother, James Chaloner, to be delivered at his lodging in Fleet Street, or to his sister Barnefield in Drury Lane. I left the letter with Mrs. Barnefield and called for an answer. A gentlewoman at the house delivered me a letter sealed, and somewhat therewith, also sealed up in a paper, which I conceive was gold. On Saturday, as I rode homewards, Thomas Chaloner met me in the highway at Forest Row, near Grinstead, and then I delivered him the letter and paper. States subsequent interviews with Chaloner at Catstreet on 24th April, and on the 4th instant between Hailsham and Heathfield, when he expressed his intention to go beyond seas. [2 pp.]

177. Petition of Thomas Payne, stationer, to Archbishop Laud. Petitioner two years past, being newly set up in the art of a printer, as a journeyman, fell acquainted with William Jones, a master printer, who moved petitioner to be copartner with him, and thereupon drew him into acquaintance with one Wayman, a familiar friend of Jones, to whom he was much indebted and privately had made over all his estate by deed of gift, which was altogether unknown to petitioner. Upon a meeting made of purpose to draw on petitioner, Wayman offered Jones 150*l.* to be joined with him in copartnership, and tendered the same in petitioner's presence, being a very trick of cunning, and a show made between Jones and Wayman. Whereupon petitioner paid Jones 150*l.* and entered into copartnership with him, with which 150*l.* Jones satisfied Wayman and others, and is now unable to satisfy petitioner. Prays that when the Archbishop settles the number of master printers he will consider the distressed estate of petitioner. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten.

177. II. *Petition of the same Thomas Payne to Archbishop Laud. Petitioner served his apprenticeship with a printer, and is a freeman of the Company of Stationers, and since hath used the same art about nine years. About Midsummer last he became partner with William Jones, and paid 150*l.* for the half share, and since bought the whole printing house, and all Jones's right therein, which will cost him 111*l.* more; and though he paid so much for the same, yet it cannot be prized at above 80*l., and the remainder petitioner pays for his title in the same printing house. Prays the archbishop to confirm him a printer; and as he has kept himself free from all ill courses, he shall still endeavour to do the like. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

177. III. *Petition of the same to the same. Petitioner having for 17 years served in the press, and gained 150*l., about Midsummer last he employed that money in partnership with William Jones, from whose factious and seditious courses petitioner has ever been free. Prays that Jones's sin may not be petitioner's punishment, and that the archbishop, according to his decree appointed for printers, will prevent the ruin that is like to come upon petitioner and all his. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

[May ?] 178. *Petition of William Frubbusher [Frobisher], wine cooper, to the Lords of the Admiralty. Petitioner was bound apprentice to Thomas Ryley, wine cooper, and marrying before his time was out, was to pay his master 38*l.* for the time he had to serve, 5*l.* whereof he has paid; and since being impressed into his Majesty's service, his master has arrested him, cast him into the King's Bench, and will take no satisfaction. Prays release. [$\frac{1}{3}$ p.]*

[May ?] 179. Petition of the same to Algernon Earl of Northumberland, General of the Fleet. Prays the Earl's warrant for his release, the fact of his impressment being attested, and the petition being written in Frobisher's name, by John Harris, master of the Royal Defence. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Returns made to the Council, or the Lord Mayor, of what houses occupied by poor persons had been built within the parish or liberty to which each return relates, within the last seven years; what houses had been divided into several tenements before or since that period; and by whom the same were occupied.

I. Returns for the ward of Aldersgate, comprising separate returns for,—

i. The parish of St. Anne and St. Agnes. Dated 7th April 1637. [1 p.]

ii. The like of St. John Zachary. Dated as above. [1 p.]

iii. The like of St. Leonard. Dated as above. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

II. Return for the ward of Bassishaw, dated 18th April 1637. It is mentioned that "the Company of Free Masons" had divided part of their common hall over their kitchen into three tenements, occupied by Alexander Norden, John Watkins, and Robert Wheatley, of which the first two were now chargeable to the parish. [2 pp.]

III. Return for the ward of Bishopsgate. [20 $\frac{3}{4}$ pp.]

IV. The like for Bridge ward within. Messuages are mentioned, called the Holy Lamb, in Thames Street, and the Globe, in New Fish Street. Jerusalem Alley, and an inn called the Saracen's Head, are noticed in St. Benet, Gracechurch Street. [2 pp.]

V. The like for Bread Street ward. Under the parish of St. Margaret Moses, it is stated that Thomas Burden keeps a hot press in his cellar, very dangerous, for which he has been indicted; and under St. Mildred, Bread Street, "Mr. Violet hath Mr. Latimore, his wife, and two other inmates, who answer peremptorily they will not avoid." [1 p.]

VI. The like for Broad Street ward, comprising separate returns for,—

i. The parish of St. Benet Fink. 6th April 1637. [1 p.]

ii. The like of St. Christopher's. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

- i. The parish of St. Mary-le-Bow. Dated May 1637. [1 p.]

- ii. The parish of St. Mary, Aldermanbury. Dated 1st April 1637. [2 pp.]
- iii. *The like of St. Antholin's. It is stated there had been only one house in that parish visited by the sickness during the year then past, but that had put the parish to the charge of 15*l*. [1 p.]*
- XI. Return for Cornhill ward. 17th April 1637. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]
- XII. The like for the ward of Cripplegate, comprising returns for,—
 - i. The parish of St. Alban, Wood Street. It is mentioned of a divided house in Silver Street, that 10 several families dwell in so many several rooms, divers of which have also lodgers; all which dwellers are either pensioners of the parish or receive alms of the parish in money, bread, or coals. 5th April 1637. [$2\frac{3}{4}$ pp.]
 - ii. The like of St. Alphage. Richard Rogers, joiner, had taken one of the chiefest houses in the parish and divided it into three tenements for poor tradesmen. 8th April 1637. [1 p.]
 - iii. The like of St. Mary, Aldermanbury. 8th April 1637. [1 p.]
 - iv. The like of St. Olave, Silver Street. 13th April 1637. [3 pp.]

- XXII. Return made to the Council for the Temple Bar ward, the Middle ward, and the Church ward, in the Duchy liberty, with a certificate of all the houses that had been visited with plague in 1636 in the said liberty, with the charges thereof to the parish of St. Clement Danes (51l. 0s. 1d.) Also a return of divided houses in St. Mary, Savoy, with a paper attached signed by Lawrence Whitaker, containing the numbers of persons and families within the parishes of St. Clement's and St. Mary Savoy, like to be chargeable by reason of poverty, with the numbers of houses built and divided in those parishes since 1603. [Paper roll = 8 pp., with paper attached = $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]
- XXIII. Similar returns for the borough of Southwark, comprising,—
- i. The parish of St. Thomas. 5th April 1637. [2 pp.]
 - ii. The liberty of Old Paris Garden, in the parish of St. Saviour's. This comprises the names of the ground landlords, the lessees, the tenants in possession, a statement of how long the several houses had been built, and the amount of charge which had been brought upon the parish by each person visited since Pentecost then last (the total being 90l. 7s. 6d.), with an apportionment of that amount upon every landlord. 28th March 1637. [6 pp.]
 - iii. Another return for the same liberty, here termed the Old "Parish" Garden, of all such poor as had been chargeable within the said period, with a similar apportionment of the total amount (52l. 10s. 5d.) among the ground landlords. 28th March 1637. [2 pp.]
 - iv. Return for the Borough side of St. Saviour's parish. Total charge of visited houses since Pentecost, 275l. 15s. 1d. 5th April 1637. [4 pp.]
 - v. The like for the Clink liberty. Several particulars are stated of the owners and occupiers of houses in Globe Alley. [4 pp.]

3. Petition of Thomas Bardoll and William Blundwick, late Churchwardens of Allhallows, Huntingdon, to Archbishop Laud. The parish church of Allhallows being fallen into great decay in the leads and material parts, a levy or rate (by consent of the minister and the better sort of the parish) was made for the reparation, which is since very well done. By virtue of the said rate petitioners gathered most part of the money, but William Patrick, innkeeper, denied payment, whereupon petitioners presented him to the ordinary, who called petitioners to justify their presentment. Petitioners' proctor erring in the proceeding, Patrick appealed to the Arches, where by reason of the said error petitioners are condemned in costs. There is now a new rate made for strengthening the steeple, almost ready to fall, and making a new communion table and rail. Divers being hardened by Patrick's example refuse payment thereof, although the work be done. Pray order for petitioners' relief. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten,

3. 1. Reference by Archbishop Laud to Sir John Lambe. To be careful that petitioners have all lawful favour showed them with expedition, that the church suffer no further for the wilfulness of one man, especially considering that proctors of good note do sometimes mistake in drawing up their orders, and occasion their clients to lose a good cause. Sir John is to take care of this business, and give it speedy and special audience. 1st June 1637. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

5. Agreement between Robert Earl of Lindsey, Lord High Chamberlain, Sir William Killigrew, and Robert Long of the one part, and Sir Dudley North of the other part. The Earl, Sir William Killigrew, and Robert Long, as undertakers of the Great Level lying along the river Witham from Lincoln to Bourn, were to have 600 acres of Gosberton Fen, as parcel of 24,000 acres decreed to the Earl for his recompence of draining the said fens. The Earl, Killigrew, and Long, in consideration of 600*l.*, agreed to sell to Sir Dudley North 200 acres, to be set out of the 600 acres, under the rent of 4*d.* per acre. Consider certificate of Officers of Ordnance touching Mr. Evelyn's petition. Peruse a letter from the Officers of the Navy. Consider a note from the French Ambassador, and a reference from the King upon the petition of Dennis Fleming, clerk of the Navy, concerning the putting off his place to Fra[n]cis Williamson. Peruse a petition of Capt. Brett for supply of Southsea Castle. William Furbusher, a cooper, pressed into the Royal Defence, being arrested, petitions to be released. Consider petitions of Caleb Cockcroft and Thomas Goslin concerning gunpowder imported from Ham-burgh before they knew of the proclamation prohibiting the same. The Treasurer of the Navy says that it is very necessary that Peter Pett, the shipwright, should reside at Deptford, to survey such stores as come into that yard, without which nothing can be received, and that it will cost the King more to pay his charge of coming in and out thither than his house-rent will come to; besides there is a house of the King's for him there. Lords of the Admiralty to Sir Henry Marten. We have heard the differences between the Earl of Suffolk, Vice-Admiral of Dorset, and Edward Sydenham, captain of Portland and steward of his Majesty's manor there, touching money taken up on the sands there below high-water mark, and have considered a certificate under the hands of divers ancient inhabitants in the said isle, that by ancient custom they have ever had all wrecks and Admiralty droits so far into the sea as they could from the shore discern "a humberkin." As no grant is produced by the captain, making it appear that the rights of the Admiralty belong to the lord of the manor, we conceive all droits of Admiralty ought to be taken by those who are accountable in the Admiralty for the same, and therefore that whosoever has got into his hands any of the said moneys found below high-water mark, or any other profits of Admiralty, should deliver the same to the Vice-Admiral of Dorset, to be accounted for. For the more regular ordering thereof we remit the business to you, praying you to settle the same as may clear all further questions for the future. [Copy. See Vol. cccliii., fol. 27. 1 p.]

Order of Lords of the Admiralty on the petition of Robert Rugge, Lieutenant of the fort in Holy Island. Recites the said petition, already calendared Vol. cccliv., No. 54. Having heard Sir James Ouchterlony and the petitioner, who further complained that Sir James had put him out of his office, and having considered a certificate of divers deputy lieutenants, calendared Vol. cccliv. No. 56, II., and finding the complaint true in effect, and having reported the same to his Majesty, he had ordered that Sir James should resign his letters patents of captain of the said fort for life, to the end that another grant may be made to him during pleasure, and if he refuse to surrender, then the Attorney-General is by quo warranto to avoid the same. That the lieutenant shall be restored to his place; that 18 men, beside the captain and lieutenant, shall be constantly kept there, according to the institution; that the captain shall not henceforth receive more than his own salary; and that the lieutenant and the rest shall be paid by the receiver of the county; and, lastly, that Sir James shall forthwith pay to Rugge all his pay and other disbursements, and, if he refuse or delay, the Lord Treasurer and Lord Cottington are to order the receiver of the county to pay the same out of pay due or to grow due to Sir James. June 3. Order of the same Commissioners on the petition of Caleb Whitehall. Cockroft, merchant, desiring leave either to land six hogsheads of gunpowder brought in by the Grace, of London, contrary to his desire, after the publishing of the proclamation, or to ship it out again free of duties. The Commissioners desired the Lord Treasurer to order the Officers of Customs to permit petitioner to re-ship the gunpowder for Leghorn, he putting in security to bring certificate from that port that the same is there landed. [Copy. Ibid., fol. 49. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

June 3. Similar order on petition of Thomas Goslin, showing that he Whitehall. bought beyond seas ten barrels of powder, which since he came home is seized as a commodity prohibited to be imported. The Commissioners desired the Lord Treasurer to order the Officers of Customs to permit petitioner to re-ship the same to Hamburgh. [Copy. Ibid., fol. 50. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

June 3. 8. Articles exhibited to the Commissioners for Saltpetre by Christopher Wren, Dean of Windsor and Rector of Knoyle Magna or Episcopi, Wilts, against Thomas Thornhill, saltpetremen, for damage done by digging for saltpetre in the pigeon-house of the said rectory. There had been two diggings in this pigeon-house, one by Helyar, whom Thornhill then served, about eight years ago, the other by Thornhill in March 1636-7. On the first occasion the pigeon-house, built of massy stone walls 20 feet high, was so shaken that the rector was forced to buttress up the east side thereof. On the last occasion the foundation was undermined, and the north wall fell in. The loss to the rector had been that of three breeds, whereof the least never yielded fewer than 30 or 40 dozen, and of the whole flight, which forsook the house, and the rector stands endangered to the law for dilapidations. Thornhill has refused all recompence, telling the dean that the King must bear him out. The dean desires that Thornhill may make full recompence according to the King's pleasure signified on behalf of the dean, who is registrar of the Garter, at the last chapter of the Order in Whitehall on 18th April last. [$\frac{5}{6}$ p.] Underwritten.

VOL. CCCLXI.

- June 3. 9. Answer of John Evelyn to a charge of non-fulfilment of his contracts certified against him by the Office of Ordnance. He alleges, on his own behalf, the failure of the saltpetremen to bring in their stipulated amounts of saltpetre, which limited his manufacture of gunpowder, and the failure of the Exchequer to pay him in due time for the gunpowder which he actually brought in. He adds an account of the quantities which the saltpetremen had failed to deliver under each of his contracts from 1621 to the close of his engagement, and a statement of the times at which he had been paid for the powder delivered by him. [20 pp., of which 10 are blank.]
- June 3. 10. Note of money which James Millward, constable of Batcombe, had disbursed, by reason of James Aish's complaint against him to the Council and to the Sheriff of Somerset. Total, 8*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* Underwritten, 10. i. *Note by Nicholas, taxing the above bill at 6*l.* 13*s., which was to be paid by Mr. Aish. 3rd June 1637. [3/4 p.]
- June 3. 11. Case respecting the right of the parish of R. [Reculver, Kent] to enforce a payment for the repair of their parish church from the inhabitants of the chapelries of N. [St. Nicholas at Wade] and H. [Hoath]. The right had been disputed in 1528, when the ordinary, by consent of all parties, settled that N. and H. should pay a certain sum yearly, with proviso for the parishes to be as before if they failed in payment. The payments were now five years behind. Under this case there are written the opinions of Dr. Thomas Rives, Dr. Arthur Duck, Dr. Thomas Eden, and Dr. John Exton. [Copy. 6 3/4 pp.]
- June 3. 12. The copy of the above case laid before Dr. Thomas Eden, with his original opinion thereon. In this copy of the case there are supplied several important words, respecting the payment settled in 1528 to be made by Hoath, which are not found in the copy in the preceding article. [2 3/4 pp.]
- June 3. 13. Note by Edward Fenn of ship-money received by Sir William Russell since the last certificate of 27th May. Total, 1,210*l.* [1/2 p.]
- June 3. 14. Account of ship-money levied under writ of October 1636, and remaining in the hands of the sheriffs; total, 10,393*l.*, making with 137,459*l.* paid to Sir William Russell, 147,852*l.* as the sum collected. [3/4 p.]
- June 3. 15. Archbishop Laud to Dr. Isaac Bargrave, Dean of Canterbury. It troubles him to have taken so much care for that church with so little success, one peevish difference or another still arising to disturb all that is well meant. 1. The archbishop is content to respite the dean's answer to his articles till their chapter at Midsummer, the more of them being then present. 2. The muniments cannot be kept too safe, and the archbishop is of opinion there ought to be more than one key to that door which leads to them. The dean is not to resign his keys, but other keys are to be fitted as the new statutes require. 3. As to the difference concerning the choice of Baylie, the archbishop is sorry for such idle differences as fall out amongst them. Requires those who differ from the dean in the choice of Baylie to give their reasons briefly under their own hands. 4. True the archbishop expressed himself to Mr. Comptroller that he thought it might be fit for a tenant to inhabit Mr. [du] Moulin's prebendal house, he living out of the kingdom, but he cannot hold it seemly that other prebends should let away their houses. If they do, the archbishop will be driven to deny what he has already granted, rather than set open such an inconvenient door. 5. As to repairing the deanery, wishes the dean to speak with the prebends, and see what they will say concerning it, and then the archbishop will do what is reasonable. For the vault, returns him Mr. Anyan's letter, and when Sir Nathaniel Brent comes down, if he finds the vault belongs to the deanery, he will cause it to be restored. Should be very glad to hear there were peace among them. [Copy. Endorsed by the Archbishop. 1½ p.]

June 4. Petition of James Marquis of Hamilton, Edward Earl of Dorset, Henry Earl of Holland, and Leonard Lee, to the King. For many causes all provision and other things are enhanced to an excess rate, and are like to increase. There are many thousand acres of heath and barren commons in England and Wales, not annually worth sixpence an acre, to which your Majesty has right of soil but no benefit thereby, which may be improved to a great value, cause plenty of provision, enrich many thousands, supply the poor, raise a great benefit to your Majesty, and be no prejudice to any. Petitioners pray authority to inquire what heaths and barren common in which your Majesty has right of soil may be improved, and to agree with the commoners or possessors for improvement thereof. Petitioners will render to your Majesty one third part of whatsoever benefit shall accrue thereby. [Copy. See Vol. cccxxiii., p. 89. ¾ p.] Underwritten,

June 4. Petition of Sir Ralph Freeman to the same. There are divers encroached and concealed lands out of your Majesty's wastes within the lordships of Denbigh and Bromfield and Yale, in co. Denbigh, and within the lordship of Meleneth, co. Radnor, and out of lands belonging to the late monastery of Talley, co. Carmarthen, which lands are held for the proper inheritance of divers persons, though the right belongs to your Majesty. Petitioner prays grant of such lands as he shall recover, reserving to your Majesty three halfpence for every acre for Rouvenie (sent hither by the French King) to Calais or Dieppe. Pennington is to give order for some ship to be ready to receive and transport him, and having performed that service to return to the Downs. [*Endorsed by Sir John as received on the 10th. June 4. 17. Petition of Jane Hathaway, defendant, to Henry Earl of Manchester, Lord Privy Seal. The Earl on Burlton's cross bill ordered that the churchwardens of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields should certify the wants of reparation of the tenements in question at Soho. They have certified that it will amount to 14*l.* 5*s.*, besides the half year's rent due at Lady Day last. Petitioner beseeches the Earl to be good to her and to take such course as he shall think best. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten,

June 4. 18. Sir Humphrey Mildmay, late Sheriff of Essex, to Sir Dudley
Danbury. Carleton, Clerk of the Council. Having had a letter from the Board of the 8th May about the complaints of John Burley and Robert Spicer against George Collvell, of Great Warley, that was collector of ship-money in part of my year, I have desired Collvell to give them satisfaction for the moneys he has detained of the parishes more than he has paid to me for his Majesty. To this motion he has been refractory, wherefore I have taken his recognizance in 100*l.* to attend the Lords the 11th inst., and Burley and Spicer have promised to attend and prosecute him. The day I am to attend the Board in my complaints of Thomas Latham is the 16th inst., at which time I hope to let the Lords see how just my complaints are, and the manifest breach of the order in his running into the King's Bench to encumber us with suits to the great loss and disturbance of us all. 19. William Bassett, late Sheriff of Somerset, to Nicholas. Since my last letter, moneys have come in very slowly and upon troublesome terms, for there is scarce any paid without distress taken or distress granted; yet, to show my diligence in the service, I have paid to Sir William Russell 5,700*l.* (besides the towns corporate, who intend to pay their money in themselves, I have received but 20*l.* from Evelchester [Ilchester] amongst them all), though I have received but 4,900*l.*, and so out of purse 800*l.*, which will be long gathering, for most distresses in the low feeding country are not to be taken, in regard they mow much of their ground through dislike of unequal assessment, which is impossible to be reformed, it being so general. [Seal with arms. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

June 5.

20. Petition of Henry Morse, prisoner in Newgate, to the King. Francis Newton, a man of an infamous life and behaviour, adjudged by the Common Pleas to be thrown over the bar, and since his employment as pursuivant convinced of many abuses, lately indicted petitioner upon pretence of being a priest, and for perverting divers of your Majesty's subjects in their religion. Petitioner was acquitted for the pretended perverting, and found guilty of being a priest upon the sole testimony of Newton that petitioner had confessed himself to be a priest to him, which was most untrue, but by your Majesty's clemency there was no sentence given for the same. Petitioner prays that as your Majesty has preserved him from death by law, you will free him from death in that prison, which infallibly must ensue by his present sickness and the closeness of that place, where by its great noisomeness and the heats of the summer, with the infection thereabouts, his sickness is increased and his life endangered if he has not speedy liberty. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Annexed,

20. I. *Certificate of John More and Thomas Turner, physicians, that Morse is inclining to a consumptive indisposition, so far as unless he has liberty of fresh air and freedom from the noisomeness of the prison his remedies will have ill success and his life not be out of danger. 5th June 1637. 21. Petition of Sir Robert Coke, son and heir of Sir Edward Coke, deceased, to the same. The Lord Keeper gave notice to petitioner of your Majesty's pleasure to hear the cause depending in Chancery between Lady Elizabeth, late wife of Sir Edward, plaintiff, against petitioner and other of the sons of Sir Edward, and others defendants, and that publication should pass toward the end of next Trinity term. It is petitioner's greatest happiness that your Majesty vouchsafes to hear the cause, but publication cannot so speedily pass by the rules of the court, nor without great disadvantage of the defendants. 1. Because there has yet been no witness examined on the defendants' part, nor any commission gone forth. 2. The bill questions all the personal estate and most of the manors and lands of Sir Edward, and draws into examination divers promises and articles, and in effect most of the passages between Sir Edward and complainant from and before their intermarriage until his death, being of 36 years' continuance. 3. Defendants' witnesses are many, and live dispersedly in remote counties. 4. Petition of Sir James Hay, Archibald Hay, and Richard Hurst, to the King. Recites previous petition of the same petitioners with the reference to the Solicitor-General and his report, already calendared in Vol. cccliv., No. 46. II. The Lord Treasurer and Lord Cottington to the King. Have called before them the petitioners and the creditors of the late Earl of Carlisle, who have assignments upon the Earl's pension of 3,000l. per annum payable out of the impost of tobacco. The petitioners demand funeral charges before assignments; the creditors allege many reasons, which are here stated, why their assignments should not be interrupted. The referees are of opinion that petitioners should have 1,500l. paid them for funeral charges, but the creditors are to receive the same, and pay it over to the petitioners, they giving an assignment subsequent to the former, so that the amount may be received out of the pension the half-year after all the present assignments. Pray authority to put this arrangement in execution. [Copy. Ibid. 1 p.]

Petition of Sir John Heydon to the same. By your Majesty's grant in June 1629, equal interest with the other patentees in the drained soil of the West and North Fens in co. Lincoln is conferred upon petitioner, who has ever declared his readiness to advance your Majesty's rent, and to contribute as large a proportion of his share as any other of the patentees. Prays your Majesty to signify to the Chancellor and Attorney of the Duchy [of Lancaster] that no more rent shall be imposed, nor any greater deduction of land made out of petitioner's competency of drained land, than shall be paid out of the like parts allotted by any other of the patentees. That paying the like rent for the like quantity, petitioner shall have the fee-farm of such numbers of acres as out of his part shall be assigned. Lastly, that petitioner shall be assisted by that court to set out in severalty and enjoy, as well in quality as in quantity, his competency of those drained fens as any other of the patentees. Petition of Edward Bish to the King. Petitioner has been a servant to your late father and to your Majesty in the office of feodary in Surrey for twenty years, and during that time has been a practiser at law, and has done good service in the Court of Wards and Liveries to the Crown, without any complaint against him. Now growing aged, he has surrendered the said office to Matthew Carleton, with the approbation of the Master of the Court; and desiring to be freed from the malice of enemies, for his quiet for the time to come, he prays your Majesty to grant him a pardon for all matters by him done as Feodary of Surrey. I see no inconvenience in admitting him also to compound. 13th June 1637. [Copy. Ibid., p. 115. ⅓ p.]*

22. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sir John Pennington. I have received yours of the 1st inst., and acquainted his Majesty therewith. Concerning your keeping back the three Dunkirk prisoners, his Majesty has commanded that they shall be kept in safe custody till my coming down, which will be very shortly, and then I shall give order concerning them. Last night his Majesty commanded me to give order for transportation of Mons. Rouvenie, brother to the Countess of Southampton, and I have given him a warrant directed to you accordingly. [Docquet.]

June 6. 24. Petition of Thomas Nicholls, one of the Bailiffs of Shrewsbury, on behalf of divers of the Aldermen and Common Councillors and other inhabitants of that town, to the King. Petitioner is one of the two bailiffs of that town, which is governed by two bailiffs as one head, and all burgesses are admitted to give their voices in all elections and other matters concerning the government of the town. The said two bailiffs seldom agreeing together in one vote, but being divided and adhering to the several parties, petitioner finds the town to be very much embroiled with contentions, and he, out of his experience, is persuaded that until the members thereof shall be better reconciled no uniformity of government can be observed; which things the Attorney-General taking notice of has brought a quo warranto against the said corporation. The town being grown of late very poor, and were they rich, yet it being unfit for them to contest with your Majesty, petitioner prays your Majesty to command a stay of legal proceedings, and to refer the examination of all things wherein it may be conceived there is any misgovernment amongst them to the Council, and authorize them to consider what is most fit for the establishment of a better government, that thereupon your Majesty would pardon their errors past, and admit them to become suitors for such a new grant with confirmation of all their ancient privileges as the Council shall think fit. June 6. Petition of Walter Raleigh, D.D., his Majesty's chaplain in ordinary, to the King. Petitioner being possessed of the rectory of Street, Somerset, Sir Thomas Thynne, pretending title to the presentation, has commenced suit against petitioner, and, being of a great estate, endeavours by nice objections and advantages in forms of law (without relation to justice) to vex petitioner with the greatness of the expense. Prays your Majesty to refer the consideration of the premises to some of the Council, and if they find petitioner's title unquestionable, that they so settle it that petitioner may not be oppressed by the greatness of his adversary. [Copy. Ibid., p. 92. $\frac{2}{3}$ p.] Underwritten,

I. Reference to Archbishop Laud, the Lord Keeper, and the Lord Chamberlain, calling to them Sir John Finch. If they find that petitioner is unquietly disturbed by Sir Thomas Thynne they are to take a course for his peace, and if they perceive a purpose to oppress petitioner they are to certify the truth to his Majesty. [Copy. Ibid., p. 93. $\frac{1}{3}$ p.]

June 6. Petition of Robert Long and John Gibbon to the same. After draining the level of Hatfield Chase, most of the participants, being Dutch, brought over divers French families out of Normandy and other parts of France, being all Protestants, and planted them as under-tenants in the greatest part of the said level, where they have since continued, and are very honest and industrious people. Further, petitioners are become his Majesty's fee-farmers of the disafforested forest of Galtres, co. York, and that the same being wild and unmanured, they can make no considerable benefit thereof, but by leasing it to under-tenants that will bestow charges to reduce the lands to tillage. The people of the country adjacent will not pay any considerable rent for what they say have been their commons, though your Majesty has allowed them great proportions in lieu of the same; wherefore petitioners are constrained to bring some of the French tenants out of the said level, who offer such rates for the lands of late forest as are reasonable. Because the said lands lie remote, petitioners intend to erect houses for the tenants, and to build a church for them; and because none of them yet understand English perfectly, petitioners have found out a minister beneficed in that country who speaks good French, and is willing to do all divine offices in that language, and shall conform himself to the Church of England, and use no other form of prayer but the Common Prayer of the Church of England in the French tongue, and petitioners will endow the said church with the annual revenue of 100*l.* for ever. Beseech your Majesty's licence to found a church there, and to settle lands or tithes in mortmain to the parson and his successors, and to signify your pleasure to the Archbishop of York that such a minister may be admitted until the French shall understand English. 25. William Walter, Sheriff of co. Oxford, to Nicholas. I am now in doubt that I shall not finish my collection this term, the stay of which is for want of the sentence in the case between the hundreds of Bampton and Chadlington with the corporations of Chipping Norton and Burford; wherefore, for despatch, I have sent the bearer to receive your authority to attend the Attorney and Solicitor General upon the reference from the Lords unto them to resolve the business. But more especially the reason is because all the money that is raised now is by distresses, so that it comes in by small particles and slowly; and why it comes so is because I find many harbour an opinion that this case is depending in trial at the suit of some of their neighbours, and they will first see the issue of that, and this is most about Banbury. The mayor of that town has but this week brought 13*l.* (though this town is the easiest rated of any town in the county), and for the remainder he answers that he knows not how to levy it, for that the mayor, his predecessor, has yet many parcels of goods which lie rotting by him, which are to make up the money which their town is in arrear for last year, for which goods he says many of the owners endeavour to commence suits which he has hitherto kept off; and for the present mayor's proceedings in this business, I perceive he expects more persuasions and advice therein than can come from me. I have by me between two and three hundred pounds, and before the end of the term I think I shall have made it five hundred, when it shall be paid. [1 p.]

27. Petition of Joan Haskins to William Dell. Petitioner formerly was a neighbour's child living near you in Rotton [Wroughton?], Wilts. In respect of old acquaintance is emboldened to come to you in behalf of her daughter Edith. Petitioner gave a very good portion with her to Edward Belemy, who riotously spent all, and then went into the Low Countries and Sweland [Sweden], and there was for many years. Petitioner's daughter having often intelligence he was dead, lately married to one Yates, and the very day they were married her spendthrift husband came over, and got all that little goods and clothes she had gotten in his absence and spent them, and domineered and produced a warrant, and so tried her at the last assize at Reading by Baron Davenport, and she was condemned to die, only having a reprieve until Midsummer assize next, she never bedding with her last husband, and this great affliction coming upon her through ignorance. Beseeches you to do all you can to obtain a pardon for her daughter's life, and petitioner would be at 10*l.* or 20*l.* charge to obtain the same, though almost to her undoing.

31. The Council to Sir Robert Jenkinson and John Martin, Justices of Peace for co. Oxford. Thomas Bushell, having laid out great sums of money to preserve and beautify a rock at Enstone, co. Oxford, and his Majesty having countenanced the work, out of a desire to preserve that rarity of nature, and to that effect directed his letters to the Earl of Danby to assist Bushell especially in disposing of a highway to another place, that hindered the making of groves, walks, &c., wherewith the Earl acquainted the steward of the manor, and the steward told the copyholders thereof, yet some of them out of a malignant disposition the next court day fined Bushell for having turned the said highway, some have cut down trees planted for beautifying the said rock, and others have presumed to forbid his workmen employed in setting up a wall for preserving the groves and works, not at all regarding his Majesty's directions. The justices are to call such parties before them as Bushell shall make appear to have contemned or been refractory to what his Majesty has commanded, and to deliver such as are delinquents to the custody of Edmund Barker, messenger, who is to attend the justices with this letter, and to bring them before the Lords to answer such contempts. The justices are also to take especial care that the wall now there erecting and other works in hand may go on with all diligence, so that it may be finished by the time his Majesty shall come to Wood Grove, Bushell giving the owners of the ground such satisfaction as the justices or two indifferent neighbours shall judge the same to be worth. 32. Petition of Peter Pett, one of his Majesty's shipwrights, to Lords of the Admiralty. Petitioner about seven years past had his dwelling at Ratcliffe, where he built ships for the merchants, and by reason there was at that time the Garland and the St. Dennis in Deptford Dock, and the Vanguard and the Victory in Woolwich Dock, which were committed to petitioner's charge for the oversight of the works, petitioner was commanded by Mr. Burrell and the Officers of the Navy to leave his dwelling at Ratcliffe for the advantage of his Majesty's service, to petitioner's great hindrance, and to take a house at Deptford, being then promised by the officers that his rent should be paid, being 15*l.* per annum, which has since amounted to 105*l.* Prays that as he is forced to give daily attendance at Deptford, the Lords will order Sir William Russell to pay petitioner the 105*l.*, and that he may have a house in the yard at Deptford, as his fellows have at Woolwich and Chatham. We hold it convenient that Pett should receive as much favour as his fellows. June 7. 33. Petition of [the top torn off, "eg," perhaps part of the petitioner's name, being all that remains] to Archbishop Laud. Petitioner's habitation being distant from his parish church two miles, he sometimes for ease on Sundays in the afternoon repaired to a neighbouring church, for which he was presented to the Ecclesiastical Court of the "diocesses of Buck." Petitioner, repairing thereunto for absolution, was promised the same, provided he would repair [to his parish church] three Sundays together, forenoon and afternoon, and bring the parson's and churchwardens' hands for testimony thereof. Petitioner was comformable, but by reason the parson was at those times absent, petitioner got only a certificate under the hands of the churchwardens and some dozen more of the inhabitants, which he returning to the commissary was denied his dismissal, by reason the parson's hand was not to the certificate. Petitioner came again to the inn where the commissary and others were at dinner and desired of him his dismissal, but was still denied; whereupon petitioner said that he should hear of it before his betters, which now is articulated against him as a contempt to the court. Appearing before Sir John Lambe, order was that petitioner should acknowledge his offence in his parish church. Petitioner resolved to have done this, but considering that it would redound to the loss of his credit with those with whom he dealt, he repaired back to Sir John, and craved that this penance might be remitted, which he consented to if the order had not been registered. Prays the archbishop's favour, whereby he may be freed from his sentence. [$\frac{5}{6}$ p.] Underwritten,

34. Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia to Sir Thomas Roe. Your letter by Dr. Spina of 14th May received last week, and on Monday last yours of the 8th of the same. I see I am not deceived of the French treaty. It is only what concerns the two crowns and my son's business that is referred to Hamburg. I find by your letter and Mons. Ferentz's that it were good the Prince Elector should go to Hamburg. The Prince of Orange, Camerarius, and others are of opinion that he cannot do it with his honour. First, there will be none there but ambassadors, there will be no prince; then the French ambassador will not see him as Prince Elector, neither will Hamburg, for you know the fashion of those people to be du corté [coté] des plus fort; and the Prince of Orange thinks it not safe being there for the Prince Elector, because Denmark is about to block it. As far as Ferentz writes that it will be a means to make him known to the empire, how can that be, when he shall see none but those of Hamburg? If his Majesty would send the Prince that way with money to levy and receive what Sweden has offered, that journey were good indeed. All the Prince Elector's friends here think he will not do well to go, since he cannot go like a Prince Elector nor be received so, and they think to stir from it till he knows what his Majesty will do for him will not be well done, which is a hard case. For if he stay it will do him wrong, thinking it an idleness, and if he go before he knows what he is to trust to, he will be as before much to seek. If his presence do nothing, his absence will do less. There is nothing I so much desire as to see him in action, but know not how he shall best put himself into it. There is little news. The Prince of Orange will go very suddenly into the field, and without doubt will do something, which makes me write to the King to give Rupert leave to be in that action, whatsoever it is. You may easily guess why I send for him; his brother can tell it you else. I pray you to help him away as soon as you can, and to hinder those that would stay him. The Prince of Orange is much troubled that it is reported in England that the States are cause the French proceed no better in the treaty, protesting it is most false; they desire nothing more than the quick conclusion of it, and never liked the assembly at Hamburg, nor the French to meddle with the fishing business. As soon as the Prince of Orange hears of the French army marching, he will do the like. Count Henry of Nassau, the governor of Frize, commands an army apart of 4,000 horse and 8,000 foot; he is my cousin of Nassau's son, whom you saw a little one of a year old at Arnheim, when you went up with me into Germany. He is grown a very fine gentleman and beloved of all nations there. The States have given the Prince of Orange's little son the survivance of all his father's charge. The Duke Bernard marches, some say towards the Rhine, some say into Bavaria, but I believe the first, for France will not suffer him to do the other, besides the trouble of the passage to it. I must entreat you not to refuse to go to Hamburgh, but to use your best means to be sent thither ambassador, for I wish none there for the King but you. I have commanded my son to do "your" [his] best for it, and then I hope, going or coming, or both, I shall see you. P.S.—I have received a letter from Archbishop Laud, wherein I find he is very well satisfied. I send my third son Maurice with the Prince of Orange and the army. The execution of the order was referred to Sir John Lambe and Dr. Aylett, in whose hands the matter lies yet undetermined. Notwithstanding my often procuring the counsel of both sides to attend, I am now no nearer to a hearing than I was a year since. The wasting of a term in London is as chargeable as if the cause were to be finally sentenced. It pleases the defendant well, when the thing in controversy defrays the charges on his side and there is hope to beat the promoter both out of purse and patience. The same to Sir Henry Marten. We send you the petition of John le Drue, master of a prize called the Waterhound, taken by Dunkirkers from the Hollanders on the French coast, and cast by tempest on Tenby in Pembrokeshire about September last, which complaint has been recommended by the Spanish Ambassador. We also send the petition of Thomas Bowen, who lent le Drue moneys in his distress in that port, as also the petition of the executors of Sir James Parrett, late Deputy Vice-Admiral of that part of Wales, who pretend the ship was bought by Sir James. We also send you an inventory of the ship, signed by the Mayor of Tenby and others, with examinations taken before Mr. Richard Price, now Deputy Vice-Admiral of South Wales, and the Deputy Judge of the Admiralty there. As we understand there are two suits depending before you concerning this business, we pray you to consider all the said papers and (because le Drue is a poor man) summarily to hear and order the difference. Off the Lizard.

"On the 2nd of this month, off the Lizard, we gave chase to four sail of Hollanders, great ships homeward bound from the coast of Brazil. They were all to windward of us, the wind westerly; three of them had flags abroad. The Admiral, Vice-Admiral, and one more stretched it ahead of us out of shot; the Rear-Admiral came within reach of the pinnace. Mr. Rabanett gave fire to a piece thwart his forefoot, and he shot another fair over the pinnace's quarter, and kept up his flag and topsails. The pinnace shot a second and a third at him. At length the Admiral and Vice-Admiral took in their flags, lowered their topsails, and laid their ships by the lee. The pinnace ran up with the Rear-Admiral, who notwithstanding kept all aloft, and called to him to strike for the King of England; he made answer he would when he came to his Admiral, neither did he lower his topsails until he brought up his ship by the lee. When I came up with them (being at least a league astern) I sent for the Admiral, who came on board me, and excused his not striking his flag and bearing up with us, alleging he did not know us at first. For his Rear-Admiral, he told me that if he had done amiss he was to suffer for it, and that he would by no means justify what he had done. The captain of the Rear-Admiral I have taken out of his ship and sent to Plymouth fort, to be kept there until such time as your Lordship shall please to release him. All that he can say in his own behalf is that he took us to be ships of Dunkirks, but the weather was very clear, we all had our jacks and ensigns abroad, and the pinnace was so near him that he must have known her. On the 4th of this month I had intelligence that a Biscayner (a vessel of about 16 tons, with 40 men, two small iron guns, and 26 oars) had taken two Frenchmen in Mount's Bay and brought them into Penzance, and I sent in Mr. Rabanett to look for him, and he found him at an anchor in the bay and brought him to me. The Frenchmen he took near the Land's End, fair by the shore; one of them he had sold to the master of her for 18*l.*, the other to one Thomas Diggins, of Chichester, for 13*l.* The master of her had once agreed with the Biscayner for his barque for 9*l.*, and this Diggins gave 13*l.* for her, and being afterwards doubtful to be questioned for it, he let the master of her have her for 13*l.* By my instructions from your Lordship, I am to do my endeavour to recover any goods that shall be taken from any man in his Majesty's roads, harbours, or coasts. This Biscayner refused to make restitution of such money as he received from the Frenchmen, alleging that he had laid it out for victuals. There is also one of his company, a Scotchman, now aboard the pinnace, that avers that he has taken several things out of English vessels. I have sent your Lordship his examination and withal a letter from the Deputy Vice-Admiral of Penzance, in whose charge I have left the Biscayner until he hath further order from your Lordship, having taken an inventory of all things belonging to her. The captain of this Biscayner saith that he came upon this coast to mend his mainmast which hath received a shot in fight with a French shallop; but he hath been ten days upon the coast and hath done nothing to his mast."

54. Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia to Archbishop Laud. I must not let this honest preacher go for England without these few lines. I am not forgetful of your affection to me, which I entreat you to continue. It is again reported that the French King has signed the treaty, but I have heard it so often, as I will not believe it till I hear it out of England. The Prince of Orange is ready to go into the field, and intends to do some action which will be worth the sight, wherefore I have written to the King to give Rupert leave to come over, that he may accompany the Prince. He shall be at all times ready to obey the King's command to go elsewhere. I think he will spend this summer better in an army than idly in England, for though it be a great honour and happiness to him to wait upon his uncle, yet, his youth considered, he will be better employed to see the war. I send his brother Maurice also to the army. I understand the King will send an Ambassador to Hamburg. I wish he would make choice of honest Sir Thomas Roe; there can be none fitter. I know you may help my desire in this, which I pray you to do. towards defraying the pay of the 1,000 horse raised for the King's service in Friesland, and which sum it appeared by the acquittance of William Makdowell, President of the Council of War in Friesland, that Sir William had paid. [12 lines on parchment.]

June 12. 63. Thomas Gardiner to the King. Certifies the nature of the offences of the four persons undermentioned, being prisoners in Newgate, whom he conceives may be fit to be transported or pardoned. John Allibone, convicted of stealing two geldings from Robert Pollard; Anne Bowland, convicted of murdering her female bastard child; Clare Corneline, a Dutch woman, convicted of stealing 33 ells of sarsnet, reprieved in regard the Court was informed that the elders of the Dutch Church would cause her to be transported into her own country; Francis Musgrave alias Spencer, convicted of breaking the house of Edward Johnson in the night and stealing therefrom. [1 p.]

[June 12 ?] 64. Sir Capell Bedell and others, Justices of Peace for co. Huntingdon, to the Council. We have called before us Mr. Giles Randall and the witnesses on both sides, and have enclosed their examinations. We shall be ready to send up Mr. Randall, and to execute any further direction. [1 p.] Enclosed,

64. 1. Examinations above mentioned. OBADIAH COYSH said that in a sermon made by Mr. Randall on 23rd November last, in the parish church of Easton, he said that among many sins which caused the wrath of God to lie heavy upon this nation the taking of the loan and ship-money were two, saying it was oppression and felony, and without restitution there could be no salvation. GILES RANDALL acknowledged that, preaching against unjust gains, and instancing usury, he said that the use-money or loan-money, taken in the same way, was a breach of the eighth commandment, and cited Bishop Babington; and as for the ship-money, he never spake against it, but against the unjust levying of it,—casting it off from rich men's shoulders on poor men's necks. THOMAS FILLBRIGGE said that Mr. Randall, preaching of the sins of the land to be the causes of the judgments of God, spoke of the ship-money or loan-money, but in what manner he cannot tell. THOMAS THURSTON said that Mr. Randall named the ship-money, and that he thought it to be oppression amongst the meaner sort. WILLIAM BEDELL that Mr. Randall said that the taking of the loan-money was oppression, and that the people groaned under burthens imposed upon them. Mr. Randall named the ship-money, but witness knows not how he applied it. JOHN SUTTON said that Mr. Randall named the loan-money or ship-money, but how he applied it he knows not. GLASSEN PIGOTT said that Mr. Randall said the ship-money was oppression. DANIEL BAYLE, servant to Obadiah Coysh, said that Mr. Randall said that the taking of the loan and ship-money was oppression, and without restitution there was no salvation. ALEXANDER BEDELL saith that Mr. Randall named usury, loan, or ship-money, but which he applied to oppression he knows not. Daniel Bale, Thomas Fisher, Thomas Burgess, Buttolph Tychemarsh, and Henry Sutton were at church, but remember nothing of those things. EDWARD THURSTON said that Mr. Randall took occasion to speak concerning usury,—how that it was a great occasion to hinder God's mercy from us; and so going on, spoke concerning the loan and ship-money, and how it was a great oppression to the country. June 12. 65. Sec. Coke to Algernon Earl of Northumberland. We have received a final despatch from France, whereupon his Majesty accepts the treaty offered by them. In pursuit of this treaty we are preparing instructions for our agents, and the Prince Elector Palatine resolves to transport himself into Holland to treat with the States and Prince of Aurenge [Orange], and to put his affairs in order. For his passage, his Majesty refers him to your order, which will require your attendance in the Downs, till you hear from the Prince, who will acquaint you with his train and time of going. And because I conceive Sir Henry Mervin shall carry him over, I think fit to acquaint him what is done in this business. Your further instructions will shortly follow. [Draft in Sec. Coke's handwriting. 1 p.]

June 12. 67. Dr. Samuel Clerke to [Sir John Lambe]. I wrote to the Lady
Kingsth[orpe]. Deincourt, and some few lines to his lordship. I send the answer. I wrote only of 3,000*l.*, according to your commission; but at that I presume he will not stick. You may perceive the business is feasible. You may match your daughter to a great estate, and may make her a baroness. The lord is tough, but just and honest; and the noble lady will make good her word. If my endeavours may be further useful, I will wait upon you either at Newark or Sutton. My daughter Kate is lately married to Mr. Rainsford, of Staverton. Mr. Chauncey, whom you lately corrected in the High Commission, mends like sour ale in summer. He held a fast on Wednesday last, and, as I am informed, he with another preached some six or eight hours. The whole tribe of Gad flocked thither,—some threescore from Northampton; the Lord Say, with his lady, honoured them with their presence. The end was, as I am told, to join in prayer that God would deliver his servants from persecution, whom we conceive to be Bastwick, Prynne, and Burton. You may do well to acquaint my Lord's Grace [of Canterbury] herewith. I have much more to write, but forbear, in hope of some reformation

68. Petition of Thomas Pape, printer and stationer, of London, to Archbishop Laud. There is a privilege for sole printing divers school books, enjoyed by the Company of Stationers, of London, which is divided into three parts—one-third to the assistants, another to the livery, and the last to the yeomanry. The two former, in whose hands the managing the business lies, have almost devoured the poor yeomanry, insomuch that the difficulty in obtaining that which belongs to the poor of petitioner's rank makes him desire his Grace to stand his friend to the master, wardens, and assistants of the company, for admitting him into a yeomanry part for the usual sum of money. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten,

Petition of Sir John Gibson to the King. Petitioner, by letters patent dated 5th March 1634, is farmer in reversion of your Majesty's alum works, at the yearly rent of 12,500*l.*, which is an improvement of 1,500*l.* per annum; in which letters patent it was declared that if your Majesty should do any matter whereby petitioner should be hindered from having any profit which he ought to enjoy, that in such cases satisfaction should be made by defalcation out of his yearly rent next payable. Since the passing of which lease, viz., in April 1635, your Majesty imposed a duty of 12*d.* upon every chaldron of coals shipped from Blyth and Sunderland to be spent within this kingdom, from which places the alum works are constantly furnished with coal. Petitioner being to enter upon those works in January next, must now make his provision of coal; but finding the said imposition upon coal, he shows that it will be a great loss to him, and prays your Majesty to signify to the Lord Treasurer and Chancellor of the Exchequer that the farmers of the imposition on coal may be authorized to suffer petitioner to ship such coals as he shall need, free of the said imposition. [Copy. See Vol. cccxxviii., p. 107. 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ p. Underwritten,

I. *Minute of the King's pleasure. His Majesty conceives the demanding 12*d.* per chaldron for coals spent at the alum works to be an innovation by the farmers of the imposition, which was not intended for any coals spent at his Majesty's own works. The Lord Treasurer and Lord Cottington are to write to the said farmers, and to suffer such coals as shall be spent only at the alum works to pass free of that duty. [Copy. Upon petitioner's petition to his Grace, the beginning of last term, Sir John Lambe having received articles in the High Commission Court against certain offenders complained of by petitioner, and the cause being referred to Sir John, petitioner dwelling far off, and being spun out by delays and their potency, and having suffered imprisonment, wrongs, and spoilings of goods, as by the articles appear, prays order that Sir John may have proceedings in this cause. Lords of the Admiralty to Officers of the Navy. It is his Majesty's pleasure that there be provided vessels for transporting the horses and baggage of the Prince Elector. You are required to take up two vessels to transport the same into the Low Countries, which vessels are to be ready at Greenwich on Monday next, in the morning. You are further to take up shipping to transport threescore horse of the Prince, and that the same be ready at the Tower on Monday next by six in the morning, so as they may fall down thence with the evening tide; and you are to order the masters of such vessels to follow the directions of the Prince's steward. 71. Officers of the Navy to Lords of the Admiralty. According to warrant of 24th May, his Majesty's shipwrights and divers of the chief shipwrights of the Thames, with half a dozen of the most ancient and experienced seamen of the Trinity House, have taken survey of his Majesty's ship, built at Woolwich, and certify that, according to his Majesty's rule of measuring, she is in length by the keel 127 feet; breadth within side the plank, 46 feet 6 inches; depth from the upper edge of the keel to the extreme breadth, 19 feet 4 inches; which being cast up and divided by 100 produces in bare tons 1,141; whereunto adding one-third, she is in ton and tonnage 1,522. But measured by the old rule, as they term it, the ship's burthen is 1,367 tons, to which a third being added, makes 1,823 tons. [1 p.]

[June 13 ?] 73. Phineas Pett to the King. Propositions concerning the Great Ship, with the King's answers in the margin. Suggestion that the 25th September be fixed for the day of her being launched. [Observation of the King in the margin:—"The sooner the better."] As against the fixing of so early a day, it is suggested that if the King resolve to send her to sea next summer, she will in the meantime grow very foul under water, and it will consequently be necessary to have her into dock again to grave and clean. [The King, in the margin:—"I am not of your opinion."] Upon the foundation of Pett's last remark, it is suggested that the launch might be postponed until "the five of February," by which time the ship might be completely finished, and she would not require winter moorings, and the charge of shipkeepers would be saved. [The King, in the margin:—"Not."] It is suggested that if the Prince Royal be to be docked and repaired, it will be a convenient time to bring her up from Chatham to Woolwich, where she would be a help for raising shears to set the masts of the new ship. [The King, in the margin:—"I will; and therefor it is fitt that the new ship be lanshed as soone as may bee."] [1 p.]

June 13. Petition of Elizabeth Eldred, wife of Walter Eldred, his Majesty's silkman, to the same. Petitioner's husband, so long as his estate or credit would support (which to supply he sold, not only those poor lands which were his birthright, but also those he had in right of petitioner), was desirous to do your Majesty service. He delivered to the wardrobe and stables goods amounting to 7,666*l.* 12*s.* 1*d.*, due four years past, which is yet unpaid, and after two years' suit 300*l.* only has been assigned, so that the interest, with 2,500*l.* owing to him in the robes, amounts to 3,200*l.* and above, which sum he has paid for moneys taken up at interest, without which he could not have performed your Majesty's service. Now having neither money, means, nor credit, all the wares he had being extended by one of his creditors, before your Majesty's protection was granted to him, at undervalues, petitioner and their 14 children are like to perish or be left to the world's merciless charity, and he to the mercy of his creditors. Your Majesty has at sundry times given orders to the Lord Treasurer for satisfaction of petitioner's husband, yet he has been put off in the number of other petitioners whose debts are not so great nor their cases so lamentable. Prays an express order to the Lord Treasurer to make present payment of some part, and that tallies may be struck for the remainder to be paid out of the imposition upon silks or the farm of tobacco. their estates at certain yearly rents, but by reason of excessive fees demanded for passing the same, they are unable to undergo the same without some moderation. Sundry of them have passed their leases, yet contrary to your Majesty's intention by your Commission of Grace, they are troubled for non-payment of 12*d.* the Sunday to the poor, and thereby disabled to pay your Majesty's rents. June 14. 74. Roger Vaughan, Sheriff of co. Hereford, to the Council. In obedience to the letters of the Lords, of the last of April, for according a difference between certain citizens of Hereford and the inhabitants of Holmer and Hampton Bishop in that county, concerning the assessing of ship-money, the Mayor of Hereford and the writer called some of the city, as also of the out-parishes, before them, but could by no means settle the difference, for that the inhabitants of the out-parishes constantly affirm that always formerly the owners of lands within the liberties of the city in those parishes paid as the rest of the inhabitants in all common payments with the county, until of late some of the citizens of Hereford having purchased part of those lands, now refuse to pay with the rest of the inhabitants. The mayor himself had so paid, but nevertheless he and others of the corporation were unwilling to agree that lands within the liberties of the city should pay with the county. States the arguments pro and con, and begs the Lords to order this difference, that the service may suffer no longer to delay. [2 pp.]

June [14?] 75. Petition of Michael Coleman and John Chappell, very poor men, to the Lords and others belonging to the Admiralty Court. Thomas Ryley arrested his servant, William Frobisher, for 38*l.* forced for composition for his service, and petitioners in charity bailed him about Michaelmas term last, but in the interim Frobisher was pressed into his Majesty's service. Then Ryley threatened petitioners that if they did not pay him the forfeiture of his bond and debt he would lay them in prison, which forced petitioners to arrest Frobisher to secure themselves; also they removed him out of the Counter in London to the King's Bench, where the Lord Chief Justice freed petitioners, and they freed Frobisher of their action, and the Chief Justice sent him to the King's Bench prison, where he lies at the suit of Ryley, petitioners being still threatened to be under the command of a messenger if they will not pay his fees. Pray to be freed from the same. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Annexed,

77. Notes taken by Sec. Windebank in the Star Chamber on the hearing of the cause of the Attorney-General versus John Bastwick, Henry Burton, and William Prynne. These notes contain a brief abridgment of the information and the speech of the Attorney-General in opening the case, with references to the passages in the books of the several defendants principally relied upon by the prosecution. The case was taken pro confesso, therefore the Court proceeded at once to sentence. Lord Cottington moved the sentence, which was adopted by the Court with an addition suggested by Lord Chief Justice Finch. Lord Cottington's speech is thus noted by Sec. Windebank:—"Perpetual imprisonment in remote places. Bastwick, in Cornwall, Lostwithiel Castle; Burton, Lancaster Castle; Prynne, Carnarvon Castle. To communicate with none but such as shall be permitted. 5,000*l.* apiece fine. All three to lose their ears in Westminster. Burton, degradation, being in orders. Bastwick, the like." Sir John Finch's addition is thus reported:—"The neglect of the [previous] execution upon Prynne. Prynne's ears cut close, and stigmatised with S.L. on his cheeks." The Lord Treasurer and Archbishop Laud did not join in the sentence. [= $3\frac{3}{4}$ pp.]

78. Minutes endorsed by Sir John Lambe as being "Notes for the Journeymen Printers." It was observed that no seditious pamphlet had been printed, but some journeymen printers had been the directors therein. It seems inferred that this was a result of the master printers employing "foreigners" in preference to journeymen, which left the journeymen unemployed. It is suggested that those that are honest men and serve their full time might be so far provided for that neither King's printer nor any other printer should employ foreigners so long as a freeman is unemployed. This, it was concluded, would also be a means that sinister printers and printing would be found out. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

There were included in it, of ships between 100 and 200 tons, 14 new and ten old; between 200 and 300 tons, 12 new and 10 old; between 300 and 400 tons, seven new and one old. [1 p.]

June 15. Petition of Katherine Elliot, wet nurse to the Duke of York, to the King. There is a moor in Somerset, called West Sedgemoor, which appears to be your Majesty's right. The neighbouring inhabitants of late years, by reason of improvements, claiming common of pasture as belonging to their bordering lands, have intruded on your Majesty's right and received the sole benefit thereof. To enable petitioner to settle your Majesty's right, she prays a grant of the said moor for 60 years at a rent of 1s. per acre, she recovering the same at her own cost. [*Copy. June 15. 82. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to the Lords of the Admiralty. The Triumph, in the Downs. Upon Monday, the 12th inst., we weighed in the Hope, and the wind being contrary till this day, we could not reach the Downs, where I stay further instructions. I here met with a packet from Capt. Stradling, whom I have employed for guard of the west coast, a copy of whose letter (see this Vol., No. 41) I send, with an examination of one of the Biscayner's company, and another letter from the Deputy Vice-Admiral of Penzance. The misbehaviour of the Biscayner deserves punishment. June 15. 84. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sec. Windebank. As The Triumph, we were yesterday beating it up towards this place, your letter in the Downs. of the 12th inst. met me at sea. Your civilities so heap obligations upon me that I know not how it can ever be in my power to deserve them. I find your elder brother [Sec. Coke] constant to his reservedness, for notwithstanding the order he had from his Majesty to communicate to me some resolutions upon this last despatch out of France, yet have I nothing from him, but that the King has received a despatch, whereupon he is resolved to accept the treaty, and that the Prince Elector and his brother are presently to go for Holland, and that I must take care for their transportation. If some of my friends did not give me a little light, I should, for him, live in a great blindness. [1 p.]

June 15. 85. Edward Viscount Conway and Killultagh to [Sec. Coke].
The Downs, The wind was long contrary for bringing our ships out of the Hope, the Triumph. and the punishment of White, for casting away the Anne [Royal], made the masters not willing to do anything that might bring the ship into danger to come on ground. We had two sons of Mr. Comptroller in this ship that were to go into the Low Countries to the States army. We met with Sir Robert Stone, who was to carry his wife and divers horses in a hoy into Holland. Meeting with so fair an occasion as a good ship for his wife to go in, and which might convoy his hoy that she might pass unmolested, he went in that ship [which] was to carry [the] Mr. Vanes along with us. The wind one evening coming fair, he persuaded Mr. Vane to take the next way to Holland, so we left them with their fair wind, which changed before they could get over the flats. They were forced to go back into deeper water, where they lie.' Sir Robert left his wife with the two young gallants, and overland came hither last night. He intends to go in a ketch to Holland, to carry news to the Queen of Bohemia of her sons leaving England, and [the]
Mr. Vanes will come overland to meet their father, whom they expect with the Prince Elector. [2 pp.]

William Beely, Archdeacon of Carmarthen, about five years since, having two parsonages, and conceiving he could not hold both, instituted and inducted petitioner into one of them, he being patron thereof, and immediately after procured petitioner to assign the same over to Thomas Hillersdon, an attorney's clerk, and William Burton, a scholar at Oxford, Beely's kinsman, and to give them a bond that they might quietly enjoy the whole profits (being 140*l. per annum*), except 40 marks. About six months after, Beely caused petitioner to marry one of his kinswomen, and in consideration thereof promised he should have the same parsonage regranted to him; whereupon petitioner lent him money, and laid out 40*l.* in repairing the parsonage house. Beely now denies to confer the parsonage on petitioner, or satisfy his moneys lent and laid out, but lays the bond of 300*l.* upon him, and threatens to imprison him, and for further oppression has caused the bishop of the diocese, himself, and petitioner to be served with a Quare impedit, having gotten the King's title for his nephew's son, and intends to force petitioner to leave the same parsonage. Prays the archbishop to command Beely, Hillersdon, and Burton to appear, and himself to hear and determine the business. [Endorsed by William Dell, "For Sir John Lambe." 1 p.]

June 15. 88. Petition of Miles Burkitt, clerk, vicar of Pattishall, co. Northampton, to Archbishop Laud. Petitioner has been called into the High Commission Court, and articles exhibited against him for inconformity, unto which he has made his answer. Petitioner is now become not only sensible of his errors and youthful rashness, but exceedingly grieved for the same, and most ready to make any submission, promising for ever hereafter to become a true conformable son of the Church both for doctrine and discipline. Prays that he may be dismissed. Underwritten,

June 15. 89. Petition of Nicholas Luke, of Paxton, co. Huntingdon, to the same. There are articles of crime ex officio mero in the Court of High Commission given against petitioner; he craves your Grace to accept his submission, and so to order, that suppliant may avoid public punishment by referring the censure of the crime to Sir John Lambe. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten,

89. I. Reference to Sir John Lambe to consider of petitioner's request, and give the archbishop an account of it at their next meeting. 15th June 1637. [$\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

June 15. 90. John Barrett to the same. Your Grace accepted formerly some rude lines touching the manners of my neighbour Simonds and his lewd company, concerning which Simonds (who was last term at the High Commission, and there obtained prorogation of his judgment until Michaelmas term) I have somewhat more to write, but much more concerning John Waller, the great agent of Simonds and his children in all vexations of the inhabitants of Cavenham, the rather because their return home with hope of easy sentence from the court makes Simonds and his man Waller (who is not yet articted against, for he was detained in prison to be further indicted on murder when the others were missived into the High Commission), makes them, I say, most impudently insolent, as also because I know that the eye of the whole clergy in our parts is upon the case, to expect freedom from contumelious usage or contempt, according as these parties shall be censured or freed; yea, the town wherein I live and some other next towns are like to ruin or be eased according to the immunities or restraints of old Simonds and Waller. Please you, therefore, to survey these articles, discovering the manners of Simonds since his being in the High Commission, as also of Waller, the only engine of vexation in our parts, desiring your Grace to conceal me and pardon my presumption. [1 p.] Enclosed,

90. I. Articles against John Simonds the elder, of Cavenham, since his being in the High Commission. Seven articles, setting forth omission to come to church, with various acts of spite and ill temper, with abusive language, on the part of Simonds, who, although an old man, is described as able to outrun, outwork, and outfight the youngest son he hath, and as chiefest in labour, in ploughing, in carting, in hay, and in harvest. [1½ p.]

90. II. Articles against John Waller, farmer of the rectory of Cavenham. Ten articles, setting forth misconduct in his character of farmer of the rectory, as well as in his private capacity. He is charged with leaving the chancel of the church unthatched, allowing his hogs and cattle to be in the churchyard, and being a great swearer, blasphemer, contemner of God's priests (though in that respect more moderate than his master, Simonds), and altogether a person of very dissolute life. [1 p.]

June 15. 91. Copy of the articles against John Waller, being the second paper annexed to the preceding article. [2 pp.]

June 15. 92. News-letter, written, as appears from one of a subsequent date, by "C. Rossingham." The subjects treated of are the following:—
1. Lord Moone [Mohun]'s nominal surrender to the Fleet upon his sentence in the Star Chamber, and his release on giving bond to pay his fine of 500*l.* to the King. Remarked absence of reflections upon Sir James Bagg in giving sentence attributed to order of the King. 2. Aldermen of London have been before the Council about the composition for Londonderry. Offer to surrender their plantation to the King, with which the Lords promised to acquaint his Majesty. The Lords urge the city to set up the trade of fishing on the English coast. Answer of the citizens, and especially of Alderman Garraway, to the effect that the citizens were much better employed. 3. Petition of the parishioners of St. Gregory by St. Paul's against the order for pulling down their church. 4. Sir John Strangwayes or Strangwish with Sir Lewis Dives and Sir Edward Stradling called into the Star Chamber for transporting gold out of the kingdom. 5. The Bishop of Lincoln had petitioned the King for a fortnight's longer time to instruct his counsel. The King took the petition, put off his hat, and gave the petition to the Lord Keeper, but no longer time will be allowed. 6. Contention between London and Norwich respecting the election of the next year's Mayor of Norwich (Alderman Atkins) to be Sheriff of London. Reasons why Atkins had removed from Norwich to London:—1. Because he was imprisoned for refusing to wear his arms at a general muster; and 2. Because of a prosecution of very many of the citizens of Norwich for not conforming to orders made by the bishop in his visitation. 3. Also because there is very little preaching in that city. 7. Arrival of Mons. Batier, secretary to the Earl of Leicester, with the conclusion of a confederacy between England and France. The Prince Elector and his brother go for Holland next week. On Monday they sent into the city for their bills where they owed money. 8. Meeting of the Commissioners for compositions for lands in Essex forest. Dr. Wright, the physician, paid 100*l.* composition. All the gentry will come in, but what the peasants will do is not yet known. When they meet together they talk at large, but being divided they soon become crest-fallen. 9. Sentence against Bastwick, Burton, and Prynne in the Star Chamber. The Bishop of London and the Archbishop of Canterbury passed no sentence, but the latter spake two hours out of a note-book prepared for that purpose. [4 pp.]

June 16. 93. The Council to the Messengers of the Chamber and all others.
Westminster. William Hester, Simon Preston, George Bennet, William King, William Pelham, Nicholas Becon, and Peter Coale, being authorized by the governor and Company of Soapmakers of the city of London to search for, seize, and carry away all soap and lees prohibited by proclamation, and to destroy all pans, tubs, cisterns, and other vessels employed for the making of such soap and lees, the persons addressed are charged to give assistance to the said Hester and others, and particularly in breaking open doors, and apprehending offenders, and in case of opposition, mayors, sheriffs, and justices of peace are to use such power and strength as shall be needful to subdue obstinate resistance. [Copy. 2½ pp.]

June 16. 94. John Viscount Scudamore to Sec. Windebank. I hope that Paris. before this can come to your hands both your sons are arrived with you; they took leave of Paris upon Monday last. I shall be glad to hear it, and that Thomas Windebank has left his quartan to keep company with sea-fish. P.S.—Here is come to Paris Mr. Chambers, with the statue from Cardinal Barberini; another, the servant of him that made the statue, coming along in company to take it forth, but nowhere upon any terms till it be in England. Upon Monday next Chambers proposes to set forward for Dieppe. [1 p.]

June 16. 95. Sec. Windebank to the Keeper of Newgate. His Majesty
Westminster. has commanded that Henry Morse, prisoner in Newgate, shall be discharged, giving security to appear before the Council upon 20 days' warning. The keeper is to bring Morse to the writer's house at Westminster, to-morrow at eight o'clock in the morning, to enter security accordingly. [Copy. ¾ p.]

- June 16. 96. List of causes to be heard in the Star Chamber this day. They were four in number :—1. The Attorney-General versus Bishop Williams, of Lincoln ; Walter Walker ; Thomas Lund ; Cadwallader Powell ; William Catlin, clerk ; Edward Lake ; John Mostyn ; and George Walker. Rice Williams, who had been a defendant, was struck out. This cause was for tampering with witnesses, and subornation of perjury. 2. The same versus Bishop Williams, a second cause for scandalous speeches against his Majesty. 3. The Earl of Marlborough versus Thomas Bennett. 4. The Attorney-General versus Thomas Lunsford and others. [This was probably Archbishop Laud's copy of the cause list At the top of it he has written :—"Is his name thus written, Charles Fotherby, clerk, Master of Arts?" 1 p.]
- June 16. 97. Another similar list. This was Sec. Windebank's copy of the cause list. Against the list of defendants in the first cause he has written that there were seven other defendants ; three stand in contempt for not answering, three had run away, and Wetherell stood in contempt for not answering interrogatories. [1 p.]
- June 16. 98. Notes by Archbishop Laud of the several charges made against the defendants in the first cause, mentioned in the preceding list (that against Bishop Williams and others), with notes of the evidence in support thereof, and of that given on the part of the defendants. [= 27 pp.]
- June 16. 99. Notes by Sec. Windebank of the proceedings in the same cause this day in the Court of Star Chamber. These notes comprise the general statements made by the counsel on both sides on opening the cause, with notes of the arguments of the Attorney-General. [5 pp.]
- June 16. 100. Brief of the bill and answer in the cause of the Attorney-General (William Noy) versus Bishop Williams, being the first cause instituted against the bishop, and out of which arose the cause which came to a hearing this day. The bill in this case was filed in 1632. [4 pp.]
- June 16. 101. The like of the various facts stated to be proved by the depositions of witnesses examined on the part of the prosecutor in the first cause mentioned in the preceding article. [7 pp.]
- June 16. 102. The like of facts proved by witnesses on the part of the defendant. [5 pp.]
- June 16. 103. Thomas Mostyn, Sheriff of co. Flint, to Nicholas. I have My house at
Place, in Rhyd. received your letter of the 7th May last, with an order from the Council to be served upon Mr. Williams, rector of Northop and Flint ; which order I sent to my under-sheriff, Edward Spicer, to serve on Mr. Williams, at Llanrhaidr, co. Denbigh, his continual residence. I send Spicer's certificate, how he served the order, and the answer he received of the wife of Williams, who was then at London. The money due, being 3*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, we have not received from Williams as yet. The residue of the charge upon that county was paid by my agent to Sir William Russell, the 12th May last. The sending it up cost me out of my own purse 6*l.*, paid to Christopher Blease, alderman at Chester, who undertook the payment thereof to the Treasurer. If other sheriffs have any allowance for conveying their moneys to London, I hope I may receive the like. [Seal with arms. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Enclosed,

103. i. *Edward Spicer, under-sheriff of co. Flint, to Thomas Mostyn, sheriff. I repaired to the house of John Williams, clerk, in Llanrhaiadr, and upon the 21st May last I delivered the order of Council above mentioned to the hands of Williams's wife, who refused to pay, alleging that her husband was then in London, but would deliver the same order to him at his return. 16th June 1637. 104. Sir Thomas Cotton, Sheriff of co. Huntingdon, to Nicholas. To give you an account of the ship-money in Huntingdonshire The county was assessed at 2,000*l.*, whereof Huntingdon and Godmanchester were 114*l.* I suppose Huntingdon and Godmanchester have paid in their assessments ; it concerns them to see it paid in, and not me. Of the 1,886*l.* from the county, I have paid to Sir William Russell 1,500*l.*, and am to pay in 386*l.* so soon as I can get it. Most of it I have, and am collecting what is behind, and then intend to make up my whole account. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

105. William Earl of Exeter, Lord Lieutenant of co. Northampton, to Sir John Heydon. My deputy-lieutenants inform me that their provision of powder grows low, and that it is a commodity hard to come by in the country. These are to desire you to furnish them out of the Tower at a reasonable rate, as formerly. [Endorsed, "3 barrels to be delivered to Mr. John Loddington." Seal with arms. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

106. Note of letters from the Council, delivered to Reignold Gunnell, messenger, directed to,—1. Bishop of Bath and Wells, Mr. Bassett, and Mr. Malett, about hundred of Frome Selwood. 2. Lord Chamberlain, Lord Warden of the Stannaries. 3. Sheriff of co. Buckingham. [Underwritten is mention of another letter to the Bishop of Bath and Wells from "my master." $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

107. Account [by Sir John Heydon?] of gunpowder sold and money received and paid to this day. The amount received was 49,482*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, of which 49,479*l.* 16*s.* 9*d.* had been paid on several warrants. The powder for the King's 20 ships amounted to 12,127*l.* 10*s.*, of which 5,727*l.* 10*s.* remained unpaid, with 314*l.* for the Swallow and Ninth Whelp, in Ireland. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

Hampton Bishop, but within the liberties of Hereford, we could not agree ; and therefore I certify, that when it is alleged that the occupiers of the lands in question have, time out of mind, been rated in all taxations with the parish, I find that they ever paid subsidies with the city, and do watch and ward with the city, and are constables within the city, and appear at the city courts, and do many other services in the city ; from which, and various other considerations which are here stated at full, the writer concludes in opposition to the sheriff (see No. 74), but urges a speedy determination of the question, and, if the Lords thought fit, by some of the justices of the Marches of Wales. Notes by Nicholas of business to be transacted by the Lords of the Admiralty. The commission for saltpetre has passed the great seal ; to settle the repartition of the business of saltpetre. The saltpetremen desire that they may be furnished with duplicates of the commission of saltpetre. Agree upon a letter for delivery of a barrel of gunpowder, to be sent beyond seas for a pattern, to make trial how it will sell in France. Peruse letters from Officers of Navy. There attend two sergeants that arrested Richard Wyan, proctor of the Admiralty, without leave. Consider the petition of Mr. Giffard against Mr. Berington. Consider Mr. Fleming's petition, that Mr. Williamson may succeed him in the place of clerk of the Navy ; also a memorial from the French Ambassador. The Officers of the Navy find many inconveniences through their not being justices of peace, as their predecessors were ever wont to be. Richardson, saltpetremen for Yorkshire, attends the Lords in the custody of the messenger. [See this present Vol., No. 7. 1 p.]

[June 17.] 110. Note by John Giffard, saltpetremen, of the loss he has sustained by the contempt of Humphrey Berington, in the destruction of a load of liquor thrown down and spilt by his order. Total, 42*l*. [1 p.] Annexed,

110. I. Statement of John Abington and Guy Andrews, workmen for saltpetre, that Mr. Berington asked them if they intended to come to Bishopstone ; and being told they did, swore they should have no work there. 3rd June 1637. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Endorsed,

110. II. Statement of William Roberts, that Mr. Berington told him that he caused the tubs to be thrown down because they should run no longer. 3rd June 1637. [Written on the same paper as the preceding. $\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

110. III. Relation of Henry Thomas. Mr. Berington first did with his kinsman, Mr. Parry, to throw down the tubs of saltpetre, but he would not ; and afterwards Berington stood by himself, and caused Thomas to throw them down. 6th June 1637. [1 p.]

saltpetre tubs by Mr. Berington's orders. Upon being remonstrated with, he told them to take away their tubs and do what they would, for he would make no satisfaction at all. Henry Thomas alias Black Harry, and other persons connected with Mr. Berington, voluntarily stated that the destruction was by order of Berington, against the persuasions of his wife. Sworn 12th June 1637. [1 p.]

June 17. 111. Petition of Humphrey Berington to the Lords of the Admiralty. The accusation against petitioner, which Mr. Giffard presses upon the information of his servants, being contrary to the truth as attested upon petitioner's oath, he prays to have copies of the affidavits produced against him, and time to clear himself before the justices of assize or justices of the peace, before whom he will give bond to appear. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

June 17. 112. Order of the Commissioners of Saltpetre and Gunpowder, Whitehall. upon the complaint of John Giffard, saltpetremen, against Humphrey Berington. After reciting the facts as stated in papers before calendered, and that the damage to Giffard had been above 40*l.*, it was ordered that Berington should forthwith pay 30*l.* to the saltpetremen, and also the messenger's fees, and stand committed to the custody of the messenger until he humbly acknowledged his sorrow for his fault and performed this order. June 17. Lords of the Admiralty to Officers of the Navy. The Red Lion is Whitehall. to be brought into dry dock at Deptford, to be repaired, under the charge of Peter Pett the elder. You are to give order to Pett to set in hand the reparations, and to appoint Mr. Apslin, assistant to the master-shipwrights, to go to Portsmouth and take charge of the works there in place of Mr. Goddard, as soon as Mr. Goddard comes from thence. [Copy. Ibid., fol. 32. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

June 17. The same to [William] Ackworth. By your place of storekeeper Whitehall. at Woolwich, you ought to reside there, where there is a house lately enlarged for your accommodation. You are forthwith to remove from the house wherein you now live at Deptford into the said house at Woolwich, there being other occasions for the habitation which you now possess. [Ibid. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

June 17. The same to Officers of the Navy. It is held requisite, now that Whitehall. the works at Deptford grow great by the increase of the Navy, that one of his Majesty's shipwrights should reside at Deptford, as others are appointed to do at Chatham and Portsmouth. We have given order for Ackworth, storekeeper at Woolwich, to leave Deptford Yard and repair to the house belonging to his office at Woolwich. You are to place Peter Pett in Ackworth's house at Deptford, that he may take charge of the repair of the Red Lion. [Ibid., p. 32. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

June 17. Lords of the Admiralty to the Officers of the Navy. We have Whitehall. appointed John Dymock to be keeper of stores at Portsmouth in place of Francis Brooke, who has surrendered his grant of that office. You are to admit Dymock to the said office, to hold the same with the house and all such fees as are belonging to the same, and the ancient fee of 20*l.* per annum, formerly paid to the said officer out of the Exchequer, but now by warrant to be paid by the Treasurer of the Navy. [Copy. See Vol. cccliii., fol. 33. ½ p.]
- June 17. The same to Robert Smith, messenger. To apprehend Richard Whitehall. Jones, master-gunner of the St. Dennis, and to bring him before the Lords to answer matters to be objected against him, with a clause of assistance. [Ibid., fol. 33 b. ½ p.]
- June 17. 113. The King to the Lord Treasurer, the Lord Great Chamberlain, the Earl Marshal, the Lord Chamberlain, the Earls of Northumberland, Dorset, Holland, Danby, and Newport, Viscounts
Wimbleton, Wilmot, Conway, Lord Herbert of Cherbury, Lord
Cottington, Sir Henry Vane, Secs. Coke and Windebank, Sir Robert Mansell, Sir William Monson, Sir Henry Mervin, Sir William Balfour, Sir John Heydon, and Sir John Pennington. His Majesty appoints these Commissioners his Council of War, to consider such particulars as concern the securing of his realms, the assisting his allies, and all other matters concerning war. They are to consider the strength of the enemy, their likely attempts by sea or land, and in what parts to make the surest defence, and with what ships to make offence; also what aids to demand of his Majesty's allies, and to have regard to the well husbanding of his treasure; to examine all offences touching martial affairs, to consider the ability of officers to be employed, to advise of the best courses for the well ordering the trained bands, and to consider all actions and propositions concerning war. [Abstract. 1½ p.]
- June 17. 114. Names of the Council of War above-mentioned. [1 p.]
- June 17. 115. Petition of George Hall, of Old Windsor, Berks, to Archbishop Laud. About six years since, petitioner was chosen parish clerk of Old Windsor by Mr. Humphreys, the vicar, and the parishioners, and in your late metropolitical visitation petitioner was confirmed in that place under seal; yet Humphreys, having lately conceived offence against petitioner, has put him out of his clerkship, and when petitioner was in suit before his ordinary for his right, Humphreys, upon undue suggestions to your Grace, procured petitioner to be suspended and to be admonished by Sir Nathaniel Brent and Dr. Lynne, referees from your Grace, not to proceed in his cause for clearing his right, albeit petitioner is well able to justify himself.
Beseeches your Grace either to cause petitioner to be restored or that he may proceed in law to be relieved. Underwritten,

- June 17. 117. Statement signed Wm. G. [William Grant]. That one Mr. Shephard, a silenced minister, being at Sion College this morning, was overheard to speak these words concerning the passages in the Star Chamber on the 14th inst.: "The Lord of Canterbury has possessed the King with I know not what. He slubbered over a company of arguments, and then he speaks for altars—altar! altar! altar! altar! just like his fellow monks of his acquaintance. And here he produced a bishop, whom he was sure, he said, that they would not call a Papist, who placed the communion table north and south, the Bishop of Salisbury; but I dined with one the other day who was of the same town, and told me how it was. He uses the King, labours with the King, to have his letters mandatory that it should be done. Here's fine doing! Here is fine doing! And when he came to speak of reverence to altars, oh! what a stir he kept. He said that where there is verbum Dei there is corpus Dei. Oh! wretched man, 'tis blasphemy!" Many scandalous speeches concerning the coming in of Popery. "You may see what they be. Here was Wren, the last Lord's day he goes down to Greenwich, forsooth, and as he took water the people all there bad the devil take him—the devil go with him; so that you may see that it is God's mercy that he is hated of all the people." And many such like speeches for the space of an hour. [Endorsed by Sir John Lambe as Mr. Jo[hn] Grant's note, with the date of 23rd July 1637. 1 p.]

- June 17. 121. Similar receipt for 530*l.* paid by Leonard Townsend on behalf of Sir Edward Hussey, sheriff of co. Lincoln, in part of 8,000*l.* assessed upon that county by writ of 12th August 1636. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

June 18. 125. John Crane to the Lords of the Admiralty. I have delivered your warrant to Sir William Russell for payment of 30,270*l.* 18*s.* for the victualling of the ships now at sea, whereof I have received from him 24,300*l.*, so there remains unpaid 5,970*l.* 18*s.* The estimate amounts to 634*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* more than I have received warrant for. I have also victualled the Richard and Mary by warrant from the Officers of the Navy, which amounts to 954*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*, so there is yet unpaid for this service 7,559*l.* 13*s.* My suit is that Sir William Russell may make payment of the moneys due to me. [1 p.]

June 18. 126. Thomas Holt to John Crane. Upon Wednesday last, about Portsmouth. 10 o'clock at night, happened a fire in a thatched house, which was burned to the ground, wherein his Majesty's anchor-house, and the backhouse that the writer lives in, were miraculously preserved. The house that was burnt stood within 20 yards of it, and the wind carried all the fire upon the King's house. The little house covered with slates adjoining the writer, being next to the burnt house, was also on fire, yet, contrary to all men's expectation, the people quenched it and preserved the same house and the King's. The anchor-house, backhouse, and the long storehouse, which are of great consequence, are environed with thatched houses and barns. Suggests that Crane should inform the Lords of this accident, whereby they may take some order for prevention in time to come, or command the owners of the adjoining houses to cover the same with slate or tiles. 1. Sir Thomas Edmondes, Sir Henry Vane, Sir Roger Palmer, Sir Thomas Merry, Sir Robert Pye, Sir Edmund Sawyer, Sir Henry Knollys, Sir Charles Harbord, Foulk Price, Justinian Povey, Francis Phelips, and William Hill to [the Council]. Report upon two petitions, one from John Wister and others his Majesty's servants, for moneys due to them for provisions served into the late King's house in the 21st and 22nd years of his reign, amounting together to 4,000*l.*, and undertaken (as they allege) to be paid by Sir William Hewet, then receiver-general of his late Majesty's compositions and sales; and the other petition from Sir William Hewet, alleging that he never undertook to pay further than by his patent he was limited, and that he has cleared his account, and therefore desires to be discharged. The referees set forth very minutely the state of Sir William Hewet's account at its close, and what were then, and still are, the outstanding debts from which the first-mentioned petitioners were to be paid. They submit that a privy seal should be obtained for receiving the moneys yet due, and for payment thereof to such of his Majesty's servants as by virtue of debentures are to receive the same. [4 pp.]

June 19. 2. Sir Thomas Roe to Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia. Your Majesty's letter of the 7th inst. was given me at Theobald's, attending the Prince Elector there, which found us preparing for his return, so that I shall be impertinent to trouble you to relate the cause of this sudden change, or to give you my opinion on it, which I have done to his Highness. If a solemn treaty in Germany does not build upon this foundation laid between England and France, to settle a general league with the Swedes and other princes, all that is done will do no more than give the Frenchmen scope under that shadow to accommodate their own affairs. They could with no shame longer defer us for an answer, nor give a leaner than to refer to a treaty, which they may hope will never take effect by our own slowness. All effect will depend upon his Majesty's round resolutions, but the blame and scorn will be thrown upon us. For I know the height of the Swedes. They are the lady that must be courted both with prayers and gifts, and are not to be whistled into a treaty made by others. I received a letter from Stockholm, which I showed his Majesty, whereby he may perceive what he has to do, and if he do it not timely and really, the Swedes are like to refuse us, and from thence the French slip the collar and start from all obligation; for though the counsel be good to get more into the confederacy, it looks like a back door; I like it not. I hope the Prince shall obtain a declaration of his Majesty before he depart, that he may have something to say in Holland, and the States no excuse. In their fishing they shall have no disturbance, and if they take the time, they may oblige the King and secure themselves. I am glad they were not guilty of delay in the treaty with France, and should be glad they would compound the malicious report by cheerful joining and co-operation. By that means they may have more benefit of the Prince's fleet than he, for the security of their trade and coasts. I will no farther interrupt your Majesty but with a paper to read at leisure, concerning the proposition of the Prince's presence at the treaties, which I am sorry you misapprehended, or had need from our obscurity to ask counsel of so many, for the business was contingent, not suddenly to be done, but upon many presuppositions not yet resolved. Yet he defends the opinion, but submits to her judgment. Explains what was designed, but refers her to his paper and to Sir Thomas Ferentz; for "we both err, if we err, alike." The Prince Elector leaves behind him such an odour of his sweetness and virtues that all good men mourn his departure. I was sad to see him languishing in our labyrinths of delay and pleasure. I hope his Majesty will send ambassadors and prosecute the general league. That is as much as he can do alone. Without confederacy he cannot be engaged in a war in Germany. Who shall be employed I know not. If I be commanded, I am ready to sacrifice my life in your service. You have your desire for Prince Rupert, whose youth was too precious to be trained here. I doubt not he returns to you untainted. I will not answer for all designs upon him. The enemy is a serpent as well as a wolf, and though he should prove impregnable, yet you have done wisely to preserve him from battery. It is infinite pity he is not employed according to his genius, for whatsoever he undertakes, he does it vigorously and seriously. His nature is active and spriteful, and may be compared to steel, which is the commanding mettle if it be rightly tempered and disposed. [2 pp.] Enclosed,

I have propounded to Ward, as formerly I have done to Sir Henry Palmer and some other of your society, to set out of that assignment such a yearly sum as (allowing interest for your money) shall equal your debt. According to your lordship's order I have delivered her over to the French that first owned her, but because there are belonging to her but two men and a boy, I have left her in charge of Capt. George Bagg, who has taken an inventory of all things belonging to her, until such time as notice may be given to the merchants that own the goods at Newhaven in France, that they may take some course to fetch her hence. June 21. 21. Edward Nicholas and Richard Poole to the Lords of the Admiralty. Besides this, we find that William Richardson, being bound by contract to deliver 25 lasts 14 cwt. within these last three years, has delivered only 7 lasts 7 cwt. 25 lbs., so as he wants of his proportion 18 lasts 6 cwt. 3 qrs. 23 lbs. Petition of Anthony Larkin, John Clarke, and eight others, inhabitants of Wretton, Norfolk, to Francis Earl of Bedford, Henry Lord Maltravers, Edward Lord Gorges, and others, the conservators of the fens in Norfolk and the residue of the Great Level. Petitioners, being persons of weak estates and capacities, amongst other inhabitants of Wereham Stoke cum Wretton, all intercommoners in their fens, the 16th May last, going in procession about the bounds of their fens, as usually they have done, found five persons digging in their fens without direction, being contrary as well to Lynn law made 13th January 1631, as to the law of allotment assigned to their honours at St. Ives and Wisbech betwixt 27th June and 11th August 1636, in the "hardes," and in such an inconvenient place where petitioners lay their shot net for fowl, as would be the utter undoing of the three townships if they had gone on (consisting of 735 souls), which subsist merely off the fens, they being a principal place for his Majesty and your honours' provision of fowl, insomuch as petitioners have often sent up weekly three horse loads at a time, being worth to them 100*l.* per annum. The diggers being demanded who set them at work, they said a gent, but who they knew not, nor by what authority. It was requested that they would forbear; whereupon, having formerly taken up their tools, they peaceably departed; for which petitioners are commanded to attend the Council table to answer the same. one of the company of the Biscayner; the second, a letter from Capt. Polkinhorne, your deputy vice-admiral of those parts, in which he affirms that the Biscayner has taken, in view of the town, the poor people that repaired towards the same, and constrained them to ransom themselves; the third is a letter of Capt.
Stradling (see Vol. ccclxi., No. 41). You are to cause a seizure to be made to his Majesty's use of the said vessel as pirates' goods, and to commit the men to the next gaol, to be tried at an admiralty session, which we require you to call. In the meantime you are to cause the captain and company to be strictly examined what wrongs have been done by them, not only in this voyage, but in any other voyage heretofore. You are also to take a course that his Majesty's subjects mentioned in Phiff's examination may attend to give evidence. P.S.—If upon the trial of the captain or company any

28. Archbishop Laud to Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia. I did not think when I received your last letter of May $\frac{12}{9}$, that your sons would so soon after have been coming towards you. But the business with the French is in good forwardness now, and that has hastened the Prince Elector to return to look to his business on that side. How things stand for this treaty his Highness will be able to give you a particular account. For the Swedes, I doubt not but his Majesty will now give them such answer as is fit; and I hope you prophesy truly of them, that we shall have most reason to trust them; but I do not love to be too confident of persons or things at so great distance. Concerning his Majesty giving the title of Emperor to the King of Hungary, I assure myself that his Majesty will do nothing but to the best good for the Prince Elector; and if the French king do it not therewhile 'tis well. I hope he will not. Yet we hear daily of open passages and securities given for coming to Cologne and the like; and I am a little to seek how these things can be had without acknowledging the Emperor. I am very glad you have received the books and like them, and hope as you have occasion to use more, you will command that service from me. If the Prince of Orange be gone or is going into the field, God be his good speed! The like I heartily wish to the young Prince Maurice. You do exceedingly well to put him into action betimes. The heat has been as great here as in those parts; to me nothing is so troublesome, and I cannot but doubt it will prove a wet and unwholesome summer after this long, early, and

29. Sir Henry Marten to the Lords of the Admiralty. I received a letter from Mr. Nicholas of the 21st inst. with the enclosures, of which that of Roger Polkinhorne stated that this base Biscayner (as he termed him) lay hovering on the coasts to pillage the King's friends, and had taken, in view of the town, the poor people that repaired towards them, and constrained them to ransom themselves and their barks. My opinion is that a present seizure should be made of the vessel and all other things belonging to them as pirates' goods; that the men should be committed to the next gaol, and tried the next admiralty session, which should be held with all convenient speed; that in the meantime all the company of the vessel should be examined what wrongs have been done by them and their captain, not only in this voyage, but any other voyage heretofore, and this not for want of further evidence, for what need of further evidence if Polkinhorne's relation be true. Only this I add, that I should much marvel at this insolent misdemeanour if I did not guess the causes of their encouragement to be the strange dismissal formerly of such companions in those parts, and perhaps without your special care the like may be done to these offenders. 30. Sec. Coke to Edward Viscount Conway and Killultagh, on board the Triumph, in the Downs. The Prince Elector and his brother going hence on Monday will inform you in what concerns them, and how the treaties betwixt his Majesty and the French are now resolved on. The next business is to invite the States and the Swedes and the King of Denmark into this treaty. We have already despatched instructions to our agents to perform this office, and the French will do the like. If the Hollanders now trouble us with debates about the fishing on our sea pretences, they will stand in their own light. I presume better things of their wisdom, and that they will take the opportunity to engage their particular in the public that they may advance their own in the common cause. We shall now write every day, and therefore I crave pardon for brevity. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

32. Capt. George Bagg to his brother Sir James Bagg. My last was by Capt. Stradling's packet. I expect your order touching that advice. The ship, by the enclosed warrant from Capt. Stradling, I have brought in and taken an inventory; I have given the charge of it to Mr. Deane. We have put all things underdecks, and anailed the hatches fast, and put a soldier aboard with the Frenchman that was taken in her, and one in behalf of the Dunkirker. According to what you advise it shall be followed. I know it is very safe, and when it is to be delivered up that there will not be wanting the value of sixpence. 35. Petition of Thomas Bowyer, eldest son of Sir Thomas Bowyer, to the King. Petitioner's father bears the honour of a baronet, which is descendible to petitioner, and for its maintenance the lands of his father ought of right also to descend to petitioner. So it is, that his father has taken so great displeasure against him for taking a wife that had but a small portion (although a gentlewoman of birth equal to petitioner, for virtue and all other endowments without exception, a near neighbour well known unto his father, and before petitioner's marriage very well commended by his father), that he will not allow petitioner any maintenance nor endure to see him, albeit petitioner has endeavoured all possible ways to entreat him to resume his love and favour. And whereas divers of his father's lands are settled upon petitioner, he has of late divested him thereof, and goes about utterly to disinherit him and to settle his whole estate upon petitioner's younger and only brother; and further to depress petitioner, has caused certain bonds wherein petitioner stands engaged for his brother and some others, more than for his own debt, to be put in suit against him, so that he dare not go abroad to seek relief. In consideration whereof, and for that petitioner and his heir male (if God send him a son, his wife being big with child), cannot be deprived of his father's dignity, but by this means shall inherit no part of his estate, which may in some sort be a dishonour to his Majesty, from whom that honour is derived, petitioner prays directions to the Council, to use such powerful persuasions with his father that he may receive petitioner again into favour and not disinherit him of his lands, being 1,200*l*. Underwritten,

35. II. *Report upon the above reference. We have had several treaties with Sir Thomas Bowyer. He alleges great debts that lie upon his own estate, which he hoped to have freed by his son's marriage portion, but his son marrying without his consent, and but with a small portion, he is frustrated in his expectation. Yet we see that, considering his son's estate was so little, though his wife's portion was but 400*l*., she being of good parentage, the match was not very unequal. For any debts the son is engaged for the father, those the father will clear, but not undertake his son's debts. For assurance of lands (though the*

For present maintenance, all we can draw from the father is the allowance of 60*l.* per annum, which though it be little, yet upon his son's deserving, we think fit to be increased, and upon the son's living savingly in the country the father will be encouraged to do it. June 24. Petition of John de la Barre, merchant, to the King. Being indebted to divers persons, and having a royal protection, petitioner has had sundry meetings with his creditors, and upon his last meeting, the major part of his creditors being present, they required petitioner to deliver up his whole estate to them, and to rely upon their clemency what they would freely give towards the maintenance of petitioner, his wife and five children, which petitioner condescended unto. Thereupon four feoffees were nominated by the creditors, and since the major part have underwrit to an agreement; but some of the creditors refuse to underwrite the said agreement. Prays a reference to some of the Council to take such order for petitioner's relief, and the good of all the creditors, as shall stand fit in equity, and till then that the creditors forbear to molest petitioner. June 25. 40. Order of the King in Council. Robert Smith and Leonard Stockdale were this day heard concerning abuses committed by the Company of Starchmakers of London, to the prejudice of his Majesty in point of revenue, and the detriment of the public, especially in converting into white starch, as is alleged, 100 quarters a week of wheat and wheat meal in London alone, and in combining to enhance the price of starch, and selling the same at double the price limited by their patent. Divers of the company being present, did not make any such answer thereunto as gave the Board satisfaction. It was ordered that the offer made by Smith and Stockdale, of 3,000*l.* per annum to his Majesty upon the said commodity without increasing the price, should be considered by the Lord Treasurer and Lord Cottington, who were to report to his Majesty; and as to the abuses of the company it was recommended to the Attorney-General to proceed by information in the Star Chamber. June 25. 41. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Lords of the Admiralty. By enclosed transcript of letter from Capt. Stradling has proceeded rather from ignorance of his Majesty's treaties with his friends and allies than otherwise, which plead his pardon. Seeing the vessel is as yet in safe custody at Plymouth, you may do therein as shall seem most expedient. As for the captain, I have written to him, and have given him such caution for the future that he will no more run into any further mistake of that kind. [Damaged by damp. 1 p.] Enclosed,

Petition of George Fotherby, curate of Stowe St. Mary's, co. Lincoln, to the King. The parish aforesaid is very large, consisting of four towns, and the parsonage worth 200*l.* per annum, whereof 100*l.* is received by Sir Edward Hussey, he paying thereout unto [Edward] Simpson, D.D. and prebend of Carrington-cum-Stowe, 40*l.* per annum, the residue belonging to the parsonage of Stowe, and George Stow pays out thereof 20*l.* per annum to [Trimbledon] Holden, prebend of Stowe; out of which yearly revenues of 200*l.* Sir Edward Hussey, Dr. Simpson, Mr. Holden, and Mr. Stow allow amongst them to petitioner only 10*l.* per annum, save that Mr. Stow has promised to allow petitioner, in augmentation of his means, five marks per annum during Mr. Stow's life. Petitioner taking great pains in preaching, saying service, ministering the communion to near 500, and continually attending on the duties thereof, is noways able to subsist by the said means. Prays a reference to Archbishop Laud and the Lord Keeper, giving them power to call the other persons in the petition mentioned before them, and to take order for enlarging petitioner's means. Petition of Theophilus Earl of Suffolk to the same. Your Majesty heretofore gave warrant to the justices of the Common Pleas to permit James Lord [Howard de] Walden, son and heir apparent of petitioner, to suffer a recovery of certain lands, but the same was not effectual as to the lands in a schedule annexed. Petitioner, and Lady Elizabeth his late wife, also conveyed to Sir William Whitmore certain other manors, which are since grown to be of greater value than they were at the time of the assurance. Sir William being willing that petitioner should make the most benefit of the said lands, petitioner has provided chapmen, but cannot make a perfect assurance unless James Lord [Howard de] Walden suffer a recovery, he being only 17 years of age. 44. Sir Thomas Roe to Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia. Two days have brought out resolutions far beyond our hopes. I will not relate in this, but with joy write that I am now assured it will not rest upon his Majesty that a war for the restitution of the Prince Elector will not force that which neither justice nor reason could obtain. I have seen the grounds, and more cannot be done on the part of a brother, nor could any prince have a more auspicious despatch, with more honour, or more kindness, or more universal love. There only rests, for upon that pole does all the business as far as it is depend, that the Swedes and States may be engaged in the treaty; for without it all will vanish, as your Majesty will see. For the States, I have no cause to doubt; for much will not be expected of them as auxiliaries but as diverters, which their own war will do, which they must make for themselves; but by entering into this league, much they shall be advantaged. First, the question of the fishing will be suspended; their coasts and trade will be guarded; the seas secured; their charge eased; supplies to their enemies and from Spain intercepted; a war in the Indies, the root of all evil, established; and, which is above all, they shall disperse all jealousy, and oblige his Majesty for their own good; so that I suppose it will not be difficult to persuade them to so many advantages. But it will not be so easy with the Swedes, who have their peace in their own power, and whatsoever we conceive of them here, your Majesty will find they will be very supercilious and stiff, and if they be not sought in a handsome way, and with much art, they will make dainty; and, to speak truth, reason is of their side in that part. Therefore your Majesty may please to apply your wisdom both towards his Majesty that we lose not by miscarriage what we have sought with a year's negotiation; and if we shall fail in somewhat, that it may be supplied from Holland by the readiness of the States, which will be to them both an encouragement and example. I have this day despatched my little credit and engaged it to the Chancellor Oxenstiern, and used all the conjurations of my rhetoric, and advised him in high language of our resolutions; but though this may blow a coal, it will not make a fire: it must be authentic and solemn matter from England. Whatsoever has been in my power to serve the Prince while he was here I have done; whatsoever I shall be able to do with my life and fortune, I will never shrink to do. 46. Petition of Paris Vandue, printer, to Archbishop Laud. About a year and a half since, petitioner presented a petition, having been an ancient workman in the King's printing house, whereto you gave reference to Robert Young, one of the partners thereof (see Vol. cccxvi., No. 99), howbeit, by reason of the said petition, Young has withstood petitioner from his employments, alleging that your Grace had referred the disposure thereof to Sir John Lambe. Petitioner has solicited Sir John, who not knowing of any such matter, yet sent to them divers times, whom they promised to see petitioner set on work, yet all their promises turned to delusions. Petitioner is far stricken in years, and forced through penury to make his petition a kind of complaint. Beseeches letters to Sir John Lambe with directions to see him set on work. The said vicarage is not worth above 40 marks per annum, and the impropriation worth above 200*l.* a year, and John Tigh, the impropriator, detains from petitioner the churchyard. Petitioner married with Joan Leech, only daughter of Robert Leech, sometime a fellow of St. John's College, Oxford; and for that she was left not many weeks old at her death and poor, and his means by the said vicarage being so small, he is unable to maintain himself, his wife, and children. Petitioner last term presented a petition for more speedy expediting several suits for tithes, which had depended three years in the Court of Arches, with John Brown, Justinian Simms, and Thomas Larcomb, which petition was referred to Sir John Lambe, and by him ordered. Defendants have neglected your Grace's desire and Sir John's directions, having protracted out all last term, the vacation, and this term, without any proofs of such matter of defence as they pretended. Petitioner being debarred of his tithes, has expended almost 200*l.* in suits, defendants having no manner of pretence for immunity from payment, but endeavouring to wear out petitioner, having combined themselves with others, and entered into covenant to defend one another by joining their moneys together against petitioner. The King ordered that William Coryton, Vice-Warden of the Stannaries and Deputy Steward of the Duchy, then imprisoned by the said judges, should be set at liberty, and also all persons in durance by warrant from the Lord Warden occasioned by the said cause, but that those officers who arrested the officers of the Court of King's Bench should be examined by the Council touching any miscarriage in the execution of the Earl's warrant in that behalf; and that Connock's suit, commenced against the Vice-Warden for false imprisonment, be withdrawn; and that all fines imposed in the King's Bench upon any persons for arresting Connock be discharged, Connock entering into a bond to perform such order as should be made by his Majesty on hearing the cause. - June 27. Petition of Lancelot Branxton, Surveyor of the Bridge at Berwick-upon-Tweed, to the King. His Majesty's father having bestowed great sums of money upon building a fair stone bridge of 15 arches at Berwick, granted to petitioner, beside the yearly charge of reparation, a pension during his life of 40*l.* per annum for his daily attendance in continual repairing the bridge. Petitioner, being tied to a constant residence at Berwick, has not been able to attend the Exchequer for payment of his pension, being all the means he and his family have to live on, so that he has not in 16 years received one penny thereof, whereby he has been reduced to extreme misery, and been forced to contract great debts, as also for want of timely reparation the bridge is in great danger of ruin. It is a usual practice in divers places of the kingdom that all goods and carriages that pass over bridges pay toll or duty for pontage. which order, if it were established at that bridge, there might be collected yearly a sufficient sum to defray the charge of reparation, as also the pension allowed to petitioner. Since which time the petitioner, having been hindered from prosecuting the said composition by reason of sickness, is informed that Sir Francis Kynaston and Edward Savage have got knowledge thereof, and have made suit to his Majesty for a lease of the said lands, and are in the way to obtain the same, and so likely to reap the benefit of petitioner's service to your Majesty and his costs expended therein. Beseeches a reference for examination, to the end that if it appears that petitioner had the precedency and was at the charge, that then your Majesty will grant him a lease, and in the meantime to stay the grant to Sir Francis Kynaston and Mr. Savage. Petitioner thereupon petitioned the Lords to command the officers of the Trinity House to view the said service that yet remained in their hands, which they did, certifying that they could not approve thereof. Petitioner was thereupon commanded to attend the Attorney-General, who filed a bill in the Star Chamber, which is now ready for hearing. obliged to join with his other friends, and try if in their company he may have better fortune to obtain his so just demands for the Prince Elector, which have so much disquieted the world already, and without an honourable end of which, we hope the affairs of the House of Austria will not be settled. As their ambitions and dominions are vast, so is the enemy contracted against them, and their pieces lying so divided, and to be nourished from so remote parts, may let them see that the King is as much to be sought by them as they by him, and that experience of his power may gain that value in the world which their pride desires to eclipse, and that our nation shall hold that ancient and just attribute, the balance. June 27. 57. Petition of the inhabitants of Clungunford, Salop, to Archbishop Laud. Clungunford is a spacious parish, having many old inhabitants therein, where there has been an ancient custom that at the feast of Easter, and upon Easter day, after evening prayer, the parson of the parish always provided a church-feast, in the church, of bread and cheese and ale or beer, for refreshing those ancient people that repaired thither to evening prayer, having received the sacrament the same day in the morning, and also for the relief of divers poor people of the parish. About 50 years since it was ordered by the then Archbishop of Canterbury that this feast should be kept in the parsonage house, where it has been ever since kept till Easter last; but then Samuel Barkeley, who is rector at present, detained the same from the inhabitants, and will not let them have their ancient custom, neither in the church or parsonage house. Their suit is that you will restore this ancient custom, and settle it again in the parsonage house. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

June 28. 61. Commissioners for Revenues of the King as Prince of Wales
His Majesty's Commission House, Fleet Street, London. to Francis Bassett. All wrecks of sea within the Duchy of Cornwall belong to the Prince. We are informed that you, as Vice-Admiral of the north parts of Cornwall, have taken up divers barrels of butter, sack, wool, and other goods wrecked within the said Duchy. We require you to deliver all such goods to Thomas Gewen, havenor of the said Duchy, to the end they may be accounted for to his Majesty in right of the Duchy, or otherwise that you appear before us at the Commission House in Fleet Street, the 3rd November next, to show by what right you take up the said wrecks. [Copy. 1 p.]

June 28. 62. Francis Lord Dunsmore to Nicholas. Complaint has been Apseourt. made to the Council that I have not paid the 100*l.* I subscribed to adventure in the fishing business. Coming accidentally where Mr. Savage was, who had a book that divers had subscribed unto, I subscribed to adventure 100*l.* with the last Earl of Pembroke, and I accordingly provided it, but hearing nothing of it ever since, and being forced to pay great sums for other men's debts, I have disbursed it. I hope the Lords will not enforce me to borrow it. [Seal with arms. ½ p.]

June 28. 63. Dennis Fleming to the same. Since my return from the Bath Camberwell. I have understood that the Lords have an intention to appoint some [Camberwell.] person to execute my place, alleging my imbecility. I was so careful that I took the "vacants" time that might be for my attendance to make my journey, hoping to recover my health, and left able ministers behind me that might perform such duties as concerned my particular, which was carefully done; and I thank God I have received some benefit by the Bath, and am still able to do his Majesty good service. I beseech you, if any such thing be in agitation, to plead for me, that no man may be brought over my head without my consent, being able of myself to perform my duty. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

The Triumph, in the Downs. I might get a little time to give you thanks for your letter of the 26th, Mr. Comptroller sent it me before the Prince's coming. I presently sent for the captain that had the letters of marque against the Spaniard, and having told him how much his Majesty disliked what he had done, gave him order to desist and to repair to

June 28. 65. Petition of Nicholas Oakes, printer, to Archbishop Laud. Petitioner has for 30 years been a master printer. Being now aged, he is willing to turn over all the title which he has therein to his son, John Oakes, whom he has brought up in the said profession, being now aged 30 years. Prays his Grace to allow the said transfer until further order, and the rather because his son is to pay Mary Kemp, his sister, 50*l.* [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

June 28. 67. Estimate for building a great storehouse for cordage near the Chatham. Rope-house at Chatham; as also a brick wall to enclose the sail-yard, with other works. Total, 2,074*l.* 11*s.* 4*d.* [Copy. The cost is stated of every particular item. 3 pp.]

June 28. 68. Isaac Pennington to his cousin Sir John Pennington. Letter
London. begun this day, but not concluded until the 5th July. Gives an account of various payments made for Sir John Pennington. There had been an impediment about a jointure which Dr. Berisford was to make, but all was settled, and the writer's cousin Fitch had promised to send him in the writings. In order to complete the matter the writer had been obliged to take 600*l.* out of a sum of 3,000*l.* left in his hands by Sir John. [Seal with arms. 1 p.] Enclosed,

71. William Earl of Newcastle, Lord Lieutenant of co. Nottingham, to the Council. I enclose a letter lately received from my deputy lieutenants. You may perceive that the musters cannot this year be taken without great danger to the whole country. I think it fit to present the same, being ready to forbear or proceed, as you shall command. 71. I. Deputy Lieutenants of co. Nottingham (among them Sir Thomas Hutehinson) to William Earl of Newcastle. Conceive it very dangerous to have either mustering or training this year, by reason the plague is known to be in many places in that shire and in the next confines of the shires adjacent. Mansfield, 27th June 1637. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

72. Petition of inhabitants of Sheriff Hales, co. Stafford, to the same. In Hilary term last, they petitioned for relief concerning the assessment of ship-money in co. Salop, whereupon the Lords directed letters of 12th February to Sir Paul Harris, the sheriff, that if the places mentioned had in other assessments been usually taxed with the hundred of Cuttleston, co. Stafford, he should forbear to assess them in the hundred of Bradford, co. Salop. Petitioners have three times waited upon the sheriff, who refuses to examine their witnesses. Not being able to contest with the sheriff, he being sore bent against them, and threatening to commit them to prison whensoever he shall apprehend them in co. Salop, they pray the Lords for their relief, being assessed both in Stafford and Salop. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

73. Sir Henry Marten to the Lords of the Admiralty. I received a reference on the petition of Rice Thomas, late gunner of the Tenth Whelp, concerning which there was sent me an information exhibited to the Council against Robert Walsingham, William Bishop, and the said Rice Thomas, gunners of three of his Majesty's ships, for powder extraordinary expended; and that which concerned Rice Thomas was in these words:—"Rice Thomas can give no account for nine barrels which he should have delivered in charge to John Brooking, the succeeding gunner;" and under the said information was written that the Lords sent the same to me to cause a proceeding to be had against the said delinquents; dated Whitehall, 28th February 1635-6. Whereupon I called a session, and requested the Officers of the Ordnance to send me some evidence, but they neither came nor sent any evidence, so that I could not proceed as directed; and this petitioner, not being able to give security for his forthcoming, has remained ever since in prison, and is now grown to that misery, that he is ready to be eaten up by lice; wherefore I conceive the Lords may hold him sufficiently punished, and give order for his enlargement. 74. Kenrick Edisbury to Nicholas. I send letter from the purveyor of timber for the Navy, in Hants, complaining of Robert Rigge, of Fareham, for disturbing the King's service. We have written to Rigge, but he slights it. If the Lords should send Smyth, the messenger, for him, that business would be quieted. He troubles the widow West, being a poor woman, for letting a yard to lay the King's timber in. I myself agreed with the woman. He depends on favour at Court by means of a son-in-law of his, that is, the King's servant; I think, a huntsman. This Rigge has undertaken the land carriage of the Earl of Southampton's timber from the woods to the waterside, and causes the carters to lay it down far from the place of landing, not respecting the purveyor's order. I meant to be at Portsmouth ere this to set the summer business in order, but Sir William Russell is in that respect penny-wise to save my travelling charges. The Palsgrave was to see the Navy at Chatham, but only on board the Prince. He was ashore to see the magazine, which is so full that it gave great content to the Earl of Arundel, Mr. Comptroller, the Earl of Warwick, and the rest "of our English." [1 p.]
Enclosed,

74. I. James Robins to Kenrick Edisbury. I received warrant for loading the Black George with timber, to be carried to Chatham. I thought to have come to you had not this warrant come, for Robert Rigge, of Fareham, has served the widow West and myself with a privy seal, about the yard at Busselden [Bursledon], which is hired for his Majesty's service. What he has against us I know not, but am daily too great a witness of his disturbing me in the King's service, laying timber where he pleases, where it will be great charge to his Majesty to draw to the waterside, and despising all the orders I give. I desire to go quietly about his Majesty's service, which will not be unless the Lords take order with Rigge. He has not stuek to abuse the Lords with unseemly speeches. We heard of your coming down, which I desire to set things in order. Every one does what seems good to himself, and there is a charge of labourers which might be forborne. Sherbrooke says he has order to keep them in spite of me, but I know it is a needless charge; therefore, if the master shipwright come not down, I pray you to send down warrant for ordering things. Our wharves are fallen to decay. I entreat your favour to the bearer William Rawlins, a house carpenter, to be employed in that service. Gosport, 26th June 1637." [1 p.]

76. News-letter of C. Rossingham. The subjects treated of are,—
 1. The difference between the Court of King's Bench and the Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, as Lord Warden of the Stannaries, already dealt with in the calendar under date of June 27, No. 51.
 2. The seizure of Mr. St. John's papers, which is stated to have been with the view of discovering evidence that he drew Mr. Burton's answer in the Star Chamber, but without success. The papers relating to Lord Saye's action for trial of the legality of ship-money are said to have been showed by him to Sir William Becher and then sealed up, and were returned to him with the seals unbroken.
 3. The nature of Lord Saye's legal proceedings is fully explained. The constable who distrained upon him for ship-money pleaded the King's writ in justification. Lord Saye demurred that the writ was not a sufficient warrant.
 4. The publication of Archbishop Laud's speech on the condemnation of Bastwick, Burton, and Prynne, which "is bought up so fast as they are not to be gotten."
 5. Lord Mountnorris at Court, and kissed the King's hand. He would put into the Star Chamber his answer to the Lord Deputy's bill against him, Sir Pierce Crosby, and others.
 6. Prosecution of the malting business, and answer given by the King to the Norfolk men.
 7. Further hearing of the Bishop of Lincoln's cause in the Star Chamber. "There is no question the bishop has been too busy in tampering with witnesses. . . . The King's counsel produced a paper of instructions which the bishop was charged to have given to the defendants to learn by it how to answer to the interrogatories. It was called the Bishop's Catechism."
 8. Degradation of Mr. Burton. The three delinquents should have stood in the pillory this Thursday, but it has been put off till the day after.
 9. I hear my Lord Marshal and my Lord of Holland requested the King that, since there was so little hope to recover the palatinate by treaties, liberty might be given to send out ships to annoy the Spaniards in the West Indies. It is said the King so well approved of this motion, as he promised to adventure 16 of his own ships in any design that should tend that way.
 10. Ratification of the previous "common report of the town" in the case between the King's Bench and the Lord Chamberlain, and statement of the result as before calendared.
 11. News from the Low Countries and Germany. Movements of the armies of the Prince of Orange, the French, and the Spaniards. [Endorsed, "C. Rossingham." 4 pp.]

77. Note of the weekly proportions set on the saltpetremen for seven years. They are the same as those mentioned in the second letter of the Officers of Ordnance, dated the 27th instant, No. 55. Flint and the neighbouring counties, to bring in 2 cwt. weekly, were still left unappointed. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

- June 29. 78. Note of various small sums of ship-money paid to Sir Thomas Fanshaw, the King's remembrancer of the Exchequer, from cos. Bedford, Buckingham, Dorset, Essex, Gloucester, Hertford, Huntingdon, Hants, and Warwick, and which are ready to be paid to Sir William Russell. Total, 141*l.* 14*s.* 5*d.* [1 p.]
- June 29. 79. Receipt of Sir William Russell for 6,650*l.* paid by John Sampson on behalf of Sir George Sandys, sheriff of Kent, in part of 8,000*l.* charged upon that county by writ of 12th August last. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]
- June 29. 80. Similar receipt for 3,000*l.* paid by George Price on behalf of Sir Anthony Vincent, sheriff of Surrey, in part of 3,500*l.* charged upon that county by writ of 12th August. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]
- June 30. 81. The Council to the Messengers of the Chamber. His Majesty, Whitehall. by letters patent of the 12th May 1636, having given power to the company of brick and tile makers of Westminster for well ordering their trade within London and Westminster, we are informed that divers persons of that trade have combined to oppose the said government. We authorize you to repair to such places and persons as you shall be directed by the master of the company, and forthwith to apprehend all such offenders, and keep them in custody until they shall conform to the government of the company, or give security to appear before us. [1 p.]
- June 30. 82. Sir Henry Marten to [the Lords of the Admiralty]. According to their letters of 13th May last, for examining some differences between the company of shipwrights and divers refractory persons of that company, and some others of the same profession within the limit of the charter granted to the company, upon hearing the charge of the company and the several answers, I set down such order as I conceived fitting for restraint of disobedience, which they have assented unto and performed. But upon hearing Thomas Mayden and William Hooke, shipwrights, living near Redrith, who appeared before me, with the recorder of London, their counsel, their defence was that they were members of an ancient brotherhood in London, and therefore not subject to this society. I gave order that they should on either side draw their case in writing, which is done accordingly; and herewith I send it, because I perceive that these London shipwrights, being supported by the countenance of the city, will by no means agree (whatsoever I shall say or do) to come under the King's charter and government; and to that purpose are resolved to oppose themselves by further proceedings at law. [1 p.]
- June 30. 83. Petition of John Bradley, constable of North Muskham, co. Nottingham, to the Council. Petitioner being charged to levy of Dorothy Caldwell 50 shillings ship-money, after many denials, required Randall Squire, an inhabitant of that parish, to aid petitioner in taking a distress. Squire was at first willing to do so, but being dissuaded by John Coude, an attorney-at-law, refused. Whereupon petitioner alone took a distress, which by Coude was violently rescued ; and the rest of the inhabitants, by Coude dissuaded, have refused to pay ; for which misdemeanour petitioner heretofore petitioned the Board, and had a letter to the sheriff for his relief, whereof Coude having notice, in open market at Newark, endeavoured to assault petitioner ; but being prevented, broke out into these words : —“ Sirrah ! you have preferred a petition against me to the Council table, but I will make you glad to wait my leisure there,” as by the annexed affidavit appears. Prays that Coude may come before them to answer the premises. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Annexed,

June 30. 84. Notes by Sec. Windebank of the proceedings in the Star Chamber. Chamber in the case of Bishop Williams, of Lincoln, this being the fourth day of the hearing. The notes contain evidence applicable to charges not before dealt with, and especially an abstract of the evidence of Sir William Becher respecting the secret evidence against the Bishop, taken at the Council table and placed under seal in the Council chest, having been by some means or other communicated to the bishop. When found the seal of the packet had been broken open. [$6\frac{1}{2}$ pp.]

[June 30 ?] 85. Case, with the separate opinions thereon of Sir Edward Littleton, Solicitor-General, and Edward Trotman. The case was that A. being seized in fee of lands which ought to pay tithes to the impropriator, the impropriator released to A. and his heirs all suits which he or his heirs might have for recovery of the said tithes. The question was what was the legal effect of the release upon the tithes. The opinions were that it extinguished them. [1 p.] Annexed,

85. I. Copy of the release above mentioned. It was dated 8th December 1630, from Sir Henry Long, of Draycot, Wilts, to John Reade, of Kington St. Michael, and applied to tithes arising out of the suppressed site or mansion house of the nunnery of Kington aforesaid, and all lands belonging thereto, then the inheritance of John Reade. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

June 30. 86. Another copy of the release above mentioned, with the separate opinions of [Edward] Henden and Walter Norborne thereon. They were of opinion that such a release could not extinguish the tithes, nor discharge the lands of the payment thereof. [$1\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Petition of Sir Richard Wolseley to the King. The late King, on the recommendation of the late Duke of Buckingham, on the 7th April 1608, instituted an office in the Court of Chancery for engrossing letters patent, and made Sir Richard Young and Sir Robert Pye clerks thereof, with power to take such fees as had formerly been taken for such engrossing, which office they held for seven years and took their fees accordingly. In the first year of the present reign, upon their surrender, petitioner and Owen Wynne were admitted to the same office, and obtained his Majesty's grant, and the interest of the same office is now in petitioner and Richard Weston. Petitioner has taken only such fees as were taken by his predecessors, but has been questioned by the Commissioners for exacted fees as to their legality. Prays reference to settle the fees

89. Petition of Charles Cockayne, late Sheriff of co. Northampton, to the Council. The now sheriff by your directions has given authority to petitioner and his predecessor, Sir John Dryden, for collecting the arrears of ship-money. Sir John Dryden supposes himself to be freed from that service, without whose aid petitioner is unable to effect the service, most of the arrears being in the west division, where he lives, and remote from petitioner. The sheriff's authority also is only to petitioner and his predecessor, and not to their bailiffs and deputies, wherefore petitioner cannot procure assistance, and is disabled to make a certificate of those that forbear to pay. Prays further directions. [1 p.]

90. Petition of his Majesty's patentees the Corporation of Salt-makers of South and North Shields to the same. A petition was of late exhibited to the Board by the corporation of Great Yarmouth, informing that the patentees brought in very little salt to that town, and that at great prices, and that the sickness is so at Newcastle and the Shields that few or none dare adventure to fetch salt there, and thereupon they desired an order for importation of foreign salt. The patentees present that they are not tied to carry salt to any port, but to deliver it at their works at prices limited in their charter; yet seeing that those of Yarmouth wilfully neglected the fetching of salt, the patentees sent salt there, but were so ill entreated by the town, and sustained so much damage there, that they pray their grievances may be heard and reparation ordered. As to fear of the sickness, Yarmouth has been supplied with coals from the Shields and from the very town of Newcastle where the sickness has most been, and therefore no cause to fear fetching salt more than coals; nor have the shipping of other ports forborne to fetch salt. Petitioners therefore hope the Lords will conceive the desire to import foreign salt unfit to be granted. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

91. Petition of Dorothy Frobisher, wife of William Frobisher, cooper, to the Lords of the Admiralty. Petitioner's husband was pressed into his Majesty's service, as has been declared many times, and his adversary, Thomas Ryley, is so cruel that he will use all extremity to keep him in prison. Prays his discharge. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

92. Petition of Thomas Ryley to the same. Petitioner is sent for by warrant for arresting Frobisher, who is now in his Majesty's service. 93. Petition of Nicholas Goldsborough, messenger of the Chamber, to the Lords of the Admiralty. Petitioner being employed to bring in John Moore and Richard Wyatt, both of Tenby, 200 miles from London, at his coming thither understood that Wyatt, having received notice of the warrant, was gone to Bristol, and thence to London, and that Moore refused to speak to petitioner, being in danger of an attachment about a ship. Ultimately by intervention of the mayor he saw Moore, but he not being in perfect health refused to give bond to go to London on his recovery, for that Wyatt, his son-in-law, was already gone thither to end the business. Prays that Wyatt, who is now in custody, may pay fees for his father-in-law and himself. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

June.

94. Petition of Richard Wyatt to the same. A suit was commenced against petitioner in the Court of Admiralty, for 1,000*l.*, in the name of John le Drue, by the means of Hugh Rochfort, an Irishman, an utter enemy of petitioner. Petitioner came to London, appeared in the Court of Admiralty, and gave sureties to answer the complaint. In the meantime Rochfort petitioned the Lords and procured a messenger to be sent for petitioner, who knew nothing thereof until ten days after his coming to London. He then willingly made his appearance before the Lords, who referred the matter to the Judge of the Admiralty and dismissed petitioner. Before Sir Henry Marten, le Drue has denied that the suit and petition were with his privity, wherefore petitioner prays to be freed from the messenger as concerning his fee. [$\frac{4}{5}$ p.]

Commissioners for Saltpetre and Gunpowder to each of the Lord Lieutenants of the several counties of England. His Majesty calling to mind how necessary it is (especially in these stirring times) that there should be a fit proportion of gunpowder in store in every county, had commanded that order should be given accordingly. We therefore require you to take order that the magazine of that county be replenished with a competent proportion of gunpowder. You are to cause the trained bands to exercise their arms in parts where the infection of the plague is not, and by the 1st of November to send to this Board an account what powder and shot shall be then remaining in the store of that county. Petitioner paid the money to the muster-master, although he is not yet paid some part of it, which notwithstanding petitioner is brought to London by a messenger, and has attended 12 days, and has paid 4*l.* to the messenger for his fees already. VOL. CCCLXII.

of certain scurrilous pamphlets suppressed by authority, and where-withal they essayed to avert the mind of petitioner from the discipline of our Church of England, jeering and sporting themselves whenever anything was read which inveighed against the jurisdiction episcopal, and also for his unalterable constancy in maintaining the discipline of our Church with her tithes, rights, and honorary [offerings?] which they keep from him, has had almost ever since his coming amongst them most malicious combinations, producing unheard-of scandals, to petitioner's utter ruin were that true which they have suggested. After a long time of seasonable patience petitioner has now found out these malicious complotments of his pernicious adversaries by some of their own mouths, as may appear to your Grace. And further petitioner, for teaching his people the doctrine of Christian subjection to his Majesty both in respect of purse and person, has had again and again from the factions most infamous slanders passed upon him, tending to open sedition if not more, yea, and almost ready to be knocked on the head too, they not caring what they spend, or do, or say, or swear, so that they may undo petitioner. Prays the archbishop's favour for suppressing these outrages against petitioner, suffering for the Church's doctrine and discipline. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Annexed,

96. I. Notes upon the preceeding petition, setting forth the particular books, speeches, and actions complained of. The pamphlets alluded to at the commencement of the petition were "Martin Marprelate, and Browne's book, the Anabaptist." The principal slander against petitioner was that he had been so overtaken with drink as to lie swinishly "in the very channell" of the street, vomiting. After petitioner exhorted them to pay ship-money, one of the parishioners reported of petitioner that he was drunk two days together; another that he preached lies; another called him to his face a rebel and a jackanapes. One told him "proudly that he owed the King nothing." Another added "Nothing but suit and service." Petitioner replied that payment of ship-money was suit and service; to which the first objector answered before the parish that it was not. Objections were made to petitioner's exhortations, and petitioner was replied upon "in open chureh," and one Henry Jenkins, whom, with his wife, petitioner was exhorting in their own residence to obedience, came furiously upon petitioner with a great beetle and pushed him out of doors, and made his boast of it. [1 p.]

96. II. Detailed statement of the evidence by which petitioner brought home the acts complained of to Moses Cowley, Lawrence Hall, Richard Greenleaf, George Harris, Samuel Austin, Benjamin Hall, and others. [5 pp.]

97. Petition of Robert Osbolston to Archbishop Laud. In September 1635, petitioner, at the request of Samuel Balmsford, clerk, who is preacher to the English church at the Hague, entered into bond to the King with Balmsford for his appearance at Lambeth before Commissioners on the 15th October then next. On the 8th October, the Commissioners dismissed Balmsford, and licensed him to depart to his charge. In February 1636-7, notice was left at petitioner's house that if Balmsford did not make his appearance within 14 days, the bond would be forfeited and certified into the Exchequer. Petitioner has often applied to have his bond delivered up, and on the 15th June all the Doctors of the Law, Commissioners, gave their opinion that he ought to have his bond, and desired Sir John Lambe to certify your Grace so much. Petitioner prays direction to the registrar to deliver up the bond. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

June. 98. Sec. Windebank to —, sergeant at arms. To bring Sir Whitehall. John Lee before the Council, to answer to such things as shall be objected against him. [1 p.]

June. 99. [The same?] to the Keeper of Newgate. To set at liberty William Richardson, Robert Clay, and Henry Fleming, formerly committed to his custody. [Copy probably prepared for signature, but never signed. 1 p.]

[June ?] 100. Certificate of Thomas Jeninges, William Cockayn, A. Chamberlain, junr., and John Rendwick. We lately signed a petition to his Majesty to continue Mr. Witherings in the place of postmaster, in regard he informed us that some great persons near his Majesty endeavoured to get the place from him. We did not understand that the Secretaries of State were intended, for we ever believed the Secretaries to be the superiors of that office. We also believe that the office being put in possession of the Secretaries, may be as well or better managed than it now is, to secure which was the object of the petition we signed. [1 p.]

June. 101. Answer of Thomas Thornhill, saltpetremen, to the Dean of Windsor, concerning the digging for saltpetre of his pigeon-house at Knoyle, Wilts. States that at Christmas 1635, the saltpetremen coming to work in the dean's pigeon-house, warned him that brought them into the house of a great crack or flaw in one fourth part of the wall of the said house, and said to him that if it fell down in the winter by any great winds or weather of rain, they would put all upon the saltpetremen's digging. And so five months after, on the great windy night that blew down so many houses, barns, and trees in all parts of the kingdom, the one fourth part that had the flaw blew down. The dean charges Thornhill that he served Hilliard; he never did so, and scarce knew the man. Prays that he may not suffer by the dean's unjust molestation. [$1\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

[June ?] 102. Passages by Sir Robert Banaster, Sheriff of co. Northampton, concerning the proceedings for raising the ship-money in that county. This is a narrative, chronologically arranged, of all circumstances connected with the assessment of the hundreds of Rothwell and Guilsborough, which have been already calendared in previous papers, save that it here appears that the referees were unable to agree in opinion as to what should be done, and thereupon made certificates to the bishop. 103. List of fines imposed in the Court of Star Chamber from Michaelmas term 1631, to Trinity term 1637. The fines upon the Lincolnshire rioters, and the rioters in the forest of Feckenham, also those upon Sir David Foulis and Henry Foulis, James Maxwell, and Alice his wife, Sir James Bagg at the suit of Sir Anthony Pell, and the merchants who transported gold, were all respited. Lord Morley, for assaulting Sir George Theobald, was pardoned. The fines of John Elmeston (1,000*l.*), for counterfeiting the Earl of Dorset's hand; the Sheriff of Dorset (5*l.*), for not bringing in the body of John Cage; Lord Mohun (500*l.*) and Thomas Adams (200*l.*), at the suit of Sir James Bagg, for undue inquiries into his Majesty's debts; and Bastwick, Burton, and Prynne (5,000*l.* each), for publishing libels, are all indicated as standing against the defendants unliquidated. [2 pp.]

June.

104. Names of such as have not paid their assessment money to the Company of Silkmen, according to an order of the Lords of the 7th inst., and concerning whom the company crave further direction; there are 51 names (of which two have been subsequently struck out) in one list, and 26 in another. [1½ p.]

June.

105. Account of what money has been paid to the Officers of the Ordnance, on their estimates for the present year. The estimates for the 20 ships, the ships for Sallee, and to Mr. Browne for casting ordnance, amounted to 25,099*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.*; there had been paid on account 16,899*l.* 16*s.*, leaving a balance due of 8,199*l.* 19*s.* 10*d.*, with 2,830*l.* in arrear for last year's powder. [1 p.]

[June?]

106. Statement by John Sym, clerk, in explanation and vindication of himself in keeping a special religious service on Wednesday in Rogation Week. It was the day of the ordinary lecture, and on that occasion, beside the appointed service, he preached two sermons, in the forenoon and the afternoon, with prayer before and after the sermons for the cessation of the pestilence and for seasonable rain. The special cause of devotion was so arranged that all present might, if they would, have broken their fasts. He vindicates himself by the order of the Church appointing the observation of those days of Rogation, and by various extracts from the canon law. With reference to the last, he states that seeing the canon law is held to be in force in this Church, when the same is not crossed by any of our laws, he therefore supposed he might lawfully do as he had done, seeing that he knew no law to the contrary. [2 pp.]

[June?]

107. Minute of her Majesty's pleasure that certain of her servants, whose names are here stated, should pay no more than the English do, concerning the money which is to be levied upon tradesmen for their freedom, &c. Among them were Thomas de Vaux, operator [handicraftsman?]; Henry Bardon, surgeon; John Anceau, book-binder; and John Petitot, goldsmith. [½ p.]

108. Memorial for the Earl of Manchester, Lord Privy Seal, and Sec. Windebank. Recites previous proceedings at the instance of the Queen, founded upon complaints of abuses and extortions of pursuivants who had dormant warrants to search for priests, and especially a commission to Sir Henry Spiller, Sir Gregory Fenner, Lawrence Whitaker, and other justices of peace in Middlesex, to examine into such abuses, and a certificate of the commissioners, already calendared in Vol. cccxvii., No. 36, under date of 26th March 1636. The Queen having notice that the Council had committed the further examination of this business to the Earl of Manchester and Sec. Windebank, had commanded some to attend them, and present some part of the many informations upon this subject. And because the warrants procured by these pursuivants have proceeded as well from the Council, as from the High Commission, those complaints only are now presented which have been made against pursuivants holding warrants from the persons now memorialized and the rest of the Council, viz., against Francis Newton, Dale, John Gray, Griffin, Thomas Mayo, Alsop Cross, and William Birkenhead. There follows a statement principally derived from the report of the Commissioners before mentioned, but containing at any event one circumstance of more recent date, with several confirmatory papers annexed, some of which may probably have been originally attached to the certificate of the Justices of Peace. [5¼ pp.] Annexed,

108. I. Order of the Court of Common Pleas. Francis Newton, one of the pursuivants above complained of, having passed off certain persons named — Parratt, — Mullard alias James, John Smith, and Robert Mullard, who were "common bailers," as good and sufficient bail for Abraham Tooke, who was confined in the Fleet, in execution for 47l. 14s. 4d., the court sentenced all the defendants to imprisonment in the Fleet, removed Newton's name from the Roll of Attorneys, and directed that he be put over the bar of the court, condemned the two Mullards and John Smith to the pillory, and all the defendants, except Newton, to imprisonment until they paid the plaintiff's damages in certain shares 25th April 1630. [1¼ p.]

108. II. Copy of the preceding. [1½ p.]

108. III. Statement of Thomas Jeninges, that Newton, Dale, and others procured an affidavit to be made that Jeninges was a priest. He gave a woman 5s. for making the affidavit, and said that if he could hit Jeninges right, he would not take 2,000l. for his share.

108. IV. Copy order of the Council on a complaint of Mary Timperley against Walter Powell and Richard Wainwright, two others of the said messengers. The Lords finding that they had highly abused the authority of the Board, committed them to the Marshalsea, took from them their warrants, and declared them incapable of serving his Majesty or the Lords. Whitehall, 10th June 1631. [1¼ p.]

June. 109. Copy of the preceding memorial, but without any of the annexed papers. [4½ pp.]

June. 110. Petition of Francis Smith to Sec. Windebank. Recites that there was a petition presented by the Queen to his Majesty in the name of the afflicted recusants, with the subsequent inquiry and certificate of the justices of Middlesex. Petitioner being employed to discover to the said justices the disorders of the messengers, Newton and Gray indicted petitioner in London, but the bill was thrown out, for that they had procured one Mayo, a pursuivant, who was condemned to lose his ears for perjury, to swear against petitioner. They thereupon indicted petitioner in the King's Bench, where Mayo was not known, and sued petitioner thereupon to outlawry, because he refused to give them 5*l*. Upon that outlawry they have procured a warrant from Sec. Coke to apprehend petitioner, in order to hinder him at this time in the discovery of their abuses. Beseeches Windebank to move Sec. Coke not to question petitioner for his profession of the Catholic religion, he having already given security of 200*l*. to appear before the Council on notice left at Dr. Turner's house in St. Lawrence Lane. Petitioner is almost 80 years of age, and visited with many infirmities. [1 p.]

[June ?]

111. Notes by Sir John Lambe of statements made to him by Dr. Spicer of words uttered by Bishop Williams, of Lincoln, of his determination to grind Sir John Lambe to powder, and his refusal to give Dr. Spicer a lease because he would not swear against Lambe; also of similar speeches against Dr. Sibthorpe and others, and of communications between Dr. Spicer and Kilvert, whom he met at a play. Kilvert professed to be able to reveal "such speeches" spoken at Bugden. Dr. Grant, he said, was a most perfidious man, and had spoken "such things" against the King—no treason, but taxing words. Of "my lord" he said that there was never a true word came out of his mouth. [These notes relate to speeches uttered in 1632 and 1633. 1½ p.]

[June ?]

112. Statement of Bishop Williams, of Lincoln, impeaching the credit of Kilvert, who had been informed against for perjury, and was living in adultery "under my Lord's Grace's nose;" also asserting, in answer to the accusation that he and his servant Walker combined 8 years ago with Locke (dead long ago) to get papers out of a chest in the Council chamber, that he never spake with Locke after Lord Bristol's return from Spain, and that Walker did not serve him until many years after; with remarks on some of the lesser charges against the bishop. [1½ p.]

[June ?]

113. Another similar paper, in which the same bishop contends that the dismissal of former bills against him was a full pardon of all things contained in them, and that having denied the charges against himself upon oath, and no disservice in word or deed ever proved, if there be no confidence placed in his protestations, it is such a bottomless gulf of misfortune as he knows not how to fathom, but must leave to the Searcher of all Hearts to remedy in his good time. Being assured for all that in his own conscience, that, excepting his unwillingness to be thrust out of his master's service, and his sins to Godward, he is as free from any offence or unworthiness against his King, or any person of place in church or commonwealth, as any bishop that has lived in England these 100 years. [This and the preceding paper (if not of an earlier date) were probably prepared for the consideration of his friends or the judges of the Court of Star Chamber during the hearing of his cause. 1 p.]

[June?] 114. Petition of Sir Francis Popham to Archbishop Laud. Petitioner is undoubted patron of the rectory of Buckland St. Mary, Somerset, and his predecessors presented to the said church until March 1636, when the same being void, the Bishop of Bath and Wells collated William Pierce his son, and precluded the right of petitioner and his clerk, which tends to the prejudice of petitioner and all temporal patrons, the bishop having no other title but that his predecessor once collated by lapse jure devoluto. Prays the archbishop to signify to the bishop that he may yield petitioner his right by admitting his clerk, and if he pretend right to the patronage, that it may be referred to any of the judges to decide or report to the archbishop, and if the bishop shall not embrace this fair proposal, that petitioner may proceed to the trial of his title, he being tender to contest with a reverend prelate. 2. Notes by Nicholas of business to be transacted by the Lords of the Admiralty. Settle proportions to be assigned to each saltpetremans, whereof the Master of the Ordnance has a list. Consider Thornhill's answer to the Dean of Windsor. Peruse letter from Sir Henry Marten touching Rice Thomas, a gunner in prison; ["discha[rge"], afterwards added]. Consider whether it be fit to call in some of the fleet for ease of his Majesty's charge, which will otherwise exceed the sum paid for shipping. Also a complaint made by Mr. Edisbury against Robert Rigge, of Fareham. There attends the Lords in custody one Jones, a gunner, upon the complaint of John Crofts. Resolve what shall be done with William Richardson, saltpetremans, who has failed to bring in his proportion of saltpetre. [Margin : "disch[arge]."] Consider Mr. Wyan's account and petition. Peruse report of Commissioners appointed to examine Vice-Admirals' accounts touching deputies to be appointed by Vice-Admirals. [1 p.]

[July 1.]

4. Petition of Anthony Kirle to the Lords of the Admiralty. Petitioner has for some years past received at Hull saltpetre from Richardson, the saltpetre maker of Yorkshire, for which he disbursed 3*l.* for every cwt., and delivered the same, by order of Richardson, at his Majesty's stores in Southwark at 3*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*, of which petitioner is required to give a true account, being sent for up by a messenger, and now attending, which account was annexed from June 1634 to March last. For former years he refers to the account of the store kept by Mr. Brush in Southwark, and he finds that Richardson in October 1635 took one cask into his own dispose, and in April 1636 ordered another cask to be delivered to Walter Hill in Wood Street, and that in January and March last four casks were delivered to Thomas More in Southwark. As petitioner has not willingly offended he prays discharge. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

July 1. 5. Minute of the charge against Anthony Kirle and of the above petition. He appeared in custody on 29th May, and was required to give account of all salt-petre received from Mr. Richardson. The account being rendered, and appearing to be true, and Kirle having sums to pay to Edmund Nicholson for the use of his Majesty, which he cannot discharge without his return to Hull, he craves dismissal. It was ordered that petitioner might take his course against Jones according to law. [Ibid., fol. 38 b. $\frac{1}{3}$ p.]

July 1. 6. Account by Sir William Russell of ship-money remaining unpaid upon writs issued in August 1635. Total, 9,225*l.* 9*s.* 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. Nicholas has added that there had been nothing paid of these arrears these three weeks, but after several deductions before mentioned (see p. 239), he made the arrear to amount only to 6,225*l.* [1 p.]

July 1. 7. Account by the same of ship-money received and outstanding under writs issued in 1636. Total received, 137,746*l.* 0*s.* 7*d.*; outstanding, 58,853*l.* 19*s.* 5*d.* [1 p.]

July 1. 8. Account of ship-money levied and remaining in the hands of the sheriffs, 10,453*l.*, making with the 137,746*l.* above mentioned, 148,199*l.* as the total sum collected. [1 p.]

July 2. 9. The King to the Lord Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen of York.
Greenwich. For preservation of the solemnity of divine service in some of our cathedral churches, and for the good of the inhabitants of those cities, we have required the mayors, aldermen, and their companies to frequent those holy places on Sundays and holydays, and that they be there at the beginning of divine service, and whilst they are there to carry themselves as becomes them, in obedience to the canons of the Church, and that they shall not use the ensigns of their authority within the said cathedrals, that hereafter the liberties granted by our progenitors to those bodies be inviolably kept. We require you to take care for the performance of all the said orders in Petition of Sir Richard Titchborne and Sir Walter Titchborne, his Majesty's servants, to the King. Your Majesty has granted petitioners your protection for two years past, in which time they have paid and secured 13,000*l.* of their own and other men's debts. Hearing of the many clamours of importunate creditors, exhibited to your Majesty, petitioners do not become further suitors for protection, but pray your Majesty's commission to the Council or others to call their creditors before them, and mediate such reasonable composition as they shall think fit, and in the meantime petition as your Majesty's servants to be protected from arrest.

- I. *Reference to Sir William Uvedale, Treasurer of the Chamber, Sir Arthur Mainwaring, Sir Henry Spiller, Sir Henry Knollys, Clerk Comptroller of his Majesty, Sir William Parkhurst and Nicholas Drake, or any four of them, to call before them petitioners' creditors and mediate as above. Petition of Margaret Kirby, widow, late wife of Jeffrey Kirby, of London, merchant, deceased, to the same. There have issued out of the Exchequer several commissions to treat with the pretended commoners of Sedgemoor, Somerset, for draining thereof, and for laying out a part for your Majesty. Petitioner's late husband having paid your Majesty a fine of 12,000*l.*, besides 100*l.* yearly rent, for your part therein, is entitled by your Majesty's contract to have such commission for perfecting that improvement as shall be requisite. Having lately renewed the commission out of the Exchequer with instructions annexed, and finding that many of the commoners refuse to treat unless the commission be under the great seal, petitioner prays warrant to the Attorney-General to draw a commission which may pass the great seal to the same effect as the former commission, and with the like instructions annexed. Underwritten,

11. William Bassett, Sheriff of Somerset, to the Council. There is a great sum of ship-money unpaid as yet in Somerset, to collect which I have granted warrants of distress to be executed by constables, who are much disheartened by threats and more than menaces, as you may perceive by the complaint enclosed, which if not redressed there will be little more money paid, though I use my greatest diligence. [Seal with arms. 1 p.] Enclosed,

11. I. Complaint of John Simmes, of West Quantoxhead, that Tristram Evennes [Evans?] dared him to take a distress for the ship-money, and said he would "scower" [score?] him and make him an example to the whole parish, and that upon taking a distress he had arrested him. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten,

11. II. Complaint of John More, of Stogumber. I went to Richard Bingegood, of Stogumber, to demand the ship-money, who told me that if I dared take his goods he would arrest me; whereupon, he being a turbulent person and full of law, I left him. [$\frac{1}{3}$ p.] Underwritten, Ludlow Castle.

13. Sir John Bridgeman, Chief Justice of Chester, to Sec. Windbank. I have used all the means I could for discovery of Christopher Ellarkar, who about two years continued in house with William Pickering, of Stanton Lacy, and oversaw a water work then making for Lord Craven. If he were now in those parts he could not be long concealed. Sir Charles Smith, to whose house he used to repair, has dwelt in Leicestershire and Warwickshire, and has lately removed to Winchester. You wish to understand from me the condition of Dr. Clayton. I have perused a presentment upon oath, whereby he is accused—1. For haunting alehouses, and once continuing in several alehouses in Ludlow from Thursday to Wednesday, neglecting to come to his church, being within two miles, or any other church on the Sunday. 2. For tempting the chastity of divers women. 3. For causing the bells to be rung at the bringing beer into his house, making those who brought it drunk, and giving the ringers 2s. I find also an information depending against him before the Council in the Marches of Wales, for beating his sexton with a staff in the church on the 7th March last. For Pickering and his wife, although recusants, I have not heard that they be factious or dangerous. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

14. Sir Henry Wotton to Mr. Johnson, apothecary, Snow Hill, London. I have addressed my servant to you; first, that you would direct him where he may buy one of "your Gerrards" [Gerarde's Herbal?] well and strongly bound; next, where I may have for my money all kinds of coloured pinks to set in my garden, or any such flowers as perfume the air; thirdly, let me consult with you whether you know any sick of melancholia hypochondriaca, wherewith I have been troubled of late, but more with a symptom very frequent in that passion (as the great Fernelius describes it), namely, with certain very noisome odours which the spleen sends up with offence of my scent and taste, and yet without any imaginable taint of my breath. I go seeking examples to comfort my fancy, wherein you will do me a singular pleasure, especially if you add what has done any such patient most good. [Seal with arms. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

15. Roger Harvey to his brother, Richard Harvey. Reply to a remonstrance from his brother for giving way to their sister's journey to London. He dissuaded her what in him lay. He knew no way to prevent her journey but imprisonment. Nothing persuaded her but her own airy pate. The issue of her journey is that she has brought all her clothes in trouble in the carrier's hands for 20s., and how she will get them off he knows not, not having anything but her subsistence from him. There is nothing to be had from her mother, not so much as "a spoling tornne" [a spinning wheel?]. He describes his own course of life as "from my bed to my lombs [looms?], and from my lombs weary to my bed again," debarred of all societies both of Church and State, and were it not that patience has some rule, he could not subsist. The trouble he is now in concerning Sherman is a most unjust and unconscionable suit. [1 p.]

16. Her[bert?] Arnett to his well-wished-unto friend and cousin, Mrs. Alice Carter, at Dinton. Letter of affection written in religious phraseology, and principally founded upon the opinion of a good man, "Mr. Greeām" [Graham?], as to the rules to be observed in the selection of a husband or wife. Jethro's choice of Moses as a husband for his daughter is an example commended on many grounds. [1 p.]

17. Minute of a petition of the Soapmakers of Bristol, in which they alleged that articles were agreed to in November 1635, by which they were permitted to make 600 tons yearly of soap from olive oil, and to sell the same at $3\frac{1}{2}d.$ per pound, paying 4*l.* per ton to his Majesty. They complained that the soapmakers of London hindered their trade, and prayed that it might be settled in accordance with the said articles. The soapmakers of London were thereupon ordered to attend the Lords, which they did with the answer which is here set down. The agreement alluded to was made without their privity. They leave the Bristol proposal to his Majesty, with certain suggestions for restraining the quantity of soap to be made to the 600 tons above mentioned. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten,

17. 1. Request of John Lightfoot that the order in this case might be carefully drawn, and that he might see it before it passed. [5 lines.]

18. Minute of the case of William Willis and John Collins, draymen, who wilfully ran their cart against Lord Exeter's coach and overthrew it, he being in it, and when willed to stand still till the coach was passed, they replied, "Hold your prating!" They are in the new prison in Clerkenwell. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Hereford.

19. Thomas Church, Mayor of Hereford, to the Council. I received your letter of the 16th June last, purporting that 132*l.* of the ship-money for Hereford in 1635 is yet unpaid, and requiring me to cause the same to be paid over to Sir William Russell, or otherwise to attend the Board by the end of last term. The letter was delivered the 29th June, which was after the term ended; and as concerning the said moneys I repaired to Walter Wall, mayor of Hereford in 1635, whose answer was that he had paid part of the ship-money charged upon the said city for 1635 to Sir William Russell, and the rest of the money by him collected he would forthwith satisfy. [Seal. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

July 3.

20. Dr. Thomas Rives to [the same]. Upon a petition of Solomon Journeaux, of Jersey, against James Bandinell, of the same island, clerk, which was referred to me, I sent forth my warrant, dated 6th July 1636, requiring Bandinell to appear before me within forty days after sight thereof. Such warrant was showed to him the 20th May last; the 40 days expired about four days since, and no appearance has been made by Bandinell, so that I cannot enter into the merit of the cause. The plaintiff fearing the sudden remove of the Court from Greenwich and the parts near London, has desired me to certify Bandinell's non-appearance, which I do, offering my opinion, that if he shall not appear before the 10th inst., you may allow petitioner his costs, and take such further order for punishing defendant's contempt as to you shall seem fit. July 3.

21. [Secretary Windebank] to Algernon Earl of Northumberland. The secret treaty with the Infante Cardinal for procuring passes to such fishers of Holland as should take his Majesty's licences, to pass safely to and from the fishing in his Majesty's seas, has failed by the perverseness of the Spanish ministers, and the Hollanders have thereupon refused to take those licences which were sent to Sir William Boswell under the King's hand and signet,

nevertheless intending to fish in his Majesty's seas this year, as they have done heretofore, to which purpose many of them are gone towards the north with strong convoys. The King has here-upon commanded me to send you these licences, being about 200, and his pleasure is that you despatch one of the merchant ships under your charge (being not willing to employ any of his own until it appears what the success will be) toward the north, with these licences, to make offer of them to the fishers at the same rates they were taken last year. And if such as take them shall desire to be safe conducted in their return, you are to assure them that his Majesty will cause some of his fleet to accompany them homeward. And thus much his Majesty commanded Mr. Gerbier to make known to the Infante Cardinal and his ministers, but they did not well relish it, nor have yet given any resolution upon it. The like is also signified to Sir William Boswell, who has order to assure the fishers that will take licences, of his Majesty's protection. But if the fishers already upon our coasts refuse these licences, then the Earl is to give advertisement to his Majesty, who will take further resolution. [Draft. Endorsed, "Sent by an express by Witherings." 2 pp.]

July 3. 22. Sir Thomas Reynolds to Sir William Becher. One Partridge, a vintner, has preferred a petition to the Board against me, which is the same in effect which heretofore he preferred to his Majesty, whereunto I made answer, wherewith his Majesty rested satisfied. As this petition has reference to a licence under the great seal, and certain articles from commissioners authorized under the late Lord Nottingham, my suit is that Partridge may produce before you the said licence and articles, to the end I may more particularly answer his complaint. [Seal with arms. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

July 3. Entry on the Admiralty Register of the discharge of William Richardson, formerly sent for to answer matters to be objected against him. [Copy. See Vol. ccclviii., fol. 37 b. $\frac{1}{7}$ p.]

The Leopard. pray you at your arrival at Mamora to present the governor with five Portugals and the two French renegades, and if he that is aboard of Capt. Seaman be a renegade, then present him also. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

July 4. 24. Warrant to pay 50*l.* to John Howsman, postmaster of York, Westminster. in part of the wages of his office, and a like sum to Alexander Armorer, postmaster of Alnwick, on the like account. [Strip of parchment. 12 lines.]

July 4. 25. William Cage and William Tyler, bailiffs of Ipswich, to the Ipswich. Council. By reason of infection in Bury St. Edmunds, where the assizes for Suffolk have been usually kept, the judges have appointed the next assizes to be holden at Ipswich on the 31st inst. There are divers other towns visited at this time, but Ipswich is wholly free. There is every year a fair kept in Ipswich on

St. James's day, a few days before the assizes. We fear that by the concourse of pedlers, and people who are careless into what places they resort, the town may be infected, which will be of great danger to the country who are to resort thither. For prevention we are suitors that St. James's fair may for the present year be omitted. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

July 4. 26. Similar letter, but signed by William Cage only. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

July 4. 27. Lord Lieutenant and Justices of Peace for Surrey to the Council. According to your order for payment of money for the visited people in Southwark, all the moneys of these parts have been collected long since, only the parish of Ashstead, whose moneys had likewise been paid in if John Bagg of the same parish had not been defaultive, as appears by certificate of the constable enclosed. [Seal with crest. 1 p.]

July 4. 28. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sec. Windebank. I have received your letter with two boxes of licences. It seems Sir William Boswell has sent me some advertisements of preparations made in Holland for guard of their fishers, but none are yet come to hand; if they were directed to your elder brother [Sec. Coke] I will not wonder at their slow passage. I intend to give Capt. Fielding directions for this service, he being the only man in the merchants' ships capable. You tell me that if the Dutch accept these licences he shall distribute them at the rates given last year; but you give no directions what he shall do if they refuse or avoid coming near him. It is likely to be two or three days before he will be fitted with a pilot and other necessities; I desire in the meantime you would let me know how he shall behave himself if they prove obstinate, and what means you will direct for his giving notice of his success. If they condescend to what is demanded, and the King resolves to convoy them home, it will require a good number of ships, for they return in small fleets. [Endorsed by Windebank as answered 6th, with despatches of Sir William Boswell of 2nd July and Mr. Gerbier of 4th. 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

July 4. 29. Capt. Edward Popham to Algernon Earl of Northumberland. According to your order directed to the captains of the Pleiades, the Industry, and myself, we wafted to the Brill three vessels with goods and servants of the Prince Elector, and on the 26th June we stood off again to sea. On the 27th there ensued a storm from the N.W., which continued all night. The next day my ship [the Fifth Whelp] took in much water and sprung a leak. I plied the pumps [as minutely described], but she sunk in the afternoon of the 28th June, 16 leagues from the coast of Holland. Seventeen men sunk with the ship; myself and forty men got into a small boat and rowed from four o'clock in the evening until eight the next morning, when we made an English ship riding before the Brill and bound for Rotterdam, where "he" landed me and the rest of my men that were saved. At Rotterdam I had news of some of his Paper of notes and memoranda by Nicholas respecting the ship-money, with suggestions for getting in the arrears, and for improving the mode of collection, especially by compelling every sheriff to collect the amount charged upon his county within the year of his shrievalty. Various places are mentioned for inquiry or reduction, as Wokingham, Reading, Wigan, Peterborough, Lynn, Langport Estover, Chichester, Bury St. Edmunds, and Bewdley. [*This was probably a paper prepared to be laid before a meeting of a committee of the Council held this day, and which is further mentioned in the next paper. - July 5. Notes by Nicholas of proceedings of a committee of the Council Star Chamber. for the business of shipping. Resolved according to his Majesty's pleasure, signified by himself at Greenwich on Sunday last, that every county shall be ordered to set forth ships as in the last year without any alteration. The Lord Keeper said that he had spoken with the judges of assize to advise with the justices of peace about making the rates for all public payments equal. Notes are also given of various new clauses to be drawn by Nicholas, chiefly in conformity with the suggestions mentioned in the preceding paper. [See Vol. ccci., No. 96. 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ pp.]

- July 5. 36. Examination of John Mohun, son and heir to Lord Mohun, taken by Sec. Windebank. Upon the 3rd inst., about 10 in the morning, examinant, coming down Snow Hill in company of Cassius Burrowes [Borough], son to Sir John Burrowes, king-at-arms, and Obadiah Gossop, chaplain to Lord Mohun, and having with him two of his own servants, crossed the street to avoid a cart, and a coach came suddenly upon examinant, whereupon he struck at the horses to keep them back with a cane which he had in his hand, which the coachman espying lashed at him with his whip; examinant struck the coachman with his cane, and the coachman lashed at him again; then one of examinant's servants, John Ennis, a Dutchman, drew his sword and struck at the coachman, whereupon one that sat in the boot of the coach drew his sword and struck or thrust at examinant, which he bore off with his cane, as appears by a mark thereon. As soon as examinant was disengaged from the coach, he drew his sword and struck at the coach as it passed by, but knows not that he hurt any man in the coach. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]
- July 5. 37. Examination of Cassius Borough. Details the circumstances above mentioned with some additions. The coach was that of Lord Savage, but they knew it not at the time. Mohun struck the horses "to avoid crushing against the houses." Ennis thought to have cut the coachman's reins, "because he drove away so fast that he could have no other satisfaction." Examinant drew his sword rather to defend himself than to offend others, but struck not at the coach. Knows not how Lord Lumley came hurt. As soon as Lord Savage spoke to examinant and warned him, he retired, and caused Ennis and others to desist. [1 p.]

- July 6. Petition of Carr Coventry to the King. Thomas Russell, of Lambeth, had the making of 1,815 tons of soft soap yearly under the corporation of the soapmakers of Westminster, at St. Katherine's. In consideration of a sum of money delivered to Russell, he granted, on 24th March 1634, to petitioner that he should receive 4*s.* upon every ton made at that house, which for divers months petitioner received, but for two years past he has not received any profit at all. Russell having some share left in the soap, is suddenly to dispose of the same. Petitioner prays a reference to some of the Council, that they may send for the governor and some of the assistants to show

39. Officers of Navy to Lords of the Admiralty. According to your warrant of 23rd May last, for the survey of provisions, we appointed two Trinity masters, with a brewer and a butcher, to view all the victual they could see in preparation for his Majesty's or the merchant ships, and to certify their proceeding for prevention of the abuses which victuallers and pursers usually practised, for delivering and receiving less than their due proportion, as also by remissness in preservation of each sort to continue good, wherein these men have used their utmost endeavours, as by the copy of their certificate herewith sent may appear. Yet we are of opinion that unless the officers in every ship take an exact account of the quality and quantity delivered to them, there may be much fraud, it being not possible for a few men to survey in all places where the victuals are provided, and see it on board the particular ships in due proportion. [1 p.]

39. 1. Survey of marine victuals provided since 27th March 1637. The surveyors state what provisions they had inspected, and that the same were very good and serviceable, only the drysalted beef in the storehouse at Tower Hill was somewhat scanty in weight. 24th May 1637. [3 pp.]

40. The same to the same. Report on reference of Mr. Fleming's petition (see Vol. pp. 222, 234). By reason of his infirmity (the service requiring an able and active man) we hold it fit that such a change were ; but for the gentleman specified, he is best known at Court, where he has been bred. We are so little acquainted with his abilities, that we are not able to inform you of his fitness for the place. [1 p.]

41. Sec. Windebank to Algernon Earl of Northumberland. I perceive by your letter of the 4th inst. that the direction which I gave by his Majesty's command, as to what is to be done if the Dutch refuse to take the licences, is not so clearly understood as I intended. There was a passage in my despatch to this purpose, that if the fishers refuse these licences, you are to give advertisement to his Majesty, who will take further resolution. The truth is, his Majesty is not willing to proceed roundly with them, and therefore holds this way of inviting them to acknowledge his right, without sending his whole fleet, which would be a manifest obligation in honour to perfect the work notwithstanding any opposition, which might be of dangerous consequence to the present condition of his affairs. Therefore, in case of refusal, he chooses to have time to consider what resolution to settle. You may instruct the party whom you employ to advertise the success, especially if they accept not the licences, without proceeding further until his Majesty shall give order. For the safe conducting, his Majesty will govern himself according to the success of the former, and the advice he shall receive from you or the party whom you employ. His Majesty is now at Havering, and so I have not the commodity to acquaint him with your last despatch, but I understand his purpose so particularly that you need not doubt to take this way. I send the two last despatches I received from Sir William Boswell and Mr. Gerbier, by which you will understand the ground of what I wrote in my last. [Copy, in handwriting of Windebank. 1½ p.]

42. News-letter of C. Rossingham. Minute account of Bastwick, Burton, and Prynne being put into the pillory at Westminster, and their ears being cut off. The "light common people strewed herbs and flowers before" Dr. Bastwick, and when Burton's ears were cut off, the people wept and grieved much, "and at the cutting off of each ear there was such a roaring as if every one of them had at the same instant lost an ear." In another place it is stated that "the humours of the people were various; some wept, some laughed, and some were very reserved." Before the Prince Elector's going, the King declared to him that but for his business he was the happiest King or Prince in all Christendom, which is most true. Archbishop Laud's vindication of the right of the bishops to send out their citations in their own name, and opinion of the judges to that effect. A proclamation to be issued that the subject may be more conformable to Bishops' Courts. Lord Stanhope had petitioned the King for some reward on his resignation of his postmaster's office against his will. Sentence in the Admiralty Court in a cause between a Genoese merchant and Capt. Walter Steward. Further progress made in hearing the cause against the Bishop of Lincoln. Archbishop Laud's declaration of his unacquaintance with Kilvert, the solicitor against the bishop. The Attorney-General had remarked that it was not possible to wash the bishop clear of his private tampering with witnesses. Prynne's epigram on the branding his cheeks with S.L., made on his return from the pillory to the Tower:—

VOL. CCCLXIII.

3rd inst., the Earl of Linlithgow and some other of the referees, at the instance of John Dick, and upon his pretence that security was given to petitioner to his liking, in the absence of petitioner ordered that he should deliver oils according to agreement, and give security for the same. Forasmuch as neither Dick, Nathaniel Edwards, nor any other for them have given security, although demanded before the ships departed, nor deposited money, and refuse to take off petitioner's adventure as his materials should be appraised by two of the Greenland merchants, or to accept of Greenland whale oil to be delivered at 16*l.* per ton, and for that the ships set out this year, which are at more charge than 600*l.* per month, can have no advice before their return to Yarmouth, his suit is that the Committees would call Dick and petitioner before them to put that business to some reasonable end. Lords of the Admiralty to Algernon Earl of Northumberland. His Majesty approves your proposition for one of his smaller ships, or a merchant ship, and the Swan frigate, to be sent out of the fleet for Sallee, and commands us to give you order to cause a ship, with the Swan, to be supplied out of other ships of the fleet, with two months' victual, and to be hastened to Sallee, to be put under the command of Capt. Rainsborough. His Majesty likewise approves Capt. Rainsborough's stay at Sallee two months longer if he conceives there will be a probability for him to accomplish the business thereby, and you are to cause the Treasurer of the Fleet to send to Rainsborough so much money as you shall think sufficient to bear the charge of supplying his ships with fresh meat from the shore there, which it is affirmed may be easily gotten, and at reasonable rates. 49. Richard Delamain to Sec. Windebank. Since my being with you I have been put to a great deal of travel from place to place and party to party, which I gladly underwent, that so I might not come naked before you, but give full information concerning the place which the Prince Elector moved the King in my behalf, concerning which I was told by Sir John Heydon that one of the engineers mentioned in my petition was Pierre Borre, and that he was dead, or had left the King's service, and that Mr. Burlamachi could inform me. His reply is enclosed. Thanks unto you for moving the King for me, which I will shortly report to the Prince's Highness, who I know will thank you. [1 p.] Enclosed,

49. 1. Certificate of Philip Burlamachi. Pierre Borre was in the King's service as one of his engineers in 1627, and about 1630 went beyond the seas, and has since remained there, and, as far as I hear say, is there settled. Dated July 6th 1627, [probably by mistake for 1637. ½ p.]

50. Officers of the Mint at the Tower to the King. Report on a proposal of Thomas Bushell for setting up a mint in Wales. Whether such a proposal may be agreeable to his Majesty's service, we submit to his great wisdom. Besides payments to officers, there are many disbursements to labourers and others, necessarily incident to a mint; but if Bushell should pay yearly 100*l.* for the property of this intended mint, and so take all upon himself at adventure, his Majesty will not be informed of the state of the mint, which we esteem to be a matter of great consequence. It is further urged that mints have been ever erected in cities of great traffic, and now only in the Tower of London, as a place of honour and security, and near his Majesty and the Council, before whom the trial of the pix must be; and that it should be considered whether a mint should be erected before it be ascertained that there will be a sufficient quantity of bullion to employ the same. [July 7.] 53. Petition of inhabitants of Wigan, co Lancaster, to the Council. Wigan was made a borough in 30th Henry III. They have no other means of maintenance, save their small burgages and making pots and pans. The number of their poor is so great, as they are enforced to seek relief from others to maintain them. The former sheriff, who is a stranger to the town, taxed them at 50*l.* to the ship-money, and the present sheriff would not alter it without authority. The sum is altogether unfit and disproportionable. Pray a reference to examine the case, petitioners having paid the former sum, and being willing to do as much as their share. [1 p.]

Order of the Council on the preceding petition, that Wigan shall be left out of the ship-money writ for this year, and be henceforth rated with the country in such indifferent manner as other places. [July 7?] 55. Petition of inhabitants of Cranbrook, Kent, to the Council. This town and other parishes adjoining have for many hundred years past subsisted by the trade of clothing, whereby they have not only maintained themselves, but many thousands of poor people within this county and Sussex. Now, John Browne, by a commission for making brass or iron ordnance and shot, has seized upon the greatest part of such woods as were felled, and by petitioners bought, whereby the ancient trade of cloth-making is like to fall to decay. Pray the Lords to restrain Mr. Browne from seizing any woods which petitioners may buy for their necessary provision and trade, and that no furnace may be by him erected within the said parish, wood being at so great rate and of such necessity for their trade, there being many furnaces to be had for his Majesty's use in Sussex, not above 10 or 12 miles off, where cloth-making is not used and woods are more plentiful. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

July 7. 56. Answer of John Browne to the preceding petition. The number of poor and the "assesses" for them in Cranbrook and its neighbourhood is much increased by reason the poor employed by them cannot live upon the wages allowed them. For that he could not supply himself with wood for his Majesty's service, he did by warrant from the Board take some wood from wood-brokers, iron-masters, and clothiers, but not all or the greatest part as alleged. He also, on request of the clothiers, restored them their wood, or sufficient for their occasions, his aim not being to prejudice the clothiers, but to restrain the wood-brokers and iron-masters, who have engrossed great part of the woods thereabouts, raising the price from 5*s.* to 11*s.*

the cord. He only continues the use of one ancient furnace in Cranbrook. Ordnance and shot cannot be made without wood, but cloth may be made with sea-coals. In London the dyers of cloth and of far richer stuffs use nothing but sea-coal, and the inhabitants of Cranbrook may have their coals conveniently from Maidstone or Newenden. It argues ill affection to his Majesty's service to desire his founder to pull down his works, when they suffer many iron-masters and wood-brokers to buy wood without complaint, preferring a small advantage of their own to 5,000*l.* charge to the King, in the removal (as they would have it) into Sussex. It would be more convenient for the clothiers to remove into Sussex. Prays that the clothiers may use sea-coals, and that he may take wood at such price as it was at 14 years since. [1 p.]

58. Thomas Spurwaie, Mayor of Dartmouth, and John Plumleigh to the Council. On 29th June last, Frenchmen to the number of one hundred persons and upwards, being lately taken by Dunkirkers, were brought into Torbay, where they were landed (being left altogether destitute), who, repairing unto that town, are likely there to continue burthensome. Further, the Dunkirk men of war within this year last past have, in like manner, put on shore at Torbay poor Frenchmen and others, to the number of forty or fifty at a time, to the great charge of the inhabitants, and no less disturbance of his Majesty's subjects in several places adjoining. Refer the consideration hereof to the Lords. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

59. John Earl of Bridgewater, President of the Council of Wales, to the same. Report on a reference of a business concerning Henry Lort. The complaint was that Lort had exported corn to foreign parts. The Earl does not find any evidence of it, save that in 1629 he transported corn into Ireland. Roger Lort confesses that his father exported corn in two barks, one to Bristol and one to Beaumaris, but proved that the markets of Pembroke and Tenby were well supplied by him, and that the corn sent away was out of his overplus, he having more corn than the country would buy of him, and it is demanded what should become of it if he might not export it. No corn has been exported since the Lord Treasurer's warrant. There is other evidence upon the subject in the country, Lort imagining the business would have been examined at Ludlow, but the certifiers press that it may be determined here. [1½ p.]

Lords of the Admiralty to Capt. William Rainsborough. Have acquainted his Majesty with your letter from Sallee Roads of

VOL. CCCLXIII.

20th May last, and likewise with the articles of peace agreed upon between you on behalf of his Majesty, and the Saint of Old Sallee. His Majesty approves what you have done, and has given order to the Earl of Northumberland to send you one of the ships belonging to the fleet, with the Swan frigate, and likewise order and money to supply your fleet with victuals, whereby to lengthen your stay there two months longer. We much marvel that the pinnaces were not arrived at Sallee before the date of your letter, they being gone out of the Thames in April last. [Copy. See Vol. cccliii., fol. 38. ½ p.]

60. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sec. Windebank. Now that by your letter of the 6th inst. I understand his Majesty's intention, I purpose to despatch the captain away, with directions not to engage in a dispute, nor to use any violence to compel the Dutchmen to take the licences, but fairly to intimate to them the occasion of his being there, and overland to give you notice of his success. If they should prove obstinate he is to repair hither again. Two days before I went over to the coast of Holland to wait upon the Prince Elector, I received from Mr. Gerbier an advertisement of some ill-affected persons to this state, who had a purpose to transport themselves from Flanders into England, and therefore he desired me to give warrant to the captains of those vessels under my charge that used those parts not to receive any on board without a private pass from him. Though by this letter I did not understand anything of the business, yet I was careful to give order as desired. Yesterday Cole, a post, wrote me word that, notwithstanding this order, Capt. Buller has admitted aboard his frigate these prohibited persons, which, if it be true, deserves severe punishment. To prevent their landing I sent out three ships several ways to meet him in his passage betwixt Dunkirk and England, and to command him to come to me, not suffering any in his frigate to land. What design these men can have I am not able to guess. I hope Mr. Gerbier apprehends more danger than there is cause for. A poor man came yesterday to me to complain that his bark was lately taken by a sloop of Calais, as he was going for Dunkirk under the protection of Capt. Buller's frigate; he blames Buller very much, but I have not yet heard what Buller can say. This poor man desired your favour, but I could give him very little hope of the recovery of his goods. 61. Archbishop Laud to Edward Viscount Conway and Killultagh. Your kindness has put me into great arrear; I have received three letters from you and have not returned one. The truth is, I was never so tired with a term in my life, and we have yet three days to come in the Star Chamber. It was news that they of Sallee were setting forty sail to sea, and that they were prevented by the coming of Capt. Rains[borough]. 'Tis great pity some way should not be thought on to stay him there till it be nearer Michaelmas. I perceive by this that it will be no hard matter, if the King please, to make them of Sallee understand themselves. The beginning of your letter puts me in mind of a poor man, yet a friend of yours, concerning whom you told me that he was the only man that spoke truth in court. For there you tell a story of a wise king and a wise man that came to him, and an honest withal, who left others to tell the news that was bad; after you apply the story and tell me that the weather is too cold (as warm as it is) for honesty nakedly to profess itself, that season being usually as short as a summer in Muscovia, and will easily grow cold if it find not some art to cover it. I will make bold to tell that court acquaintance what he wants, and advise him to clothe it with art or somewhat else against a cold season. And if he be not too old, he will take good heed of that which you have mentioned in so ingenious a way. I am of opinion that if those who have letters of marque are allowed to take goods out of Dutch bottoms it will destroy the King's customs at Dover, and so I declared myself where it was proper to speak. I hope that business is settled. For Nuesman [?] 'tis he should be punished, but that belongs to the Lords of the Admiralty. I hope you have written to some of them about it. I am sorry to hear that pinnaces will be wanting at Sallee, especially such as may serve to take the small boats there; but more a great deal that the pinnaces you have are so ill goers, and that the King loses both his money and business by the want of art of those who think they have enough, which opinion of "enough!" implies very many things bad enough. I will not fail to acquaint his Majesty with this. I am glad the Prince Elector had [a safe] passage, especially considering what befell his topsails, and that [water came in] at the lower ports. That which you tell me under the rose will remain safe, lest I should offend against your apologue of your wise king and his good man. But to say truth I would it had been p, since it might so easily have been done. [Modern copy made from an original among the Conway papers. 1 p.]

July 7. 63. Answer of Bishop Pierce, of Bath and Wells, to petition of Sir Francis Popham, respecting the right of presentation to Buckland St. Mary, Somerset, calendared Vol. ccclxii., No. 114. Gilbert, Bishop of Bath and Wells, collated John Bowbeare to the rectory of Buckland St. Mary on 24th January 1579, it being then void by the death of Richard Batty, the last incumbent, the same appertaining to the bishop's donation "jure sibi devoluto" without mention of lapse. Bowbeare was the last incumbent. He died in the beginning of February last. The bishop took the opinions of Serjeant Glauville and Dr. Duck, who stated that if he collated upon that title, the collatee would enjoy the rectory for this turn, and could not be put out by quare impedit, but the patron's remedy was to bring his writ of advowson. Hereupon the bishop collated his son William Pierce, not for the value, it being only 100*l.* per annum, but for the goodness of the air, his son being of a sickly constitution. The bishop disputes Sir Francis Popham's assertion that he is the undoubted patron, because he has no manor there, but only a "quillet" of land not worth about 40s. or 3*l.* per annum. Also denies that Sir Francis's predecessors ever presented to this benefice, and that the bishop's predecessor collated by lapse, and that what he has done tends to the prejudice of Sir Francis's inheritance, for he may bring his writ of right. Refuses to yield to Sir Francis's suggestion to have his right referred, but if Sir Francis will not trouble the bishop's son, and will show his right upon his bringing his writ of right, the bishop will confess it without further suit. Prays the archbishop therefore to allow them both to proceed to a trial of law. [5½ pp.]

Consider a paper presented by Capt. Pett to the King concerning launching the great ship, and bringing the Prince into dock at Woolwich; upon which paper his Majesty has written his pleasure. Despatch three or four petitions, in regard the Lords are not likely to meet again suddenly. The Committee appointed to examine the state of the Chest at Chatham have returned certificates to the Lords. Consider Mr. Evelyn's petition. The Earl of Portland presents a petition of inhabitants of the Isle of Wight, with an inventory of the Turkish vessel stayed at Hurst, and sold since at an undervalue. The Officers objected that he had brought in 1480 lasts less than the quantity stipulated by his contract. He showed that the petremen had failed in their deliveries to him of 700 lasts, that he had supplied the counties by warrants with 131 lasts, and that he had sold 609 lasts, as allowed by his contract on failure of payment. The Officers called upon him to account for 2,000*l.* imprested in 1624. He answered that on renewing his contract a reduction of payment for the gunpowder was stipulated, which he consented to on the terms of not being

July 8. 66. Petition of John Reston, [deputy-] keeper of his Majesty's prison at Dover, to the Lords of the Admiralty. By warrant from the said Lords to the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, command was given for imprisoning 17 Frenchmen upon suspicion of piracy, and thereupon the Lord Warden gave directions to the Mayor and Jurats of Dover for their safe keeping, who, by their warrant of 9th July 1636, required petitioner to take into his custody the said Frenchmen, which he did, and kept 15 of them for 7 months at his own charge. These Frenchmen had two shallops furnished with ammunition, which were sold to John Jacob, sergeant to the Admiralty of the Cinque Ports, in whose hands the money remains. The Officers of the Navy, upon false suggestions of James Robins, his Majesty's purveyor, required satisfaction from petitioner touching the matters complained of. Their letter came to petitioner on 18th June at Greenwich, upon sight whereof he repaired to Sir William Russell and answered him. Petitioner stayed in London till 29th June, and then repaired to his dwelling 60 miles hence, but he had hardly been at home four days when he was sent for by a messenger, in whose custody he remains. Believes Robins waited his opportunity to cause petitioner to be fetched up as soon as he came home, and that he complains for mere vexation, to keep petitioner from the assizes held on Thursday next, at which he knows petitioner has business, and may by his absence suffer 300*l.* or 400*l.* damages. July 8. 69. John Basford to the [Council]. On Tuesday, 28th March, I received my despatch, and on Saturday I had my letter of credit, and that night went to Rye, where till Monday night I stayed for a wind. On that day Paul Greensmith, his Majesty's searcher, desired to see my pass. Being in Latin he did not understand it, but demanded my name, and took sixpence for his fee as searcher, and a groat for town dues. That night the wind became fair, and aboard I went. At the last moment, Greensmith and Porter, the searchers, seized my male. I begged them to forbear, assuring them that the contents were letters of state for his Majesty's ambassadors in France and Italy, yet they violently carried my male ashore, which compelled me to follow. At the Custom House they pressed me to open it, yet did not find anything but what I have mentioned, except some pieces of eight and gardecues for my expenses on my journey. Detaining the contents, and having searched my person, they consulted with Bambridge, clerk of the passes, who had formerly said that I had an old pass of Lord Fielding's, whereupon they resolved to hinder my passage, and, alleging that they had authority to detain me for the number of my letters, would render nothing without my Lord Treasurer's warrant. I forthwith returned to London and obtained it; but on my going back to Rye they answered that his lordship might dispose of his Majesty's part, but of theirs he could not, so I was constrained a second time to return for his Majesty's order. I pray you to consider this detention, I

Both the registrars caused the writer to be arrested and put in security to answer them at common law this term. He has offered a reference, which they refuse. 3. Mr. Lawrenee came into the bishop's court, holden the 17th June, and told the writer, in a proud braving manner, that he was but his deputy, and that he expected the accounts of this visitation. 4. Upon the visitation of the peeuliars there came in a churchwarden and sidesman, who alleged that they had been cited, and paid their fees to the other registrars. 5. That his servants, bringing timber to Ware's Ash, were commanded by James Robins, the purveyor, to carry it to the water-side, but they refused, alleging their master's direction, so that it will cost his Majesty as much more to bring it from Ware's Ash to the water's edge. His servants also cut the long timber against Robins's order. The Officers of the Navy hired a yard of Widow West, of Busselden, for putting the timber in for safety, but Rigge forbade the workmen to put it there. He was also charged with not repairing the bridge at Fareham Quay, which he is bound to do, he taking quayage. Besides detaining the 4*d.* per load, as before mentioned, he is charged with desiring to have the King's price paid to him, against which it is contended that if he be allowed to lay the timber where he will, the King's price will not suffice to carry it where it ought to be. 80. The King to Bishop Mainwaring, of St. David's. Among the cares that attend the princely office, that of the Church has ever had the first place, whereupon we, well weighing what havoc has been made of it, and the goodly endowments thereof in former times, and what great inconveniences must arise, both to Church and commonwealth, if the authority of bishops be not supported as it ought, which cannot be if their means of livelihood be taken away, and being informed that the rectory of Kerry, co. Montgomery, is a lease of good value belonging to the bishopric of St. David's, and that the rectory of Glascomb, co. Radnor, is likewise held by lease from the said bishopric, we think it fitting that both those rectories, after the expiration of the several leases, be for ever kept in the hands of the bishop for the time being, or disposed of for his use; all leases granted by any bishop determining upon his leaving the see. Your Majesty made a grant accordingly. Now, William Marrott, of Blisland, Cornwall, in April became felo de se, whose goods are seized upon by the Deputy Almoner and [the relict]. Petitioner prays his Majesty to signify that the said goods may be kept, so that an account thereof may be made to petitioner in case upon a just trial they shall be found to belong to him. [*Copy. Your Majesty granted a warrant for a patent to petitioner for 14 years for sole making Castile and Venice soap in England, since which there has been direction given that a proviso should be inserted for your Majesty to revoke the patent if you find it inconvenient, and that petitioner have no power to transport beyond seas. Petitioner beseeches that the said proviso may be omitted, for the soap requiring a greater stock than petitioner is able to disburse, others will be discouraged to adventure upon such an uncertainty; and if there should be a restraint to transport, the hope of your Majesty's profit by foreign vent were quite taken away. Prays that the Attorney-General may proceed according to his former warrant. [Copy. Ibid., p. 130. 1¼ p.] Underwritten,

[July 9 ?]

84. Thomas Bushell, his Majesty's servant, to the King. Understanding that your Majesty has granted a mint for Ireland, as well as your predecessors have allowed of mints at Durham, Bristol, and Kidwelly Castle, Bushell states seven reasons why a mint in Wales may prove of great consequence to the King, both by way of honour and profit. The mines worked by Sir Hugh Middleton were drowned by water, but Bushell had discovered how to drain them by way of adit. The quantity of silver was stated to be considerable, and in all mines the deeper they go, it was alleged, that the richer the miner finds the ore to be. The charge of sending up the bullion to the mint, with the great charge of the miners in digging, were stated to have undone Sir Hugh Middleton, the poverty of the people in that country disabling them from maintaining any work that did not make them a present return. Thousands had thus been kept from adventuring on those hopeful mountains, where doubtless a mass of treasure lies covered. A mint in Wales would afford the requisite encouragement. Bushell anticipated the separation of 300*l.* of silver weekly out of ore, wherefore he prayed the allowance of a mint at the castle of Aberystwith. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

[July 9 ?]

85. A more precise statement of Thomas Bushell's proposal for setting up a mint in Wales. He proposed to establish it in the castle of Aberystwith at his own charge, paying the King his mintage at the same rate as the Tower of London, and presenting to the privy purse every new year's tide a wedge of silver containing 100*l.* sterling, provided he be discharged of all accounts concerning the profit of the mint, except for answering as to the fineness and weight of the silver coined. He will give the King a clear tenth of all silver wrought in Wales, and will not coin bullion found elsewhere; and whenever the King shall think the mines fit to be taken into his own hands, he will lay them at his feet. 86. Order of the King in Council. After full debate and explanation by Bushell himself of his above proposal, and the previous reference to the officers of the mint (see No. 50), it was resolved that the suggested mint at Aberystwith should be erected at Bushell's expense; the same to be regulated by Sir William Parkhurst, warden of the mint, and Bushell to make a yearly account of the profits belonging to his Majesty, with other regulations in conformity with Bushell's proposals. The Attorney-General was to prepare the necessary bill for his Majesty's signature. [$1\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Petition of James Weimis to the King. Petitioner sets forth a variety of claims upon the bounty of his Majesty, and being in fear of being cast into prison by his creditors, calls to remembrance a bill of disbursements of 1,100*l.*, besides various other claims, and prays that he be not in a worse estate than the "mackannikest" [mechanicest?] man that serves the King, as he has these seven years without receiving one penny, which will redound to his utter ruin if his Majesty take not a speedy way for payment of his debts, which

Petition of the Commissioners for Exacted Fees and Innovations in Offices to the same. Having spent many years in inquiry, and, amongst others, in examination of the fees taken by Sir Robert Ousley, who has the office of engrossing letters patent, and his great exactions being ready to be certified to your Majesty, to the end he may be proceeded with as other delinquents have been, Sir Robert has now upon two untrue suggestions (that he has taken no other fees than his predecessors, and that he has given the commissioners satisfaction of his honesty and fair dealing) obtained from your Majesty a reference for settling his fees for the time to come, which the commissioners conceive to be both prejudicial to your Majesty and the subject, and a great injury to the commissioners. Pray your Majesty to let this cause take its ordinary proceedings, and if for the future you shall grant any reference in the like kind, first to receive information from the commissioners of the nature of the cause. Lords of the Admiralty to Algernon Earl of Northumberland. The ambassador extraordinary for the French King, being to repair to France, is to be transported thither. You are to give order to the captain of one of his Majesty's ships to attend at Dover to receive the ambassador with his train, and to transport them to Dieppe. This carriage of the captain is so foul as we cannot pass it by, and therefore we pray you to examine and send up the said Capt. Buller, and to put some man of more courage and ability to take charge of the said vessel, and if you have

His Majesty, being very sensible of the boldness of this vessel of Calais, has commanded us to signify to you to apprehend as many of the ships of that town as you can meet with, and to bring them in to some of his Majesty's [ports] to answer the said insolency. We wish you for the future to take order that there be a sufficient convoy sent to accompany such small frigates when they are employed to waft any ships, to prevent the dishonour of their being beaten or taken. [July 9?] 87. Petition of Robert Rigge to the Lords of the Admiralty. Petitioner being, upon the unjust complaint of James Robins, his Majesty's purveyor, detained in custody of a messenger, presented his petition on Saturday last, and showed the great damage that might fall upon him by his absence from the assizes (see No. 67). Besides this he has great store of husbandry to look after, by reason whereof he keeps twenty household servants, whose negligence in the approaching harvest may greatly endanger him; and if he should be detained, there may be danger to his life, by the contagious disease now raging. As he hopes to gain the good esteem of the Lords, and to clear himself of the complaints of Robins, he prays a reference to some justices of the county, or his liberty upon bond till some day in Michaelmas term. The Lords of the Admiralty to the Justices of Peace for Hants. On complaint of Robert Rigge, undertaker for carriage of timber for the Navy, James Robins, purveyor for the Navy, is bound over to appear at your sessions touching payment for the said carriage. The King's price shall be paid as you direct; but Rigge has not produced any order from you that he is to have the same over and above the 3s. 4d. a load, for which he contracted to perform the service. 91. Certificate of the performance, by James Wheller and John Frye, of penance enjoined them by the Bishop of Bath and Wells, for that they, being the late churchwardens of the parish of Beckington, omitted to execute the command of the bishop to remove the communion table in the chancel of the church of Beckington, and to place it close under the east wall of the said chancel, in the same manner as the communion table stands in the cathedral church in Wells, and to remove the seats placed above the table. Wheller and Frye stood excommunicated for their contempt for one year, and likewise some days last past stood aggravated, and had been signified to the King for apprehending their bodies, and committing them to the common gaol of Somerset. Upon their submission the reverend father absolved them, and enjoined them to repeat an acknowledgment of their offences, which is here set forth, in their parish church on 25th June 1637, in the church of Frome Selwood on the 2nd July inst., and in the church of St. Peter and St. Paul, Bath, on this day. The performance of the penance in the several churches before mentioned is attested by the clergyman, churchwardens, and one other person of each parish. [Attested copy. 3 pp.]

Lords of the Admiralty to Sir Henry Marten. We have considered your report concerning the differences between the Company of Shipwrights and Thomas Mayden and William Hooke, whose several cases you have sent unto us. You have been long well acquainted with the said business, and know of what importance it is to have the shipwrights kept under government, which was the ground of the grant made to the company at Rotherhithe. 95. Sir Henry Marten and Attorney-General Bankes to [the Lords of the Admiralty]. Report on a petition of the mayor and others of Bristol and the certificate of the late Attorney-General Noy. We are of opinion that if his Majesty grant power that the mayor, recorder, and aldermen of the said city, associated with one learned in the civil law, may have cognition of pleas belonging to the Admiralty, and hold a court weekly to hear the same, and make execution thereupon, so as his Majesty's Great [High?] Admiral and the Judge of the Admiralty may come there as often as they will concerning the same pleas, and so as liberty be left to any party aggrieved to appeal to the High Court of Admiralty, the same will further common justice and navigation, as Mr. Noy formerly certified; but we conceive it fit that the former power of exemption granted to the mayor and others, excluding the High Admiral from intermeddling within the city, should be surrendered. [1¼ p.]

July 10. 96. Copy of the above, with an appended note by Sir Henry Marten, dated 31st October 1637, that when a grant to this effect is drawn and he shall have perused it, he shall conceive it fit to pass under the Great Seal. [1¾ p.]

July 10. 97. Petition of Philip White, engineer, to the Lords of the Admiralty. His Majesty, by letters patent of 5th February 1628, granted to Sir George Douglas power for recovering gold, silver, ordnance, and other things out of the sea, reserving to his Majesty one-tenth part of the profit. July 10. 98. Petition of Edward Stevens, shipwright, to the Lords of the Admiralty. About 10 years since a decree was sued out in Chancery by petitioner's late father and others against the Company of Shipwrights, for debts by the company to them owing, of which there remains betwixt 50*l.* and 55*l.* still unsatisfied. In 1634 the company petitioned the Lords to authorize them to impose a fine on the most able shipwrights towards the debt, which the Lords granted, and the fine is imposed, and much money besides for tonnage and other payments has been since received, and yet petitioner remains unsatisfied. Taylor, a shipwright, has 10*l.*, part of the moneys decreed in Chancery, remaining in his hands, and the company has half a year's tonnage due at Midsummer last to receive. July 10. The same to George Gage. Minute of similar letter. [See Ibid., p. 151.]

July 10. 99. Sir John Pennington to Nicholas. The two Princes, the Lords, and the principal of their trains went over in the St. George, and all the rest in the Vanguard, and our Admiral and as many of us as were there went along with them, and brought them safe on the Holland coast, to the entering into Gaweres [Goree's] Gat, and there took a loud leave with our guns, for it blew so much wind that they durst not go near to speak with them. In regard of the Princes, he hopes they are safely landed, but as yet those two ships are not returned. Saturday last our Admiral sent away the Unicorn of the merchants to the northwards, to distribute the 200 licences amongst the Hollands fishermen, but I fear their stubbornness will draw a greater inconvenience on us both. The Admiral is likewise sending away the Mary Rose and Roebuck for Sallee to reinforce Admiral Rainsborough. I conceive they will come too late, except they have a sudden and prosperous wind. An enclosure from Capt. Carteret will unfold that business more at large. I perceive he neither dares write to you nor me, but covertly; for these letters were consigned to a friend at London, and from thence to me, though they came over with the same ship that brought our Admiral's, and laid here some time. You will find that all things are not true that Rainsborough writes. Capt. Lewis Kirke refused to go under his command, so my Lord has put Capt. Trenchfield into the Mary Rose to go upon this service, and has ordered Kirke to go in Trenchfield's ship, the Margaret, to his great discontent. Before our going to Holland, the Nicodemus was sent over by the Admiral and Capt. Johnson with a convoy for Dunkirk, and in his going over [Buller] lost one of his convoy, an Irishman, taken from him by a small frigate of Calais. Now I hear that the master of the Irish vessel is gone to the Lords to complain about it, and sets forth my name in it that I should appoint the convoy, which is false, for I did not so much as know of it. Ever since his Lordship's coming all businesses are managed by himself and those in his own ship. I do not so much as hear of them, except it be at second or third hand; therefore I desire I may have no more laid upon me but my own faults, which

My sons and I send this bearer to give the King and Queen thanks for their favours to their nephews. He will tell you all particulars here, and how ill a welcome my Lord of Warwick has had by the loss of his son, drowned, most unfortunately, at Ramekins. They are now at the siege of Breda, where my son and the Lords that came over with him are going. I am glad your wife is well pleased with my taking your daughter Rupa. [Seals with arms. 1 p.]

July 11. 103. [Archbishop Laud] to Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia. Your Lambeth. letters of June $\frac{1}{2}$ came to my hands as I had delivered mine to the hands of Lord Craven to be conveyed to you in company with both your sons. Your second letters of June $\frac{1}{2}$ are concerning Mrs. Crofts, to second her and her business to the King. Truly this is the hardest business that ever you put upon me, both because his Majesty is not pleased I should trouble him with anything but Church business (and indeed I have enough of that), and because Mrs. Crofts is not satisfied with my seconding her business (which, in obedience to your commands, I am most willing to do), but Mrs. Crofts would have me wholly undertake it. And truly I neither can nor dare do that. So soon as ever I spake with his Majesty about it, I showed him your letters for my warrant, and he instantly told me he had for your sake thought upon something for Mrs. Crofts. So I rested satisfied, hoping all had been well, but afterwards she came to me, and either found that the thing given was mistaken or not answerable to her desires, and so fell back again with more earnestness to have me undertake for her, which certainly I cannot do, but what assistance I can give her I will. July 11. 104. Henry Earl of Holland to Sec. Coke. His Majesty having seen this order, conceives there is a mistaking in the drawing of it up, his purpose being that these fellows should have a public, not a private, punishment (for example to others), that thereby the effects that are desired should follow to terrify and humble these rude and barbarous persons. The inquiry and performance of this his Majesty has commanded me to lay upon you, and to give him an account of it. [Endorsed as "touching the two draymen." See 9th inst., No. 82. 1 p.]

The report printed in Rushworth, Vol. II. p. 438, is a very great enlargement of the speech as given in this MS. Many passages are contained in Rushworth which have no foundation in this report, and passages which are here are omitted there; for example, it appears here that the archbishop suggested the increase of the fine to be payable by Bishop Williams to Sir John Monson from 1,000 marks, as proposed by others of the Lords, to 1,000*l.* He agreed with the rest of the judges in 10,000*l.* fine to the King, also imprisonment and suspension of Bishop Williams ab officiis et beneficiis. The poor man is very solicitous for redress, and has been directed to us here, upon this ground, that my Lord [of Northumberland] has order to take the barks of Calais. I have advised him not to build upon that, for if his loss be, as he says, 2,000*l.*, all the barks belonging to Calais will not repair him. I have counselled him to make his repair to Court, either to the Secretaries of State or the Lords Commissioners for their letters to the Earl of Leicester, for recovery of his right; which, if he cannot obtain, he may peradventure procure letters of marque. Thus much, at his earnest entreaty, desiring you to assist him as a work of charity. [1 p.]

117. Charles Louis, Prince Elector, to Sir Thomas Roe. I add neither dear, honest, nor worthy, for you are all the good I can imagine, and if I would give it all one name it should be yours. I was as loath to part from you (not from England) as you were sorry to leave me, for besides my knowledge of your worth and zeal to my cause, I never received so much contentment by any man's conversation, which I must not hope for suddenly, except the King give you an employment that way I wish for, which will be very necessary, since we hear the Swedes are forced to retire for want of power and victuals; and there is no certainty yet of the Chancellor's coming over; but you will hear all by Berkeley, who is upon his return for England, with a reasonable good answer, as the bearer will tell you. In the rest of my business your assistance is as necessary as I know you are willing to give it, especially to press the Earl of Holland to hasten the French to do that which the King's minister here has begun with this state. I find many difficulties for the meeting at Hamburgh, that I believe all the confederates will desire to have it here. The states of Sweden have intimated that if the King would enter into a stricter confederation with them, they would send a plenipotens to Camerarius to treat thereupon at the Hague, and I hear that they are not willing to give the Chancellor so full a power for the direction of the German affairs as he demands. I pray you continue to make much of the Lord Marquis, and write me word if my friends are as forward in my business in my absence as when I was with them. I think it the chiefest part of my misfortune to want power to give you proofs of my love. [Seal with arms. 3 pp.]

118. Charles Louis, Prince Elector, to Archbishop Laud. I am so sensible of your extraordinary respects to me in England, that it is my only affliction (since his Majesty has put my business in so good a way) not to be able to acknowledge it enough. Besides, your counsel and affection have caused such satisfaction in me, that I am confident the same care will always prevail to further any business which shall concern my good. What I have more to say I have committed to the bearer. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

119. News-letter of C. Rossingham. Order to send Bastwick, Burton, and Prynne to their remote prisons, with restrictions to be imposed upon them. Report that the minister of Shoreditch delivered in his sermon that they all incurred damnation which thought well of these three. This made divers go out of the church, for the common people are extremely compassionate towards them. Dr. Leighton, who has lain in the Fleet seven years for the like offences, is also to be removed to some remote prison. Lord Mohun's son committed to the Fleet for drawing his sword on Ludgate Hill and hurting Lord Lumley, who sat quietly in his coach. The King has ordered him to be proceeded against in the Star Chamber. Particulars of the deposition in Bishop Williams's case, which concerned Sir John Monson, with account of Parson Catlin; Attorney-General's reply in that case; the Bishop's application to the King by the Marquis of Hamilton, but the King declined to interfere until after sentence. Long report of the sentence, and especially of the speeches of Lord Cottington, Archbishop Laud, and the Lord Keeper. Marriage of Lord Russell with Lady Ann Carr, with all possible privacy. It was kept at Mr. Carr's house, right against the Burse in the Strand. [4 pp.]

120. Isaac Pennington to his cousin, Sir John Pennington. Repeats the contents of his letter of the 28th June (Vol. ccclxii., No. 68), which he supposes not to have been delivered, and adds further particulars of the business to which that letter related. "News I have not any worth your knowledge, neither is it safe to write of anything that passes. All the discourse is now of the great Star Chamber business, of which passages I know you shall have better information than I can give you; but this I can report for a truth, for thereof I am both an eye and an ear witness, these proceedings cause much dejection amongst many good and loyal subjects, make

I have sent up my man with a petition, and entreat you or Sir John Brooke to deliver it. P.S.—Mr. Glapthorne remembers his service to you, who told me of your pains to Sec. 125. Colonel Thomas Ferentz to Sir Thomas Roe. Captain Cafe ought not to return without bearing to you the assurance of my thanks for the favours received from you during my stay in England. He will inform you of the dangers of our passage, and the commencement of our treaty, which is delayed by the absence of the Prince of Orange on a very difficult siege, during which he will be very unwilling to displease England. It is strange on the part of France that the conclusion of the treaty has not yet been announced; on the contrary the ambassador Charnassé does bad offices, striving to make it be believed that the intentions of the English are not honest, and that they do not design to do anything. It were well if his Majesty complained of those proceedings to France, to stop the mouth of this babler. Mr. Cafe will inform you what answer has been given in Sweden to Mr. Berkeley, in case he shall not have arrived in England. It has been communicated to us by Mons. Camerarius, and agrees with what was answered by Mr. Fleetwood, promising to treat at the Hague, and to join to Camerarius some ambassador extraordinary from Sweden. The design of meeting at Hamburgh is not agreeable to them for various reasons which are here stated. The Elector Palatine will pass the remainder of the summer with the army to witness this great siege, and advance as much as he can his private affairs, hoping that his friends in England will continue their good offices with the King, and make a beginning with the business of the West Indies. 3. Charles Earl of Nottingham to the Lords of the Admiralty. My deputy Vice-Admiral of Sussex, being at London, received the enclosed letter concerning a ship cast away near Seaford, one of the cinque ports. It appears divers of the goods were taken out of the ship at sea by small boats by the inhabitants of Seaford, and there landed, whereby I cannot execute any commission in that town, because the Lord Warden claims them to belong to him. The ship and goods are of good value. I desire you to send me such as you think fitting, to the end the King may receive the benefit thereof. [Seal with crest. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Annexed,

3. I. Thomas Paynter to William Marlott, at the King's Head, Southwark, or at Richard Gould's house in Fenchurch Street. Last night I received news by a Dover man of a ship cast on shore at Seaford, and this morning I went thither, where I find a ship, by all likelihoods of Ham-burgh, of about 300 tons, which came out of the Straits, and has met with some enemy, which after they had pil-laged her of all the rich goods, cut two great holes in the side of the ship to sink her, but being laden with oils it bore the ship, and these winds put her ashore. She first grounded far off at low water, and Seaford boats went aboard and brought ashore various bales of silks. The next high water brought her to the gravel, and various other goods were saved by those of Seaford. There was a dead man found aboard with his head shot off; and by his state it appears that the ship has driven long at sea. I think the Lord Treasurer's warrant may be got to take the goods for the customs, and to pay salvage. Shoreham, 13th July 1637. [Seal with monogram. 1 p.]

Cousin Warwick may twitch it in verse, but trip upon trap if you relate thereof in prose. Hull and Hull on, but no "Bownce upon Bownce." 6. Francis Bassett to the same. Last term I signified the payment of such money to Mr. Thomas Wyan as was due on my account. I also showed you that I had not despatched the commands of the Lords concerning Mr. Arundel of Chideock's encroachment on the Admiralty, for that the judge, Mr. Byrd, was held in London, waiting on Lord Mohun in Star Chamber. I hear he is returned, and I will give a diligent despatch to it. I also appealed to you against Mr. Gowran [?], an officer to the Prince, who claims all wrecks throughout Cornwall. We hear of great wars. I have two brothers soldiers, stout and honest men, James and Arthur; I beseech you to dispose of one of them. [1 p.]

Petition of Sackville Porter and Thomas Elphick, on behalf of themselves and other inhabitants of Seaford, Sussex, to Sir John Manwood, lieutenant of Dover Castle, and Dr. Thomas Rives, King's Advocate and Judge of the Admiralty of the cinque ports. A ship laden with goods of great value, having been in a sea fight, and having never a man left alive, was lately driven upon the rocks at Seaford, and there beaten to pieces. Petitioners, with great peril of their lives, saved goods to the value of 2,000*l*. Pray that according to former usage you will allow them half the goods in kind so saved. [1 p.]

John Man, captain of the Discovery, of London, by virtue of a letter of reprisal, about two months since took, 1½ mile from shore, two ships of Hamburgh, called the Pelican and the Salvador, which were freighted at Lisbon for Dover. Petitioners esteeming their ships in safety, and alleging a case of a merchant of Bristol, who having laden his goods in a ship of Holland which was met by a Dunkirker three miles from the King's main shore, and was taken to Dunkirk and there adjudged prize, notwithstanding the Bristol merchant, finding the Dunkirker within the jurisdiction of the English Court of Admiralty, arrested him and obtained judgment against him for restitution. Also, the Lords of the Admiralty declared, in articles dated 24th March 1636-7, that none by letters of reprisal should take ships but upon the high seas. If ships are to be taken within sight of Dover, it will redound to the King's loss of 20,000*l.* per annum. Pray relief. [¾ p.] Underwritten,

July 20. 22. [Sir Thomas Roe] to Anne Countess of Northumberland. I was yesterday at Court to learn which way your and my lord bent his course. That he is yet in the Downs you and we know, and that he will make one turn to the west in an honourable procession, to continue the boundaries of our master's dominion in the sea, is all I believe will be imposed upon him, which is very much too little for his worth, and has no content in it, but that it will soon be ended, and bring him home to you by the equinoctial, till when I wish your thoughts so, that you neither count months nor days but by the pleasures you enjoy in them. Your absence has made these parts so unconvertible, that I am going next week to seek some strength, which I much need, at the Bath. On my return, I will

29. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sec. Windebank. In pursuit of the command for taking vessels belonging to Calais, I fitted out a small ship and a frigate to look after them, at the time that a convoy went over for Dunkirk. As they passed within sight of Calais, two frigates came forth. The two vessels that I employed kept at a great distance from the convoy, and when they saw the frigates come out, they endeavoured to get between Calais and them. When they came nearer together, and the frigates perceived what they intended, they presently used all means to get home again, which our vessels, going much worse than theirs, could not prevent. They chased them so close that they were once resolved to run ashore, but finding their advantage in sailing, at last saved themselves by getting into their own harbour, and I believe will be so cautious that we shall not suddenly get any of them. The Mary Rose and pinnace set sail towards Saltee yesterday morning. On Monday last 15 frigates came out of Dunkirk, notwithstanding the Holland fleets riding in that road; and the next spring-tide 14 ships of two and three hundred tons apiece intend to come forth. The Prince of Orange had a design upon Bruges, which should have been betrayed to him; he had corrupted one of the officers who had delivered out the powder, which should have been wet, but this was discovered and the party fled. The Prince is set down with his army before Breda. If you think these particulars worthy his Majesty's knowledge, present them to him. 30. Richard Wyan to Nicholas. I gave the Lord Treasurer a note of the business about the moneys in the Isle of Wight, since which time I got the sentence put into execution for the King, so that all is cleared but the pretence of my Lord of Portland and [William] Newland for salvage, which I wish were ordered by the Lords, that I might have warrant to pay it and be discharged. By two lines to my house in London I will attend at any time or place. Entreats Nicholas to cast his eye on an enclosed petition, and either burn or dispose of it as he judges fittest. P.S.—A great ship has lately sunk near the Isle of Wight in fight with the Dunkirkers, being a Straitsman of Amsterdam, laden with oils and other goods very rich. would fall sua mole. But I am also informed that his Majesty is constant to his own wisdom that there is no other way to humble the enemy, so that it shall not sleep, for this week I shall be able to wait, and will put it to a further trial. My cousin Berkeley is returned from Sweden, and has brought an answer, the copy whereof I send his Highness. The substance is that the State has promised to give commission to Camerarius, their ambassador at the Hague, to treat with his Majesty's and the French ministers there, and if it be necessary they will order Dr. Salvius from Hamburgh to assist them, which in my opinion is very cold. The delay now rests with Mr. Avery, who was commanded to incite the Swedes to subscribe to the treaty and come into the league. The Swedes think themselves worthy to have a part in the counsels as well as in the ends, and will have articles particular for themselves. The Chancellor has determined no more to return into Germany, and will draw all the regiment into his own hands. It is said that Bannier is beaten, at least retired a pace to Stettin, the next door to pass the Baltic. If the commission sent to Mr. Avery do not imprint deeper in the Swedes the jealousy that we mean nothing but delays, you may expect instructions given to Sir William Boswell to treat with Camerarius and the residents at the Hague, which will introduce an accommodation of the fishing, secure the seas for them, and confirm a good intelligence with the Crown of England. But I fear the slowness of all, if the Queen and Prince use not all their power to quicken the treaty. The place will make no difference, so the proceeding be sound and real. [Copy. 2 pp.]

36. Kenrick Edisbury to Nicholas. Thomas Seavern, boatswain of the Third Whelp, is able to execute that place in any of the great ships. Having received information that Crozier, the boatswain of the Constant Reformation, is dangerously sick, he is a suitor for that place, if it falls. The Nicodemus came to Chatham river last night, and this morning the master brought the Earl of Northumberland's warrant to the Officers of the Navy, that if she could be made serviceable in a few days, to return her again to the fleet, otherwise to certify her state to the Lords of the Admiralty. The master informs me that she is weak and leaky, and was in great danger of sinking before she came in. You shall hear what the Officers conceive fit to be done with her. [Seal with arms. ½ p.]

July 23. 38. Lord Treasurer Juxon and Francis Lord Cottington to the King. Report on an application to his Majesty of Sir William Killigrew for a grant of certain quantities of fen land. He petitions for a reward for his father's [Sir Robert's] and his own interest in the soil of the Eight Hundred Fen, and their services towards draining it. He pretends that his father, searching into the records about William Lockton's title, found the King's title thereto, whereupon his father and Mr. Kirke became suitors for the King's interest therein, but the King having resumed the lands into his own hands, he is now a suitor for 600 acres in fee-farm at 50*l.* rent, although, as we before certified, those 600 acres are worth 13*s.* 4*d.* per acre for a lease of seven years only, and are afterwards improvable. His services in draining the Eight Hundred Fen he derives from letters of your Majesty to his father, whereof no use was ever made, and says it was by his father's care the Eight Hundred Fen was separated from the Great Level. He has prevailed, and the moneys are at your disposal. Beseeches you to consider

[Sir Thomas Roe] to Prince Charles Louis, Elector Palatine. Having written my thoughts to Mons. Ferentz, and not having seen the Court since I left you, I will not trouble you with repetitions. I will not doubt that you have an account of my cousin Berkeley's return from Sweden, and his answer, which I will supply by the next. The substance is a recapitulation of what they had done in the common cause, and the offers made by Colonel Fleetwood; and that they will give commission to Mons. Camerarius, and, if need require it, send Dr. Salvius. But I perceive that they make very dainty, and aim at aid of money. What alteration the directions given to Mr. Avery will produce I leave to your judgment. Sure I am they will have a share in the treaty, and that there is none in Germany authorized to give Avery an answer, for the not coming of the Chancellor has changed the scene; and if we stay until another return it will be dangerous. Therefore, give me leave to be constant to my point, that it behoves you to quicken and settle the meetings; and for the place, the Hague will be most for despatch. I shall be able to go to the Court next week, and from thence be better furnished to serve you. [Copy. See this present Volume, No. 35. 1 p.]

41. Complaint of Bartram Sharper, William Francklin, Browne Bushell, and Richard Reugs, against Capt. Richard Buller. The Concord, of Drogheda, laden with hides, tallow, and butter, was agreed to be convoyed to Dunkirk, Sir John Pennington sending the [Nicodemus], Capt. Buller, for that purpose. When in Calais Road, a small man-of-war came forth, who bearing to leeward, Capt. Buller shot two pieces of ordnance at him, which he returned, the captain standing on the poop and shaking his sword against Capt. Buller, and bidding him "Strike, rogue!" whereupon Capt. Buller hasted away, and the Frenchman came in amongst the fleet, boarded the Concord in presence of all the fleet, and carried him

Answer of Capt. Richard Buller to the preceding complaint. When the man-of-war came off the shore, the wind being at S. and by W., he was at windward of me, and the fleet under my lee. I being come within shot, made two at his flag; he returned me the like, and so we fought almost two hours. Then he tacking, I endeavoured the like, having called to those of my convoy to make way ahead; but they most struck their topsails and stayed, and so environed me that I could not bear up to the man-of-war, nor stay, nor make shot at him for the fleet, but was forced to hale my topsails abackstays to fall astern of them before my ordnance could bear on him. In the meantime the Irishman, being the leewardmost of all, the man-of-war laid her aboard, I not being then able to come to his rescue, and ere I could come, they, having manned the prize, steered several courses, so that, had I followed either, the other might have taken whom he listed of the fleet, insomuch as I was then able to interpose myself only to him which I saw went about to steer up to the fleet, and in this manner I fought with them, until at length I made them both leave me. Scarborough. 45. Captain Richard Fielding to Sec. Windebank. According to instructions, I have been northwards amongst the busses. I came amongst them the 18th July. One of the men-of-war came and lay by the lee by me. I sent for the captain, who came on board and told me that there were some six or seven hundred sail, and desired me that I would speak with his admiral before I sent for the busses. The 20th I spoke with the Admiral of South Holland and the Commander of North Holland, and showed them wherefore I was commanded amongst them. The 21st all the commanders of North and South Holland, and of Zealand, with three other captains, told me that they durst not let my boat pass amongst the busses to give out his Majesty's licences before they had order from their masters. This was their answer, but I could not get it under their hands. I found the busses very willing, for I had given out two licences before I spoke with the men-of-war. My instructions were, not to compel them, which order I have followed. The 21st, when I had their answer, I made for the next port of England, being at the same time as high as "Buffen Nesse" [Buchan Ness]. As I stood along I heard some shooting ; I stood with the smoke, where I found one of the States men-of-war engaged among 13 Dunkirkers. Before I came within shot the States man-of-war sank. I sent off my boat to save some men, but could not, although my men took up five, but they were dead ; so that I commanded them to be heaved overboard, with the ceremonies of our Church. The Dunkirkers took in their flag and stood away before the wind so soon as they made my colours ; the States men-of-war followed with the writer, but they could not fetch them up, or would not. The States have there 23 men-of-war, but no more than 15 stood with the Dunkirkers ; the rest kept with the busses. When I saw I could not keep them company, I stood for Scarborough, from whence I will make towards my General. [Seal with arms. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ pp.]

47. Sir Thomas Roe to Edward Viscount Conway and Killultagh. Pains and the gout have kept me in ignorance and solitude. Your servant is very modest and laborious. I scarce know he is in the house, if I seek him not in the study. What he finds there the catalogue shall tell you ; more, I fear, in number than weight. My manuscript is not yet arrived, being delivered to the servant of Mons. Batier, while he was sent to England, and I must stay his return or some express. I received the enclosed from my friar. As a curiosity, and because England is no air for any libel, I send it you to sea, that it may find salt there; it has gall enough. I wonder how they keep their ears in France, or whether their hair abuse us not. My Lord Finch would suspect any of that nation if he had seen this paper and considered their locks. I received from Holland that Breda cannot long resist being disfurnished of garrison and corn. At Court the French say Landrecy is taken. The design of a West India Company continues. Lord Russell has his love, and the Duke of Lennox is near the same happiness, expected a Sunday last, deterred I know not why. The fall of my Lord of Lincoln is matter for the captain. I had rather choose the part of Ahimaaz, who was a good man, and forbore to tell the ill news ; but my part of the story shall be that my Lord of Canterbury yesterday delivered a petition from him to his Majesty. If they have done this ad correctionem, not ad ruinam, they have kept the bounds of their court, for the staves are guides to safety. I am going to the Bath. Report upon a reference of the 2nd March last (see Vol. cccxlii., No. 22), upon the claim of the Earl of Portland, Vice-Admiral of the Isle of Wight, to the moiety of a wreck of money lately found in his Vice-Admiralty. All vice-admirals challenge the moiety of such droits as belonging to their offices, and I understand by the registrar that upon their accounts they have been allowed. Such fraction of these casualties would prove no disservice to his Majesty, if vice-admirals did their duty and kept their sessions, which the Earl of Portland lately did to his great charge, and so that the like had not been seen of long time. The last Lord Treasurer was hardly induced to afford a tenth of the profit of the Black Eagle to the Vice-Admiral of Essex, because the owners forbore to interpose out of an expectation of his Majesty's grace towards them, whereof they were not frustrated. The Isle of Wight is apt to be fruitful of such perquisites, and if the Vice-Admiral receive no good encouragement, his Majesty may suffer hereafter. [1 p.]

60. Sir Henry Marten to Nicholas. Report on the cases of the Company of Shipwrights of Rotherhithe and the Brotherhood of London. By them Nicholas may see that Mayden and Hooke are resolved to stand out, and that the city of London will defend them. I must return them back to the Lords myself, having no power to compel them. But, because the Lords require me to send my opinion, it being a business so much importing the general good of the kingdom, that all the shipwrights should live under a uniform government, as now regulated by the King's charter, my opinion inclines to the shipwrights' desire. 67. Petition of William Ayre to Archbishop Laud. Acknowledges with much humility the fault for which he had been sentenced to imprisonment. It was committed suddenly, in a fit of extreme passion, at a time when he had no money to feed and clothe his little ones, and in a blind and indiscreet zeal for Church, State, and Commonwealth, which he doubts not the archbishop, out of his well-rectified zeal to all three (so fully expressed in his Wanstead sermon, and at other times), will excuse. The King he much less doubts, for notwithstanding the litigiousness of people and their complainings, yet not one ill thought is harboured by any against him. Alludes to the failures of the parliaments of James and the present sovereign, and states that from hearing the causes of Lord Mohun, Sir James Bagg, and the Bishop of Lincoln, he fears they were all mischievously crossed by factious humours. The archbishop has done well in sending some of the ringleaders far out of London, and silencing some others, and has shown his desire for peace by avoiding snappings and snarlings among Christian brethren. As he has so well begun to yield some things on his side, the writer prays that some things may be consented to on the other, and that "our good Urbanus, pius atque beatus, as well as pacificus, will yield to the archbishop what he shall desire for settling unity in the Church of Christ. He has sent over a precursor, a messenger of peace and unity, for removing the infamy from Christendom of so great dissensions among Christians." Prays the archbishop to release him from that ignominious and loathsome prison, and he will forbear all writing or speaking in future. Alludes to the Earl of Dorset and the Lord Privy Seal, as likely to favour him, and the Countess of Devonshire will relate that he is no knave, at worst a fool, nor yet a dangerous scripturian papist as he that so devilishly interpreted the Revelation. 68. Sir Kenelm Digby to Edward Viscount Conway and Killultagh. I will obey your commands for the books and Burgundy wine, and address all to Sir John Wolstenholme. I have been in the country upon occasion of a dangerous sickness of my mother, but now she is well recovered. The King and Queen will be in London on Thursday to assist at the Duke's marriage; but I believe there will not be so great flocking of the people to see it, as was this last week to accompany Mr. Prynne and Mr. Burton's pilgrimage to their stations in the country, nor [any evidence of the marriage] be kept with such veneration as the Puritans keep the bloody sponges and handkerchiefs that did the hangman service in the cutting off their ears. You may see how nature leads men to respect relics of martyrs. The Lord Privy Seal came last Sunday to Court in a fine ape's coat, to take his leave of the King and Queen, and his son Wat, pretending to show him the house, took much pains show him to the house, who I will undertake had not of a long time seen so proper a squire and so comely clad. July 27. 69. Thomas Barnard to the Officers of the Ordnance. Receivers of our rents and revenues enter into their accounts yearly in Hilary term, finish the same before the following 10th March, and make payment of their balances before the 20th of the same March, upon pain of forfeiture of their offices and 4*d.* in the pound for every day they shall detain the money. Commission to inquire as to the not duly accounting of Thomas Snyth, receiver of the Duchy of Cornwall, and of Agmondesham Pickayes, Receiver-General of Norfolk and Huntingdon. July 28 76. Sir Robert Bannister, Sheriff of co. Northampton, to the Passenham. Council. Having received their letter of 27th inst., requiring payment of ship-money rated upon that county before the end of August, or in default to appear before the Council the first Sunday in September, informs them that upon complaint made by two hundreds of the inequality of the rates, the Lords on the last of April appointed that they should make choice of two, and he of other two, as referees to settle the same, or certify the Bishop of Peterborough. The first day appointed for meeting, the writer and referees came to Northampton, where they lost their journey, no referees meeting for the hundreds; since which they have had divers meetings, and have resolved on nothing but to make certificate to the bishop. The country by that means being so distracted, not knowing what alterations might be made, have ever since paid little more. His suit is, that he may be spared his attendance the first Sunday in September, or that he may proceed according to the taxes he has laid upon the county, wherein if it appear that he has proceeded corruptly or affectionately, he will suffer any punishment. If alterations be made, it will distract his Majesty's service and raise many petitions to the Lords, divers hundreds having paid a great part of their money. It was the case last year, that Sir Francis Crane, Sir Hatton Farmor [Fermor], and the writer, petitioning to be relieved of a tax by the one half more than could be justified, they were first ordered to pay the money, which they did, and then they had the Lords' letters to the Justices of Assize to examine the business, whereby the service was no way delayed. 77. Sir Robert Bannister, Sheriff of co. Northampton, to Sir Henry Vane, Comptroller of the Household. Thanks for Sir Henry's noble favour to Mr. Crane on the writer's behalf. Sends a journal of passages in the shipping business in co. Northampton during the writer's shrievalty. Explains the principles upon which he made his assessment. How it has been opposed by two hundreds out of twenty, his journal must speak. 78. Officers of the Navy to the Lords of the Admiralty. There are divers decayed and unuseful materials which may be sold for his Majesty's advantage, and which now pester the storehouses, all which may be worth 700*l.* or 800*l.* We advise you to dispose of them, the sooner the better. We have also long since besought you to require certificate from the Officers of the Ordnance what quantity of old cordage should be delivered for wadding of ordnance for one ship of every rank for six months' service, to the end we may in our office know what proportions to deliver the gunners for store at the ships' going out to sea, and the rather for that their demands increase much above precedents in Queen Elizabeth's time and since. 79. John Ashburnham to Nicholas. I was at my brother's when your man came to my house. I thank you for sending the writings, and likewise for the trust you repose in me in desiring to have that part which concerns yourself deferred till our next meeting, which though I hope it will not be long, yet I resolve not to do, for we are all mortal, and I should be sorry to go to my grave with a possibility of having left my friend incommodated for me the hair of his head. I beg I may see you and your wife at my farm, and that by the next return he will name the day when the coach shall come for her. I have written my excuse to Mr. Price, and have pressed your necessity of having it, and I hope you will endeavour the getting it from Lord Keenoule [Kinnoul]. [1 p.]

resolve till he may speak with you, which he desires as soon as you can with safety. If it be necessary that his Majesty be moved about the jurisdiction of Westminster, if you prepare a bill, his Grace will get it signed on Sunday next. P.S.—Doth not my Lord's Grace bestow all benefices in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln? If so, procure a catalogue of them. [This P.S. has been struck out.] 2nd P.S.—His Grace has dashed out this idle question. I would not for 40s. he should have turned over the leaf. 3rd P.S.—Present my best respects to your host and hostess and Mr. Williamson, with many thanks for their kindness to me. And if you please to peruse this letter from H. Jenour you will see in what case I am likely to be, therefore send me the true ring. At Mr. Baker's I imagine you have but little to do, and therefore I shall fit you with work. [1 p.] Written on the other leaf of the sheet,

80. 1. William Dell to Sir John Lambe. I see there is no hope of your coming to Croydon this week, and therefore I make bold to present you with a taste of our rural pleasures, seen and described by a rustical poet as he made two or three turns by the wood's side. There follow Latin lines, commencing,—

Sacula, nam et quercus roscida mella dabunt."*

The lines on country pleasures are followed by various allusions to an assumed affection of Dell for Barbara Lambe, a daughter of Sir John, by whom, as well as by her father, he pretends to have been denied. [1 p.]

July 28. 81. Notes by Mark Thomas respecting various quantities of oil probably obtained from the ship wrecked at Seaford. It commences with notice of a quantity found at sea by H. July 28. 82. Sir Thomas Roe to Colonel Ferentz. I have let his Majesty know the advantage of occasion by you intimated, and the good offices of Mons. Charnassé. That the Hague is the fittest place of convention I agree fully, for the absence of the Chancellor Oxenstiern has changed the design. Nothing is more necessary for the Elector than to hasten the meeting, for if the ambassador blot us at the Hague, they speak the same language at Paris, for there they lay all delay upon us, of which they only have been guilty. I wrote to you by Sir Simon Harcourt of 22nd of this month, since which is arrived Colonel Ruthen with new overtures from the Swedes, such as he says were never made to the Crown of England. What they are I cannot penetrate, he following his Majesty the last week. That they are the fruits of fear since their retreat into Pomerland will make them, though less acceptable, more necessary to be embraced. But I cannot believe much in the wine when I consider the bottle, for I never understood him a man portable of much business. [States his own visit to Court on the previous Sunday, and the position of the business of the West Indies, much as it will be found in a letter to the Elector Palatine of the 29th inst.] If you have a copy of the French treaties, you shall do me a favour if you send them to me by a safe hand; they shall be in safe custody. During my stay at the Bath, direct to Sir Richard Cave to keep for me. I received a letter from Dr. Spina, to which he may expect some reply to-morrow. It was a mere error, and no misinterpretation of his Majesty. He shall have real assurance that he stands right in England. [Copy. 2 pp.]

Cranford. My Lord of Holland assures me that order is gone to the French ambassador at the Hague to co-operate in the perfection of the treaty. You must set all your strength to procure the meeting, and then I doubt not of a good issue; and there is nothing that I would more willingly do than serve his Majesty on this occasion, if he resolve not to use Sir William Boswell alone. I troubled you with a few lines by Sir Simon Harcourt on the 23rd. In the last clause of the answer of the Swedes, they desire to know beforehand what shall be proposed to them, which points directly at conditions for themselves; yet they may abate somewhat of their height being driven near up in Germany, for Colonel Ruthen speaks of noble offers which you will receive from Lord Hamilton, for he had not opened his budget when I was last at Court. His Majesty shows cheerfulness and constancy in his purpose to aid you. In Paris they continue to cast dirt and lay their fault upon us. It is great cunning to accuse another beforehand of the ill they purpose to commit, to divert the eyes of the world another way. The Swedes formalized at the style of your letter to the Queen "Carolus, &c.," to which Mr. Berkeley was not prepared to answer. My opinion is that somewhat should be done to supple that stiff nation, especially to a lady much more capable of love and courtesy than forms of state. In punctilios no nation is so zealous; like a new gentleman who never thinks he has worship enough. There is no hope of the return of the Chancellor into Germany. He is ambitious to govern both the Queen and State. He breeds a second son almost in the light of a prince, and has thoughts of a higher strain than ordinary. On Sunday last I went to Court. I found my Lord Marshal and the Chamberlain constant in the West India design, and they assured me his Majesty was constant if he saw his nobility and gentry really undertake it; but the progress beginning, they laid the charge upon me to make a frame against the return to Windsor. This I have undertaken. I beseech you by the Prince of Orange to procure me a brief model of the form of that company in Holland. [Enters at great length

Sir Thomas Roe to Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia. The design of Hamburgh is happily changed to the Hague, where all our ends and desires will meet, except the presence of the Chancellor Oxenstiern, which I much affected; but he has other ambitions of his own greatness, and there is nothing to do but to hasten the convention, wherein the French will find no excuse upon his Majesty. This is the season, if the States can see it, to oblige his Majesty, and to disperse by this confederacy all the clouds of ill intelligence, and to assure the concurrence of the Crown of England against the common enemy. I am going to seek a little strength at the Bath, that I may be the better able if his Majesty please to use me in this occasion, for I will fly and leave my lameness behind me, and proclaim to all the world that there is no such cure as to be employed in your service. 85. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sec. Windebank. This afternoon I receive a letter from Capt. Fielding, who is now riding in Margate Road, the foulness of the weather not suffering him to get hither. He sends me word that the fishers have refused the licences, and that he has given you account thereof. The Dunkirk frigates have done much mischief towards the west. In one morning at Torbay they put on shore 130 Frenchmen; two Hollanders they have sunk in those parts, and fired some others. His Majesty's ships rescued the other day two Holland ships homeward bound and richly laden from Farnambuke [Pernambuco], which, without their help, had been taken by those frigates. My desire that this letter may find you to-morrow at Oatlands makes me hasten it away. [1 p.]

Stradling has said he was sorry he had stayed him, and told him the Lord General would give order for his liberty, and that his goods perish and will come to nothing. Petition of Anne Cole, wife of Gr. Cole, to the King. Petitioner setting forth in her former petition her willingness to yield to your Majesty her jointure in the lands sold by her husband within the New Park near Richmond, supplicated your Majesty for the wardship of her son, in case her husband should happen to die and leave him within age. Now fearing her former request may be conceived to be a recompence for the said jointure, petitioner disclaims any such intention, but wholly refers herself to your bounty. Beseeches your Majesty to consider her accordingly, who wishes she may never enjoy the benefit which cannot accrue during the life of her husband, who is neither aged nor sickly, only as a token of your Majesty's favour, and for the quiet of her mind she prays this request. Notes by Nicholas of business to be transacted by the Lords of the Admiralty. Peruse letters and certificates from Sir Henry Marten and the Officers of the Navy, upon references to them. Consider an order touching the survey of castles and forts taken by the Earl of Newport; also Sir Henry Marten's report touching the Earl of Portland, calendared under the 25th inst., No. 55. There claim to be rewarded out of this, Newland, Richard Wyan, Dr. Mason, Thomas Wyan; the Lords are engaged that all these shall be satisfied. Resolve what shall be done about Polhill's business upon Sir Henry Marten's reports. Consider Capt. Butler's petition for release. There are a few petitions in hand these three weeks and more. 94. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sec. Windebank. The Mayflower, now in his Majesty's service, has brought hither two sloops of Calais, which she found pilfering about Dunkirk upon the 27th inst. One of them in her sight boarded a Hamburgh hoy, which the captain of the Mayflower thought not fit to suffer unquestioned. Being amongst the sands he could not come near them with his ship, but manned out his two boats, and so rowed up to them. The hoy was chased in thither by this sloop, all her letters being directed to merchants of Dover, and her goods consigned for that place. The master of the sloop said that part of the hoy's lading being powder and shot, he conceived her to be bound for Dunkirk, and that those letters and cockets were only to disguise the matter. Because I would be more assured of the truth, I sent for the merchants of Dover to whom the goods were said to be consigned, who all affirm that really they were to come first to

Dover. Nothing appearing to the contrary, I have released the hoy and sent her to Dover, conditionally that these merchants shall be answerable for all that is in her; but having received order for staying vessels of Calais, I could not discharge this sloop without direction. The other sloop, the captain said, did the same evening, in sight likewise of his Majesty's ship, rifle an English bark, laden with oranges and lemons, from London. The sloop being pursued by his Majesty's ship, had no way to save herself, but to fly for sanctuary to the Holland fleet that was riding there; she run aboard the Vice-Admiral, to whom our captain sent to demand her; they would return no answer until a Council of War was called, which being ended, they absolutely refused to deliver her. The Hollanders then took all things out of her, not leaving so much as a sail, and then veered her out at his stern; in this manner the captain found her, and brought her away with him. These relations I leave to his Majesty's consideration. A ship that arrived there from St. Lucar brings news that the new town of Sallee is certainly rendered up to the Saint, for before this merchant came away they had letters that it could no longer hold out, and that in three or four days it would be yielded up, but what conditions Capt. Rainsborough has made, the letters mention not. The ship that came out with the letter of marque against the French took the other day a ship coming home from the Bank [Newfoundland]. According to yours of the 27th inst., I have taken care for release of the three Dunkirk prisoners at Dover. [Copy. 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ pp.]

We are suitors to you to take us into your consideration in the part we are to bear with Middlesex in the shipping-money the next year, and the rather, for that God has laid his heavy hand of the plague upon us, not only the last year, but also at present, whereby the increase of the poor and the charge is extreme, the ordinary sort of inhabitants being much burthened, and the better sort having removed their habitations. 101. Petition of Richard Hinde, B.D., and minister of Long Ditton, Surrey, to Archbishop Laud. About two years and nine months since, petitioner was placed by the bishop of the diocese and his chancellor to officiate there during the suspension of Richard Byfield, the incumbent. Petitioner has received many indignities from Sir Thomas Evelyn, patron of the said church, and his lady and family, which he passed over with silence until Friday the 7th inst., when, having read morning prayer in the said church, Dame Ann Evelyn, wife of Sir Thomas, immediately after divine service ended, came out of her seat, and using some words with an angry countenance to the parish clerk, she turned to the seat where petitioner still remained, and with a loud voice and disdainful gesture, in the presence of the congregation, uttered these words, "You are a base man, and a base unworthy priest; you have abused me basely, and your base carriage and usage of me shall not any longer be endured." Whereupon petitioner mildly admonished the lady to remember the place where she was, yet she continued reproaching petitioner and others present in the same words, and many other vilifying speeches both in the church and churchyard, which words, spoken without any cause given, and uttered in that public manner and sacred place, petitioner takes to be a great reproach to his ministerial office, a contempt to the priesthood, and an insufferable indignity to the house of God, and deeming it unfit to be silent, and not able to prosecute suit for redress, presents the cause to your Grace to order as you shall think fit. 102. Robert Viscount Kilmorey to the same. My late father gave by will 100 marks to Richard Cheshire, and made me sole executor, but I deny that I ought to pay the legacy for these reasons. If it be for me to pay, it must be raised out of my father's lands or goods; not out of his lands, because they came to me by conveyance and as joint purchaser; not out of his goods, because the inventory of them came but to 2,121*l.* 9*s.* 3*d.*, and his debts upon specialties to 3,124*l.* 3*s.*, besides 211*l.* 4*s.* 4*d.* interest due in my father's lifetime. security for, and therefore am not compellable to pay any legacies at all. The truth of this is proved in a cause in Chancery commenced against me for a supposed debt by Mary Townshend. Cheshire should have told you that on 9th July 1633, coming to me for his legacy, I related to him the condition of my father's estate; but, compassionating him, I freely gave him between 18*l.* and 19*l.*, which he received very thankfully, in full satisfaction of all demands. [July ?] 105. Petition of Sir Anthony Buggs to the King. The King had ordered the passing of a lease to petitioner of certain encroached lands in co. Denbigh, formerly found after divers commissions at the suit of petitioner. Forasmuch as his Majesty has not expressed for what term of years the lease should be passed, petitioner, in conformity with a recommendation of the commissioners for Wales touching the granting of such lands, prays for a lease for 31 years. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

[July.] 106. Lord Keeper Coventry to the Keeper of the Castle of Lancaster. To receive from the Warden of the Fleet the body of Henry Burton, who, by decree of the Star Chamber of the 14th June last, is to suffer perpetual imprisonment in the castle of Lancaster, and none to have access to him there but by licence of his Majesty or the Council, and that he keeps him in the said castle, according to the direction of the said decree, and that he takes care that Burton be not admitted at any time during the said imprisonment to have use of pen, ink, or paper, nor of other books but the Bible and Book of Common Prayer, and such other books of devotion as are consonant to the doctrine of the Church of England. July. 107. [Robert] Atherall to [Algernon Earl of Northumberland?]. Complains of the loss his Majesty suffers by the remissness of those who provide cordage for the navy, especially in buying wrought stuff falsely made, in letting his covered rope-house at Woolwich to the East India Company, and buying ropes ready made in open grounds where it is subject to wind, sun, and rain, and in paying an unreasonable price to the rope merchants from whom he buys. So also his Majesty is abused in match, paying 42*l.* a ton for what the writer would supply at 32*l.* if allowed to make it in his Majesty's rope-yard. 109. Petition of Cornelius Gisbets Vango and John le Gouch and Company, of Amsterdam, merchants, to the Lords of the Admiralty. In February 1633–4 the Rose, of Amsterdam, Outgar Martissen master, was cast away in Sussex, near Newhaven, yet eight of the mariners escaped to shore, whereby the ship and goods did not become wreck. Several commissions of inquiry were issued out of the Court of Admiralty, but Jonas Legg, of Colchester, agent for the owners, not being able to produce the marks of the goods which were defaced, Richard Wyan, proctor of the Admiralty, had, without the knowledge of Legg, sent a commission down to prize and sell the goods, to the prejudice of petitioners, the true owners. Pray an order to have their goods restored to them. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

110. The Rev. George Garrard to Edward Viscount Conway and Killultagh. A letter for the most part irrecoverably destroyed by damp. It contained allusions to the recent marriage of Lord Russell, and the approaching marriage of the Duke of Lennox with Lady Mary Herbert [Villiers?]. The only passage that at all approaches completeness is the following:—"The cropt libellers [are all sent] off; warrant sent from the Lords of the Council to the several sheriffs of the counties to receive and place them according to the decree of the Star Chamber. Also Dr. Leighton, who is homo ejusdem farinae, who hath been long a prisoner in the Fleet, he is also ordered to be sent away to some remote part of the kingdom, there to spend the rest of his days in prison. 111. List, in the handwriting of Sir John Lambe, "of the twenty printers for the Star Chamber decree," with notes upon several of them. Of Nicholas Oakes it is said that he was the printer of the book that was lately burnt; his son John Oakes was recommended in his room. Of Augustine Matthews it is stated that he was taken reprinting the Holy Table; Marmaduke Parsons was suggested in his place. William Jones is described as "a printer of all unlawful books," and therefore put out; Thomas Paine may be in his room. [1 $\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

114. Petition of Augustine Matthews to Sir John Lambe, Sir Nathaniel Brent, and Dr. Duck, commissioners concerning the printers of London. Petitioner has for 17 years held a printing-house from John White, son of William White, who was admitted a printer by Archbishop Whitgift, petitioner paying John White 20*l.* per annum for his life. He has paid the same, thinking that under that title he might have enjoyed the printing-house during the life of the said John. Wells.

1. Bishop Pierce, of Bath and Wells, William Bassett, sheriff of Somerset, and John Malet, the late sheriff, to the Council. Report under order of the 20th May last, on complaint of the inhabitants of the hundred of Wellow, Somerset, concerning an over-rate of 40*l.*, alleged to have been imposed upon them by William Coxe, under-sheriff of John Malet, more than was laid upon them by Henry Hodges, the preceding sheriff. We find that the 40*l.* was not imposed upon them by Coxe, but was left in arrear by Hodges, and only demanded by Coxe. Hodges alleged that he imposed the 40*l.* more by warrant; but Brooker, the complainant, denies it, and it has not appeared that any such warrant was received. Therefore we have ordered Hodges to pay the 40*l.*, and be relieved hereafter, when he shall make proof of the delivery of the warrant. Further, we find that by the ancient Henton rate, the hundred of Wellow is to pay for this service after a man and a half, 120*l.*; and the liberty of Norton St. Philip, which is within the said hundred, half a man, which comes to 40*l.*; therefore the hundred and liberty are to find two men, which comes to 160*l.*, and so we have ordered for this year; but whether the liberty shall be joined to the hundred in time to come, we leave to your direction. [1½ p.]

2. The same to the same. Similar report under order of 21st May last (see Vol. ccclvi., No. 7), on the complaint of the inhabitants of the hundred of Chewton. By the ancient Henton rate, Chewton is to pay but for two men, viz., 160*l.*; but by the usual practice of a later rate made by the justices of peace many years ago, the said hundred has found three men, which comes to 240*l.*, and the present sheriff has made the assessment accordingly. Mr. Hodges assessed the hundred at 240*l.*, but altered his account with Mr. Malet after he was out of office, wherein he showed his great weakness, and gave occasion to this complaint. We have ordered 240*l.* to be paid for last year and the present year. Whether it shall be reduced for the time to come, we leave to your direction. [1 p.]

3. The same to the same. Similar report under order of the same day (see Ibid., No. 6), on complaint of the hundred of Milverton. By Henton rate, Milverton was to find two men, viz., in money, 160*l.*; but by a later rate made by the justices of peace it was abated one man, viz., 80*l.*; but on what hundred that one man should be laid the complainants have not showed, therefore we have ordered them to pay 160*l.*, and that that assessment shall continue. 4. The same to the same. Similar report under order of the same date (see Ibid., No. 5), on complaint of the hundreds of Bruton and Norton Ferris. By Henton rate, those hundreds are to pay for four men 320*l.*; but we find a constant practice for many years that those hundreds have paid but a third part of the two hundreds of Horethorne and Catsash, and thereupon they should be eased in the sums complained of. We have ordered for the present despatch of this service that they shall pay the ancient rate of 320*l.* for the last year, whereof much is in arrear, and also the same for this year ; but we conceive they are overcharged, and should be eased according to their complaint. [1 p.]

5. Sec. Windebank to Algernon Earl of Northumberland. Your despatch of the 29th July, finding me at Oatlands, gave me occasion to acquaint his Majesty with it, who commanded me to signify to you, that with such part of the fleet as you shall think fit, you are to stand to the west, and to visit all those coasts, leaving a competent number of ships in the Downs. In your passage you are to give frequent advice of all occurrences, and upon your return to give speedy notice of it. If, in your passage, you understand that any of the fleet may be of use to Capt. Rainsborough at Sallee, you are to send two or three ships thither. And because it appears by your despatch that the Dunkirkers have of late done much mischief to the French and Hollanders, you shall give relief to the subjects and vessels of either of those nations as you shall find them in distress. His Majesty is very well pleased with the rescue of the two Hollanders that came from Fernambuck [Pernambuco]. Nevertheless, if any of the fishers of Holland which have refused his Majesty's licences shall be assaulted by the Dunkirkers, his Majesty will in nowise that you protect them. To this purpose I signified his Majesty's pleasure to you on the 28th July, from Windsor, and then I sent you a letter from his Majesty and a despatch received from Capt. Fielding. His Majesty understands that those of Calais are willing to make restitution of the Irish ship lately taken by them, upon condition that they may have 200*l.* for the charge of the arrest and the remaining of the ship there all this while. His Majesty expects that entire restitution be made of the ship and goods without any such allowance, which is held most unreasonable. The two enclosed are from the Earl of Holland and Mr. Percy, your brother. P.S.—You will give conveyance to the enclosed, written by his Majesty's command to Capt. Rainsborough. [Draft. Endorsed, "Answer to the Earl of Northumberland ; at Bagshot." 3 pp.]

6. Sir William Killigrew to Sec. Windebank. If you knew how nearly I am concerned in these 600 acres you would excuse my boldness, which makes me complain of yourself to yourself, for I plainly see that you are cold for me and warm for Sir William Becher, and to put you in mind that my hopes were built on the favour I expected from you, who delivered my first petition, and procured me a favourable reference, and at that time thought me the first speaker. I thought it better manners in a word to Mr. Reade to express how grateful I would be than to yourself, and the sooner because I had shown that I could be so, in the Earl of Lindsey's compliment to you, which I allowed of merely out of my respects to yourself, for my interest therein is more than the Earl's, or any man's. I shall be as sorry to be justly thought ungrateful as to lose my suit. At the rate Sir William Becher desires it, it will not bear the name of a courtesy ; he offers a valuable consideration. I beseech you to take notice that I will help his Majesty to 400*l.* a

7. Justices of Peace for the North Riding of co. York to the Council of the North. According to your letters of the 10th June last, we cannot find that ever this part of the county has contributed with the bishopric of Durham in any charge; and when the North Riding has had a far greater charge, namely, in leading timber and other materials to his Majesty's house at York, it had no help from that county, and we do not conceive but that that county may as well bear that charge without our help, as we have done a greater without help from them. 8. William Strode to Nicholas. I received your letter with the order. Thanks for your good advice, wherewith I have complied, and given the bishop full satisfaction, which he acknowledged in the presence of the sheriff, but would give me no letter of it to the Lords. He told me he must certify that himself. The charge I have also paid, but to pay for my own goods twice, and the rates besides, I cannot, neither indeed is it demanded of me nor complained on to the bishop, for the money was never out of the constable's hand. That clause and the word "shifts" were not very pleasing to me. For the business, it is worse out of order than ever, the bishop's certificate having so animated the raters (who are the constables) that our tithing from its ancient hundred rate of 11*l.* 4*s.* 0*d.* was first raised to 15*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.* (which was that I complained on and was commanded to pay), and now they have raised it to 20*l.*, and my particular from 18*s.* came to 24*s.*, and now is made 3*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.*, and we are threatened to be raised higher, so that, if this be paid also, we shall have no end of alterations. We conceive the ground of rates to be either law or custom, which alterations will utterly destroy, and those that endeavour them will find it will disorder and hinder his Majesty's service. For the equity of rates, if we are raised where we are thought too little, let our neighbours go with us, and let us be pulled down where we are known to be too much, and such new rates shall very well content me; but to make one pay much and another little, for the like, that can never continue, which is my case. I have hitherto paid more than some of my neighbours that have five times my estates. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

Aug. 1. 11. W. B. to Dr. Turner, at his chamber in Merton College [Oxford]. By the college statutes the writer is bound to denounce the warden to the visitor, if, on account of dilapidation or any other reasonable cause, he ought to be put out. Desires the opinion of Dr. Turner whether it be incongruous to petition the visitor to consider whether the following actions of the warden [Sir Nathaniel Brent] fall within the compass of this statute, as constituting dilapidation or no. The statement comprises seven items of charge, principally arising out of pecuniary transactions between the warden and the college. He had borrowed 120l. to repair a mill demised to him, and after 14 years had not repaid the same. He had put the college to 300l. expense in furnishing a house for him in London, which he quitted in a short time, and the expense was lost. His rendering irrecoverable certain arrears of rents due to the college to the amount of 123l. 4s. 4d. His engaging the college in law suits to the loss of 223l. His omitting to get in 57l. out of 130l. due to the college from some of the company. His suffering the college rents to remain unpaid. Excessive charge to which he has put the college in fuel, the amount last year being 54l. 14s. 6d. more than the college spent in hall and kitchen by 3l. or 4l. [1½ p.]

to the said officers. Sheires refused, saying he had no horse that he could ride, and also refused to use Barker's horse, but in conclusion it was agreed that Barker should go that night to Leatherhead, and that Sheires would call upon him the morning following by seven of the clock, and so both ride together to Chatham. Sheires threatened to question Barker for the execution of this service. Stoke, 14th July 1637. [1 p.]

14. II. Affidavit of Edmund Barker. States the above facts more minutely, and with various additional particulars. Sheires in the first place refused to obey the warrant because he was the King's servant. Instead of performing his promise to ride with Barker from Leatherhead, Sheires left home that morning an hour earlier, and rode to Chatham another way without giving the officer any notice. On Barker's return to Chatham he found Sheires had been there, but was gone away to London, and Barker has been since unable to meet with him. Sworn 17th July 1637. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

On 26th July certificate was sent to the bishop by Thomas Tyrrell and Richard Sherte, clerk, referees for the sheriff. 18. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sec. Windebank. I am preparing to obey his Majesty's directions received by your letter of 1st inst., and resolve to lose no time in plying towards the west. Upon Monday next, at the farthest, I intend with the greatest part of the fleet to set sail if the wind will suffer us. For guard of these parts I leave six or seven ships under Capt. Fogg, unto whom you may direct your despatches. We will be able to make but a short stay in those seas, except the winds afford us a speedy passage thither. The victuals in some of our greatest ships (out of which the Mary Rose and Roebuck were furnished) end 27th Sept.; other ships are provided for a week longer. If no command be sent me to the contrary, I will so order my return that the ships may not want provisions to carry them to the places where they are to be laid up for the winter. It is conceived that the sending more ships to Sallee would be to little purpose, for we judge that the work there is already done, and that Capt. Rainsborough will be come away before they can get to him. That those of the town would more willingly have put themselves and their castle into the King's hand than have rendered it to the Saint is very probable, but Capt. Rainsborough is neither provided with men nor munition to hold it, nor can the going of two or three ships now from the fleet supply him. There will be want of landmen and other necessities for holding it. Unless some of these ships go expressly thither, I cannot think of any means for the conveyance of Windebank's letter, for in this time there is no trading thither. If it be the King's pleasure that some of these ships be despatched away, I will take the best care I can for supplying them out of the other ships. Now that I have told my opinion concerning this proposition, I leave it to his Majesty's resolution, and desire to know it as soon as may be; till then I will keep your letter. Two sloops of Calais were by one of the King's ships brought in here the other day. I will give order to Capt. Fogg to prosecute his Majesty's former commands in continuing to look after those of Calais, until I receive directions to the contrary. Aug. 5. 20. Notes by Nicholas of business to be transacted by the Lords Oatlands. of the Admiralty. Consider what shall be done with Capt. Buller, who is in the prison of the Marshalsea, where the plague is. The gunner of the Merhonour is lately dead, and divers gunners are suitors to be removed into that ship out of lesser; settle this place to prevent danger of infection which such persons may bring to Court. Consider Sir Henry Marten's report touching the moiety of the silver claimed by the Earl of Portland, as taken up in his vice-admiralty. There claim to be rewarded out of this, Newland, as a salvor, Richard Wyan, the King's Proctor, Dr. Mason, Judge of that vice-admiralty, and Thomas Wyan, the registrar. Sir William Russell's answer to reference on Stevens's petition about masts. Peruse Sir Henry Marten's report on the shipwrights' petition and others referred to him by the Lords. [1½ p.]

[Copy. See Vol. cccliii., fol. 44. ½ p.]

Aug. 5. Order of the Lords of the Admiralty. That Capt. Richard Oatlands. Buller put in 500*l.* bail in the Admiralty Court, to answer his fault in suffering a frigate of Calais to take from under his convoy an Irish vessel which he had command to waft to Dunkirk; and upon certificate that such bail is given, he is to be set at liberty. Aug. 5. The same to Robert Smith, messenger. To arrest Thomas

Aug. 5. The same to Algernon Earl of Northumberland. The Earl of Oatlands. Newport, Master of the Ordnance, is to repair to Jersey and Guernsey for his Majesty's service, and is to be transported thither.
You are to give order to the captain of one of the ships of your fleet to repair to Portsmouth to receive him aboard on the 25th inst., and to transport him to such places in the said isles as he shall direct, and attend there to bring him back to Portsmouth or the Downs, as he shall think convenient. [Copy. Ibid., fol. 45 b. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Aug. 5. The same to the same. We have convented before us Capt.
Oatlands. Richard Buller, and heard what he could say. He confesses that the French frigate was no bigger nor had no more ordnance than the Nicodemus, whereof he was captain, and that the Irish vessel was to leeward of the Nicodemus when the French frigate boarded her. He does not give any satisfactory reason why he did not pursue the French frigate after he had first encountered her, which if he had done, she could not have had time to have boarded a vessel which was under his lee. And therefore, finding he has drawn a great disgrace on the King's service, we have committed him to the Marshalsea, and intend to have him further prosecuted. We understand that the ship that transported the Prince Elector was much distressed in that employment, and more through the neglect of the master and some other of the officers than by the storm, insomuch as she was in danger to have been cast away. We are to desire you to certify by whose fault the said ship ran so great a hazard. Concerning the loss of the Fifth Whelp, we hold it very requisite that it should not be passed over without inquiry, which we pray you also to certify us, that thereupon we may take order for prevention of the like neglect for the future. [Copy. Ibid., fol. 45 b. $1\frac{1}{6}$ p.]

Aug. 5. The same to Thomas Thornhill. We have deputed Richard Oatlands. Bagnall to make saltpetre in Hants. The deputation formerly granted to you to work that county expired the 31st July last, from which time Bagnall's deputation is to begin. We require you not only to desist making saltpetre in counties for which your deputation is expired, but to deliver into his Majesty's store all such saltpetre as by virtue of the said deputation you have made.

Aug. 5. Putney Park. 21. William Lake to Sec. Windebank. I enclose copy of my former petition, which the Duke of Lennox presented to his Majesty. I hope you will find my demands such as his Majesty may approve of. He may be possessed that I acquired some very great estate under my master, the late Lord Treasurer, but it was far otherwise. I was always more careful of my honour and my own honesty than of increasing my fortune. My main hope was that by my Lord's means I might have obtained some grant from his Majesty, which might have eased me of the trouble of being a suitor now. I know that his Lordship meant me some good in that place which Witherings now enjoys, whereof I give a little touch in my petition. How I missed it, nescio quid, nec quare. I entreat that when you move his Majesty on my behalf you would affirm that all the fortune I got does not amount to above 5,000*l.*, which is but a small thing to maintain myself, my wife, and six children. Neither will I be so immoderate in my suit as to desire more than what the late King once thought me worthy of; I mean the place for the Latin tongue. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

Aug. 5. 23. Petition of Sir Thomas Evelyn, of Long Ditton, Surrey, to Archbishop Laud. Recites petition of Richard Hinde, B.D. (See Vol. ccclxiv., No. 101.) Petitioner has endeavoured to encourage Hinde and his ministry at Ditton, not only himself, his wife, and family being constant hearers of him, both at morning and evening prayers, but petitioner has also used his authority to others to invite them to the like duty, and whensoever Hinde had occasion to use petitioner he was always ready to supply his wants. Notwithstanding all which, Hinde has of late gone about to disgrace petitioner and his wife, and gave her ill language in the church of Ditton, and has neglected his duty. Petitioner is loath to convent him by suit in law, in respect that he is curate of petitioner's parish, and may be much impoverished thereby. Beseeches your Grace that Sir John Lambe may determine all business between them, and if petitioner's wife have done Hinde wrong she shall make satisfaction, and if on the other side Hinde has misbehaved

24. Bishop Juxon, Lord Treasurer, to the Mayor and others of Bristol. Your complaint of your Searcher's patent, and his Majesty's reference to me, most of you know. My endeavour was that the King's officer might receive fit maintenance, and the merchants receive no pressure. This made myself and Baron Denham (whom I called unto me to hear that business) to resolve to moderate the fees of the former patent to 200*l.* a year. His Majesty approving the same, I made my reference to the farmers how it might best be settled, which reference and their report thereupon the sergeant will now acquaint you with, and I wish it a fair accommodation among yourselves. 25. Extract from a news-letter. On Thursday, 3rd August, the Duke of Lennox was married at Lambeth by the Archbishop of Canterbury to the Lady Mary Villiers. His Majesty gave the Lady to the Duke. The Duchess of Buckingham conducted her daughter to the bishop's palace, and expected there till the marriage were celebrated in the chapel, and then with the bride and bridegroom attended his Majesty to York House, where the Queen was. The Duchess feasted their Majesties in that house of hers with their court. At night their Majesties put the bride and bridegroom to bed, and visited them the next morning, in their way from Somerset House to Oatlands. The court and company which attended was not very great, because that time and place had not been pitched upon till very shortly before. There were of Lords, the Marquis Hamilton, the Earl Marshal, Dorset, Holland, Portland, Russell, Lord Goring, and some others. Of Ladies, Carlisle, Denbigh, Holland, Portland, Russell, Lady Blanch Arundel, Madame Vantelet, and divers others of French, besides the maids of honour. The house was very gloriously furnished; but there was neither dancing nor any other entertainment than a comedy, wherein the Queen was better content to venture for an ill one than to choose any other which she had already seen. Has not heard that any presents were made, but only by the Duchess of Richmond, who sent 5,000*l.* worth of jewels to the bride and 5,000*l.* in pieces to the Duke. This day the Duke carries his Duchess to Court, where she is to be sworn of the Queen's bedchamber. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

The officers of the Trinity House thought the lights very necessary, but desired that the 2*d.* per ton may be imposed, 1*d.* on the ship and 1*d.* on the goods, which the King will take order for. The Triumph,

28. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to [Sir Thomas Roe]. The advertisements I receive from my friends speak distrustfully of our foreign affairs. By what I can gather, you have made a very right judgment of what is likely to be the success of those negotiations. The West India business is, doubtless, the most hopeful and feasible design we can fall upon, if it could be followed, as it ought to be. It must be pursued at a great expense for some years, without a present profit; and I doubt whether we want not industry and patience, as well as money, to perfect a work of that nature. The little encouragement that is given to trade in England makes men ready to withdraw their stocks from all parts. Out of that consideration I fear men will be very hardly drawn to engage in new adventures, and it is too great an undertaking for a few well-affected men to go through with it. For our treaties, I look for no great matter from them, for whatsoever shall be concluded at these meetings will never bind our confederates longer than they find it for their own advantages. That we shall by this means either eclipse the house of Austria's greatness, or restore the Prince Elector to his country, I little hope for. Although his Majesty's licences have been offered to the Holland busses, and by them refused, yet I think our going that way will be declined this year, and it might much better have been absolutely forborne than demanded in this manner. For want of other employment, I am commanded to make a turn to the west with most of the fleet, and after some days spent there we shall end our summer's voyage. No man was ever more desirous of a charge than I am to be quit of mine, being in a condition where I see I can neither do service nor gain credit; but to you only I say this. [2 pp.]

The King to Thomas Viscount Wentworth, Lord Deputy of Ireland. We understand that not only are the profits of the Admiralty in that kingdom diminished by encroachments of corporations and lords of manors, but the jurisdiction thereof is much prejudiced by granting prohibitions by the courts of law. We hold it most necessary to continue the powers of the Admiralty on that side subordinate to the Admiralty of England, yet we are resolved to preserve the rights thereof in those parts with an equal care, as we have provided for the droits of the Admiralty here. Therefore our will is that you give command to our Attorney-General in that kingdom to question, by quo warranto, such corporations or lords of manors as claim jurisdiction or profits of Admiralty; and as concerning prohibitions, we send you a copy of what, with the advice of our judges of this kingdom, we have established for a rule in such cases, which is to be communicated to our judges on that side, and to be in like manner ordered and settled there. [*By a memorandum in the margin of the Admiralty Register, it appears that the order concerning prohibitions, of which a copy was sent in the above letter, was that of the 18th February 1632. Copy. They lately exhibited a petition to the King, declaring that for being recusants there are writs out of the Exchequer to seize their goods to his Majesty's use, albeit they have been always ready to compound, being poor tradesmen, which, by reason of the contagious time and weighty affairs of the commissioners, they have not yet done, and so stand in danger to perish, unless his Majesty give order that the said writs may be stayed; since which time there are other writs come forth to arrest their persons. Aug. 7. Petition of the Artisan Pinners, Wiremakers, and Girdlers of London to the King. In the 9th of Queen Elizabeth the said three arts were incorporated and so continued, till of late years many merchants and others, not being artisans, are become governors of the corporation, and have not only neglected to put in execution the ordinances made for the well governing the said arts, but by their greatness, assuming the whole power over the artisans, have converted their revenues to other uses. On complaint of the artisan pinners the King granted them a corporation by themselves. Since that grant the governors of the girdlers and wireworkers, being no artisans, have obtained to themselves a grant for the sole government of the said two arts, and for disposing of the stock and revenue of all the three arts. Pray that the grant may be stayed, and that the examination of the premises may be referred to whom your Majesty shall think fit. [*Copy. It was little I was able to do, but I was always ready to do my best. Capt. Cave has been with me a second time, and has freely acquainted me with that which was entrusted to him. Before the receipt of your letters it was known here that the Prince of Orange was set down before Breda, and it was voiced withal that the storms had beaten him off from his first design, just as your Majesty writes; and yet, considering how strongly he is entrenched at Breda, some will not believe but that it was his first design. For any ill offices done in England to that Prince, as if he were not well affectioned to the King, I know them not. This I know, his Majesty has deserved very well of that State, and I hope both the Prince and they will understand it as it is. I am glad to hear that both his Excellency and the States will be so hearty in their conjunction with the French. [Copy, partly endorsed by the Archbishop. 1 p.]

My excuse shall, I hope, persuade with you, or else never expect the landing of so much as a bottle of Smyrna water without custom, for a customer I am; not for any virtue of mine own, but by the folly of others, which gave me the opportunity to try my gracious master's favour, who gave it me beyond my hopes—I am sure above my merit—and so much I cannot but tell you, who wish not mine ill. There is a new book of rates gone into Ireland that will very much pare my Lord Deputy's profit there. All things here move the same pace in the same place you left them, only my Lord Duke [is married to] my Lady Mary. The attorney of the Court of Wards is dead, and none nominated as yet. and just directions could not gain the opposers to consent with us. The truth is, that so long as they pretend their power with you, and their knowledge of your will, labouring by private canvasses, uncharitable inquisitions, revilings in chapter, and their frequent negatives, to make their own way of opposition, I shall ever despair of that Christian charity and peace amongst us which I have before their coming enjoyed, and for which my soul longs. As for their pretended fear of my engrossing all elections, I promise ever to give my voice with the most and gravest part of the company; and in such cases I cannot but hope for your gracious interpretation, which if you will afford in this case to Baylie, it will much confer to our future peace. I am earnestly studying to prevent your further trouble about the reparations of my house by some moderate way, to which many of our company incline. But for my vault, Dr. Peake, though kindly entreated by me, yet, as in most other things, stands at defiance with me, refusing that friendly way which you were pleased to propound. Your wisdom now regulating these petty differences will from henceforth conduce to your ease and the honour of our chapter. [Endorsed by Archbishop Laud. Seal with arms. 1 p.]

37. Kenrick Edisbury to Nicholas. The bearer, Hugh Hennys, tells me he has a grant for the boatswain's place of the Nicodemus, but wanting his warrant I could not admit him, there being none to take charge of her, nor order for her repair. We have written long since about the boatswain of the Great Ship, to send for him to prepare her against the launching in September. It is high time to make use of him. 40. Lord Keeper Coventry to Nicholas. I received a letter dated the 19th September 1635 from the Lords of the Admiralty, to the same effect as yours now delivered to me by Sir James Bagge, whereupon I sent for the clerks of the office whence commissions for piracies issue, who averred that they had been constantly paid for, but the greatest inducement was that the fees for those commissions are charged by presentment in 40th year of Queen Elizabeth, wherewith I acquainted the Lords, who wished that the old course might be continued, which how I shall now alter, and put an unusual charge upon the King, I cannot resolve, and I hope will be taken into consideration for the future as well as for the present. In obedience to our commission, we met the 8th inst. at Brandon, where was delivered unto us your Majesty's letter commanding our diligence in that service which we have performed, and certified our proceedings to the Court of Chancery. We have not found any that oppose the intended work; the demands made for securing the inheritances of such as appeared we have composed and inserted them in our certificate. [1 p.]

Aug. 9. 47. The same to [the Lord Keeper]. The works to be performed
Brandon. by Mr. Lambe upon the river betwixt Mildenhall and Bury may be prejudicial to the mills upon the said river. We therefore think it fit that a proviso be contained in the patent, that if damage be done to any mill, the party damaged shall by two witnesses make oath of the damage, and at a certain place demand payment; and if the same be not paid within 40 days, he may bring his action at the Common Law; and if he shall recover against the patentee, then, if within 14 days he pay not to the plaintiff treble damages, the patent to be void, and the owners of mills may stop up the locks and debar the passage of boats for ever. We also think fit (which is consented to by Mr. Lambe) that he shall forthwith pay after the rate of 40*l.* per acre for every acre of meadow cut by his intended work, and 12*s.* the load for firing which he shall cut, and likewise pay yearly 40*s.* the acre for such lands as he shall use for his passage of haling or going by horse or foot. Lambe ought also to maintain all bridges he shall have occasion to make or alter. Lastly, the water carriages from the Ouse to Mildenhall Mill should be left free to all persons as formerly, and in particular for Sir Henry Croft's passage to his meadows in West Stowe in Suffolk, or if hindered, that Lambe make a sufficient bridge. If you send any commands to me, they may be directed to Plymouth, for there I purpose to inquire after letters. [Aug. ?] 10. 51. Sec. Windebank to Capt. [Richard] Fogg. The Earl of Westminster. Northumberland having given advice of his purpose to ply towards the west, and that he intends to set sail from the Downs with the greatest part of the fleet, as upon Monday last, and having directed that despatches should be addressed in his absence to you, under whose command he was to leave six or seven ships, according to the Earl's instructions you are to receive his Majesty's pleasure in these particulars following. First, the Earl has given advertisement that the Mayflower has brought in two sloops of Calais, which she had found pilfering about Dunkirk. As soon as entire restitution shall be made by those of Calais of the Irish ship which they took not long since under the conduct of Capt. Buller, their two sloops shall be rendered unto them, of which you are to give knowledge to those of Calais. It appears by the Earl's letters that part of the lading of the hoy of Hamburgh taken by one of those sloops and sent into Dover was powder and shot. You are to inform yourself whether that were really consigned to merchants of Dover or Dunkirk, in either of which cases the goods ought to be stayed as unlawfully consigned. For the other sloop of Calais, that within sight of his Majesty's ship had rifled an English bark laden from London, and, being pursued by his Majesty's ship, did fly for sanctuary to the Holland fleet, and the Holland Vice-Admiral refused to deliver her up on demand, his Majesty resents highly this insolency, and commands that notice be taken of it when any of his Majesty's ships shall meet that Vice-Admiral, and demand reparation of him only (not meddling with any other Hollander) for that affront. In the meantime there is order given to Sir William Boswell, his Majesty's agent in Holland, to make a complaint of it to that state. There has been a report raised that the Hollanders have refused his Majesty's licences to fish, offered them by Capt. Fielding. But it is utterly mistaken. Capt. Fielding was sent to the busses to offer them protection, his Majesty having understood that the Dunkirkers had prepared a great strength to intercept them in their return, which his Majesty, in love to them, sent Capt. Fielding to give them notice of, and to offer them safe conduct. This you are publicly to avow whensoever there shall be occasion, and to cry down the other discourse as derogatory to his Majesty's honour. You will do well to send a copy of this letter to the Earl of Northumberland. This of the Holland Vice-Admiral is to be carried with a great deal of caution, and with special care that nothing be done in prejudice of his Majesty's friendship with the Hollanders, especially in this present conjuncture. [Copy, in the handwriting of Read, Windebank's secretary, save the last paragraph, which was added by Windebank himself. Dated 10th July, instead of August, by mistake. 2 pp.]

Aug. 10. 53. Sec. Windebank to Algernon Earl of Northumberland
Westminster. Being in London, your despatch of the 9th inst. came to my hands the same evening. Before receipt of it, I had written the enclosed to Capt. Fogg, which, if this find you still in those parts, I beseech you to open and give order according to the directions. His Majesty is very well satisfied with the reasons for not sending more ships to Sallee. For my letters to Capt. Rainsborough, they are of little consideration, and therefore you may dispose of them at your pleasure. Besides the direction I have given to Capt. Fogg, to suppress the report of the Holland fishers refusing his Majesty's licences offered them, whereof his Majesty is very sensible, I had special commandment to give the same in charge to you, and that you should do it in the same way, namely, that his being sent to the busses was to give them notice of the forces prepared by the Dunkirkers to intercept them in their return, and to offer them his Majesty's protection, but no licences; that of the licences being to be cried down, and the other to be avowed and reported through the whole fleet. To which purpose you are to instruct Capt. Fielding, whom his Majesty understands to have been too free in spreading the former report, to be more reserved hereafter, and in the meantime to make reparation by divulging this and suppressing the former. I delivered all your letters that came with yours of the 4th with my own hand, especially that to Lady Carlisle, and I hold it a great honour vouchsafed me by your giving me that occasion to kiss her hands, and to make profession of my devotions to your most noble house. Those which came with this last despatch I will send to the Court, being now to return to my country house, where I shall be ready to receive your commands, my younger brother following the progress, and I having leave to enjoy my poor home till his Majesty's return to Oatlands, which will be upon Saturday next come fortnight. Nevertheless, there are stages and posts laid to my house in the country, and such letters as are addressed to me come thither in very good diligence, and from thence I send them daily to his Majesty, likewise by post. When you shall be in the west, you will be nearer the Court, and so your address to my brother will be much more convenient than to me. P.S.—You may in time think upon such ships as are to winter at sea, and give notice to the Lords of the Admiralty. His Majesty intends the same number that were abroad last year. If you be not gone from Dover Road, you will give me notice of the receipt of these before your departure. [Copy in the handwriting of Windebank. 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Aug. 10. 54. Sec. Windebank to Sir Henry Vane, Comptroller of the Household. Being at London, the enclosed from the Earl of Northumberland directed to yourself and the other to me came to my hands. That to me I desire may find way to his Majesty. I do not perceive by the Earl's that he had received any instructions from Sec. Coke by way of answer to his of the 31st July, the duplicate whereof you left with me at Oatlands that morning his Majesty went from thence, and therefore I have signified his Majesty's pleasure to his Lordship, having before the receipt of these last written to the same purpose to Capt. Fogg. I am returning to my house in the country, where I shall be glad to receive back the Earl's letter. [Draft. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Aug. 10. 55. Officers of Navy to Lords of the Admiralty. Upon signing Mr. Crane's account for victualling for 1636, we find Thomas Barton, purser of the Victory, employed to Spain, to come short of the ship's victualling for 10 days for 260 men, amounting to 92*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.*, for which he produces a warrant from the captain of the ship, Capt. Walter Stewart, commanding him to feed the extraordinary company of Spaniards that came over in the ship with the ambassador, the Condé d'Oniate, which occasioned the extra expense. It being contrary to the course of our office to allow in that nature, and yet

The same to Kenrick Edisbury. For perfecting the account that Nicholas is to keep, he finds it requisite to have from Edisbury an inventory of all the remains of boatswains' and carpenters' stores returned at the end of their services by the fleets furnished in 1634-5 by the maritime parts, and in 1635-6 by the counties, as also of the fleet now abroad when it returns. 56. Sir Henry Wotton and Dr. Samuel Collins to Archbishop Laud. There is fallen out a difficulty in our annual election in the case of a boy, by name Dudley Avery, otherwise of good hope and desert, which arrests our proceeding till we shall receive from your Grace an interpretation of our power, which we beg by the bearer, father of the said child, whose brother is the King's agent at Ham-burgh, and he himself of singular use to the Queen of Bohemia in her domestic affairs, for which respects we are the more desirous to gratify him. The case itself will best appear by the enclosed draft of a counsellor at law. [Seal with arms. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Enclosed,

59. Capt. Richard Fogg to Sec. Windebank. Since the Earl of Northumberland's going from the Downs, on Wednesday last, I have received your letter, and therein his Majesty's pleasure. I will stay the two French sloops under arrest, until restitution be made by the men of Calais for the Irish vessel taken by them. For the hoy of Hamburgh, I shall inquire whether the powder and shot were really consigned either to Dover or Dunkirk, and will give you notice. If any of the ships under my charge shall meet with the Holland Vice-Admiral, reparation shall be demanded for protecting the French sloop that rifled the English bark, and yet with that caution as you require. Touching the false report that the Hollanders refused his Majesty's licences, I shall avow according to your directions. I intend to send a copy of your directions to the Earl of Northumberland by the captain of the Vanguard, who is to go after him, and withal the enclosed letter you sent to his lordship. [Seals with crest. 1 p.] Underwritten,

61. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sec. Windebank. Being forced in here by foul weather, I give you notice that, notwithstanding contrary winds, we have made a shift to ply it up as far as Torbay. One tide will carry us to Plymouth, where I intend to inquire if there be any commands for me; if I find none, I purpose to keep on our course as far as the Land's End and Scilly, which will cost us seven or eight days. By that time it will be requisite that we look homewards, or expect some supply of victuals. In our passage hither, we have met with only three small Hollanders, homeward bound from Pernambuco, who confirm the taking of Todos os Santos in Brazil. [1 p.]

62. Capt. William Rainsborough to Capt. George Carteret in the Antelope. Since your departure, there has gone so much sea that we could not get ashore, neither could any boat come off, so that as yet I am not despatched, yet I hope in two or three days to be gone, the renegades being ready to come aboard the first smooth sea. Yesterday arrived here the Mary Rose and the Roebuck, which were sent me for fear the business should not have been effected before our victual had been done. They brought money to have victualled us for two months longer, which I think, if Mr. Blake had not come in that time, we had effected. Capt. Trenchfield is captain of the Mary Rose. We, and indeed all the land, are much indebted to the Earl of Northumberland for his love to us, and his care for the business. I pray God bless you, and cause some Algier men-of-war, or their prizes, to come foul of you. Remember me to Captains Harrison, White, and Seaman, and Mr. Powell, and the rest of our friends. [1 p.]

63. Sec. Coke to Edward Viscount Conway and Killultagh. I send a packet, which was sent back from the Downs by Capt. Fogg. The progress affords no occurrence fit to be sent to sea. His Majesty and all his followers are in health, and, notwithstanding the foul weather, forbear not to go abroad. From foreign parts we hear that the Pope recovers health, but yet gives no audience; that the King of Hungary remits nothing of his rigour in denying safe conducts to the Protestant Princes and States, and also to the Swedes. The French have excused themselves to the Pope's Nuncio at Cologne for the protraction of that assembly, casting all the blame upon the House of Austria; so the treaty for general peace is in no near expectation. At Breda, my last letters related that there there had not been a cannon shot off on either side; but by this, I suppose, they speak louder, the Prince's purpose being to assault it in three places, which he hopes their small garrison will not be able to defend. The French continue to make incursions, and ravage the country without resistance. [1 p.]

64. Capt. Richard Fogg to Sec. Windebank. This day I sent for the merchant of the Irish vessel whereof you wrote, that if he had received satisfaction from the men of Calais, I should discharge the two French sloops under arrest. He informs me he has been at 300*l.* charge, and that those that took away his vessel had then from him by violence 40*l.* worth of goods. I have let them of Calais understand that they must give him full content before I can release their men and the sloops. He tells me he has small hope to have any further satisfaction from the French; and for the Frenchmen with us, they are very poor, and the two French sloops of very small value. The Irish vessel that was taken by the French was brought into the Downs yesterday. I desire to know what order you will give me concerning the two sloops and their men. These ships are come into the Downs: Capt. Smith, from Dieppe, and Capt. Burley, from Dunkirk; and I have given order to Sir Elias Hickes to stand away with his ship for Rouen, to convoy some ships from Dover. I intend to send Capt. Slingsby and the First Whelp for Dunkirk. [Seals with arms. 1 p.]

65. Kenrick Edisbury to Nicholas. Comments on two letters of the 10th inst.; one concerning decayed provisions, and the other about remains of provisions in the ships. States what great labour and how unprofitable it would be to make out such an inventory as is required of decayed provisions. Also what was done in that respect on former occasions. Sends an estimate instead of an inventory. The account of remains is a work of labour to write out, but that he intends to perfect as soon as he can. Reminds him of applications from the officers for the Lords to send for the boatswain of the great ship, who is now commander of the Greyhound. They have no warrant to deliver stores to any other. Capt. Pett calls upon them with threats to prepare for the launch on the 25th September, and it is high time to do so, if his Majesty will have the ship launched before winter. They are also directed to bring about the Prince, which Sir William Russell says his Majesty has deferred, yet the warrant stands in force. Wishes to know the pleasure of the Lords. Mons. le Duc de Longueville was victorious in the Franche Comté, Mons. de Chastillon in Luxemburgh, where (having been refused by Piccolomini when he offered to fight) he now besieges Yvoy. The Cardinal de la Vallette was taking in all the places along the river Sambre, to make clear all that tract to Liege, and had already taken Maubeuge. The Spaniards gave [up Bre]da for lost, though many hope it will hold out long, and so entertain the Prince of Orange. The Swedes were retired into Pomerania; thither the French have sent to them, to encourage them, and assist them with money. Whether the Imperialists will be able to bring them to fight and hold out themselves without disbanding, the countries not affording any victual, is much doubted. P.S.—To-morrow we go to Lyndhurst for eleven nights, and so to Oatlands again. [Damaged by damp. 1 p.]

68. Sec. Windebank to the King. The Countess of Banbury being to repair into foreign parts for her health by your special licence, lately wrote to the Earl of Northumberland for one of your ships for her transportation. But he being then ready to stand for the west, directed her to send to one of the Secretaries, and she has thereupon made her addresses to me. I beseech your Majesty to vouchsafe me your pleasure herein, that so, if you think fit, I may, by your Majesty's commandment, give order to Capt. Fogg to assign her Ladyship some such of your Majesty's ships for her safe conducting as may be best spared. [The King has underscored the passage printed in italics, and has written in the margin, "Ye may." 1 p.]

Lords of the Admiralty to Montjoy Earl of Newport. We understand from the Officers of the Navy that gunners of late make very large demands of old cordage for wads for ordnance, beyond the precedents of former times. We pray you to cause the Officers of the Ordnance to consider what quantity of old cordage is requisite to be delivered for wadding of the ships of each rank for six months' service at sea, and to send us certificate thereof. Aug. 16. 86. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sec. Windebank. Till The Triumph, the 15th we could not stir from Torbay. This forenoon, with very in Plymouth ill weather, we came in here. The last night some of our ships were Sound. in danger of being foul of one another, but I do not hear of any harm, only the Rainbow lost her sprit-sail yard and top-mast, and broke a piece of[f] her head. The sea is void both of news and ships. Between this and the Downs we have seen none but the three Hollanders from Pernambuco. Whether here be any letters for me or no, I yet know not, for it blows so hard that though we send boats to the town, yet none can come from thence. The next fair day I purpose to hold on our course towards the Land's End, and then to return hither again. [1 p.]

Aug. 16. 87. Sec. Coke to the same. His Majesty took notice by a Lyndhurst. letter received this day from the Lord Deputy of Ireland, that a privy seal passed by you for payment of 1,500l. to the now Earl of St. Albans, against which the Deputy had written his reasons to be showed to his Majesty. These reasons his Majesty remembers not to have seen, and therefore commands me to write to you to send that letter hither, and to specify the motive upon which the privy seal was granted. This morning, his Majesty and all that hunted with him in the forest were soundly wet, and the weather has continued so extreme that since his return to Lyndhurst scarce a room in his house has held out the rain. His Majesty and all his train are in good health. [*Endorsed by Windebank as received on the 20th from Mr. Railton from Fulham. the jurisdiction and profits of the Admiralty in Ireland. The King and the Lords had bestowed on the writer the office of ferriage in Ireland, to which he had deputed the bearer, Robert Smyth. This was the only place in the Admiralty that ever he obtained, yet if the Lord Deputy had any intention to bestow it otherwise, or held him unsuited for the place, he would readily dispose of his interest to whomsoever the Lord Deputy might desire. These are to require you to take order that the magazine of that county be replenished, and that the trained bands exercise their arms in parts where the infection of the plague is not. 91. Thomas Viscount Wentworth to Sir Thomas Roe. You may think me a strange barbarous beast, that for the many letters you have favoured me with, I have not hitherto answered one, and yet I trust to be absolved, for I was so much cast behind in these affairs through my stay in England, and of that busy time so much of it in a weakness and indisposition of sight, as I resolved to put myself upon your noble interpretation, and to take the liberty thus to answer many of these letters by a few lines. And the rather did I hope to obtain, in regard seriously I found I loved and honoured you in my heart, and that if there were any occasion for me to do you real service, I would write five letters for one, before I would lose any advantage or the shortest minute wherein I might express myself your very affectionate faithful friend and servant. Aug. 17. 92. Robert Smyth to Nicholas. I have received from your Thorpe. servant, Francis Andrewes, your letters to the Lord Deputy, the Lord Chancellor, and Stephen Smyth, which I will deliver, as also your patent for ferriage, with your deputation to me, of which I will give you an account so soon as I come to Ireland and have received my Lord Deputy's pleasure therein. I have sealed the counterpart of your deputation, and left it with your servant. Mr.
Thomas Wyan wishes me to tell you that he hears that a Bastable [Barnstaple] man, being bound for Biscay, was met by a French man-of-war, who endeavoured to take them, pretending they had prohibited goods on board. The Bastable man stood out until they had lost all their men but six. The French, being masters of them, carried them into Byon [Bayonne], where in cold blood they were stoned to death by divers women and others who fell upon them.
It is conceived there were French killed in the fight, as well as English. According to your desire I would have paid for passing your patent, but no money to be received. I had much ado to persuade the clerks to take the ten shillings you gave me for them. You shall receive another certificate by your return from Thorpe, which I hear will be about the end of next week. [1 p.]

VOL. CCCLXVI. AUGUST 18–31, 1637.

Lyndhurst.

Proclamation declaring that the proceedings of his Majesty's Ecclesiastical Courts and ministers are according to the laws of the realm. In some libellous books lately published, the bishops are said to have usurped upon his Majesty's prerogative. It was ordered by the Court of Star Chamber, on the 12th June last, that the opinion of the judges should be certified whether processes may not issue out of the Ecclesiastical Courts in the names of the bishops, whether a patent was necessary for keeping such Courts, whether citations ought not to be in the King's name, and whether bishops may keep any visitation without commission under the Great Seal and in the King's name. The judges, on the 1st July, certified that on all the said points the proceedings of the Ecclesiastical Courts were agreeable to law. Such opinion was, on the 4th July last, ordered to be enrolled, and is now published, to stop the mouths and settle the minds of all unquiet spirits. [See Coll. Proes. Car. I., No. 215. 2 pp.]

Aug. [18?] 1. Capt. Richard Fogg to Sec. Windebank. I required the Merchants of Dover to certify whether the munition in the hoy of The Convertive, in the Downs. Hamburgh was consigned either to the merchants of Dover or Dunkirk, and yesterday they sent me the enclosed paper. This morning there came one with the enclosed letter from the Governor of Calais. For aught that I could understand by the messenger that brought it, it is touching the Frenchman and the two sloops, concerning which I wrote to you the 14th inst., and of the Irishman's arrival here, and of the small hope he had of any further satisfaction from the French, and withal to know what order you would give me touching the releasing or detaining of the Frenchmen and their sloops. [1 p.] Enclosed.

1. 1. *Certificate of six merchants of Dover, and among them of Daniel Skinner. States the facts as to the capture of the Fortune, of Hamburgh. The certifiers had examined all her letters and bills of lading, and found the same to be addressed to merchants of Dover. Among the goods was a parcel of gunpowder consigned to Peter Letten, merchant, of Dover. The French give out that gunpowder being an article prohibited to be brought into England, the hoy would have gone with the same to Flanders. But gunpowder, although prohibited to be vented in England, may be landed at Dover, and, after paying customs there, may be transported into any foreign country. The Hamburgh hoy that came out with the Fortune, and was likewise taken by a frigate of Calais, has been freed, all her goods being addressed to merchants in Dover, and came in there last tide. 14th August 1637. Aug. 19. Grant to Sir Henry Vane, Comptroller of the Household (in consideration of his services as well in foreign employments as otherwise), of all trees of oak, ash, alder, and other woods, with the windfalls, stubs, and roots of trees formerly felled within the West Park of Brancepeth, lately granted in fee-farm, and in Chopwell Woods, in Durham, except 383 timber trees in the said park, and 187 trees in Chopwell Woods, marked for ship-timber by the purveyor of the Navy, and Sir Henry is licensed to take away the said trees granted within the space of 21 years. [Docquet.]

Aug. 19. Pardon to William Gore and Robert Pickering for all errors and offences committed in the place of escheators of Surrey, Sussex, and elsewhere, and also of all offences by them done as agents or solicitors in businesses in the Court of Wards and Liveries. [Docquet.]

Aug. 19. Pardon to Edward Bish, late Feodary of Surrey, of all errors and offences committed in the execution of that place. [Docquet.]

Aug. 19. Honington. 3. Sir Edward Hussey, Sheriff of co. Lincoln, to the Council. I have paid to Sir William Russell 1,461*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, which, together with 538*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* assessed on the corporations, makes up the 8,000*l.* charged by writ of 12th August 1636. There remains a surplus of 16*l.* or 17*l.* or thereabouts, with which the body of the county is charged. I crave your directions unto whom the same shall be paid, when it shall be collected. Boston being assessed at 70*l.*, and Hoggestroppe [Hogsthorp] at 16*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.*, petitioned you for relief, which you recommended to my consideration, but I could not give them ease. If you please that the surplus shall be paid to them, I shall observe your directions therein. [1 p.]

Aug. 19. Honington. 4. The same to Sir Dudley Carleton. Recapitulates the contents of the above letter. I have omitted two things; the one is to know whether the Lords will have the surplus collected, notwithstanding I have paid in all these moneys, and that after the 1st September, in case it cannot be got before; and the other is, that the Lords should command the corporations to pay in their moneys forthwith. If I am likely to be prejudiced by their slack payments, so as I cannot have my discharge in so full a manner as others who have paid in all their moneys, or in point of remuneration for my service, I beseech you to move the Lords herein. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

Aug. 19. Bore Atton. 5. Sir Paul Harris, Sheriff of co. Salop, to Nicholas. I have endeavoured to gather in the ship-money by the time appointed, and have caused to be paid to my former factor 1,000*l.*, to be returned by the time, and then there will be remaining under 200*l.*, which I hope to gather in against my coming to London at Michaelmas. Before my going thence I will discharge the whole money, let me get it again as I may. I do not find but the whole county, for the general, are very willing in paying this money, as also to continue the like at his Majesty's pleasure, but the inequality of the allotments has caused delay, and withal the two references that were made to Sir John Bridgeman much hindered me, for in that hundred where he made the easement I can get but little money since. The corporations are to pay 938*l.*, whereof Shrewsbury and Wenlock are to pay 678*l.*, who are very backward. I have acquainted them with the Lords' letter for payment of their moneys by the last of this month, or else to attend the King in person. If they fail, there is no fault in me. If I may have authority to levy it I will do my best. There is one town in Clun hundred infected with the plague, where the collector dwells and has a great part of the money in his hands. [1 p.]

Aug. 19. 6. Letter of Attorney from Andrew Wilkinson, of Burrowbriggs [Boroughbridge], co. York, to Richard Hamby, of Westminster, to receive moneys due to the said Wilkinson as post of Boroughbridge. [1 p.]

Cotes. Finding that it is not possible to pay in the whole arrear of ship-money by the time prefixed (notwithstanding I daily endeavour the same), and being desirous to satisfy the Lords without further trouble, or taking so long a journey, if they would pardon my attendance on the first Sunday in September, I will not fail to pay in the whole arrear in Michaelmas term. I beseech you let me know their resolution therein. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

Aug. 20. 8. Henry Percy to Sec. Windebank. I have received a letter Lindust from my Lord of Leicester, and one enclosed for you. My Lord [Lyndhurst]. Duke [of Lennox] commanded me to send you this warrant, believing if he had kept it in his hands till you had met, you could not conveniently have made use of it this year. The King called the chamberlain to him but now, for the concluding of the long-disputed business. I know not well the issue, but the thing was upon great disadvantage, for the chamberlain would not go without a second, and that was Taverner. I believe the King more than Hercules, therefore he may perchance be too hard for them both. P.S.—The warrant my Lord conceives to come from his aunt, but his service can proceed from none but himself. [2 pp.]

Aug. 20. 9. Appointment by Francis Coningesby, Lieutenant-Colonel, of Matthew Brodley, as his deputy in the execution of the commission, dated 22nd January 1635–6 (see Vol. cccxii., No. 5), whereby Coningesby was authorized to muster all the forts and castles in England and Wales. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

Aug 21. 10. Sec. Windebank to Sec. Coke. Your letters from Lyndhurst
Haines Hill. of 16th present came not to my hands until yesterday. For the business of Lord St. Albans, upon a petition of his to his Majesty, representing those motives which you will find in the letter from the Lord Deputy and Council to me, which goes herewith, his Majesty holding them reasonable, gave me order to prepare a letter to the Lord Deputy to warrant the allowance of 1,500*l.* to the Earl, which letter was signed by his Majesty, and is that which you conceive to have been a privy seal. There was no other order nor anything passed but by letter to the Lord Deputy. If this (as it seems by the Lord Deputy and the Council's letter) be contrary to the establishment, it is most fit to be stayed. But that the business passed the examination of certain Lords' referees, of which the Earl Marshal was one, who perhaps can give a more particular account of it, is most certain, upon whose certificate the whole proceeding was grounded. The letter from the Lord Deputy and Council to me, came to my hands two days before yours, and I made account to reserve it till his Majesty's return, but now I send it herewith. [2 pp.]

11. Robert Long to Sec. Coke. In that warrant which you have procured for passing our new grants, there is a material thing omitted, which is the tenure. We desire only the same tenure granted by the former grants. Mr. Peacock will present a new warrant with that alteration which we are all suitors to you to obtain, beseeching you that there may be no alteration of the rent, as to my part, which I only speak for your favourable remembrance in case it should be attempted. 12. Capt. George Carteret to Algernon Earl of Northumberland. I have been in this road six days with four of his Majesty's ships, where I have taken in water and ballast, and am now ready to sail for England, except I hear of any Algiers men-of-war, then I intend to spend as much time as my victualls will give me leave, in hope to meet with some of them, the better to secure his Majesty's subjects who trade upon the coast in the vintage time. At my first coming hither I delivered to the English Consul at Cadiz a packet of letters to be sent to you from my Admiral, whom I left in Sallee road ready to set sail for Saphia. I doubt not he has acquainted you with the redemption of his Majesty's subjects who were there in captivity, and likewise with the peace he was concluding with them. [1 p.]

13. Sir Thomas Cotton, Sheriff of co. Huntingdon, to Nicholas. I have sent up the whole remainder of the ship-money for co. Huntingdon, the corporate towns excepted. The county was assessed at 2,000*l.*, whereof Huntingdon and Godmanchester were to pay 114*l.*, by their own particular officers. The remainder was wholly paid to Sir William Russell, so that I conceive I have discharged all that I was charged with, and hope to have a full discharge. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

14. Sir Nathaniel Brent to Archbishop Laud, at Croydon. I received your Grace's letter of 16th inst., and have summoned Mr. Newman, who has promised to appear at Croydon some day this week. I am sorry that you should be troubled with so many untrue suggestions, as the enclosed petition contains. It is most untrue that I proceeded faintly in the business, or that I was contented with a transcript, or that I gave the speaker liberty to expunge what he pleased, or that the petitioner was deluded with vain shows, the cook or manciple being punished and not the offender. At the day of hearing, I shall be a suitor, that I may have justice against a disordered young man, governed by the rash counsel of a professed adversary. I am much bound to you for forbearing a visitation in respect of me. Howsoever I do so carry myself in my place, that I dare and shall be a suitor for a visitation. I am confident that it will be discovered by a visitation, that the secret informers against others are themselves the worst members of the college. As soon as I shall have done keeping courts, which were warned before I heard of the consecration of my Lord of Bangor, I will not fail to wait on you at Croydon. [1 p.] Enelosed,

14. 1. Petition of Richard Nevill, M.A., Fellow of Merton College, Oxford, to Archbishop Laud. Mr. Newman, one of the fellows, in a variation speech charged the petitioner with crimes of a scandalous nature, trenching even to his life. Petitioner complained to the warden, and desired him to urge Newman to produce his speech, which he did but faintly, and was content with a transeript, from which Newman expunged whatever made against petitioner. Mr. Warden sentenced him to be out of commons for a month, and ordered it to be entered on the register that he had received primam monitionem, but this punishment was not really inflicted. It being no satisfaction to petitioner if the cook or manciple suffers for Mr. Newman's offenee (denying to pay for his commons), petitioner appeals to the archbishop and prays him to order Mr. Newman to produce the unaltered autographum of his speech. [1 p.]

Devon, as have there used the said trade for three years last past, by the name of the Master, Wardens, and Company of Worsted-combers of Exeter and Devon. The said company to have a master, four wardens, viz., two of Exeter, and other two of the county; and 24, viz., 12 of the city, and 12 of the county, to be the common council of the same company, and the master and wardens to be accounted five of the said 24, with powers for government of the said corporation. 17. Statement of what took place between Mr. Arundel, parson of Stoke Bruerne, co. Northampton, one of the commissioners appointed by the Bishop of Peterborough to visit the churches in the deanery of Preston, and William Castell, rector of Courteenhall, in that county, on visiting his church. Mr. Arundel complained that the rails of the communion table were not decently placed. Castell refused to allow any alterations, saying there should be no new tricks put upon him, and that he could live as well in New England as here. When Pidgeon, the apparitor, endeavoured by direction of Arundel to measure the table, Castell pushed him away and called him rogue, rascal, cur, and other disgraceful names. He said his parishioners did not come to the rails to take the communion, nor should not, nor would he ever bring them to it; also that it was not fit to bow at the name of Jesus. [1 p.] Annexed,

17. i. Another statement of irregularities in performance of divine worship and otherwise, charged against William Castell [probably in the handwriting of Dr. Clark], in addition to those before mentioned. He made diminutions and alterations in the service, never wore surplice or hood, did not use the catechism in the Prayer Book, hindered the churchwardens from cancelling in the communion table, and was a quarreller and fighter on the bowling leys. [1 p.]

18. Sir William Belasys to Nicholas. I am to give you an account why the ship-money for co. Durham is not yet paid in, there being 300*l.* behind, most part whereof is to be paid by the owners of coal mines, who, notwithstanding the last order of 25th June, yet are so backward that I must be enforced to distrain. If there be any new writs for next year, the assessment may be more equally divided betwixt Newcastle and the cos. Durham and Northumberland, by making some abatements to the counties, and letting the mines be assessed with Newcastle; but I must not be known to advise it, most of the coal mines being within co. Durham. I must entreat your advice touching John Burdon, one of the high constables in Stockton ward, who has collected the moneys within his division, and has not given me an account of 70*l.*, nor paid in the moneys, and I took his bond to appear before the Lords. Banbury.

19. Nathaniel Wheatly, Mayor of Banbury, to William Walter, Sheriff of co. Oxford. Upon receipt of the writ for ship-money, I assessed the money and made my warrant to the constables to collect, and, if need were, to distrain for the same. Divers times since I have called upon them, wishing them (if any should refuse to pay) to distrain, promising that I would save them harmless if my estate would do it, and proffering also to go with them and distrain myself upon any that they thought would be contentious. The constables having made show a long time that they would gather the same, do at last absolutely refuse to distrain or to be bound to appear before the Council. I have, since their refusal, made warrant to other officers to collect the said moneys, who likewise refuse to execute the same. Notwithstanding all this, I have taken pains myself in gathering the same, and purpose to proceed with as much speed as I may. But in regard my predecessor is molested and sued, and, by reason of the constables' refusal, I am not only opposed by many by shutting up their doors against me, but also am threatened to be sued by such a multitude, that I think my estate is not sufficient to defend me, and not knowing what course to take, I desire your advice. Aug. 23. 20. Capt. Richard Fogg to Sec. Windebank. I received last night

The Convertive. your letter of 21st inst., wherein I have command for discharge of the Frenchmen and their sloops; this I will forthwith perform. The letter enclosed to the Earl of Northumberland, sent back by you, I will reserve against his expected return to the Downs. The Countess of Banbury, her eldest son, and her train, shall be wafted over. Since my last letter, Capt. Price, of the Pleiades, came into the Downs, who was employed to convoy a bark to the islands of Scilly, laden with carriages for the ordnance of that place; she being none of those ships appointed for these parts, intends to stand away for the west parts to meet with my Lord General. [1 p.]

Aug. 23. 21. William Marquess of Winchester to the same. Being informed by my cousin, Christopher Darcy, of your care in procuring a warrant for settling that weighty business which so nearly concerned me, I think myself obliged to render you thanks, and to study some way of acknowledgment. Having an earnest desire to visit you at your own house, I have sent this messenger to inquire whether your occasions will not draw you from thence this week, that I may give myself the contentment to see you at your summer habitation. Aug. 23. 22. Sir William Widdrington, Sheriff of Northumberland, to Widdrington. Nicholas, at Thorpe, near Staines. In Easter term last I paid to Sir William Russell for ship-money, 1,360*l.*, for which I have his acquittance, and of which I gave his Majesty and the Lords an account at the Board. The remainder of the sum being 740*l.*, was charged upon Newcastle, 700*l.*; Berwick, 20*l.*; and Morpeth, 20*l.*; all which is paid excepting the sum charged upon Newcastle, which I have no power to levy, it being a county of itself, with all which I desire you to acquaint the Lords. - Aug. 25. 28. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sec. Coke. The extreme Plymouth Sound. foul weather (since my last of the 17th present) has scarce given us leave to look out of Plymouth Sound. Twice we were enticed by flattering mornings to go out to sea, but before we could get our anchors aboard, both wind and weather changed. Yesterday we attempted it again the third time, and got out to sea. We beat it off and on all day; in the afternoon the wind shifted, and blowing hard, drove us so far to leeward that we had some difficulty to reach this place again. Our victuals draw so near an end, as if I receive not command to the contrary I shall not venture to stay in these parts above eight days longer, but will then take the first opportunity of weather to repair to the Downs. - Aug. 25. 29. Archbishop Laud to [Dr. Isaac Bargrave], Dean of Canterbury. Croydon. I received your letters of the 7th inst., but did not think fit to return answer till I had prepared things for peace, at least so far as I am able; but the plain truth is, I see somewhat amiss in all, and yet, perhaps, not so much amiss in any as would be made. And first, for your petty canon's place, that business is now settled, and you have your desires for Baylie; so I hope so much of your quarrel is at an end. They who opposed this election have given me an account of their refusal. 'Tis in some part very reasonable. But they are satisfied, notwithstanding the objection of his insufficiency, in regard he has assumed not to meddle with anything that has cure of souls abroad, but only to keep himself to the cathedral service. You write that they pretend their power with me and the knowledge of my will. Surely they know no more of me than the rest of the brethren have, or may have; and I cannot think them so vain as to brag of that they have not. As for revilings of theirs in chapter, I hope their very calling will keep them from that. But if they should be guilty of so gross an offence, you would do well to complain by instance; for neither can they tell what to answer, nor I to say to generals. As for your promise in business of elections to go with the major and graver part, that is not it which has so much been excepted against, as that you propose not, especially in the choice of choirmen, more than one, that so the fittest for that service may be taken. Concerning the vault, I find that it was the place of common cellarage when the table was up, and therefore properly belongs neither to you nor Dr. Peake. But all agree that he needs it, and that all other doors into it have been forced. And therefore I think you shall do very well to give it to that house by a chapter act. Since you have no right to it, he has no reason to thank you for that you cannot give. And yet, since he has no right to it, he might well have been content to thank you for moderation and peace, and so enjoy the place for his use any way; but this stiffness of all sides will breed no peace to yourselves, nor reputation to that church. For the reparation of your house, I fear it will be an ill example, for every prebend may ask the like. But if, as you write, many of your company incline to it, let them send it me under their hands, and I will consider of it. I will thank the judges for their care at the assizes. [Copy. 1 p.]

Aug. 26. 32. Officers of the Navy to Lords of the Admiralty. On examination of making the sails for his Majesty's ships, which has been done by Mr. Prusen, lately deceased, and his father for sixty years, we have found it more advantageous to work them hereafter in his Majesty's own storehouse at Chatham, and at cheaper rates than formerly. Various reasons are stated for coming to this conclusion, and the writers recommend the allowance of a competent yearly salary to the sailmaker, who must constantly live at Chatham, which they conceive cannot be less than 100*l.* per annum. [1 p.]

Aug. 26. 33. Sir William Russell to Nicholas. I send you certificate of what moneys have been received (see No. 30), as also how the issues stood the 24th inst., since which time there has been received about 3,000*l.*, so as if his Majesty shall call in three or four ships, I doubt not but we shall have money to pay them off. We intend on Tuesday next to begin to strike the great ship to prepare her for launching, and herewith send you an estimate of the charge, which must be presently set in hand, for making the provisions therein mentioned (especially the flags), which otherwise will not be ready. Present it to be signed by the Lords of the Admiralty, and send it me back by the bearer, that a privy seal may be passed accordingly. If his Majesty shall alter his resolution in launching her, send the bearer back to me with as much speed as possible, to the end I may give order for the carpenters not coming from Chatham and other places, who otherwise will be here on Monday night. It is to be considered what ships shall be sent into Portsmouth this year, that they may be such as need least reparations, for his Majesty cannot have a pennyworth of work there done under twopence, in respect the King's yard and the ships lie so far asunder for transporting materials, and the weather uncertain. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Aug. 26. 35. Sir Thomas Walsingham to the same. Complaint is made Scadbury. that one has got licence to transport oysters out of Kent for the Queen of Bohemia, under colour of which all the oysters are transported, so as the markets are unfurnished, and the price so raised, that unless some speedy course be taken, there will be no oysters to be had in Kent. Prevention will be very acceptable to the country. [1 p.]

Aug. 26. 36. Sir Robert Banister to Sir Henry Vane. Since the receipt Passenham. of the order from the Board I have not spent any hour about my own affairs, but wholly bent myself to perform what therein was required. I doubt not but by the end of next week to send 2,000*l.* to Sir William Russell. My suit to you is to move that my attendance appointed for the first Sunday in September may be spared, in regard I lost three months' time by reference to referees; and now my year draws near to an end, time is very precious to me, intending to accomplish the greatest part of the work by my own hands. Aug. 27. 37. Petition of Richard Wolley, clerk, M.A., to the King. Petitioner having been vicar of Leighton, co. Salop, almost 40 years, both he and his predecessors have always had free liberty of commons in all the woods and waste grounds. Certain late purchasers of the lands and commons there, namely, Thomas Wolrych, the heirs of Roger Pavyer, late merchant, deceased, and others, have lately enclosed all the said commons to their own private use, and have excluded petitioner with many threatening words, to the utter disabling of petitioner, the extreme detriment of the church, and moreover of divers poor tenants. [Aug. 27.] 39. Petition of Sir John Meldrum to the Lords of the Admiralty. Upon a mistaking of the Earl of Portland, that petitioner's letters patents for the North and South Foreland lights were not passed the Great Seal, and that you had stopped the collection of petitioner's duty from strangers at the Isle of Wight, the Earl has given order to Capt. Tourney, who commands the castle at Cowes, to stop the collection for the said lights, giving way to the other collection for William Bullock for another light at Dungeness, in like manner complained of by petition of inhabitants of the said isle. At Falmouth, Plymouth, and other ports where strangers come, they begin to refuse payment, claiming the like immunity. Prays order that the honour of the Great Seal may be vindicated, not only in the Isle of Wight, but in all roads, harbours, and ports where strangers resort. 40. John Button, Sheriff of Hants, [to Nicholas]. My petition is that I may be dispensed with payment of the remainder of the ship-money for this county, and attendance on the Council, until the 20th October next; for, having not yet collected all the moneys, if I should be enforced to attend the Council I shall lose so much time in the collection that I shall not be able to pay it in by All-hallowtide; but, by obtaining this favour, I shall no way doubt to bring in the whole arrear by the 20th October, excepting moneys imposed on corporate towns, which I have only power to receive, but not to collect. 41. G. R. Weckherlin to [Edward Viscount Conway and Killultagh]. Lord Conway's letter finds almost as much water and as heavy winds in the woods where the King's Court is at this time, as there are with Lord Conway, but the writer is comforted to find what entertainment Lord Conway received from a new and very fine book, and much longs for further notice of it. The writer's French letters mention a little domestic commotion in the Court of France, and he then details the arrest of La Porte, the search among his letters, the consequent search among those of the Queen at Val de Grace, and those of the abbess of that establishment and several of the nuns, the expulsion of the abbess, and the command given to the religious to proceed to a new election. Since which the King had revisited the Queen with his usual caresses. Other news from the same letters related to the advance of Duke Bernhard across the Rhine, and that the Duke de Longueville designed the siege of Salins, whilst the Duke of Lorraine, besides his other crosses, was vanquished by a fair marquess in Besançon, and suborned one courier after another to bring him news of his wife's death at Paris, where she was in health and was leading a merry life. March of the French towards Brussels, and discontent of the people there with the Spanish government. Progress of the siege of Breda, and advance of the approaches of the besiegers under Colonel Morgan and Charnassé, Counts William of Nassau and Henry of Frize, with other news from the seat of war. The Infante Cardinal's army is 15,000 strong, and the people are entertained from time to time with false news of their army's prosperous actions, whereby the Prince of Orange begins to despair. 42. Petition of Peter Radke, Commissioner of Norway, to the King. Petitioner was sent hither from Norway for recovery of one of the King of Denmark's ships, called the Fortune, which, although known to belong to the said King, was sold in the Court of Admiralty for 1,100*l.* within five months after her arrival in England, wherein the Court proceeded against the laws of nations, it being a common course in all parts to stay a year and a day, and if within that space none come to claim her, then it is lawful to sell her. We neither knew what was become of the ship, nor could by reason of the farness of the way get notice of her arrival, or come hither to stay the selling thereof, but as soon as we got notice of her arrival in England, the King of Denmark sent his letters to claim her as his own, which letters were taken at sea by a Dunkirker, and so in the meantime she was sold. The King of Denmark has written his second letters to your Majesty concerning the said ship, whereupon your Majesty gave order to the Judge of the Court of Admiralty to see your uncle righted, upon which the judge gave sentence that the ship should be restored to petitioner for the King of Denmark, but not unless petitioner would pay down 1,400*l.*, which seemed somewhat strange to petitioner, neither had he any commission to buy in such sort his Majesty's ship again. Beseeches order to the Court of Admiralty that the ship may be restored to petitioner for the King of Denmark, and that those who have anything to pretend to her may come to Norway to claim it, where they shall have all manner of satisfaction. Hereford. 43. Roger Vaughan, Sheriff of co. Hereford, to the Council. In April I paid to Sir William Russell 2,780*l.*, being the only occasion of my journey then to London, and although it were raised with difficulty, yet I find the levying the arrears a far harder work, little thereof being paid, but as it is forced by distress. Since my return from London, every fortnight I called upon the chief constables to hasten the service, and at length was driven to send my own servants to assist them, who are not yet returned, the plague being in divers the best towns and many parishes. Being not able for the present to perform the commands of the 12th July, it is my suit to you to respite me for a month. I have in my hands a good part of the arrears, the which if I cannot return it sooner, with the rest that I shall levy in the meantime, I will pay it in myself. I have gathered into my hands of late, though with some difficulty, in respect of men's poverty and not otherwise, near all the arrear of the ship-money within this county, which arrear I am ready to pay over. I pray you to tolerate with the non-payment and my appearance at this present, for the great session of the county is held the 11th September, wherein I am constrained to attend. Far be it from my intent to pass over the same to my successor, but truly to make payment thereof the first day of Michaelmas term next, where you have appointed. 49. Philip Burlamachi to Sec. Windebank. It is three weeks since he received any letters from the Hague. The Prince of Orange is raising extraordinary works before Breda, but up to the 22nd or 23rd inst. N. S. had not begun to bombard the town. It had been reported that the Prince Cardinal had taken Venlo, but he has only besieged. If he can take it and then Ruremond, these will be approaches for the siege of Maestricht; but the season for such operations is now far advanced. The Swedes in Germany are in very bad plight, more by their own divisions than otherwise; Bannier refusing to be commanded by Wrangel, and the other reproaching him for his retreat. The French have done nothing since the capture of Landrecy but burn and destroy the country, ruining the poor people without any advantage to themselves. Duke Bernhard has crossed the Rhine with part of his army to compel the Imperialists to retreat. [French. 1 p.]

50. Thomas Coventry to Capt. Charles Price, Dublin. The business in controversy was ended by Sir Henry Marten in a judicial way before Lord Craven's going, but not without his liking, for he expressed as much to me, when he saw it would go that way, and he parted without any ill opinion of me about that business. Sir Percy Herbert is gone to live at Chester. My brother, John Craven, has gone to Lady Spencer's; the King has granted him to take place as a baron's son. We all parted good friends. Batt. Baker was lately, by the Earl Marshal, committed to the Fleet for a wrangling business with Sergeant Powell, but I think he is released again. Sir Faithful Fortescue is gone to Breda to see what doings are there. Mr. Lloyd's cause is set down to be heard in the beginning of next term; the other Mr. Lloyd about the living, my lord was willing to grant his desire, but he could not bring the living within his gift. For the scholar to be brought into Sutton's Hospital, I shall be ready to do my best endeavour. Sir Henry Calthrop, attorney of the wards, is lately dead. His request is that the Treasurer forbear until St. Matthew's fair, being but three weeks, when, if the drover pay not, he will otherwise provide, wherein you may much pleasure him by one word spoken to Sir William Russell, or his servant Mr. Fenn. I this morning begin my journey into Somerset, and shall not return until Saturday se'nnight, when I hope to find your letters here. Your mother has sent your wife a pigeon pie, directed to be left at the Red Lion at Staines. P.S.—I dined yesterday with the Bishop of Salisbury, who, by order of the Lords in King James's time, received into his custody the arms of Lord Arundel, of Wardour; he says they will spoil for want of an armourer to look unto them; he has sent to Lord Arundel, and offered to give entertainment to such as he will send to keep them clean; but he answered the bishop, he had given them to the King. You will do the bishop a great courtesy to move the Lords to dispose of them. There are 60 of the armours or thereabouts, and all for horsemen; better to be sent to the Tower for his Majesty's service. Lord Cottington is Lord Arundel's great friend. [*Endorsed are various brief memoranda by Edward Nicholas, relating to the principal subject in this letter, and other events of interest in October 1638; among them "Bishop of Rochester dead; Queen Mother; two masques at Court; Sir Walter Vaughan; order about arms of Lord Arundel; French Ambassador coming; four horses Morocoe; and Ambassador (?)." - Aug. 29. 54. Petition of William Parkinson, minister of Hemswell, co. Lincoln, to Archbishop Laud. Petitioner in April last complaining to your Grace, was referred to the Bishop of Lincoln, to whom, being busied with matters of suit betwixt the King and him, petitioner could have no access. The rectory of Hemswell, being worth six score pounds per annum, was granted away by Henry VIII., and a vicarage appointed out of the same is now changed into a stipendiary, petitioner's allowance for serving the cure being but 11*l.*, with church dues not amounting to 20 marks, some small tithes being violently taken away, and the rectory house ruined. The mayor and aldermen of Lincoln, owners of the rectory, have several times promised to re-edify the dwelling-house, restore the tithes wrongfully taken away, and augment the stipend. Prays remedy. [1 p.] Annexed,

54. I. Extract from a grant of Henry VIII., whereby the corporation of Lincoln were empowered to appoint perpetual vicars in Hanslope, Hemswell, Surfleet, and Belton. [Lat. 1½ p.]

54. II. William Aistrop, chief constable, and five others, inhabitants of Hemswell, to Archbishop Laud. Certificate that the minister of Hemswell is of good life and conversation, and observant of the rites and ceremonies of the Church, and that the facts stated in the preceding petition are true. [1 p.]

Aug. 29. 55. Richard Newman, M.A., and Fellow of Merton College, Oxford, to Archbishop Laud. Answer to allegation of Richard Nevill, Fellow of the said College, preferred in a petition of his. Presents a true copy of his variation speech, the same that was spoken and given to Mr. Warden. For this speech he has already suffered a heavy censure; he was excommunicated a whole month, during which time he was bound not to go out of town, and is registered to have received a first admonition, which in the house is accounted a very severe punishment; and at the election of officers was put out of office, and his junior admitted. Petitioner resigns himself to the archbishop, hoping that he will judge his punishment satisfactory for his offence, being "the unadvised excursions of an over-rash and youthful pen, and not the deliberate scandals of a mischievous mind." Aug. 31. 60. Capt. Richard Fogg to Sec. Windebank. I appointed Capt. The Convertive. Smith, of the Prudence, to be in Rye Bay on Tuesday last, to attend the Countess of Banbury, her eldest son and their train, who purposed to be there that day. The Frenchmen of Calais and their two sloops are both discharged. I yesterday received your warrant to appoint a ship to be in the Downs on 6th September, to transport the Marquess of St. George and his brother, of which I shall be careful. Since my last I have sent Capt. Slingsby, of the Royal Defence, to convoy some barks for Dunkirk, [and] Capt. Donald, of the First Whelp, with vessels for Ostend. I have appointed Capt. Burley, of the Mayflower, to convoy vessels of Dover for the Tassell

Aug. 31. 63. Similar receipt for 700*l.* paid by René Bailly on behalf of John Lucas, sheriff of Essex, in part of 8,000*l.* ship-money charged upon that county by writ of 12th August 1636. [1 p.]

Aug. 31. 64. The like for 1,900*l.* paid by Thomas Kirke on behalf of Sir John Carleton, sheriff of co. Cambridge, part of 3,500*l.* charged upon that county for ship-money by writ of 12th August 1636. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Aug. 31. 65. Brief of proceedings concerning the transportation of oysters, and the abuse in destroying the brood. It comprises—

65. I. Copy reference of the first petition upon this subject to the Lord Mayor of London, and Richard Carmarden, Surveyor of Customs in London. Bagshot, 31st August 1637. [$\frac{1}{6}$ p.]

65. II. Copy certificate of Richard Fenn, Lord Mayor, and Richard Carmarden, with consent of the Court of Aldermen and the Recorder. The scarcity of oysters arises from excessive exportation, and the dredgers taking them before they come to full growth. The export in barrels, both raw and pickled, is as great a cause as any other. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

65. III. *Minute of a second petition for preventing the said abuses, by a prohibition to exportation without licence of petitioners, and a payment of 12*d.* a bushel for oysters exported in shells, and 2*d.* a quart for those pickled, and of 2*s.* 6*d.* for every obligation not to destroy the brood of oysters.* [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

65. IV. Copy reference to the Attorney or Solicitor-General to certify. Whitehall, 2nd April 1638. [$\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

65. V. Copy certificate of Sir Edward Littleton, Solicitor-General. It is apparent that the scarcity of oysters proceeds from excessive exportation and abuse of the dredgers, all which your Majesty may reform by restraining exportation, and imposing penalties on the dredgers. 22nd May 1638. [$\frac{1}{3}$ p.]

[Aug. ?] 66. The King to [the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London]. We understand that the place of historian to the city of London is become void by the death of "Benjamin Johnson." We recommend Thomas May, whom we know to be every way qualified for that employment, expecting that you forthwith choose him to the said place. [Draft by Sec. Windebank. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

[Aug. ?] 67. The same to Attorney-General Bankes and Solicitor-General Littleton. Sir David Cunningham has informed us that the button-makers in London and Westminster daily resort to him and implore him to become a suitor to us for their incorporation, and have offered to pay to us the several rates in an intended grant thereof to the said Sir David and Alexander Dunsire contained. We require you to review the said grant and prepare a grant of incorporation to the said buttonmakers. [Fair copy, but unsigned. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

[Aug. ?] 68. The same to the same. We have been formerly petitioned by the beavermakers in London to incorporate them and sever them from the feltmakers, and to prohibit all foreign hats and caps, and all mixtures with beaver, which petition, on the 13th June last, we granted, and committed the despatch thereof to certain lords, who have called before them the petitioners and the feltmakers, and the only difference that rests unagreed upon is the making the said trades several bodies with distinct governments, which it is our pleasure to have done. You are to prepare a grant of incorporation accordingly. [Fair copy unsigned. = $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

[Aug. ?] 69. Petition of Michael Holman to the King. Philip Willoughby being indebted to petitioner in 1,000*l.*, and almost 300*l.* for forbearance. Willoughby is also indebted to other persons 300*l.*, which petitioner is liable to pay if Willoughby do not. Willoughby having been long protected, your Majesty ordered in Council that he should not be so any longer. He has failed to show the Lord Keeper how his debts should be paid, his estate having been long since conveyed and not liable to his debts. Petitioner prays that no further protection be granted, but that petitioner may be allowed to proceed against him at law. [1 p.]

[Aug. ?] 70. Petition of John Cartwright to the Council. On complaint of petitioner's father, lying upon his death-bed, of an unjust taxation laid upon him by Sir Robert Bannister, sheriff of co. Northampton, towards the ship-money, the Lords referred the same to four gentlemen, and in case they could not agree, to the Earl of Exeter, Lord Lieutenant of the county. The four gentlemen not agreeing, the Earl made an assessment of 6*l.* on petitioner's father, which petitioner has since his death paid on 23rd July last. But on the 15th July several persons attempted to drive away some of petitioner's beasts out of their pasture, but not being able to drive the beasts out of the same departed peaceably, and on the 15th of August the sheriff came, as he said, to see if petitioner would pay

9*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.* besides the 6*l.* and immediately afterwards stopped four of petitioner's oxen coming in a wain through the street, and called upon his men to kill the wainman, which they would have done had not the curate of the town delivered him. The sheriff thereupon sold the oxen for the said 9*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*, and sent the wainman and a poor smith, a tenant of petitioner's, pinioned with ropes as felons to Northampton gaol. Prays redress. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

[Aug. ?]

71. Petition of Governor, Assistants, and Fellowship of Eastland Merchants to the Council. At the last parliament in Poland an edict was made prohibiting the vent of strained cloths in those parts, and requiring clothing to be made of sizes contrary to the statutes of this kingdom. About which grievance petitioners have forborne to move you until the coming of the Polish ambassador, who being now come and not yet admitted audience, petitioners, considering of what dangerous consequence the departure of the ambassador not having audience may prove to them in regard of their great estates subject to embargo, they pray direction what course they may take. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

[Aug.]

72. Petition of Henry Osey and John Mason, late bailiffs of Basingstoke, to the same. 60*l.* was charged last year upon Basingstoke for ship-money. Petitioners collected 53*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*, and paid the same to the sheriff. Relying upon the promises of those who were assessed for the residue, petitioners neglected to levy the same, and petitioners being now out of office, they refuse to pay the same. Pray till Christmas for levying the same, and that the present bailiffs and constables may be enjoined to assist petitioners in levying the amount. [*Underwritten is a list of the persons in arrear, George West being the principal person, who owes 4*l. 1 p.]

[Aug. ?]

73. Petition of William Dore, late constable of the hundred of Norton Ferris, Somerset, to the same. Petitioner, on behalf of the said hundred, heretofore petitioned to be relieved of a great overcharge for shipping. During the reference and since the order that the amount should be paid for this time, petitioner has been unable to collect the same, and divers of the hundred seeing that petitioner is discharged from being constable are yet behind. Understanding that the Lords are displeased with petitioner's proceedings he is heartily sorry, and prays his discharge from further attendance, submitting to pay the arrear in some short time. He has spent 40*l.* in labouring to ease the hundred of the overcharge, of which he cannot get a penny. [Underwritten, "Discharge upon bond." $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

[Aug.]

74. Petition of inhabitants of Wigan, co. Lancaster, to the same. Recite petition to the Board in July last (see Vol. ccclxiii., No. 53), complaining of the amount (50*l.*) at which they had been assessed to the ship-money; and the order of the Board thereon (see Ibid., No. 54), that Wigan should be left out of the ship-money writ this year, and should thenceforth be rated in an indifferent manner. The poverty of the town was such that it had been obliged to solicit the help of other towns for the maintenance of their poor, of which fact they annex a certificate, and pray that henceforth they may be assessed at 20*l*. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.] Annexed,

74. 1. *Justices of Peace of co. Lancaster to the Council. Certify the facts above stated and the great poverty of Wigan, and that 20*l*. is a full rate for the inhabitants to bear.*

[Aug. ?]

75. Lawrence Whitaker and Edward Johnson to the Council. Upon information of offences committed by Thomas Geire and John Sandford against the proclamation for gold and silver thread, we find that they have used divers practices to deceive his Majesty's subjects by making gold and silver thread much under the statute, and continue making such base stuff and keep themselves in secret corners, where the messengers we have employed cannot come at them. Pray a warrant from the Council to Abel Tashe and John Blinkerne, messengers attending the commission for gold and silver thread, for apprehending Geire and Sandford, with power to break open doors of rooms where the messengers shall suspect them to be.

76. John Ashe, James Hayes, and four others, Western Clothiers, to the same. Certify that for making fine west country cloths we of necessity must have Castile and Venice soap, and that the usual west country hard soap is not of any use for those kind of cloths. If we be restrained from buying Castile and Venice soap, it will tend to the destruction of our trade. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

77. [The Council] to Sir Henry Croke, Master of the Pipe. In Trinity term last George Walker and Thomas Lund, of Lincoln, and Cadwallader Powell, of Buckden, were fined with the Bishop of Lincoln in several sums of money in the Star Chamber, which fines are estreated into the Exchequer. It is his Majesty's pleasure that no process as yet issue out of the Exchequer for levying the fines of Walker, Lund, and Powell. [Draft. = $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

78. The College of Physicians to [the Council]. Report on such annoyances as they conceive likely to increase the sickness in this populous city. They were,— 1. The increase of buildings by which multitudes are drawn hither to inhabit. 2. Inmates by whom houses are so pestered that they become unwholesome. 3. Neglect of cleansing the common sewers and town ditches, and permitting standing ponds in inns. 4. The uncleanness of the streets. 5. Laystalls so near the city, especially on the north side. 6. Slaughter-houses. 7. Burying of infected persons in churches and churchyards in the city. 7. Overlaying of churches with burials, so that many times they take up bodies to make way for more burials. 8. Carrying up funnels to the tops of the houses from privies and vaults. 9. Selling musty corn and baking bread thereof, and brewers using unsound malt. 10. Butchers killing unsound cattle. 11. Tainted fish. They suggest the provision of a commission or office of health, which has been found useful in Spain, Italy, and elsewhere. For other directions they refer to a treatise presented by them last year. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

79. Notes taken during a visitation of churches in co. Buckingham, commencing on the 7th of July and terminating on the 17th August in this year. These notes relate to the state of the fabric and of the seats, to the communion table with its fittings, the font, the vestments of the clergymen, the service books, the register, the poor man's box, and all the ordinary fittings, with the state of the churchyard. The following is a full example of the kind of particulars to be found in these notes :—

BEACONSFIELD.—4th August.—Four bells ; saint's bell ; a clock. The chancel wants tiling, and the ceiling over the communion table in decay. The rails to have a "barrister" between every space. The east benches, &c. The four seats on the north side of the middle aisle too high ; viz., Mr. George Gosnell's, Mr. Edmund Waller's, of the town, and his wife's seat. The four seats on the north side of the chancel ; viz., the parsons' wives' seat, and their servants' two seats, Mr. Edmund Waller's of Gregories, all of them to be taken down to the notch, and the three seats on the north side of them, wherein Mr. Waller with other of his friends, to be made equal with the rest. The minister and churchwardens to certify the names of the parties that sit in the rest of the high seats. Some seats want repair and boarding. Instructions. Table of degrees. A new cover for the font. The back of Mrs. Waller's seat on the north side aforesaid to be taken a handful lower. The communion carpet to be fringed. They have a green velvet cushion, and pulpit cloth of velvet also, and a border for the top of the pulpit made of "call" and fringed with silk. The seats want boarding in the bottoms and repairing, &c. Two porch doors and benches, and bars for the windows. No poor man's box. The belfry wants paving. The books not seen. There are two surplices and stoup and chalice. The porch and buttresses out of repair, and the ivy to be cut down. The east end of the chancel greatly in decay. The windows are broken in the glass. The churchyard mounds, being "sloopes" and rails, and the parsonage walls, being part of the mounds, are in decay. The parsonage house somewhat in decay. A double bricked chimney in decay. The barn somewhat in decay.

Hugh Fellow, parish clerk of Bishop's Woburn, did draw the bellows of the organ, and old Grove was then clerk.

In this instance no notice is taken of the register book, but in most cases it is stated when it begins. The notes relate to 115 churches in this county. [= 56 $\frac{1}{2}$ pp.]

80. Governors of the Chest at Chatham to Lords of the Admiralty. Sir Sackville Crow, late Treasurer of the Navy, became indebted to the Chest in the time of his treasurership in 1627 and 1628 in the sum of 3,005*l.* 14*s.* 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. He has propounded to us that we should receive yearly for 14 years such a proportionable sum of money out of the profits of wine licences assigned to him by his Majesty, that at the expiration of that time he may be freed from the said debt. In regard Sir Sackville is upon an expedition to sea, and part of his goods already shipped, we request you to declare whether we may accept the said proposition, or that you will take order with Sir Sackville for the moneys due. A broadside containing a relation of the numbers buried in London in the years 1592, 1603, 1625, 1630, and in the present year down to the end of July, these five being the great modern plague years, with a cheap medicine against infection, a poem urging to repentance, a prayer fit to be used in this time of sickness, and a woodcut containing a view of London, with emblems of the visitation. Written by H. C., and printed for Edward Harper at the Hospital Gate, in Smithfield. [1 p.]

82. Statement by Nicholas concerning the receipt and application of the ship-money in the three years in which it had been levied. During this year and the preceding, the ordinary at sea, amounting last year to 12,605*l.*, and this year to 14,191*l.*, had been paid out of the ship-money. [*Endorsed, "Lo. 86. Petition of Nicholas Wood and John Wood, of Croydon, to Archbishop Laud. Petitioners, in February last, bought of Olave Edlyn, of Ham Farm, in the parish of Croydon, lately deceased, tenant to Sir Thomas Walsingham, for 22*l.*, the wood in Westfield coppice, containing eight acres, and the same to grub up, if the statute allows it, which it seems to do if it be within two furlongs of the farm-house, which it is. But since the sale his Majesty has put forth a proclamation to restrain grubbing up of woods. Petitioners being fearful to offend, Sir Thomas Walsingham offers 40*s.* to secure them from danger; or else advises his tenant to tie them to their bargain, and set others to grub it. Pray the archbishop to recommend their cause to the Council, that nobody be suffered to grub the said wood save petitioners. [1 p.]

Jones refused to give petitioner either the goods or money which the award makes mention of, but bade him, if he could get any of the goods, to take them. Petitioner therefore seized the materials of the printing-house, not worth 50*l.*, towards regaining his 150*l.*; whereupon Jones had arrested him, and Wayman, before mentioned, also arrested him at the same time; whereupon he lies in the King's Bench prison. Prays the archbishop to call the parties before him, and also to permit petitioner to print. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

1. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sec. Windebank. The contrary winds have kept the Vanguard from us all this while, so as your packet is not yet come to my hands. Since our coming into these parts, the illness of the weather has not suffered us to be much at sea; yet this week we spent four or five days upon the coast, standing off and on between this and the Land's End; in which time we have scarce seen ship stirring upon the sea, except the poor fishers that dwell upon this shore. Not meeting with any directions, nor knowing any cause for our continuance here, I am with the fleet to-morrow making towards the Downs, where we shall soon be if this wind hold but two or three days. His Majesty being satisfied with my reasons for not sending any more ships to Sallee, I have returned your letter to Capt. Rainsborough. [*Endorsed by Sec. 2. Francis Lord Cottington to Nicholas. The sheriff of Dorsetshire has been with me, and shown me that within a few days he shall want less than 200*l.* of the whole proportion; how careful he is in the service; how distraining Sir Walter Erle, John Brown, and some other great ones, has reduced the rest to conformity; and that his absence will be hurtful to the service; but he sends up the money which he has collected. I pray excuse Mr. Rogers, who is a very good sheriff, and heartily affected to his Majesty's service. [Seal with arms. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Recites injunction under the seal of the Court of Wards and Liveries, dated the 21st July last, directed to Lady Cecilia de la Warr, grandmother of Charles Lord de la Warr, the King's ward, and others, and commanding them to forbear to plough up any lands of the said ward which formerly had not been ploughed. Since the said injunction the master of the said Court had ordered a supersedeas of the said injunction as to the ploughing and sowing of 15 acres of down and heath in lease to John Ashburnham. 7. Sir Robert Banister, Sheriff of co. Northampton, to the same. Having received your letter, together with a scandalous and untrue petition of John Cartwright, to one part of which you require my answer by the 3rd September, I have caused the parties whom I employed to attend you, who will deliver nothing but what they will confirm upon their oaths, desiring you to consider the refractoriness in general of this county, and especially of the hundred wherein Cartwright lives, divers towns forbearing to make any assessment, and the petty constables refusing to come to me. I gave no warrant for attaching any person about Mr. Cartwright's business but one Stanton, who would not obey the bailiff and third-borough to lay down a pitchfork he had in his hand, keeping forcibly a gateway and not permitting them to drive the cattle they would have distrained; and a clerk of Cartwright's, who told them they should come with better force, otherwise they should have no cattle there; and one Ward, his servant, who, being told that they had warrant to distrain, answered that he had warrant to the contrary from his master, and so resisted them. If a man of Cartwright's rank, and in commission of the peace, shall abet base people thus to affront his Majesty's service, I leave the consequence to your wisdom. For better manifesting the truth, I desire that Cartwright may be enjoined to send his clerk to me that I may examine him who put those daring words into his mouth. In the time of the combustion he fled from me, and requiring Cartwright that he might be brought to me, he has kept since in his house that I cannot come by him. I have sent up 2,000*l.* to Sir William Russell, and will use all care for collecting the rest, great part of which will not be got but by taking distresses. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

Board. I did not think so soon to have desired assistance from the Board, but some accidents happening yesterday, which for want of time I leave to the relation of the bearer, I desire the Lords to let me have Mr. Barker, the messenger, or some other come down with warrant for Wheeler, giving me power to insert the names of persons who demean themselves in rebellious manner, and to release them upon conformity, which would expedite the business, with less trouble to the Lords, than daily to be sending up the names of particular delinquents. If it may be granted, the messenger shall have his diet, lodging, and horsemeat with me. [Seal with arms. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

9. Sir Robert Banister to John Crane. I pray you procure the speedy despatch of this bearer, for his absence will much prejudice his Majesty's service. I desire he may receive some encouragement, behaving himself honestly for the advancement of the service. I have no service done by any one bailiff of the county but himself, for they all have such dependency of the nobility and gentry, that, write to them as often as I will, they put nothing in execution. What Mr. Cartwright's example has bred, you shall perceive by that he will relate. [Seal with arms. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

10. Lawrence Whitaker to Nicholas. I recommend this gentleman (my late dear wife's sister's son) and his cause to you. I presume you, waiting last Sunday at Oatlands, heard his petition read. That which he desires is (questionless) very reasonable, that the poor innocent prisoners committed by that merciless sheriff, that have lain above a fortnight in irons, may be released upon good bail to answer anything they have done amiss, and that the warrants set forth by him against others of my nephew's poor tenants and servants no less innocent may be recalled. I doubt not but you will find the Board, and I hope his Majesty himself, inclinable to it. [Endorsed by Nicholas as relating to Mr. Whitaker's nephew, Cartwright. Seal with arms. 1 p.]

11. William Bassett, Sheriff of Somerset, to the Council. Upon a petition of the inhabitants of Bath, who pretended a certain proportion of payment with the hundred of Bath Forum and the liberty of Hampton with Claverton, I called together the inhabitants of the hundred of Bath Forum, Hampton with Claverton, and Bath, who could prove no certain nor just proportion with the said hundred and liberty. And whereas they allege in their petition that I have assessed the said city, hundred, and liberty at 200*l.* only, I have imposed on the said places 220*l.*, and therefore have not given any relief to the complainants, but leave it to your wisdom. Proclamation "for putting off the healing of the disease called the King's Evil, at Michaelmas next." By former proclamations, Easter and Michaelmas were prescribed as the most convenient seasons for presenting such persons to the King for cure. Weighing the danger of infection that might arise from the resort of the sick to the Court at this time, such persons are warned to forbear until the feast of the purification of Our Lady, commonly called Candlemas, next. 20. Order of the King in Council, upon complaint from the Lord Mayor of London that the inhabitants of St. Martin's-le-Grand delay to pay their ship-money, pretending that they are a liberty apart from the city. Forasmuch as the said liberty is situated within the shrievalty of London, and by the King's writs the ship-money is to be assessed and levied in corporations by the sheriffs, in case the inhabitants neglect to assess and levy the same, which the inhabitants of the said liberty have done, it was ordered that the said liberty shall pay not only the 100*l.* this year set upon them, but shall hereafter assess and pay all other assessments for shipping rated by the Lord Mayor and sheriffs of London to the said city, and in case of refusal the sheriffs of London are to assess and levy what the liberty shall be rated to pay. 22. Order of the King in Council. This day were convented the sheriffs of Middlesex, Buckingham, Gloucester, Hertford, Kent, Somerset, and the under-sheriffs of Warwick, Oxford, and Surrey, for not having paid in the full sum assessed for shipping. His Majesty passed by their not performance, upon promise to pay in the arrears by Michaelmas next. The sheriff of co. Buckingham renewed the question of 50*l.*, which, being formerly in difference between the hundreds of the Vale and the three hundreds of Chiltern, was settled by an agreement signed by the sheriff and divers gentlemen of the Vale and Chiltern. It was ordered that the 50*l.* should be levied for this year, according to the agreement, without further delay. There was 1,500*l.* arrear upon Oxford; the under-sheriff undertook that all the money payable by that county, to 500*l.*, should be paid in within ten days, and the rest by Michaelmas next; upon which promises the sheriffs were dismissed. 23. Similar Order. Recite complaint made by inhabitants of the hundred of Wellow, Somerset, touching an over-rate for ship-money; a reference of the same to the Bishop of Bath and Wells, William Bassett, the present sheriff, and John Malet, the late sheriff, and their certificate this day read. His Majesty and the Lords approved the certificate, as well for what concerns the 40*l.* to be paid by Mr. Hodges, who is to be relieved, when he shall make proof that he delivered before he went out of his shrievalty a warrant to impose the said 40*l.* upon the hundred; as also for the 160*l.* to be paid for this year by the said hundred, together with the liberty of Norton St. Philip; (see Vol. ccclxv. Lords of the Admiralty to the Officers of the Navy. Upon consideration of your letter of 26th August last (see Vol. ccclxvi., No. 32), we do not think it either safe or for his Majesty's benefit to change the manner of providing sails for the Navy, and therefore require you to make provision of sails as formerly, seeing that the sailmaker provide as good sails as formerly, and as cheap as any other will serve, which we conceive may be more for the advantage of the service than to give a salary to a sailmaker, and so to pin on his Majesty whatsoever stuff he shall make. The same to Algernon Earl of Northumberland. His Majesty having resolved that there shall be the like shipping continued abroad this winter as the last, we pray you to certify which ships are fittest to be continued abroad, and which to come in. We send you copy of a note received from the Surveyor of the Navy, signifying the ships which he conceives fittest to be sent into Portsmouth. But we pray you to certify what ships you conceive fittest to come into Chatham, and which to Portsmouth. Last year there was a good effect of your care in causing the remains of stores to be taken before the ships came in; and therefore we put you in mind to take the like order this year, that there be a true account taken of the remains of boatswains' and gunners' stores, and thereof to send a transcript to us, and likewise a transcript of the boatswains' stores to the Officers of the Navy, and one of the gunners' stores to the Office of Ordnance. The King having determined that the great ship shall be launched about the 25th of this month, the boatswain of her should be present. We pray you to send him to Woolwich, and to appoint some other able man to serve in his place in the Greyhound. Also to give order that three or four of the ships whose victuals are nearest expired come into Chatham as soon as wind and weather permit. [Ibid., fol. 51. $1\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

32. Statement of Edward Harrison and Robert Toms. On 15th August last, being sent by Sir Robert Banister with warrant to distrain the goods of John Cartwright for ship-money, we demanded the same of him, and read our warrant. He answered he must not suffer it; whereupon we and others went to a ground where he had fat beasts, and brought six or eight of them to a "yeate," thinking to drive them away, when we were prevented by twelve of his servants, who drove the cattle back by force, saying they were commanded to do so by their master, and said that we should have no cattle there unless our force were stronger than theirs. Whereupon we returned to the sheriff and acquainted him how we were opposed; and on Friday following, he, with others, went to Mr. Cartwright's, where, on their arrival, his servants left their work in the field and ran home with intent to resist him. Notice being given that there was an ox-team of Mr. Cartwright's coming down the street, the sheriff commanded the driver to stay, but he would not, and beat and forced the oxen upon the sheriff, insomuch as he had been trodden down to the hazard of his life, had he not been rescued by his servants. [1½ p.]

Sept. 3. 33. Statement of the same Robert Toms. On the 1st September instant, being sent with Ambrose Bavin by Sir Robert Banister to distrain the goods of Mr. Wheeler, a dyer living in Northampton, and other inhabitants of Gayton, in the said county, we went to a ground of Mr. Wheeler's in Gayton, and brought one steer of his and put it into the thirdborough's yard. Notice being given to Mr. Wheeler, he came and offered part of the money; and whilst we were debating, a servant of his violently forced the steer out of the yard and drove him away, and I found it afterwards in a ground of Mr. Wheeler's, and brought the steer up to the "yeate," but Mr. Wheeler swore he would run his fork into my guts if I offered to drive the steer away. [1 p.]

Sept. 3. 34. Petition of John Cartwright to the Council. The Lords having lent a favourable ear to petitioner's complaint of the violent dealing of Sir Robert Banister with petitioner's servants, in hurrying two of them to gaol, pinioned as felons, and keeping them there in irons above a fortnight, and sending out warrants for others; and the Lords having referred the bailing of the prisoners and calling in the warrants to the sheriff himself, or to certify why he did not do so before this day. Petitioner prays that the sheriff not having bailed the prisoners, nor called in the warrants (petitioner and his father having been ever conformable and paid their assessments, and would have paid this, but that it being near five-fold heavier than ever before, was by the Board found fit to be mitigated), the Lords would order that upon sufficient bail the prisoners might be released and the warrants be called in. [1 p.]

Sept. 3. 35. Petition of Francis Vincent, saltpetreman, to the Lords of the Admiralty. Notwithstanding his Majesty's letters patent for making saltpetre, Sir John Tonstall, of Croydon, Surrey, no way obeying the commission, will not suffer petitioner to dig in his pigeon-house. Prays the Lords to take the case into consideration, and order petitioner satisfaction. [½ p.]

Sept. 3. 36. William Scudamore, late Sheriff of co. Hereford, to the constables of the hundred of Greytree, co. Hereford. By warrant from Roger Vaughan, sheriff of co. Hereford, of 1st September, these are to require you to levy of James Ades and William Payne, late constables of the said hundred, 5*l.* 11*s.* 9*d.* of ship-money in arrear, and in default of payment that you levy the same by distress, and for want of distress bring Ades and Payne to the gaol for co. Endorsed,

36. I. Note of John Furney. Before the coming of this precept to my hands, I received a like warrant from Thomas Wigmore, late sheriff, dated 4th September, to levy of William Payne 25l. 12s. 11d. arrear for shipping in 1635, which I have levied and paid over to Mr. Wigmore. James Ades says, above a year since he paid his part of the charge within mentioned to Mr. Wigmore. [½ p.]

Sept. 3. 37. List of counties in arrear for the ship-money, 500l. and upwards, with notes by Nicholas of such sheriffs as attended this day, and of the orders of the Board concerning them. The county of Buckingham was in arrear 2,985l.; the sheriff who attended was ordered to pay in all by Michaelmas. [1 p.]

Sept. 4. 38. Sec. Windebank to Algernon Earl of Northumberland. His Majesty, taking notice that victuals in the fleet are near at an end, and considering the foulness of the weather, is pleased to give you leave to return to his presence as soon as you shall have given order for the winter guard of the seas, and for disposing the rest of the fleet into winter harbour. For winter guard, you are to leave the like strength that you did last year, and commit the command to Capt. Pennington. The particular ships are left to your choice, among which his Majesty is well contented that Sir Henry Mainwaring's shall be one. For ships to come in, there are directions sent from the Lords of the Admiralty. [Draft. 1¾.]

Sept. 4. Nicholas to the Mayor of Banbury. Complaint being made that Oatlands. you have not paid in the ship-money for Banbury, his Majesty and the Council require you forthwith to assess, collect, and pay in the same. If any of the constables refuse to obey your warrants, you are to return a list of their names, and in the meantime to proceed in levying the said moneys by yourself, or others better affected to the service. [Copy. See Nicholas's Letter Book, Dom. James I., Vol. ccxix., p. 159. ¾ p.]

Sept. 4. 39. Sir William Russell to Nicholas. There is money enough from the counties to pay off the ships that are to come into Portsmouth, therefore the Lords may command them as soon as may be, and let me know against what time they may be there. For the sheriff of co. Cambridge, I am that friend that will lay down the money for him, which you may intimate, if there be cause. If no occasion press, I would go into Cambridgeshire for fourteen days, and against the launching of the new ship be back again. The ship is well stricken [sic], and I doubt not of her launching at the time prefixed by his Majesty. [¾ p.]

sums, and this week shall be paid to him the whole sum except 200*l.* as yet ungathered. I should have attended the Council but for a great sickness, which has disenabled me. I have sent a letter to the Council, which please to deliver. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

Whitbourne.

41. Bishop Coke, of Hereford, to Archbishop Laud. I received, August 22nd, an exemplification of an excommunication directed to me from you, against Fitzwilliam Lawrence, one of my registrars, requiring me to deliver the same in my cathedral, which I did, and have returned notice thereof to the Vice-Chancellor. Your letter, dated July 15th, concerning Lawrence, I received not till August 20th. So soon as I received it, I sent for the Chancellor with the registrars to come to me at Whitbourne, of whom two only came. Lawrence, though the Chancellor showed him my letter, went about other business. Whereupon I sent out process, and ultimately suspended him, and appointed my servant Martin to execute the office and receive the fees, and to be accountable for them as you shall dispose ; in which, if I have not done amiss, I entreat you for him against Lawrence, who will be ready to take advantage upon any small error ; but if amiss, I am willing to recall it. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

Bagshot.

42. Sec. Coke to Sir Edward Osborne. This day I received at Bagshot yours dated from York the 2nd, whereby you may see what expedition is now used in the carriage of letters. I have acquainted his Majesty with the contents of your letter to me, and of that you wrote to the Lords, and few of them being here I return you that answer which I received from his Majesty. He is sorry to hear of the visitation at Hull, and well approves your care in prohibiting goods to pass from Hull to Howden or Malton fairs, with other particulars in the proclamation expressed ; as to such cautions as were fit to be given to the justices of peace, I doubt not but your provident care will give the Board good satisfaction. For the letters which come weekly by post, the manner in other countries is to open and air before the fire all such letters as are bound up with silk-thread, pack-thread, or such like, but for letters of bare paper they use no such observance, but suffer them to pass. Wherein, nevertheless, if any one that receives any letters from a known infected place will but take that care to air them before the fire, which we secretaries do sometimes practise when we conceive danger, it may be well hoped no inconvenience will ensue. [Dated 4th ; but from an alteration at the commencement of the letter, and from the endorsement, it seems to have been written on the 5th. Copy in Sec. Coke's hand. 1½ p.]

The Triumph,
at the Downs.

43. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to the Lords of the Admiralty. Because our victuals draw near an end, I am desirous to give answer to your letter of the 3rd instant, which came to my hands yesterday afternoon. The enclosed paper will show you which ships I conceive fittest to be kept at sea this winter, and which to go for Portsmouth. I make some question whether the Triumph be sufficiently victualled to go thither, and therefore I have appointed the Vanguard. For ships employed and graved every year, the worm can do them no harm, which appears by the James being there these two last years. The James and the Dreadnought I intend to send to Chatham, that they may be paid off before the other ships get thither, and for those that are appointed for the winter guard, you will be pleased that they may be supplied with victuals. Before I received this letter I had given order to my servant to take the gunners' accounts as he did last year, which shall be sent to the Officers of the Ordnance. I will despatch away the boatswain of the great ship, and be careful that the master of her may likewise be there against the time of launching. His Majesty's pleasure for my discharge was last night signified to me by Sec. Windebank. Within four or five days I shall have ended my business, and then I purpose to land. [2 pp.] Enclosed,

43. I. The list above referred to. The Swiftsure, the Unicorn, the Bonaventure, the First and Second Whelps, and the Greyhound were to remain out until the 14th December, and all of them except the Unicorn to continue abroad the rest of the winter. The Swiftsure, the St. George, the Vanguard, the Second Whelp, and the Greyhound were to go to Portsmouth; the Triumph, the Unicorn, the James, the Henrietta Maria, the Rainbow, the Convertive, the Bonaventure, the Dreadnought, the First Whelp, the Roebuck, and the Swan frigate for Chatham. [1 p.]

44. Algernon Earl of Northumberland to Sec. Windebank. Being uncertain when the Lords of the Admiralty will meet, he sends the above to Sec. Windebank. I shall hasten to wait upon his Majesty. P.S.—Though the death of Collard, the Admiral of Dunkirk, be news there, it may perhaps be none to Sec. Windebank. [1 p.]

45. Sir Henry Marten to the same. I received a letter from the Lords of the Admiralty, wherein I am required to put under seal a certificate lately made touching the business of Nicholas Polhill, in order that the Lords might give letters of reprisal against those of Rotterdam. (See Vol. ccclxiv. 19, 1.) Shows that the commission to the Lords of the Admiralty gives them power only to issue letters of marque against the States of the United Provinces. If it be desired that the letters should be against the state of Rotterdam, it will be necessary that they should be granted by his Majesty under the Great Seal, or that he should give the Commissioners a special authority to issue the same. P.S.—The Archbishop of Canterbury proposes to dine at Sir Henry's house at Bray on the next Tuesday, and has commanded Sir Henry to signify as much to Sec. Windebank, because he hopes to meet him there. [2 pp.]

ship-money to Sir William Russell 3,390*l.* Newark being assessed to pay 120*l.*, the mayor has only paid to the sheriff 50*l.*, and the mayor and his brethren allege the disability of the town. All is now paid to Sir William Russell for the sheriff, except 40*l.*, which shall be paid the beginning of next term, and so the next sheriff will not be troubled. There have been many distresses taken, and much trouble in collecting the money, and there is one action already brought against one that took a distress, and more threatened, and one questioned before the Lords for a rescue. There is indeed no trading in the county, except in some market towns, but the country-people most commonly live by husbandry and hard labour. I live at Chesterfield, co. Derby. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

Sept. 6. 47. Receipt of Sir William Russell for 3,390*l.* paid by James Webster on behalf of Sir George Lassells, sheriff of co. Nottingham, in part of 3,500*l.* ship-money charged upon that county by writ of 12th August 1636. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Sept. 7. Windsor. 48. Sir William Salter to Nicholas. Though no man has been readier to further the King's service in the shipping-money, yet such is my evil hap, through the malice of a purse-proud clown, from whom I have of late taken some of my land in Raysebury [Wyrar-disbury], that he might not engross the whole town into his and his son's hands. Taking advantage of his being a ceassor [an assessor], and his son constable, he has most unjustly charged my tenant for that he ought to pay himself, having quietly enjoyed the profits of my land until Lady Day last, before which time this assessment ought to have been levied; and myself at 4*l.*, though he well knows I have neither personal estate nor one foot of land in Buckinghamshire, but what is in my tenants' hands, and for which they pay. Besides, I live in Windsor, in another county, where I pay for my personal estate. This unjust dealing made me appeal to the sheriff. Withal I sent him a certificate of the mayor of Windsor, that I had paid there for my personal estate, which the sheriff accepting, gave me assurance that he would take some order in it; yet having not heard from him since, makes me fearful lest his willingness to spare his own pains should cause him to return my name to the Lords. If any such thing should happen, I pray that you will let the Lords know how much I conceive myself to be wronged. [Seal with crest. 2 pp.]

Sept. 7. 50. Affidavit of Richard Willoughby, of London, gentleman. taking pains among his and other ships' companies for getting out of that vessel such pillage as was there to be found, as brass bases and other things, and deponent believes that if care had been taken, and their present pillage neglected, the said caravel might have been saved. Further, that during the time of their being in Sallee Road, deponent heard William Bramble, master of the Providence, threaten to beat the purser if he would not give way to such waste of beer in hold as he, the master, desired; unto which the purser replied, that if Capt. Rainsborough and his own captain would discharge him of it, Bramble should have what he desired. The purser saying if such waste was made, the master's wages would not make it good, the master said that he would have what beer he listed. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Sept. 8. 52. Sir John Wintour to Sec. Windebank. His Majesty having Lyducy. declared by you that he holds me not unfit to serve him, I have been elected verderor by the freeholders on Wednesday last. And because there has been great opposition made for the place by Sir Robert Cook, assisted by many of this county that deny payment of ship-money, I beseech you to be the first that make it known to the King for prevention of sinister information. Mr. Solicitor can give you assurance that it has been done with the allowance and direction of the Earl of Holland and himself, and that my opposers never made known their intents to them. My having it much conduces (as he will also tell you) to his Majesty's service in the compositions for lands lately declared forest. [Seal with crest. 1 p.]

Sept. 8. 53. William Walter, Sheriff of co. Oxford, to Nicholas. These are Sarsden. to certify the names of those constables in Banbury who denied obedience to the mayor's warrant. Of all the corporations of the shire, Banbury is most favourably assessed, and has paid least; for of 40*l.* I have received but 14*l.* I am also to certify the name of one of the bailiffs of Burford, who delays the laying down of his own part, and at meetings concerning the service proposes doubts about it, and so is both an example and hindrance; his name is George Watkins. All the ship-money for this county is near collected, but much of it lies in cattle and wares, which were not come by without hurt to some of my ministers, in which resistances Luke Davis, of Drayton by Banbury, is most guilty, having hurt two of my officers, whom my warrants yet will not take, and I suspect shall not, such perverse constables have been chosen, I conceive purposely, to serve this year. [Seal with arms. 1 p.] Enclosed,

[Sir Thomas Roe] to Henry Earl of Holland. I esteem myself bound by duty to his Majesty and you, to give account of your command to write to the Chancellor of Sweden, by my cousin Berkeley, by whom I received no answer, but after his departure the Chancellor has taken knowledge of mine by a letter full of gentle language and general professions of his propenseness to serve his Majesty, but I cannot make any conclusion out of it, and therefore I forbear to send you the copy. Since my coming home I have got a fresh advice from a friend practised in that Court, of a private consultation of the Chancellor, which may be the genuine sense of that state. It does not much relish me, yet I think it fit to be offered to his Majesty, because if he shall treat with their ministers it may give some light toward their ends. You will let his Majesty know, that having had intimation of a letter from the King of Poland to me, and a desire from Lord Reay to speak with me, I have avoided both. 55. Kenrick Edisbury to Nicholas. Comments with surprise on the decision of the Lords as to the continuance of the old mode of sail-making. (See Sept. 3, p. 406.) States the result of having had one ship's sails made there, 7*l.* having been saved in 35*l.*, and many other advantages. Sir William Russell proposed the salary of 100*l.* Edisbury foresaw that Sec. Coke would never consent to so great a salary. Edisbury thinks he can alter his present opinion. Sends copy of the Earl of Northumberland's list of ships with their several destinations to Portsmouth and Chatham. If the ships for the former place get thither before those for the latter be paid, there must be a retarding of one or the other. Has only perfected an account of the remains of the 15 ships employed in 1635, the writing being exceeding tedious. Wishes the Lords would cast their eyes upon it, and allow him such a salary as would enable him to live. Has caused the materials for the launching to be sent to Woolwich; Capt. Pett is there, and has any men and materials he requires. [Seal with arms. 1 p.] Enclosed,

Oatlands. his Majesty's command, taken examinations concerning the great concourse of people who were permitted to converse with William Prynne and Henry Burton in places where they stayed in their passage to the places of imprisonment. As the Solicitor-General is now employed in other his Majesty's services, it was ordered that the Attorney-General proceed in examination of the Warden of the Fleet and his deputy, of such persons as were employed in carrying Prynne and Burton to the places of their imprisonment, or of any others, whereby to discover what persons accompanied, conversed with, or entertained them, what money was given to them, or other remarkable expressions of courtesy or encouragement were showed to them, and anything else that may make known the persons and dispositions of those that resorted to the said Prynne and Burton; and Mr. Attorney is to make certificate to the Board in writing. 64. The Council to Attorney-General Bankes. We send you a complaint presented to his Majesty and the Board from Sir Robert Banister, sheriff of co. Northampton, against John Cartwright, of Aynho, who has in contemptuous manner disobeyed the sheriff's warrant for the business of shipping, and by his servants and tenants with a high hand opposed by force such bailiffs as the sheriff employed to distrain. 65. The same to [Sir Robert Banister], Sheriff of co. Northampton. Your letter of the 2nd instant, in answer to the petition of Mr. Cartwright, having been read at the Board, we are, by his Majesty's command, to give you thanks for your care and affection in that business. His Majesty is so ill satisfied with all that Mr. Cartwright has alleged, that order is given to the Attorney-General to take examination of such persons as you shall produce, to make good your complaint against Cartwright. You are to send such persons as soon as you may, without hindering the levying of the remainder of ship-money, after which such proceedings may be taken against Cartwright as shall be fit; and in the meantime he is required to attend the Board from Sunday to Sunday. We have sent warrants for apprehending Wheeler, of Northampton, and likewise as many of Cartwright's servants as are named in your letter; for the rest you are either to bring them to the Board, or to send us their names and faults that we may send warrants for them. Sept. 11. 70. Dr. John Towers, Dean of Peterborough, to William Dell.
Peterborough. Give me leave to put you in mind of his Majesty's writ to Peterborough for the ship-money, that whereas in the writ and the direction the bailiff of Peterborough is named, it may be altered to the Dean, because the whole government of the town is in the Dean and Chapter. And the writ being directed to the Dean, as the rest are to mayors and bailiffs, I shall be better warranted to go boldly on collecting the money. One other favour I must presume of. Our poor beggarly city is charged at 120*l.*, which is much above their ability; both the bishop and myself have been suitors to Archbishop Laud for abating the sum, and he commanded me that he might be put in mind of it. Our suit is that it may be assessed at 80*l.*, which will be with the most, but will be cheerfully paid. [*Endorsed, "The writs are already sent to the Sheriff. 73. Information of Philippa Smith, wife of Lancelot Smith, of Ipswich, sailor, taken before William Cage and William Tyler, bailiffs of Ipswich, and Robert Sparrow and William Moysey, justices of peace. On Friday last, informant and the wife of John Dixon, of Ipswich, caulker, and Anne, daughter of the said Dixon, and Anne, the wife of John Huson, being together in the house of the said John Dixon, the wife of John Dixon fell to speak concerning preaching, and wished she were in New England ; after which, Anne Dixon, the daughter, said, "Let the King be hanged !" Informant reproved her, saying, "Fie ! fie ! Let us have no more of these words ! These are heinous words !" Upon which, Anne said again, "Let the King be hanged if he will ! What care I !" On Sunday last, informant seeing the said Anne sit lazying in the house, said to her, "You are a lazy girl. You sit lazying there, and your mother's business to do." Whereupon Anne said, "Be hanged if you will !" with other dirty words. Informant said, "You know I can hang you if I will." [1 p.] Annexed,

73. I. Examination of Anne Dixon, above mentioned, taken on the 12th instant, and before the same persons. Her version of the story is as follows:—Smith's wife was telling the rest of the company of a woman that was in prison for speaking words, and recited the words, to which examinant said, "That is nothing." After which, Smith's wife "fell on chiding with examinant," who said to her, "Hold your tongue and be hanged !" and at that time there were no after-words spoken between them. Further, when examinant's mother gave warning to Smith's wife to remove, she said, "If I depart out of the house, I will make your daughter pay for it ;" and when she removed she charged the said Anne with having said, "Let the Queen be hanged !" but did not charge her with any words about the King. [1 p.]

73. II. Similar examination of Anne Huson, wife of John Huson, one of the persons said to have been present on the above occasion, taken the same day, and before the same persons. She testifies to recrimination between the informant and Smith's wife, and that she heard Anne Dixon say, "Be hanged !" but did not hear any words of the King or Queen. Afterwards, the same day, Smith's wife came to examinant and said, "Did you ever hear such a vild mother [mauther?] . She spake treason against the Queen, and I must call you for a witness." Examinant said, "Do not call me for a witness ; I heard no such words spoken." [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

The Bonaventure is appointed to be at Dieppe by the 29th inst. to bring over Lady Scudamore, but is not able to stir till his supply of victuals be sent down; my own ship, the Unicorn, and the Second Whelp, all grow very low. I cannot at present send you the distinct names of the father and son whom you write of, but I have despatched a letter to the vicar of the place to write me their names. Within a fortnight I will send them to you. In the meantime the business is not of instant danger, and I rather adventure to expect a perfect return of their names, than that the Lords' letters should go with uncertainty and be thought to proceed from doubtful information. Sept. 17. 83. Order of the King in Council. Having considered the Hampton Court. petition of the parishioners of St. Michael le Quern in London, and heard some of the chief of that parish, and the surveyor of his Majesty's works, and viewed models presented by the parish and the surveyor, it was ordered that the parishioners shall proceed with the re-edifying the church, according to the plot made by the surveyor, and that the surveyor shall take order that there be a door made for the parson's house, in such sort as may be with least weakening of the coigne of that building. The surveyor is also to accommodate the parish in the narrowest end of the church with a convenient place for a vestry, and so to alter the structure that it may be with as little prejudice to the light of the houses adjoining as may stand with most conveniency of the structure. And that the surveyor may assist the parish; and that it may appear whether the building propounded by him be as cheap as that propounded by the parishioners, the parishioners shall acquaint him with the bargains they have made for the works. [Copy. 1½ p.]

Sept. 17. 84. Similar order upon petitions of the Merchant Adventurers of Hampton Court. England against Edward Misselden, whom his Majesty formerly recommended to be chosen deputy of that company at Rotterdam, and having heard some of the company, and finding that neither the governor nor the deputy governor appeared in preferring these petitions, notwithstanding that by the charter the government is committed to the governor or his deputy, and to 24 persons of the fellowship; and understanding that the company used a balloting box in the choice propounded by his Majesty to be made of Misselden, it is ordered that a balloting box shall be no more used by the said, nor by any other, company; and concerning the nomination of a deputy at Rotterdam, it is ordered that the aldermen and experienced men of that company be forthwith called together, and that they join with the governor and deputy in such choice as shall be fittest for his Majesty's service and for reducing things to better order. [Draft. 1¾ p.]

 begun to be practised by corporations and companies, declared his utter dislike thereof, and, with the advice of the Lords, ordered that any business whatsoever any balloting box, as they tender his Majesty's displeasure, and will answer the contempt at their peril.

 by petition to the Board showed that he had many young actors lying unpractised by reason of the restraint occasioned by infection of the plague, whereby they are much disabled to perform their service, and besought that they might have leave to practise. It was ordered that Beeston should be at liberty to practise his actors

 ness, nor that there die more than died last week. [Draft. 1 p.]

[Sept. 17.] 94. Edward Bromfield, Lord Mayor of London, to the King. Report made under an order of the 3rd inst., to certify the true state of the business touching the taking away of Sara Cox, an orphan of the city of London, by Roger Fulwood and others, and marrying her to the said Fulwood. Sara Cox, being fatherless and motherless, and having a good portion secured to the Chamber of London, was by her friends placed at school at Hackney with Mrs. Winch, who boarded young gentlewomen, the orphan being about 14 years of age. Fulwood, through his sister Katherine, who was placed scholar in the same school, and in other ways, endeavoured to procure the orphan's consent to marry him, but without success. Upon the evening of 22nd August last, the orphan and some persons with her being out taking the air on Newington common, she was seized by horsemen with drawn swords, placed in a coach in which Fulwood and others were waiting, and carried off screaming. She was taken to Winchester House, where she was lodged by Nicholas Young, housekeeper to the Bishop of Winchester, the orphan lying that night with Lady Fulwood, mother of Roger Fulwood. The next morning she was inveigled into the chapel, under pretence of showing her the house, and there was married to Roger Fulwood, in the presence of Lady Fulwood, by Mr. Rogers, a minister living in Old Street. Subsequently her clothes were pulled off her, and she was placed in bed with Roger Fulwood. That night Fulwood and one Bowen who had been active in the matter were apprehended by the Lord Keeper's sergeant-at-arms, and were brought with the orphan to the Lord Mayor about one o'clock in the night, she beseeching him on her knees, and for God's sake, to deliver her out of the hands of those people; whereupon he sequestered her to the custody of her friends. A licence for marriage at St. Saviour's was procured the day before, upon the affidavit of Nicholas Young that the orphan was neither heir nor ward. It was given out that the orphan's friends intended to marry her to a Dutch doctor, and Fulwood pretended that he had her consent. Rogers and all the other parties absented themselves. [1 p.]

Sept. 17. 96. Order of the King in Council upon the above certificate of the Lord Mayor. His Majesty declaring that if the fact prove as foul as it is certified, the delinquents deserve a severe and exemplary punishment, it was ordered that Fulwood and his accomplices should be roundly proceeded against. Sept. 17. 97. Charles Lord Lambert to Sir John Lambe. It was since London. Bartholomew Day that Dr. Eden finished the brief in the cause between the writer and Lord Robartes, concerning the will of the late Lord Robartes. The writer was with Dr. Eden at Cambridge when the brief was finished. The brief-maker on behalf of Lord Robartes has falsely set down many of the depositions. The testator said he had made his will, and that it was safe; but it does not appear that the will exhibited is that will. The Earl of Carlisle, deceased, was a judge in the commission which the writer obtained, and it was Dr. Eden's opinion that the writer should endeavour to get the Archbishop of Canterbury added in his place, the rather for that there being nothing given to pious uses, nor anything in the testator's lifetime, and all of it so ill gotten, and so much proved against the will, the archbishop would be inclinable to favour this cause, and if the will be overthrown a good help might be taken out of the estate for St. Paul's. Prays Sir John to move the archbishop therein, upon which at least the archbishop might declare himself to some of the judges, so that the writer should find the more favour therein. Sept. 18. 98. The Council to the Mayor of Newark. We understand from the sheriff of the county that you have paid in of the ship-money for this last year, only 50*l.*, and that you are still 70*l.* behind. His Majesty has commanded us to require you to finish your collection, and to pay in the same by Michaelmas next, as you will answer your failing herein before this Board. - Sept. 18. 99. The Council to the Mayor and Sheriffs of Newcastle-upon-Tyne. We understand by the sheriff of Northumberland that there rests unpaid no part of the ship-money of that county, but only the 700*l.* set on Newcastle. His Majesty expected a more speedy payment, considering how much was last year abated, and requires you presently to pay the arrear, as you tender the good of his Majesty's service and will answer the contrary. - Sept. 18. 100. The same to the Mayor of Newbury. Complaint is made that the great gift given by Mr. Kendrick, for the good of the poor and of the trade of clothing in that town, is much impaired, or not employed with that success which the donor intended. His Majesty has commanded us to require you to come yourself, or to send one of the aldermen of your town, to attend the Board on Sunday, the 2nd October, to give an account of how the money has been disposed of, what is remaining and in whose hands, and generally to make appear how that business stands. Sept. 18. 105. The same to Sir John Pennington. Now that the Earl of Hampton Court. Northumberland is come in, and his commission expired, the ships mentioned in the last preceding article are to be continued abroad under your command. You are to take the same under your charge as Admiral, and with them to guard his Majesty's seas and coasts, to apprehend all pirates, and to preserve his Majesty's honour and right of sovereignty in those seas, according to instructions heretofore given, and such further directions as you shall receive. We have given order for supply of the said ships till the 14th December next, and will give timely order for their further supply. Concerning such merchant ships as were set forth either by his Majesty or the city of London, which are not already discharged by the Earl of Northumberland, you are to certify for what time they are victualled, and to continue them under your command till the six months they are to serve be within fourteen days expired, and then to dismiss them. Dover.

108. Mayor and Jurats of Dover to Sec. Coke. Your letters we yesterday received, and have taken examinations, which we send enclosed, with other examinations of some bold and unfitting demeanours of strangers living in this town, which out of loyalty to his Majesty, and zeal to religion, we thought it not fitting to conceal. Of the three particulars whereof you require, for the first, we find that all the persons named are strangers, and live in this town as factors, merchants, or masters of ships. For the second, we hear not that the strangers openly perform the ceremonies of the Popish religion, but often oppose our religion by disputes obtruded on Protestant strangers here residing. And for the third, we cannot understand of any Popish priests harboured amongst them in this town, or where they use privately their ceremonies, but we suspect the same, for some of them most Sundays in the morning ride forth of town and return again towards evening, and it is suspected it is to hear mass at some place not far from this town. [1 p.]
Enclosed,

108. I. Examination of Gabriel de la Port, of Dover, merchant, taken this day before Stephen Monins, mayor, and John Waad, John Pringle, Luke Pepper, Thomas Day, and Thomas Cullen, jurats. The same day that Mr. Thosse, Mr. Vanneile, Mr. Budeor, and other merchant strangers returned from Canterbury, where they were presented as recusants, and not repairing to St. Mary's Church, being upon the Bench upon conference about them, Vanneile said that one of the court who took their names said, "Go your ways. We would we could do as you do;" and that Thosse, speaking of their names being taken in the court on half a sheet of paper, said, "There was paper enough to write our sentence down." And that the merchant strangers often at their meeting on the Bench (the place of their daily meeting) rise boldly and scoffingly to dispute with Protestant strangers about religion. [Attested copy. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

108. II. Similar examination of Humphrey Mantle, of Dover, beer brewer. States the names of the stranger factors, merchants, and masters of ships dwelling at Dover and lately presented at Canterbury. That examinant as one of the churchwardens of St. Mary's, with his fellow churchwarden and sidemen, on a Sunday morning when the French Bishop was in the town, at the sign of the George, went into the said house, and, in the great chamber

there, saw kneeling at mass about 100 persons, and a priest, in his priestly habit, reading mass, and states the names of many of the persons there present. Some of the said persons persuaded examinant not to disturb them, which he saying he came not to disturb them, but to take notice of who were present, they thrust him and others who were with him out of the chamber. Does not know of any other time of mass being said in this town. [Underwritten is a confirmation of the truth of the bulk of the above facts by Edward West, the other churchwarden, and by William Eaton, Samuel Dell, and John Dibb, sidesmen of the parish of St. Mary. Attested copy. 1¼ p.]

108. III. Similar examination of John Pringle. About a month past Gabriel de la Port came to examinant on the Bench, being grieved that the stranger merchants durst dispute openly, saying, "If we should dispute openly in Flanders, we should suffer for it." Also that James Huggessen the elder, late of that town, said that Peters, who lodged at his house, told him that, being at mass, they had resisted the churchwardens and put them out of doors, and that if they came again they would beat them out. [Attested copy. ½ p.]

108. IV. Similar examination of Samuel Clarke. Daily walking on the Bench and meeting with divers stranger merchants, and they speaking of our and their religion, they said they hoped in time that the Popish religion should be settled in England, and that the occasion of such conference was that Vanneile told deponent that there was a book come forth, a sermon preached before the King, for confession by priests. Sept. 19. 114. William Burton to Sir John Lambe. Acknowledges the receipt of two letters from Sir John, in which he understands kind assistance for reprinting his book. Next term he intends to move Mr. White and his partner, Mr. Leite, about the delivery of the prints and other drafts which he had to cut, for which he will tender him a reasonable composition, though he never had a penny of Mr. White for his copy, only a few books to give to his friends. His brother, the rector of Seagrave, yesterday gave him notice that, by a late decree made by the Council, no book shall be printed or reprinted unless two copies be made of the same, one for the examiners, the other for the printer. If it be so, he shall not proceed next term, for his book is now grown so great that he knows not how to get another copy transcribed, for that he is so troubled with the stone that he cannot sit long to write. If it be so, he must entreat his Grace, that since the book touches no points of religion, but chiefly of antiquity, that he would procure licence that this only copy may pass for all. For the tax wherein Daintrey [Daventry] deanery is wanting, if anything be omitted it shall be sent. Both the manors in Oadby he has brought down to Sir John, and will insert anything he may send. For the visitation of their county, he imagines it is but of later times, and therein he is fully ascertained. P.S.—With your letter I received one from Edward Lake (the registrar, I think), wherein he challenges procurations for my chapel of Lindley, notwithstanding your order at your court at Leicester; he sent to know my answer, for upon refusal he says the archdeacon intends to commence a suit in the Exchequer. I entreat you to mollify him, for of right I ought to pay none. [Seal with arms. 1 p.] Enclosed,

Sept. 19. 115. Order of the Court of Aldermen of London, on the petition of Roger Hatton, haberdasher, of London, showing that he was suddenly called upon to make an offer for a new lease of the office of Garbler, having about five years to come in the same, and being at that time very much troubled, and in a great strait, unadvisedly made an offer far beyond its value, and has paid to the Chamber of London 200*l.* in submission to the order of the then committees, and therefore prayed that he might be favourably dealt with in taking his new lease. The court recommends petitioner and his suit to the further consideration of the surviving committees for letting the city land, to whom petitioner made that offer, as also to the committees now being. Sept. 19. 116. "Reasons which incline me [William Chillingworth] either to suppress, or at least to differ [defer], my answer to the second part of Charity Maintained." These reasons were prepared for the satisfaction of Archbishop Laud. They are six in number, and are principally that the substance of the controversy is handled in the first part, and therefore that, if the first part be answered, the second needs no answer. The person who submitted this paper to the archbishop has added a seventh reason, which Chillingworth had stated to him verbally, which was personal as to Dr. Potter, and arose out of Chillingworth's unwillingness to adopt some conclusions and some quotations adopted by Dr. Potter. intend it as a ground or beginning for the discussing and maturation of his Majesty and his secret Council, like the labourer that cuts the timber for a master builder; and be pleased to consider that these propositions have much to be enlarged upon examination, so that when you have polished it, who are the principal mover, if there arise any difficulty, I shall be ready, and I hope able, before the Lords, to clear it, and to make the work appear both honourable and easy, except only in the point of getting credit with adventurers, which must arise from his Majesty's declaration. I have the whole frame in my head, or notes, and I have got from Holland a copy of the first octroye of the privileges of the Society of the United Provinces, which I have set to translate, and from which we shall take much light for direction of this intended company. 3. Sir Nicholas Slanning to Sec. Windebank. This day there came into this harbour of Falmouth, Capt. Harrison, in the Hercules, of London, Rear-Admiral of the fleet employed at Sallee, and Capt. White, in the Expedition, who commends very much the condition and sailing of his ship. They believe Capt. Carteret with the other pinnace to be at Plymouth, or nearer the Downs, and report Capt. Rainsborough with the three other ships to be at Saffi, perfecting articles of peace with the King of Morocco, and receiving from him presents for his Majesty. They affirm also that the new town of Sallee is yielded to the King of Morocco, and have brought with them a great many captives belonging to this country and Ireland, and say that the rest are sent in the other ships. These news are most joyfully taken in these parts, and will much forward his Majesty's service. [1 p.]

I have been, I confess, a lover of antiquities, but (as of other parts of literature) with small success, nor ever had I in my custody any records worth knowing, save an inquisition concerning the valuation of churches, taken temp. Hen. VIII., which was given me by Mr. Burton, of Lindley (the only man I know who is likely to satisfy your desires in this particular), which inquisition I imparted to Mr. Langham, of Bottesford. 5. Capt. George Carteret to the Lords of the Admiralty. An enclosed letter from Capt. Rainsborough is to give account of our proceedings before Sallee. Presently, after we got off all his Majesty's subjects who were in captivity, amounting to 270 or thereabouts, the 10th of last month, by my Admiral's order, I set sail with this ship, the Hercules, and the two pinnaces, with order to touch on the coast of Spain to take in fresh water and ballaice [ballast], which could not be had in Sallee, and, as I came home, to range the Spanish coast. During the time that I was taking in water, I received a letter from my Admiral by a Spanish boat, wherein he writes that two days after I came away the Mary Rose and the Greyhound arrived there, and that he was ready to sail for Saffi. I am just now come to an anchor in St. Helen's Road, and the Providence, where I am landing those captives we brought from Sallee, having received order from my Admiral so to do, they being most of them west-countrymen. The Hercules and the Expedition (notwithstanding strict order not to lose my company) left me in the night of the 16th inst., about 100 leagues off the Land's End, which might have proved very prejudicial, for then I had little hope to recover the English coast so soon as I have done, and I had but 11 days' victuals left; therefore I intended to furnish myself with a week's victuals out of the two months' provision Capt. White had in his ship. I have now but six days' victuals left, and intend to sail this night for the Downs with these two ships, there to attend further orders. My boatswain died three months since; his place was supplied by William Johnson, who has been boatswain's mate and a deputy boatswain these 15 years in divers of his Majesty's ships; I recommend him for this place. 6. William Brissenden to Nicholas. On 31st July and 1st August, all the English captives in Sallee (being about 400) were sent on board our ships. [Margin: "About 700 were sent to Algiers before our ships' coming to Sallee."] With Sallee there is peace contracted. Tuesday, the 8th August, the Antelope, the Hercules, the Expedition, and our ship set sail for Cadiz to water, leaving the Leopard and the Mary in Sallee Road, bound from thence to Saffi, there to receive horses and other presents from the King of Morocco for his Majesty. On the 15th our four ships arrived at Cadiz, and at our being there Capt. Carteret had intelligence that the Mary Rose and the Roebuck were arrived at Sallee. On the 22nd we all four weighed from Cadiz for England. On our voyage homeward we had sight of four Turks men-of-war betwixt the southward cape and the northward, but could not take any. After adverse winds and foul weather, on the 19th inst. Capt. Carteret and our ship were in the Channel, the Hercules and Expedition leaving our company on Sunday night, it being fair weather and a light night. On the 20th we were thwart Plymouth, but by reason of weather we steered along the coast. The next morning we were thwart the Isle of Wight and steering for St. Helen's, where we safely anchored about one this afternoon. [Seal with crest. 1½ p.]

- Sept. 22. 12. Sir William Russell to Nicholas. I send you a petition to Deptford. present to the Lords. The contents are very true, the abuse great, and I conceive unanswerable. Upon what pretence Mr. Dynes detains the money I know not, haply for some debt owing him by Sir Robert Mansell which I undertook to satisfy. It is true that

VOL. CCCLXVIII.

Sir Robert Mansell once entreated me to pay him 500*l.* upon some account betwixt them, but afterwards altered his mind. I send you also the receipt given for the money to my use, and lastly I send you the certificate for the country money, with all which I should have waited upon the Lords, but for the gout, by reason whereof I cannot pass my account for the country moneys in this your waiting month, so that I must entreat your patience until your next, by which time I hope to have two accounts ready to pass together. [*Nicholas has underwritten, "Mr. Jo[hn] Dynes' receipt for this 600*l.* was re-delivered to him by Sir William Russell's order."* 1 p.]

Sept. 22. 13. Bill of William Lathum for 3½ yards of Fi[n]e Segovia Spa[nish] clo[th] at 25*s.* per yard, purchased by Richard Harvey [servant to Endymion Porter] from Jon. Melhuish, 3*l.* 18*s.* 1*d.*

Sept. 22. 14. Examination of John Maynard, yeoman, taken before Attorney-General Bankes. Examinant was employed by James Ingram, deputy warden of the Fleet, to convey William Prynne to the gaol of Carnarvon, and Ralph Evans and John Witch were joined with examinant in the service. They were charged that nobody should have private speeches with him, and that they should have a watch and a guard if there were cause. Divers persons resorted to Prynne in the streets and highways as they went, and some prayed for him, but he knows not their names, nor that any gave him money. Prynne desired the keepers to stay with him at Barnet, to have his ears and his face dressed, and there was a dinner provided, and about 20 persons dined in the room, but examinant knew none of them, nor who paid for the dinner. None had private conference with Prynne. At St. Albans six or eight persons resorted to Prynne and supped with him. On Saturday night they came to Coventry, and the next morning Prynne desired to go to church, which, after much entreaty, was consented to, and he and Maynard went morning, afternoon, and evening. After afternoon service Prynne and the keepers dined together. At supper divers came into the room to look at Prynne, and some came in after supper and saluted him. A minister came in the evening and saluted him, but stayed with him not a quarter of an hour. None of these had any private speeches with him. Alderman Clarke came to him at Coventry. He came to inquire how Mr. Dunne did, who was Prynne's surgeon. At Chester they stayed two nights, and divers men and women resorted to Prynne, but no aldermen or men of quality, neither does he know their names. None of them had any private conference with Prynne. Prynne and all the keepers went abroad to a stationer's, where Prynne desired to buy a Welsh Bible and a Common Prayer Book, and to a mercer's, where Prynne bought some stuff for the hanging of a room. On Friday night they came to Carnarvon. They went to the gaoler, who could speak no English. Then they repaired to the under-sheriff, but could not procure him to receive Prynne until the Monday following. There was no resort to Prynne at Carnarvon, save Griffin, the deputy recorder there, and Spicer, deputy constable of the castle, and they had no speech with him in private. Because there was not any convenient lodging in the gaol, the under-sheriff lodged Prynne in the gaoler's house. There was given to Prynne's keepers about 26s. at Barnet, and 12*d.* apiece at Coventry, and about three ounces of tobacco at Chester, and they who gave the same desired the keepers to be as kind to him as they might. [2 pp.]

Sept. 22. Examination of James Ingram, Deputy Warden of the Fleet, taken before Attorney-General Bankes. According to order of 15th July last he received William Prynne from the Lieutenant of the Tower, and the same hour that he received him, being Thursday morning, the 27th July, he carried him out of town, and rode with him seven miles towards Barnet, and left him in custody of Ralph Evans, John Witch, and John Maynard, with direction not to suffer anybody to speak with him, and that when they came to their inns they should repair to the mayor or constable to require their assistance, and to have a watch every night about the chamber of Prynne, and deliver him to the keeper at Carnarvon with a charge to keep him close prisoner in the gaol of the castle. When examinant rode from the Fleet with Prynne, divers persons met him in the streets and in the highway, and said to him "God be with you!" and "God bless you!" and some shook him by the hand, but he did not stay in the streets, nor to examinant's knowledge receive any money, and examinant reproved those who spoke to him. The day before Prynne went out of the Fleet, the wife of Dr. Leighton brought him a beaver hat, which he refused. The persons who met Prynne were of mean quality. The next day after, being Friday, he went with Mr. Burton about seven miles out of town, and in their passage great store of people resorted to Burton, and called to him "God bless you!" and "God be with you!" and some shook him by the hands, for which examinant reproved him and them, and examinant believes some of them gave him money. Examinant gave directions to Mourfin, his servant, to observe what money was given, and by whom, and when examinant departed he left Burton in custody of Thomas Davys, Robert Phillips, and George Mourfin, charging them to carry him to Lancaster gaol, and not to suffer his wife or any other to speak with him. 17. Edward Fenn to Nicholas. The sheriff of Worcester has paid in 200*l.*, which is all I have received since the last certificate. I am a suitor to you concerning the enclosed petition, the business being an act of mine, to repose that trust in Dynes to receive 600*l.* for me, which was brought up by the sheriff of Suffolk's servant, and lay at Mr. Charlton's house in Mincing Lane, next door to the said Dynes. I had no other end but to give despatch to the sheriff's servant, who paid at the same time 1,000*l.* more to me, but Dynes having received the 600*l.* and given his receipt for the same, I gave the sheriff a discharge of the whole money. I sent to Dynes next day for the money, but he refused to pay it, as is set down in the petition, but I hope by your assistance he will be forced thereunto, being reputed a great rich man. 25. Similar order on petition of Thomas Horth, of Great Yarmouth, merchant, desiring that the soapboilers of London might be enjoined to take off his oils which he provided on a contract with the late soapboilers of Westminster, and that the Muscovia Company might permit him to land his oils. Upon hearing the answers of the soapboilers of London and the Muscovia Company, it was ordered that, for what concerns Horth's agreement with the Company of Soapboilers of Westminster, he may take his course against those with whom he contracted, the Lords not conceiving the soapboilers of London any ways obliged to make good the agreement made with the soapboilers of Westminster. Touching Horth's landing his oils in this kingdom, the Muscovia Company having more oils than they can vend in this kingdom, and Horth having had leave to trade to Greenland only for the service of Scotland, it is ordered that he shall either serve Scotland with his oils or seek a vent in foreign parts. You certify that it is contrary to the course of the Office of the Navy to allow any expense in that nature, which makes us marvel very much that you do not your duties therein, but trouble us with businesses so proper for you to order. If you were as careful of his Majesty's service as you are to cast all such unfitting troubles on us, you would gain more reputation and esteem to yourselves, and ease us of much importunity. 39. The King to Sir John Pennington, Admiral of the Fleet in the Narrow Seas. Upon complaint by our servant Sir John Meldrum, that masters of shipping belonging to strangers, taking advantage of a petition exhibited in the name of inhabitants of the Isle of Wight, claiming immunity from the payment of that duty allowed for maintenance of lighthouses at the North and South Forelands, refuse the said payment in the western ports and other roads, where it has been formerly paid; and that some others withdraw themselves from ordinary ports, where they formerly did put in, to by-corners where there is no officer to demand the duty. Our pleasure is that upon complaint from any of the deputies of our said servant you be aiding in the stay of such masters of ships (being mere strangers), their persons or goods found on shore or at sea, until they have made payment of the said duty. 41. Order of Council. The mayor and burgesses of Kingston-upon-Hull have shown us that by reason of the infection which has been last summer in that town and yet continues, which, notwithstanding, has not been at so great a height as has been bruited abroad, there being dead about the number of two hundred in all of that disease since the 15th July last, and there has not been any house wherein merchandise is sold, from the south end to the north end of the town towards the water-side, where all the merchants dwell, infected; but that, notwithstanding, they are restrained of the vent of their commodities in parts where they formerly traded, to the utter undoing of the town. It is ordered that it may be free for such of them to trade as formerly, who shall bring with them a certificate from the mayor that the said persons and goods are free from suspicion of the plague, wherein we require the mayor to be very cautious that he does not grant any certificate but upon due examination. 43. The Council to Sir Thomas Trenchard and Bevant. Williams, Mayor of Weymouth and Melcombe Regis. John Cotton, quarryman at the isle of Portland, one of the undertakers for making ready the great stones for the west end of St. Paul's church (which his Majesty repairs at his own charge), has of late neglected the work himself, and caused some of the other undertakers to do the like by molesting them about private differences, and has also, with threatening language, abused John White, employed there for speedy setting forward the work, to the great hindrance of the service. 44. The same to the Sheriff of Somerset. Upon petition of Richard Adams and Hercules Coomer, constables of the hundred of Winterstoke, promising to use their best endeavours to levy the remainder of ship-money, we have released them. We understand from them that there are persons assessed who do not reside in that hundred and have no distress in the same, and others who, though they reside there, yet have no distress, neither in that hundred or elsewhere in the county. Where any person is assessed in that hundred who lives in another part of the county, you are to cause him to be distrained where he has a distress; and where there is no distress to be found, you are to proceed against such person by imprisonment if he reside in your county. Where there is an assessment made upon any persons who neither reside in your county nor have any distress in the same, you are to send to the Board their names, places of abode, and sums at which they are assessed, that order may be taken as shall be fit. 45. The same to the Mayor of Banbury. We understand that having collected in part of the moneys assessed upon that town, and being forced to distrain for the residue, divers goods distrained are in your hands unsold. We require you forthwith to make sale of such goods, that the whole moneys may be paid in with all possible speed; and if there should be any overplus upon the sale of the distresses, more than satisfies the sums assessed and the charges, you are to render the same to the parties from whom you took the distresses. 46. The same to the Sheriff and Justices of Peace for Wilts. By our letters in July last, touching contributions towards repairs of St. Paul's, we directed you to sort yourselves into your accustomed divisions for the performance of that service. We by the same intended only your more ease, but not to restrain you from setting about that work in any other division in that county, and shall take it very well from any of you, who, out of his affection for so pious a work, shall employ his endeavour in any other divisions. We also gave you order to send us a certificate in that business in Michaelmas term next; we conceive that time too short, and have thought good to leave it to your discretion, and have appointed Archdeacon Marler to be receiver for that county. His Majesty's commission is directed only to such gentlemen as were then in commission of the peace; we are to let you who are since put into the commission know that you also are to attend the service as if you had been in the commission. 49. Thomas Mostyn, Sheriff of co. Flint, to the Council. On 23rd inst. I received your letter dated 21st June, with a petition enclosed from John Williams, clerk. Williams is, and for about ten years last past was seized of the rectory of Northop, which by the assessors, being none of the parishioners, is held to be well worth 300*l.* per annum, and he and his lessees enjoy the full profits thereof, and therefore he was assessed in 3*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, viz., 3*l.* for Northop and 13*s.* 4*d.* for Flint, being part of the same rectory; which is not an overcharge, for other church livings, considering their quantity and quality, are charged to greater sums. And now, all other men, as well "layaltie" as clergy, having paid, and by me already paid to Sir William Russell, saving this sum of Williams's, I cannot make a new assessment to levy that sum, wherewith Williams is justly charged. Though the rent is small, yet the yearly profit is of great value, for the which he received a great fine, besides 50*l.* annual rent reserved upon his lease; and it is of far greater value than any knight's demesne lands in this county, for which knights pay their assessments, and the tenants for the rest of their lands. Further, Williams lives in co. Denbigh, as vicar of Llanrhaiadr-ynmochmant. I cannot learn that he has been in this county these two years, but sent a messenger to serve me with your letter and his petition, who offered me from the said Williams 20*s.* for his whole assessments, which I refused, in regard I was loath to pay the rest out of my own purse, and did not know where to light upon him or his goods

We hope your fleet has received the supply of victuals formerly ordered, and that the Greyhound will be with you this week at the farthest. [Copy. Ibid. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Sept. 26. 53. Petition of Hugh Grove, Deputy Saltpetreman, to the Lords of the Admiralty. About four months ago, petitioner was called before you to undertake a new contract. Petitioner made it known that he had fourteen months to come of his former contract, which was for three years, if the commission then granted continued so long in force. Petitioner then entreated that if it were not your pleasure that he should work out his contract, that you should grant him favour to leave his employment, for he found himself not able to perform the service for want of ashes. You signified that petitioner should work out his contract, which he endeavoured to do. Since that time the King has granted another commission for that service, by which means the authority granted to petitioner ceases, the commission whence it was derived being determined. Petitioner seeing no possibility to get ashes, and being grown aged, prays that he may leave his employment, and that the bonds he entered into for performance of that service may be delivered to him. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Sept. 26. 54. Deputy Lieutenants of Kent to Philip Earl of Pembroke and Sittingbourne. Montgomery, Lord Lieutenant. By reason of the defaulting of many of the captains who have not made any return to us, and that Capt. Hamond, the muster-master, could not, by reason of his sickness, attend, we are not able at present to make a perfect return, but we shall use our best diligence to do so. Concerning supplying the magazine, the sickness is so very hot in Canterbury and the houses near the church, where the greatest proportion thereof was formerly lodged, as we cannot exactly inform ourselves of the wants, but we doubt not within some convenient time we shall be able to put that service in his due course. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

Sept. 26. 55. Deputy Lieutenants of co. Lincoln to Robert Earl of Lindsey, Lincoln. Lord Lieutenant. We certify that there is a magazine of powder, match, and shot within this county to the value of 200*l.*, and there is in readiness 200 horse and 1,800 foot, well-furnished and able men. [1 p.]

Sept. 26. 56. Judgment of the Court of Admiralty of the Cinque Ports, held at Dover, in the church of St. James, before Sir John Manwood, Lieutenant of Dover Castle, and William Watmer, surrogate of Dr. Thomas Rives, Judge of the said Court of Admiralty, whereby the articles saved from the derelict ship cast ashore at Seaford, and which articles are enumerated in a schedule annexed, were adjudged to belong to Theophilus Earl of Suffolk, Warden and Admiral of the Cinque Ports. [Latin. Copy. 8 pp.]

Sept. 26. 57. Draft of the same sentence settled and approved by Dr. Thomas Rives. [= 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Sept. 26. 58. Allegation exhibited in the same Court of Admiralty of the Cinque Ports on behalf of Emanuel Dias Henrickes and James Terrey, owners of the Rose, of Amsterdam, respecting certain goods taken on board the said ship at Gallipoli to be conveyed to Amsterdam, and were brought to Dover or some place there adjoining. The goods are particularly enumerated in three schedules to these articles annexed. [20 pp., of which 9 contain writing.]

Sept. 26. 59. Order of the same Court of Admiralty upon the preceding allegation. It appearing that no particular person was thereby charged as defendant, nor was it alleged that any of the same goods came to any man's hands within the jurisdiction of this Court, time was given for perfecting the same allegation and nominating commissioners for examination of witnesses during 14 days next coming. [1 p.]

Sept. 26. 60. Another order of the same Court. The proctor of the plaintiffs in the preceding allegation having desired a commission for the examination of witnesses at Amsterdam, but could not nominate between what parties such commission should issue, it was ordered that, if the complainant give caution according to the course of the Court, a commission should issue. Touching the goods lately driven on shore in a wrecked ship at Seaford, for as much as it appeared there was no living creature in the said ship, the goods were absolutely wreck, and belonged to the Lord Warden and Admiral of the Cinque Ports in right of his office. [1 p.]

Sept. 26. 61. Statement of Thomas Boxley in answer to the question whether Mr. Harpur first sought him for bringing in the bills of freight belonging to Capt. Doves. [1½ p.]

Sept. 27. 62. The Mayor, Mayor-Elect, and others of Reading, to the Council.
Reading. Any complaint against us touching James Kendrick's gift is causeless. We have sent Christopher Turnor, one of our chief burgesses, to attend his Majesty and the Board with our submission to all admonishment we shall receive, and send a just account of the legacy business. The sum received was 7,500*l.*, of which 3,778*l.* had been expended in purchase of land and erection of a workhouse, and 122*l.* in the cost of 12 looms, leaving 3,600*l.*, of which 3,000*l.* was in the hands of 13 clothiers (whose names are stated), upon good security, and 600*l.* remained in the hands of mayor and burgesses, applicable to the purposes indicated by the donor. [1 p.]

Sept. 27. 63. James Duppa to John Marsh. If you will receive from any that are willing to compound the breadth and depth of their mashtun, and a certificate from two justices of the peace that they are neither innkeepers nor alehouse-keepers, I will send you their licences, and bonds for them to seal. Concerning the quarterly payments, I cannot make them otherwise than at the quarter sessions, for many have their licences so already, and the commissioners will not alter their course. I cannot get any proclamations, neither is it fit to set up any but by the sheriff. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

66. Petition of Thomas Tankerd, gentleman, to the King. Petitioner's lands being found for his recusancy at 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per annum, he submitted himself to composition with the commissioners for the northern parts, who, being misinformed in petitioner's estate, and conceiving him to be seized of divers great manors, where the same were but messuages, and of small value, petitioner was rated at 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per annum for his present payment, and 92*l.* more by the year after the expiration of divers annuities chargeable upon his lands, to the utter ruin of himself and family, who, having a charge of children, and his debts daily increasing, has thereupon been enforced to give over housekeeping, and sell a great part of his lands so compounded for, and yet the gross of his debts not satisfied. Prays reference to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and President of the North, to certify such mitigation as shall be proportionable to your Majesty's clemency and petitioner's estate. 67. Edward Bishop to the Council. Morton Briggess, of Haughton, Salop, was assessed in the franchise of Wenlock to pay towards ship-money 2*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* in respect of the tithe of the rectory of Stoke St. Milborough, and of a water corn-mill and mines of ironstone and limestone, of about 100 marks per annum. Briggess lets the tithes to the parishioners, and the works he lets forth to poor people at dear rates, and the mill he lets by waste, so that I cannot take any distress, neither can I take his body, for he lives forth of the franchise. Likewise John Reynolds alias Mason, of Much Wenlock, who was appointed by me to collect the money assessed, refuses to pay 13*s.* 8*d.*, which remains in his hands. Also John Croft, of Stoke St. Milborough, being a usurer, refuses to pay 5*s.* assessed upon him, and has no goods to be distrained, and keeps himself out of the franchise, so that I cannot take his body. 69. Sir John Pennington to Lords of the Admiralty. This day the Antelope set sail for Chatham, and on the 25th I sent in the Hercules for the Thames. The Prosperous and the Expedition I have taken into my charge. They are victualled for two months, but their drink is beverage made of cider, which they desire may be changed for beer, the other being too cold and unwholesome for this place and season, and the cider will yield as much to any that are bound for the southward as the beer will cost. Part of our supply of victuals is come down, the rest we expect daily. I hear nothing as yet of the Greyhound pinnace. I have discharged the Prudence, one of the city ships, which I would not have done till Monday next, but that she has many sick men. I hear nothing of the other three which are abroad; their victuals now grow very short. I received a letter from Lord Scudamore, resident in France, for staying the Bonaventure from going to Dieppe to fetch over his lady, by reason she is fallen desperately sick and unfit to travel. Petition of Sir Henry Gibb to the King. Petitioner has been a suitor to your Majesty for payment of 1,500*l.* due upon a bargain concluded with him by your commissioners, for Ashley House and the manor of Walton Leigh in Surrey, for payment whereof petitioner has the woods in the west park of Brancepeth mortgaged to him, since which time your Majesty has made use of a part of the woods, and the rest may be useful for your Majesty's service. Since he has been these eight years and upwards out of his money, prays order to the Lord Treasurer and Chancellor of the Exchequer that petitioner may receive satisfaction. [*Copy. Sept. 29. 73. Order of Council. Being informed that — Pye, messenger, Hampton Court. detains 20*l.* in his hands of fees due to the officers and clerks in ordinary, which he received for the sheriffs' patents that he delivered last year, it is ordered that the Lord Chamberlain be prayed to suspend Pye until he have satisfied the said fees, and that the Treasurer of the Chamber make stay of 20*l.* out of Pye's wages, and thereout pay these officers and clerks. [Draft. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Sept. 29. 74. Similar order. Upon hearing Thomas Elliot and George Hampton Court. Price, concerning a bond wherein Price became bound to his Majesty as surety for Henry Blackall, late soapboiler of London, that he should make no soap after 14th November 1633, the benefit of which bond is granted by his Majesty to Mr. Elliot, it appeared that Blackall had for six years used the trade of a soapmaker, and that if he had been living when his Majesty granted divers privileges to the now company of soapboilers of London, he (who died about two years before) would have participated thereof. It also appeared that the bond was taken only for the advantage of the late company of soapmakers of Westminster, and that there was an agreement whereby the said company would allow Blackall 300*l.* per annum to rent [vent?] a great quantity of soap, which agreement was performed on neither side. It was ordered that the order of the 19th May be confirmed, and that the Attorney-General again be required to cause the suit in the Exchequer against Price to be stayed, but without prejudice to an offer of 300*l.* composition which Elliot alleges had been made to him by Price. [Draft. $1\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

Sept. 29. 75. Similar order. Having considered the petition of William Hampton Court. Price, one of the grooms of the Chamber, touching certain new buildings at the Antelope in Holborn, and the reasons which occasioned Price to erect the same, and likewise the petition of Nicholas Hudson, shoemaker, and a certificate from the commissioners for buildings, concerning certain other buildings begun by him to be built, where (about 20 years since) part of the stables of the Antelope inn in Holborn stood, and calling to mind an order of the 3rd March 1636-7, that Price's buildings be reduced into one single house, it was ordered that the former order be confirmed, and that Hudson's house be reduced to stables as heretofore they were, for the use of the said house, heretofore an inn; and that the Governors of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew be required to take such course that all the buildings may be re-united into one tenement. And if the Governors shall vary in anything, the Lords will take order that the orders of the Board and his Majesty's proclamation may be obeyed. [Draft. 1 p.]

Sept. 29. 76. Similar order. The Yeoman Warders of the Tower of London presented a petition complaining that having heretofore been freed from all offices abroad, by reason they are tied to continual service in the Tower, yet of late they have been troubled to do service in the city, and for refusing to do so have not only been bound over, but committed to Newgate. The Lords ordered that on Sunday next the Lord Mayor should acquaint the Lords in writing with the cause of this proceeding. [Draft. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Sept. 29. 77. The Council to the Officers of the Navy. Sir Frederick Hamilton, gentleman of the Chamber, is for his Majesty's service to repair to Gothenburg, and for his transportation had agreed with Samuel Truelove, of Rateliff, master of the Adventure, which ship you have since taken up to transport horses to the Prince Elector. We require you to release the said ship, and to enjoin the master to perform his bargain with Sir Frederick. [Draft. 1 p.]

Sept. 29. 79. Order of Council that the messengers appointed for delivery
Hampton Court. of the patents to the sheriffs for the year ensuing, shall receive from them the fees thereupon due, according to a note thereof subscribed by a clerk of the Chancery; and the said sheriffs are required to pay the same; and further, that the said sheriffs shall be required to give to the Exchequer this next Michaelmas Term the like security as is usual, before the return called Quindena Martini. [Copy. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

[Sept. 30.] 80. Petition of Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's to Archbishop Laud, the Lord Keeper, the Lord Treasurer, the Lord Privy Seal, and Sec. Windebank. The persons addressed, on a reference from his Majesty concerning some improvement to be made to the church by enclosing a common called Caddington Wood in cos. Hertford and Bedford, had found that upon a treaty between the commoners and Mr. Greene, on petitioners' behalf, it was agreed that one-third of the said common should be set out for petitioners, which was severed and leased, as also divers others of the commoners severed the parts allotted to them. The commoners contended that these parts had been set out unfairly, and destroyed the enclosures and turned cattle into the parts prepared to be sown. Various orders had been thereupon made, and a commission given to Mr. Justice Crawley and others to allot the land unenclosed amongst the persons claiming common, and not already agreed with. But the cause of dissension existed in the asserted unfairness of the allotments already made, and although petitioners were willing to submit their rights to the commissioners, they had declared that they had no power to deal with allotments previously made. The commoners also, taking advantage of the death of Mr. Greene, had puzzled the settlement of the business by various allegations against him. In the meantime daily violent disturbances had taken place. Petitioners now prayed for the punishment of the disturbers and the enlargement of the power of the commissioners. [2 $\frac{3}{4}$ pp.]

Sept. 30. 81. Order of Council made on the preceding petition. It was ordered that all persons throwing down enclosures should be punished, and that the commissioners before mentioned should reduce the proportions already allotted to an equality, so as to ensure a fair and indifferent carriage of the business; and if they can so settle the same in a peaceable way, they are to forbear making any certificate touching past misbehaviours; but if they find the persons interested will not be satisfied with what is reasonable and equal, they are to certify where the fault is, and all the contempts and misdemeanours which have been committed against the orders of the Board. [Draft. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

[Sept. 30.] 82. Petition of William Courteen to the Council. The several commodities mentioned in the schedule annexed were provided by Sir William Courteen, petitioner's late father, Thomas Ferrers, deceased, and others, for a present to the King of Morocco for releasing divers of his Majesty's subjects then captives in Barbary, the which commodities have remained in the hands of petitioner ever since his father's death. Prays order how the same shall be disposed of. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Annexed,

82. 1. The schedule above alluded to. Among the articles were 3 Friesland mares and a colt, 602 lbs. of "ebbenwood" [ebony], 8 iron chests, 2 rich damasked helmets, 2 cases of rich pistols, and 2 buff targets. [$\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

Sept. 30. 83. Order of Council made on the preceding petition. Some part Hampton Court. of the said commodities being chargeable to be kept, and some part perishable, we order the petitioner to sell so much of the said commodities as are perishable or chargeable, and to retain the proceeds with the rest of the commodities in his hands till further order. [Draft. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Sept. 30. 84. Account of Mr. Courteen of the money received for redeeming captives. The amount received was 1,042*l.* 12*s.* 5*d.*; that expended, including the payment for most of the articles mentioned above, was 424*l.* 14*s.* 4*d.*, leaving a balance in hand on 1st March 1635-6 of 618*l.* 18*s.* 1*d.* [= 1 p.]

Sept. 30. 85. Order of Council. George Lassells, prisoner in the Fleet, by petition showed that, being ordered to pay 13*s.* 4*d.* a week, with arrearages, before Ascension Day last, to his son John Lassells, he had endeavoured to perform the same; but by reason of his imprisonment, those that owe him money, and others who formerly would have lent him reasonable sums, would not afford him any; till now that Sir Robert Coke is willing to deposit the same, if it may procure petitioner's liberty. The Lords declared that if Sir Robert will lay down all that is already due, and will undertake for petitioner's performance of the same for the time to come, the Lords will give order for the petitioner's liberty. [Draft. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Sept. 30. 86. Licence from the Council to Sir Edward Manfield, of Taplow, Hampton Court. co. Buckingham, a recusant convict, to travel out of his confinement to London and Westminster, or any other place within this kingdom, during the space of 12 months from this date. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Sept. 30. 87. Minute of the above. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Sept. 30. 88. The Council to Bishop Pierce, of Bath and Wells. William Gilbert alias Ycaton, of Priestleigh, in the parish of Doultling, Somerset, husbandman, has a child of the age of five years, called Richard, who, under pretence of being his seventh son, undertakes to do cures, and thereby has abused divers of his Majesty's subjects. We pray you to call the said William Gilbert alias Yeaton before you, and such persons with whom he has been practising, and to examine the proceedings of the said Gilbert and his son, and certifying the same to this Board, to enjoin the said Gilbert to desist to use any more such practices, or to suffer his child to touch any more people. [Draft. 1 p.]

Sept. 30. 89. Order of Council on petition of Thomas Smith, farmer to his Majesty for ballasting ships. Petitioner complained that having, in obedience to the Lords' order, paid to Mrs. Burrell and her sons 2,100*l.* for materials and wharves, 950*l.* whereof was delivered to Sir William Becher, from whom Mrs. Burrell received 650*l.* for a wharf at Woolwich, with a house and lands belonging to it in possession of Ralph Eltonhead, who held it by lease and partnership of Mrs. Barrell, only for ballasting ships, that notwithstanding the Lords' former directions requiring Eltonhead to give quiet possession to petitioner, yet he keeps petitioner out, and has preferred a bill in Chancery against him to hinder the relief which petitioner hopes to receive from the Board. The Lords directed that the petition should be showed to Eltonhead, and ordered that he should attend on them with his answer on the first Wednesday in next term. [Draft. 1 p.]

Sept. 30. 90. Similar order on petition of the creditors of Sir Sampson Darrell, deceased, for victuals delivered aboard his Majesty's ships in 1635. Petitioners showed that they had been a long time suitors for payment of moneys due to them from Lady Darrell, executrix to her late husband, which it seems she is not compellable to pay until satisfaction be given concerning the accounts of her late husband to the King. The Lords prayed the Lord Treasurer and Lord Cottingham to order that the said accounts may, without further delay, be finished and declared. [Draft. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Sept. 30. 91. The like on petition of Margaret and Elizabeth Gates, Hampton Court. daughters of Sir Thomas Gates, and of Margaret Gates, widow of Anthony Gates, son of Sir Thomas. Petitioners showed that about three years past they petitioned his Majesty for moneys due to

Capt. Thomas Gates, deceased, son of Sir Thomas, for his service in the voyages to Cadiz, Rhé, and Rochelle, in which service, by a cannon-shot, he lost his life. His Majesty referred the petition to the late Lord Treasurer, but he dying, nothing was done. Petitioners being destitute of means to relieve their wants, or to convey them into Virginia, where their father, governor of "that isle," died and left his estate in the hands of persons who have ever since detained the same, besought the Lords to be a means to the now Lord Treasurer for payment of the moneys due to Capt. Thomas Gates. The Lords prayed the Lord Treasurer (when petitioners shall make appear what is due) to give order for payment thereof. [Draft. 1 p.]

Sept. 30. 92. The Council to the Mayor and Jurats of Rye. We have been Hampton Court. made acquainted with your letter to the Earl of Suffolk concerning the abuse of the searcher of your town in suffering two English gentlemen to pass without licence, and have thought good to commit him to prison for his presumption, and likewise to discharge him of his office, and we give you thanks for your care. It seems by your letter that it has been a common practice amongst the officers of that port to suffer gentlemen to pass without licences upon slender excuses, or upon a ticket only from the Farmers of the Customs at London, which is such an abuse as cannot be answered; and therefore we pray you to continue your care to discover all such officers or others as connive at such passengers; and as herein you shall do his Majesty service, we shall be mindful of you upon any occasion for your advantage. [Draft. 1 p.]

Sept. 30. 93. The same to Sir John Cope, William Walter, and Dr. John
Hampton Court. Standard, Justices of Peace for co. Oxford. We send you a petition of Nathaniel Wheatley, mayor of Banbury, on behalf of himself and other inhabitants there, wherein he complains that Banbury in 1633, 1634, and 1635, was charged with the carriage of 14 loads 3 quarters of timber from Stow and Shotover Wood for his Majesty's service, or to pay 9*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* There being no lands nor carts belonging to the borough, the then mayor required the constables to lay down the said money as formerly had been accustomed, which was usually repaid by a general rate; but the constables refusing to disburse the money, warned petitioners, having lands two or three miles out of the town, to perform the service, they having in the said years performed the same in the places where their carts were maintained, and yet offered to pay their money rateably with the other inhabitants, which the constables refused to accept, and returned their names as refusers to perform the service; whereupon, messengers being sent for them, they were constrained to pay the 9*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, with 10*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* for fees, which petitioners conceive they ought not to be charged with, and therefore desired to be relieved. We require you to call the petitioners and the constables before you, and do your endeavours to compose the difference, or otherwise to return a certificate in whom the fault remains. - Sept. 30. 94. The Council to the Bailiffs of Burford, co. Oxford. According to directions given you by his Majesty's writ, and letters from this Board, you have (as is informed) collected and paid a good part of the ship-money assessed upon that town, and having distrained divers, there are many others which yet refuse and remain refractory. We require you to make sale of such goods as you have already taken, and by distress or otherwise to collect the residue, that the whole money may be paid in with all speed; and if there be any overplus upon sale of the distress, you are to render the same back to the parties. [Draft. 1 p.]
- Sept. 30. 95. The same to the Justices of Great Sessions in co. Cardigan. We send you a petition of Margaret Jones, widow, wherein is showed, that she living near Aberystwith, in May last sent 70 bushels of rye and "pilcorne" to that place, whither suddenly after there were brought from foreign parts 4,000 bushels of corn; and being thereby prevented of sale, she obtained a cocket or let-pass from the deputy-customer of Aberystwith to export the same to Pwllhelhy [Pwllheli], and to be sold there. The vessel being on her way, Richard Price, Deputy Vice-Admiral for those parts, seized the said vessel and corn for himself, pretending that the same was confiscated to him jure officii. Upon his menacing, the sailors left the vessel floating in the port, where it remained for four days. Petitioner having notice given her thereof, caused the boat to be brought ashore, and the corn, which was near spoiled, to be landed; whereupon Price again arrested the corn, and detained the same till petitioner gave security to one Morgan to answer Price, all which she pretends was done rather out of malice than right. We require you to call Price and petitioner before you, and if you find there was no real intention to transport the corn to foreign parts, then to compose the difference, or otherwise to certify the true state of the cause. [Draft. 2 pp.]
- Sept. 30. 96. The same to [the Officers of the Exchequer]. The clerks of Edward Nicholas, one of the clerks of the Council, have taken extraordinary pains in writing a large minute of letters to the sheriffs of England and Wales for the business of shipping. We require you to pay them 30*l.* for their pains. [Draft. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]
- Sept. 30. 97. Order of Council. 101. Notes by Nicholas of business to be transacted by the Lords of the Admiralty. Agree with Mr. Crane about the rate of victualing the Navy. Appoint a boatswain for the Antelope. Resolve what shall be done upon Sir John Heydon's petition and reference. A man who was employed about saltpetre into Ireland desires to be a deputy in place of Grove. Consider two or three petitions which have been long in hand. Boatswains suitors for the place that is void:—John Garnet, boatswain in the Adventure; Thomas Severn, in the Third Whelp, a very able man; William Johnson, who served boatswain's deputy in the Antelope to Sallee; George Patteson, recommended by Sir John Pennington and the Officers of the Navy; John Robinson, boatswain's mate in the Leopard. [Underwritten by Lord Treasurer Juxon: "William Johnson for the Third Whelp, and John [sie] Severn for the Antelope." [1 p.] Endorsed,

102. Petition of the Provisioners for Gunpowder and other munition for shipping to the Lords of the Admiralty. We, being tradesmen in selling powder for shipping, request that it may be free for us to buy out of his Majesty's store such quantity of gunpowder as we shall have occasion to use, and not to be at any more charge in receiving it than paying his Majesty's price; and also that we sell it to our customers without molestation, as of late times we have been put unto, to our great loss. Moreover, at the coming home from sea of ships, it has been the custom of the masters to send us such powder as shall remain, to be kept in our storehouse in safety, while [until] they go to sea again, for which purpose we have storehouses out of the city, to our great charge. Our request is that we may have liberty to receive and deliver such powder to the owners without any trouble or hindrance, and that it be not violently taken from the owners and carried into the Tower, as of late it has been. kept a note of the boatswain's ways and passages, and also the carpenter, and has threatened to turn informer, and has abused us all with most base words, and has kept reckoning of every shot I made [during] the voyage, and threatens me that I give good account of what I have done. Fearing that he would write to you and so clear himself, but when we come home all three of us purpose to see you. P.S.—By reason of a young man that was at the helm, coming away from Sallee, saluting the Leopard, he mistaking the helm, it was our fortune to touch some part of the Mare's [Mary's] foremast, but with a fesh [fish] that was clapped on, it was made good again, so that it is no hindrance to the voyage; but if it be questioned, let me entreat you to be my friend. Sept. 30. 104. Minute of an application by Mr. Crane to the Lords of the Admiralty that he may have an allowance in his account of moneys paid by him in Ireland for pipe staves imported thence for his Majesty's service. In former times it was a perquisite of the Lord Deputy to grant licences for exporting pipe staves, but since the now Lord Deputy's going over he has settled a course for payment to his Majesty of 3*l.* per 1,000 upon pipe staves exported, and 10*s.* per 1,000 upon hogshead staves, which brings his Majesty eleven or twelve hundred per annum. Sept. 30. Lords of the Admiralty to Theophilus Earl of Suffolk, Lord Hampton Court. Warden of the Cinque Ports. There is at St. Peter's, near Margate, a French vessel of 15 tons, called the St. Jean de Dieu, apprehended at sea about a year since and sent to St. Peter's by the Earl of Northumberland. His Majesty being pleased to render her to the owners, you are forthwith to cause her to be delivered to Mr. ——. Thosse for their use. [Copy. See Vol. cccliii., fol. 56. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Sept. 30. The same to Sir James Bagg. Complaint is made that the Hampton Court. St. Luke, of Olonne, taken by Dunkirkers about the 29th June last and carried next day into Plymouth, was there claimed by the owners as being in a friend's country and not confiscated, and that you consented at first to render her to the owner, but presently after caused her to be arrested, which made the proprietors procure a commission out of the Court of Admiralty. Notwithstanding which, your officers forbear not to proceed at Plymouth to sell the merchandise belonging to the said vessel. We pray you to send us in writing your answer to the said complaint. Since the third year of his present Majesty the force had been a constant garrison of 125 men, who were lodged in several parts of the island. The islands do not contain above 30 persons able to carry arms. The expense of the military establishment was 1,828*l.* 0*s.* 10*d.* per annum. [12 pp., of which 4 are blank.]

112. Petition of William Felgate, Edmund Beane, Robert Russell, Thomas Frere, and others, provisioners of gunpowder for shipping, to the Lords of the Admiralty. His Majesty having taken into his hand the sale of powder to his subjects at 12*d.* per pound, petitioners took out of his store in one year to the value of near 10,000*l.* His Majesty has lately set the price at 18*d.* per lb., and ordered that none be bought or sold without licence from the Earl of Newport, unto whom petitioners addressed. He referred them to his Secretary, Mr. Barnard, to make their conditions, which were to pay his Majesty 18*d.* per lb., and to Lord Newport 1*d.* per lb., besides petty charges, which rate is so great that petitioners refused to take licences. Pray leave to buy and sell powder at such price as you think fit. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

114. Considerations respecting how to raise up a company to force a trade with the West Indies and Brazil. It was estimated that it would require a capital of 150,000*l.* per annum to be collected for an annual adventure, and to be continued in joint stock for seven years at least. Also that the work would require royal patronage, and the general subscriptions of all the nobility and men of estate in the kingdom. The objects as here set forth were—1. To force and take; 2. To fortify and hold; 3. To plant and manure; and 4. To trade. The King was to be solicited to be an adventurer; the nobility are put down at 10,000*l.* per annum; the city of London at 12,000*l.*; the shires in England at 60,000*l.*; the courts of justice at 8,000*l.*, and so forth. [Sept.] 126. Sir John Tonstall to Nicholas. Being to go into Essex next week, and fearing that the saltpetreman of whom he has complained may be called when he is absent, he acquaints Nicholas with the particulars. About a month since, that man applied to him for the key of his dove-house to be digged for saltpetre. Sir John, after some conversation tending to delay, told him that his unwillingness proceeded from the misconduct of a saltpetreman who dug it up about five years before, and played the knave with him, and drove away half his doves. The present applicant said that the saltpetreman whom Sir John called knave was as honest as Sir John, and had as good reputation with the Lords, and that if he would not open his gates, he would find a key to open them himself. Sir John endured his insolence with patience, but prayed him to forbear until the doves had done breeding. If the Lords call upon this matter in Sir John's absence, prays that the hearing may be deferred, or that he may receive fitting satisfaction. [1 p.]

Oct. 1. 2. Roger Vaughan, Sheriff of co. Hereford, to Nicholas. I have Hereford. taken order with Richard Wootton to pay to Sir William Russell, of ship-money for this county, 420*l.* by the 9th of this month. As much as may be levied of the rest, I will send up with my full accounts within a fortnight or three weeks. With what difficulty this last sum was collected I hold it over-troublesome to relate. I have been willing to do his Majesty my uttermost service, as I hope it will be so conceived. I wrote, two months since, to the mayor of Hereford, certifying him that the arrears of this county were forthwith to be paid to Sir William Russell, their charge being 185*l.*; I have not heard since from him. The borough of Leompster [Leominster] was charged at 44*l.*, which they have paid, all but 1*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

4. [Sir Thomas Roe to Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia]. By the resentment of his Majesty of the unprincely carriage of the King of Poland, to his ambassador, you will judge of his affection to you ; but if, out of this error, any good may be produced, I conceive your wisdom will be content to reap advantages of evils. The ambassador pretending that his master will make amends to the brother for his fault to the sister, and that he has matter very efficacious to propose for the benefit of the Prince Elector, it is fit to hear him ; and if his overtures be as empty as his wooing, he may at last be rejected with as great a scorn as to be refused to utter more folly. Next Sunday will determine the business. Concerning the Prince Elector's affairs in this Court, I have given him a faithful account, and will only fall upon one point, which is, the prosecution of the treaty ; for the delay whereof, being now wholly cast upon a backwardness of the States, I extremely wonder that they will not apprehend the greatest occasion that ever will be offered to enter into a league which will accommodate all their sea affairs, and engage us with them against the common enemy. Upon this treaty many other resolutions depend ; as that of the West Indies, which must make a breach with Spain ; that of staying the Swedes from an enforced peace ; and, in effect, the whole fortunes of your son. I am afraid that state is envious, and has ambition to reserve all America for themselves, being swelled with Brazil, and despise us too much, which will turn to their ruin. You may speak freely to the Prince of Orange, that deputies may be named on whose wisdom there is some hope, if he also be not fallen into the gulf of despair that no good can come from the land of Galilee, and to write earnestly to his Majesty to take on him the first place, to be sought unto as the sanctuary of the oppressed. If this be not suddenly done, a hard winter will freeze all our warmth, and the Swedes will take their advantage. This week I wrote to the Chancellor Oxenstiern. It is he only that desires to continue the war, that his activity and experience may appear necessary to rule the whole state ; and whatsoever another faction works for peace, I know they make preparations for war, for they have ordered 24,000 tons of victuals from Sweden and 30,000 from Liefland [Livonia], and munition to maintain the sea towns, and so to retire to a defensive war, and wait their best conditions. While they are unreconciled, there is life. If they once make peace, which they will do before spring if the league proceed not roundly, it will be hard to revive a dead coal. They have lately resolved to keep a standing army of 18,000 foot of their own subjects, eight regiments of strangers mixed in their conquered lands, and as many of horse, to increase their navy yearly, and to build a kind of galley, or stronsse, as they call it, which carries two guns only in the chase, and with these to keep the coasts ; all which resolutions may be drawn farther if they see a just concurrence. But changing designs proposed makes wise men judge that they are arts of delay ; and Mr. Avery will never finish this treaty. With some other contemplations I have troubled the Prince Elector, the sum whereof is that he must do somewhat to be seen in Germany. It is his own spirit that must raise him both reputation and followers. [Copy. 1½ p.]

Oct. 2. 5. Statement of the distribution of ships to the several shires of England and Wales, with their tonnage, number of men and charge, together with the sums set on the corporate towns of each county, according to the Lords' letters dated this day. [16 pp., of which 6 are blank.]

Oct. 2. 7. Another similar paper. [2½ pp.]

Oct. 2. 8. The Council to [Edward Broomfield], Lord Mayor of London. Letter of instructions, setting forth the reasons which had induced the King to issue the present writs for ship-money, and directing the Lord Mayor as to the course to be pursued by him in the assessment and levy of 14,000*l.*, being the sum required to furnish the ships demanded. There is, as in previous similar letters, the clause directing that the clergy should be treated with due respect; and it is prescribed, that if any persons be found refractory, the Lord Mayor is, without delay, or respect of persons, to proceed roundly with them, and not to defer meddling with them to the last, as was done by some sheriffs of counties last year, whereby all the trouble was cast on the end of the year, and those that were refractory gained time above those that were well affected. It is added that his Majesty last spring sent to Sallee a fleet, over and besides the fleet employed in the Narrow Seas, which has this summer not only kept in from sea those enemies to Christianity, but has been a means to redeem some of his Majesty's subjects; and there being fresh supply sent thither about the end of the summer, the Admiral gives good hope that he shall be able to free all the rest of his Majesty's subjects that are in thralldom in those parts. Howsoever, his Majesty is resolved not to give over his care so to provide against those Turks as will free the coasts from them. [Copy. 5 pp.]

Oct. 2. 9. The same to the Mayor of Bristol. Similar letter for assessment and levy of 800*l.* [Copy. 4¾ pp.]

Oct. 2. 10. The same to the Sheriff of co. Buckingham. The like for assessment and levy of 4,500*l.*, but differing in such particulars as were applicable to a county and not to a city. Great stress was laid upon the care with which the sheriff was to see that no person was assessed that received alms of a parish, nor any cottagers, unless they were known to have estates in money or goods, or other means to live by over and above what they got by their daily labour; and where such persons were found to be taxed, the sheriff was to take off what was set upon them, and lay it upon those that were better able to bear it. The sheriff was to have a more than ordinary regard to this point to prevent complaints of inequality in the assessments, wherewith the Council were much troubled last year. There was

21. Kenrick Edisbury to Nicholas At my return from Portsmouth, Sir William Russell delivered me a chiding letter from the Lords about the certificate we made in behalf of the purser of the Victory. I have at this time likewise a punctual information by the purser of the Providence against his captain for selling away the King's provisions. For that which concerns our office, I hope we shall be better able to call this man's fault in question (being a seaman) than we can Capt. Stewart, who is countenanced far beyond us; yet for his purser we intend to return him a debtor to the King, which I conceive will ruin his poor fortune. Sir William delivered me also your letter, and Capt Carteret's, touching 30 men kept short in the Hercules, wherein the Lords' command shall be observed before the ship's account be cleared. The Antelope's company and the Convertive will be paid to-morrow; the Swan frigate and the extraordinary men reserved to clear the ships, this day. I was at Woolwich on Saturday, and gave order to despatch away the Greyhound, which Capt. Pett promised to see done suddenly. I sent him the Earl of Northumberland's direction touching her. I have the account of the remains returned in the ships last year ready for you. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

24. Bishop Pierce, of Bath and Wells, and seventeen other Justices of the Peace for Somerset, to the Council. According to your letters for settling an equal rate for this county towards public services, we have at this sessions resolved that the rates shall be amended; but in regard of the difficulty of the work, and because this county in the winter season is most inconvenient for travel, and that there may be reason to have conference with the greatest part of the gentry, we crave your favour, that it be deferred till the county may with more conveniency meet. In the meantime we shall inform ourselves, that we may come better prepared. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

25. Henry Earl of Stamford to Sec. Coke. At this last Quarter Sessions at Leicester there was brought before the bench a business so unnatural, that one brother should accuse another of high treason. We immediately left the common business to take the information, which with the examinations is sent enclosed. There have been many unkind suits in that family, and, if the writer be rightly informed, William Whalley is much led away by the ill advice of one Bent, and one White, a minister whose conditions are known in the High Commission, as Bent's are in the Star Chamber. The writer is also informed by Sir John Bale, a near neighbour to Sec. Coke's kinsmen, that this is not the first time William Whalley has attempted to lay foul accusations against his brother. [Seal with crest. 1¾ p.] Enclosed,

25. I. Justices of Peace of co. Leicester to Sec. Coke. William Whalley, of Norton juxta Galby, has informed us of disloyal and scandalous words spoken by Ralph Whalley, his elder brother. We present his information and examinations, and have bound both the brothers to appear at the next assizes or before the Council when called upon. [¾ p.] Enclosed,

Norton, speaking of the enclosures of Galby, he told Mary Busby that he had got an injunction for enjoying thereof, with a commission of peace and proclamation of rebellion, and Mary Busby thereupon told examinant that Ralph Whalley, of Norton aforesaid, hearing that examinant was going up to London to procure an injunction, used these speeches, viz., that if the examinant had procured an injunction, or could procure one to keep him, the said Ralph, from enjoying his own lands, that then the King was a dishonest man, and the Lord Keeper a knave, which accusation Melicent Pleydell confirmed in the presence of Mary Busby, whereupon examinant told them to take care what they said, for they would be called to an account by the justices, and they replied that they would affirm the same wheresoever they should be called. 3rd October 1637. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

25. I. ii. Information of Mary Busby, of Norton aforesaid. She never heard her uncle, Ralph Whalley, speak any word of any injunction; but about a month last past, speaking of John White, vicar of Norton, he used these words, that if there were no law to be had, then the Lord Keeper was a knave, and the King a dishonest man; and that he used many other "ifs," but what they were she remembers not. 3rd October 1637. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

25. I. iii. Information of Melicent Pleydell, of Norton aforesaid. Never heard her uncle, Ralph Whalley, use any words against the King or the Lord Keeper, neither did she repeat any words to her [sic] brother William Whalley, but William Whalley in a jesting way said she might be called to answer what words she had heard. 3rd October 1637. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

25. I. iv. Examination of Ralph Whalley, in which he altogether denied the alleged words, and said that he was much amazed at a relation made to him by Alice Widmerpool, who told him it was reported that he had spoken dangerous words, and that William Whalley said to her, that if he would put to compromise the suits between them, the said words should be no further spoken of. And further, the said Alice told him that Mr. Bent, late Feodary of co. Leicester, advised him to go to London, and be there before Thursday night, to work his peace by Sec. Coke, or else examinant was utterly ruinate. 3rd October 1637. [1 p.]

25. I. v. Information of Alice Widmerpool, of Frisby, near Galby. On Sunday last was three weeks, being at the house of William Whalley, he told her that Ralph

Whalley had spoken dangerous words, saying they were treason. She said, God forbid he should speak any such words, and wished there were peace between them. William Whalley said if Ralph would be at peace the words should be buried, but if not he would reveal the same. Further, that William Bent, late Feodary of co. Leicester, said that if Ralph Whalley were faulty in speaking any dangerous words, it were his best course to repair to London to Sec. Coke to use his help to make his peace. Examinant acquainting Ralph Whalley therewith, he affirmed he would take the Sacrament he never spoke any dangerous words, and would not stir a foot. 4th October 1637. [1 p.]

25 I. vi. Examination of William Bent, of Billesdon, co. Leicester. On Saturday last, or Friday before, Alice Widmerpool came to examinant's house, and there was speech that Ralph Whalley was likely to come to trouble about some dangerous words; whereupon examinant said if there were any such matter Ralph Whalley would do well to ride to London, and acquaint Sec. Coke therewith, that was his kinsman. 4th October 1637. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

26. Capt. George Carteret to Nicholas. When I came out of Cadiz Road, Mr. Brissenden complained to me that his captain suffered the provision of their ship to be embezzled, whereupon I sent for his captain, who could not deny but that his men lying in the hold of the ship, a thing not usual in the King's ships, they had found divers of their beer casks empty; and that likewise he had sold provisions to some English ships at Cadiz, but that he would make it good when he came into England. Brissenden also complained that his captain had beaten him, and had caused his cabin to be pulled down, whereof his captain could give no reason but choler, and that he was sorry for it. Brissenden justified other things before me. I could not find that he was in any fault, but that he had had a great deal of injury done him by the captain and master of the ship. [1 p.]

Petition of Theophilus Earl of Suffolk to the King. By his office of Constable of the Castle of Dover and Warden of the Cinque Ports he has the government of the castles built in or between the Cinque Ports. Cheiney Eborne, a soldier in Sandgate Castle, not only absented himself from his service and disobeyed petitioner's command, but refused to answer a suit commenced against him before petitioner. Petitioner thereupon sent special warrant for Eborne's apprehension, who being brought before petitioner's lieutenant, upon refusal to submit himself, was committed to Dover Castle, where he still remains. Eborne, to avoid his deserved punishment, has sued forth several writs de homine replegiando to remove his body out of petitioner's command; and petitioner is informed by his counsel that the ordinances made by Henry VIII. for the government of the said castles, however expedient and necessary and approved by long experience, were made rather by his prerogative royal than according to the common law, and it is doubtful whether the same be a sufficient warrant to petitioner for punishing the said offender, to be insisted on before your Majesty's justices of the bench, where the cause is now in question. The taking away the power of calling in the garrison soldiers upon their service in the said castles from petitioner and his successors will be the subversion of the strength of that part of your kingdom; whereupon petitioner prays directions both for maintaining the prerogative and for government of the castles. They, as other inhabitants, were required to find watch and ward, or to contribute to that charge. Cole was, at the time of the advance, clerk or deputy to Sir Thomas Watson, now deceased, but then one of the Tellers of the Exchequer, and the principal question was whether the amount should be repaid by the Exchequer or by the executors of Sir Thomas Watson. This troubles the puritans, who expect the Scotch will begin to stir new broils. The Court expects the issue with curiosity, many being of opinion that the Scots will not easily submit. And because the misdemeanours of Newton and other pursuivants in oppressing your subjects by colour of their employment may the better appear, we present the particular facts out of many others, being justified by the certificates annexed. There follow brief statements of the cases of [Thomas] Jennings, a protestant, and a married man, sworn to be a priest by one Elizabeth, hired for that purpose for 5s. Also of Francis Smith and Bartholomew Fromond, of Drew Lovett, of Mr. Reynold, and of Elizabeth Ratcliffe; all which cases have been before mentioned in the calendar of previous papers, and especially in that of Vol. cccxvii., No. 36, and Vol. cccl., No. 75. Oct. 11. 58. Notes taken by Sec. Windebank upon the hearing of the above causes. In the first of them, Bennett, being dissatisfied with a rate set upon him for the poor, and reproved by the Earl for coming upon his land to take partridges, said publicly to the Earl that he would come in spite of him, and that he was as good a gentleman as he was, for the Bennetts were as good as the Leys; and taxed the Earl with baseness and base dealing. Sentence, 1,000l. fine to the King, and 1,000l. damages to the Earl; Bennett to acknowledge his fault before the justices of the peace, and to ask the Earl's forgiveness; also Bennett's scandalous answer to be taken off the file, with certain scandalous depositions concerning drinking. In the second case, Thomas Lunsford the younger, and Maurice Lewis, made an attack upon Sir Thomas Pelham, on a Sunday in August 1633, as he, his wife, and various other persons were returning in Sir Thomas's coach from church. The assailants rushed out of a copse upon them, and attacked them with swords and pistols. Sentence, Lunsford the younger, and Lewis, 5,000l. apiece to the King, and 3,000l. damages to Sir Thomas Pelham; Lunsford the elder to be sent for by a sergeant-at-arms. [= 2¾ pp.]

- Oct. 13. 65. Sec. Windebank to Colonel George Goring. Visits and letters from friends in times of indisposition are works of affection rather than judgment, therefore he has forborne on Goring's late disaster, but now that danger is past he congratulates him. Is commanded by Lord Goring, Goring's father, to communicate with him concerning an advice in one of his letters of some disrespect put by the Prince of Orange upon the English and Scotch nation, they of all nations in the world having merited most of him and the States, who owe what they are entirely to those of this island, their state being cemented together with their blood. This has been represented by the writer to his Majesty, who is very tender of the honour of both nations, and has commanded the writer to assure Goring that his interposition shall not be wanting in any course he shall advise for reparation, to which the writer will be pleased to contribute. Oct. 13. 66. List of causes to be heard in the Star Chamber. Thomas Kilborne versus Gervase Payne, John Guildsborough, and John Laverock; Henry Cary and John Arundel versus Emanuel Langford and others; the Attorney-General versus Vincent de la Barre, Francis Palmes and others; the same versus George Harwood. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Oct. 13. 67. Notes taken by Sec. Windebank on the hearing of the first of the causes above mentioned. John Turpin, town clerk of Huntingdon, made a capias for the apprehension of Laverock; Kilborne arrested him thereon; but he was rescued by the other defendants, who assaulted Kilborne, and Payne wounded him grievously with a sword. Payne and Laverock were fined 1,000*l.* apiece to the King, and 500*l.* damages, and to be bound to their good behaviour. Notes also of the second cause, which was for counterfeiting deeds, Langford was fined 1,500*l.*, and sentenced to stand in the pillory at the assizes. Also of the third cause, which was part heard this day, and sentenced on the 18th inst. [$2\frac{1}{2}$ pp.]

Oct. 13. 68. Certificate of Sir William Uvedale and others, Justices of Peace for Hants, upon a reference from the Lords of the Admiralty, touching the carriage of 1,000 loads of timber by Robert Rigge, and the payment of the King's price for that service. After examination of Rigge and James Robins, and upon view of the quay at Fareham, they find that the carriage is performed as near the King's yard as is possible, the bridge being broken down, which they do not find ought to be repaired by Rigge; they, therefore, conceive it reasonable that Rigge should have the King's price. [1 p.]

Oct. 13. Nicholas to Attorney-General Bankes. Sends the complaint
Westminster. of Browne Bushell, and others, and other papers concerning Capt. Buller, out of which he will frame such articles against the same captain as he shall think best for his Majesty's service. [Copy. See Dom. James I., Vol. ccxix., p. 159. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Oct. $\frac{1}{2}$ 3. 69. Nathaniel Geraerd to Prestwick Eaton. As Mr. Paulys has Madrid. left unsatisfied the 300 R. which the writer owes to Eaton, he sends it by Jeffrey Ingleton. Is going to Seville. [1 p.]

Oct. 13. 70. Receipt of Sir William Russell for 1,903*l.* 18*s.* paid by Richard Whitehead, late sheriff of Hants, in part of 6,000*l.* ship-money charged on that county by writ of 4th August 1635. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

- Oct. 13. 71. Receipt of Sir William Russell for 1,450*l.* paid by Thomas Brooke on behalf of Sir Philip Parker, sheriff of Suffolk, in part of 8,000*l.* ship-money of that county under writ of 12th August 1636. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]
- [Oct. 13.] 72. Journal of Capt. William Rainsborough, of the expedition to Sallee, in which he, as captain of the Leopard, was Admiral, Capt. George Carteret in the Antelope was Vice-Admiral, and Capt. Brian Harrison in the Hercules was Rear-Admiral. The journal contains a brief daily entry from the 21st February 1636–7, when Rainsborough joined his ship at Tilbury Hope, until this day, when his ship came over the chain at Chatham. The chief results appear in entries under date of 29th July, “Mr. [Robert] Blake came aboard with 13 English.” 31st July, “came aboard 40 Christian captives.” 1st August, “We had 180 Christians came aboard.” 2nd August, “We had 73 more came aboard.” [22 pp.]
- Oct. 14. 73. Sir Thomas Delves, Sheriff of co. Chester, to the Council. I have returned up the whole sum charged upon this county for ship-money, but finding the country poor, especially the market towns, I cannot as yet levy the sums imposed on them, and therefore rather chose to pay them in my own moneys than to incur a censure of slackness, or to move poor men’s payments or punishments with too strict a hand. I received your directions about repayment of sums formerly charged, and some part levied, in case of the county. I find by the gentry that the city’s encroachments are very troublesome and displeasing to the country; and so I crave my discharge. [Seal with arms. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]
- Oct. 14. 74. Sir John Manwood to [Sec. Windebank]. I have obeyed your instructions as far as lies in my power. Because my occasions draw me to London, I have conferred with the mayor of Dover, and in my absence have interested him in it, so that if you have any further commands, direct them to him. On arrival in London I will wait on you. [1 p.]
- Oct. 14. 75. Certificate of Sir William Russell of sums in arrear under writs issued in August 1635. Total, 8,797*l.*, or, deducting 800*l.* abated to Bristol and 2,000*l.* to Northumberland, 5,997*l.* [Damaged with damp. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

same for his Majesty's service, and for tradesmen in London, who cannot get these commodities for money; but there is now shipped out 6,000 of clap-board of the best. I will attend you when you come to Westminster on this business, on which I am put by my master John Crane, victualler to the Navy, and his brother, and likewise on the order about Lady Darrell, lately granted in my name and three others. Oct. 14. 80. Certificate of Dr. John Prideaux, Regius Professor of Divinity in Oxford, that he had read over [Chillingworth's Answer to Knott], and found in it nothing against the doctrine or discipline of the Church of England, but many things which strongly illustrate the orthodox faith and discomfit its adversaries. Oct. 15. 81. Order of the King in Council. Sec. Coke having acquainted Hampton Court. the Board with a letter of the Agent of Holland, wherein he complains that the Rose, of Amsterdam, was, about Portland, met with by five ships of war of Dunkirk, and having most of her men slain, and the ship almost sunk, the residue of the men saved themselves in the skiff, and the ship came to land about Seaford, where she was pillaged by the inhabitants, and divers of the goods coming to land were adjudged as wreck by the Lord Warden, and forthwith sold, only 15 days being given to the proprietors, resident in Amsterdam, to reclaim their goods. It was ordered that the proprietors may appeal for the recovery of their goods if they be found not to be wreck, and that in the meantime the proceeds of the goods shall remain deposited in the Admiral Court of the Cinque Ports. [Seal of the Council attached. $1\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Oct. 15. 82. Petition of Marmaduke Marshall to the King. Petitioner has discovered that divers parcels of ground lying in Lenton and Radford, co. Nottingham, being common or waste ground, belong to your Majesty and are unlawfully withheld. Prays grant of the same in fee-farm at the rent of 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per annum, and petitioner will at his own cost recover the same. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Annexed,

As touching the grant to petitioner, we leave the same to your wisdom. 25th June 1638. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]*

82. V. Report of the Lord Treasurer to the King. Finds the lands desired by petitioner are part of the Forest of Sherwood, and to be very improvable if you will sever the same, and so will the whole forest, I doubt not. But how fit your Majesty knows best. [$\frac{1}{3}$ p.]

Oct. 15. 83. Order of Council on the complaint of Michael Willett against Hampton Court. Thomas Roberts, for delaying to pay petitioner as he was enjoined by order of the Board of 25th May 1636. It was ordered that he should pay petitioner 50s. for his first trouble, and 20s. for the charge of this journey, or attend the Board on the 10th November, which if he fail to do, a messenger is to be sent for him. Oct. 15. Lords of the Admiralty to Capt. [George] Heigham, Lieutenant Hampton Court. of the Garrison at Portsmouth. A quantity of saltpetre which was aboard the William, of London, John Bankes master, is put into a barque now at Portsmouth or thereabouts. You are to make stay of the said saltpetre for his Majesty's use, and not to release the same without security to bring it about to the port of London, and not to dispose of it without leave. [*Copy. As for the 2,500*l.* to Lord Holland, I can satisfy you. I got 500*l.* of that sum for him, and I desire you to let him know that the difference between me and the Adventurers will have no operation upon the moneys we are to pay him, for by the order

89. The King to [the Lord Mayor and others of] London. We have directed two letters to you in favour of Thomas Plumer, of London, merchant, who, at our being in Scotland, you chose to be sheriff, in the first of which we signified to you that, in regard of his infirmity in his hearing and other respects best known to ourself, we thought you should forbear to call him to that employment, and should deliver back the bond which you caused him to enter into to be cancelled. Upon the receipt thereof you made difficulty to give us satisfaction, pretending it might be drawn into a precedent; whereupon, by our second letters, we answered that we had no intention to open a way to the like hereafter, nor had so earnestly pressed it but upon some special occasions best known to ourselves. You have yet delayed, wherefore we command you, without further dispute, to deliver up the said bond, and forbear to choose the said Plumer as sheriff or alderman. [Draft. $1\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

man, Robert Barlyman, and others will not suffer petitioner to breathe in quiet through multiplicity of suits in Chancery, in the Court of Requests, in the Arches, at the Common Law, maintained by a common purse, thereby putting petitioner to 10*l.* or 20*l.* expense every term, which ariseth yearly to more than his annual means. Not content therewith, they over-rate petitioner in all taxes, withhold his tithes, detain his dues, wage law against him with his own moneys, and adopt many contrivances for defrauding him, which are here set forth, he being unable to withstand a multitude, one of whom has revenues of three or four thousand a year. Oct. 17. Petition of Dr. George Griffith, rector of Llandrinio, co. [diocese of St.] Asaph [and co. Montgomery], to the King. There are in the said rectory two farms called Maerdey and Kineerey, of the yearly value of 100*l.*, the inheritance of Sir Richard Newport, and in the occupation of William Couper and John Vaughan, which should pay tithes in kind, as has been adjudged in three judgments in ecclesiastical courts. The farmers, by the means of their landlord, procured those sentences to be controlled by prohibitions, and have kept from any just trial at common law. Petitioner not being able, by reason of his calling, to follow an uncertain and tedious suit against powerful opponents, prays a reference to some of the Council. [*Copy. Oct. 19. 3. Notes by Nicholas of business to be transacted by the Lords of the Admiralty. Agree with Mr. Crane about the victualling. Order what shall be done on a memorial from the Officers of the Navy. Consider complaint of provisions of the Providence sold to the southward by the captain. Resolve proportion of saltpetre to be assigned to David Stevenson in Grove's place. Order from what time the Earl of Northumberland shall be paid. Whether Birtby and Boxley shall be freed from the messenger on bail. Despatch the reference on Sir John Heydon's petition. Consider memorial from the French Ambassador's secretary. Petition of Hooke, of Bristol. [1 p.]

Oct. 19. 4. Papers of remembrances from the Officers of the Navy, upon which they desired the Lords of the Admiralty to be moved. They relate to an estimate for enlarging the dry dock at Woolwich. His Majesty has ordered the Prince Royal to be brought about to Woolwich. Repair of ships lately returned from sea. Want of more masters-attendant; none now left at Chatham. Dry dock to be made at Portsmouth. A brick wall to enclose the yard at Chatham, and a new chain in place of the barricado at Upnor Castle, which his Majesty ordered some years past. The points to be settled with the victualler, alluded to in the preceding article, are here explained; they related to accounts between the pursers and him, and whether he was to be at the loss of the mouldy bread, sour beer, and other victuals returned at the close of a voyage; the ships in harbour scruple to receive them. [1 p.]

Oct. 19. Lords of the Admiralty to the Vice-President and Council of Whitehall. York. We have discharged our late Deputy, William Richardson, from making saltpetre, and have given deputation to Francis Emerson to work that county. We are informed that Richardson privately makes saltpetre in York, and sells the same thereabouts. We pray you to seize to his Majesty's use all such saltpetre, till upon notice of the quantity and quality we give order how to dispose thereof. [Copy. See Vol. cccliii., fol. 57 b. 1 p.]

Oct. 19. The same to Sir Henry Marten. Complaint is made to us that Whitehall. a French vessel, the Charles, being taken in June last, four leagues from Portland, by Dunkirkers, and left in Dover Road by reason of contrary winds, was there taken at anchor by an English vessel which had letters of reprisal against the Dunkirkers. Being carried to London, she was there claimed by the French Ambassador, and it was ordered that she should remain in the river until attestation were brought to whom she belonged, and then she should be restored, with the money that proceeded from the sale of the fish which was in her. The French having brought attestation, there was then another sentence, whereby the captain that took her was permitted to have her upon caution at a very low rate. We pray you to certify to us of these proceedings, that we may give answer to the French. [Copy. Ibid., fol. 58. ½ p.]

We require you to see the order of the Lords carefully observed, and to send us the bonds you take. - Oct. 19. Order of the Lords of the Admiralty. John Birtby and Thomas Whitehall. Boxley, having stated upon petition that they had been three weeks in the messenger's custody upon the complaint of Doves and Tokeley, and had been examined by the Attorney-General, whereupon they prayed enlargement, the Lords desired the Attorney-General to take of petitioners good bail according to the quality of their offences, and thereupon to release them. - Oct. 19. Nicholas to Richard Poole. You are to prepare a deputation from the Lords Commissioners for Saltpetre to David Stevenson, to make saltpetre within cos. Cambridge, Huntingdon, Rutland, and Lincoln, in place of Hugh Grove. Stevenson is to bring into his Majesty's stores 600 of saltpetre a week, from 1st January next. [Copy. See Nicholas's Letter Book, Dom. James I., Vol. ccxix., p. 160.]

Barbary saltpetre, containing 237 bags, petitioners proffer it to the Lords to be delivered into his Majesty's storehouse at 4*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.* the cwt. If his Majesty has no occasion for it, petitioners pray leave to transport it. [1 p.]

6. Petition of Thomas Humberstone and his wife, and other parishioners of Walkern, in the diocese of Lincoln, to Archbishop Laud. Petitioners at Easter last and several other times presented themselves kneeling in the open chancel of Walkern, as they had formerly done, to receive the Holy Communion at the hands of Dr. Gorsuch, parson of the said parish, who would not suffer them to be partakers of the same, and notwithstanding he was since commanded by his diocesan to administer the same, as by petition annexed appears, and afterwards before his Lordship consented to do accordingly, he still refuses. As petitioners have always been very conformable, and desire to submit themselves, and to partake of the sacrament, they beseech your command to the said minister that he appoint a communion and administer the same to petitioners, who are willing to receive the same kneeling at the rails of the communion table, if you so command, or as formerly they have done in the chancel. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten,

6. I. *Direction of Archbishop Laud to Sir John Lambe, that if there be process issued out of the court against petitioners, he will suppress it, and send this petition to Dr. Gorsuch, willing him to cease all further suit, and do what shall be fitting in a peaceable and Christian-like way, petitioners performing what they have undertaken. 19th October 1637. [$\frac{1}{4}$ p.] Annexed,*

6. II. *Copy petition of the same petitioners to Bishop Williams, of Lincoln. Petitioners went to Dr. Gorsuch on Good Friday eve last, and acquainted him with their purpose of receiving the Holy Communion as the next day. They paid him their accustomed offerings on Good Friday, and drew all of them out of the church into the body of the chancel, and there kneeling, desired to be partakers thereof, but were refused by the Dr. and his curate, unless they would come up to the rail, which they refused until they knew your command. Upon the same reason five of them were put by at Christmas last, and likewise the Dr. and his curate read part of the service at the communion table, where most of the parish cannot hear. Pray the bishop's counsel and directions, and that the divine service may be there said where the people may be best edified. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten,*

6. II. i. Dr. Gorsuch is to see this, and to know that if it be true, it is a bold part in him, and more in his curate, to deny the communion upon such weak foundations, and therefore I strictly require them to warn a communion and to administer the same to as many of those parties as shall present themselves, in any part of the chancel, kneeling, under pain of suspension in him, and deposition in his curate. And I require him to set up no innovation or fantasticality of his own conceit in his church, without express order from his ordinary for the time to come. 5th May 1637. JO. LINCOLN. [$\frac{1}{4}$ p.] Also annexed the following papers of previous date, but connected with this business.

6. III. Petition of the said Dr. John Gorsuch to Archbishop Laud. His parishioners, puritanically affected, much trouble his quiet administration of the Holy Sacrament, in respect they will not come up to receive at the rails, which breeds much trouble amongst the rest of the inhabitants. Who having for the same cause, amongst other misdemeanours, been presented in the Bishop of Lincoln's diocese, your petitioner can have no execution of justice by reason the Bishop of Lincoln remits all their presentments and will not suffer them to be presented in his court, whereupon some of the parties article against the churchwardens and sidemen to their great vexation. Petitioner prays that either they may be cited into the High Commission Court, or some other course may be taken therein as to you shall seem fit. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]
6. IV. *Petition of the same to the same. Petitioner, since the time that order came about removing the communion table to the end of the chancel and there to be set tableways, has endeavoured to deliver the communion to his parishioners coming up there to receive the same. In all which parish there was only one man, a factious fellow, Thomas Humberstone, a farmer, denied to come up, and thereupon I went to him and delivered the communion where he sat in the chancel. The next communion day four others would not come up to receive. I denied to deliver the communion to them. They complained to the archdeacon, Mr. Holdsworth, who told them, before he was informed by me, that I was to blame, but after I had been with him, wrote a persuasive letter to them to reform their carriage, but they went to the Bishop of Lincoln, who underwrit their petition that I should presently, and as the last Sunday past, deliver them the communion, though they came not up, which petitioner could not then for the suddenness thereof, as also to make your Grace acquainted therewith, and what a disturbance this will make, not only in my parish, but in the country thereabouts. Prays direction, the Bishop of Lincoln having enjoined petitioner for execution of his command in pain of suspension of his living, wherein petitioner and his friends have disbursed the best part of 1,000l. in new buildings. There is also added an account, signed J. Gorsuch, of the several presentations which had been made against the petitioners for not bowing at the hearing of the name of Jesus, for often absenting themselves from church and for not standing up at the Gloria Patri, &c. Oct. 20. 7. The King to all Judges, Justices, and others. Henry Drake, justice of peace in Dorset, to whom we formerly granted our protection, has made so good use of it that many of his engagements, to the amount of 2,500*l.*, have been discharged, and he will speedily give satisfaction for the residue by disposing of his estate and land in Devon, passed to him for collateral security, if he be not interrupted. We thereupon, by our prerogative royal, which we will not have argued or called in question, take him into our protection, and charge you that he be not molested for one year from the date hereof. Oct. $\frac{20}{30}$. The Hague. 9. Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia to Archbishop Laud. Acquaints him with what she now writes to the King and entreats his assistance in it. Before this he has had the news of the brave Landgrave of Hesse's death. His army is without a head, and her son desires to take it. He will never have a better opportunity to have so good an army levied to his hand. All the chiefs are willing, so that he may show them how they may subsist. Our suit is that the King would contribute to this work a sum of money, monthly or otherwise, as he shall think fit. By this means her son will be made considerable, and it cannot engage the King before his own time, for King James sent troops into the Palatinate and into Holland, and yet did not break with Spain. She has commanded Sir Richard Cave to tell the archbishop all things, and she entreats him to hear Sir Richard at full, and to give him counsel and assistance. P.S.—The bearer, Mr. O'Brien, desires the archbishop's recommendation to the Lord Deputy of Ireland in a business touching his father. Entreats the archbishop to give him all the favour he can. His father is a papist, but the son a good Protestant. He has a company there, and is much esteemed by the Prince of Orange and everybody else. [Seals with arms. 2 pp.]

Giles Bridges in Savoy in 1629, and tried to procure various clergymen to say that they had married her. She was fined 500*l.* and sentenced to be whipped. The remainder of these notes refer to the causes relating to Lord Savile. The late Lord Savile, by his will, gave his daughter, Mrs. Lee, an interest in a forge and certain woods of which Field was the tenant. Lord Savile died on 30th August 1630, when the present Lord strove to get possession of the forge, and in order to do so, endeavoured to force Field to release. Various riots ensued which were the cause of the present suits. The result does not appear. [= 3 pp.]

12. Sir James Bagg to the Lords of the Admiralty. Gives account of proceedings in two sessions of the Admiralty held this last vacation. For that of Devonshire, Sir Edward Seymour and the writer, as vice-admirals, attended on the 4th inst., where seven persons were arraigned, six of them Moors or Turks of Sallee, who, about 12 months since, being distressed upon the coast and forced to land, were taken upon the shore and are part of that company that were brought into the Isle [of Wight] and arraigned at Winchester. The evidence against them, of taking a small boat in Torbay, was the inducement to both juries to find them guilty. The seventh was an Englishman, one Thomas Norton, of Devon, who 17 years since was taken by an Algiers man-of-war, where for divers years he continued a slave, but took an opportunity and ran from his patron of Algiers to Sallee, where he lived at his own disposal for divers years, upon the shore, using his trade of a ship-carpenter, and at other times going to sea. Having gathered money his patron of Algiers repaired to Sallee and reduced him to bondage, from which Norton ransomed himself by those moneys he had gotten, and now goes to sea on his own account, and is accounted at Sallee to exceed the Turk's cruelty to his own countrymen. Last year he took a ship of Dartmouth which they rifled, taking away her men, sails, ammunition, and cables, and left her to the waves that soon convoyed her to the rocks, and in sight of the owners she was cast away. The Sallee man-of-war was lost in a storm at Rochelle. The Christians by the French were released and the Turks permitted to repair to Sallee. Norton takes a passage to Dartmouth, there lives at his trade as a carpenter, until discovered by some to whom he had been hard at Sallee, and so was indicted and found guilty, where he and the others remain, all reprieved. As for Cornwall sessions, on calling for the prisoners, 20 and more of the company of the Nicodemus formerly committed, return was made by the deputy gaoler that they all broke gaol except the captain, Henry Johnson, who was found guilty of taking the Medusa, of Dartmouth, but reprieved according to your directions. As for John Sorrell, the gaoler, we intended to have arraigned him, but he could not be found. A more corrupt and unfit man cannot be found, and it cannot be doubted that for money the Dutch were suffered to escape. [$2\frac{1}{2}$ pp.]

13. The same to the same. In answer to their letter of 30th September last, calendared under that date, he relates that the

St. Luke, late of Olonne, about June last was taken at sea by a ship of war of Dunkirk, and by warrant of Capt. Henry Stradling, dated 21st June 1637, was committed to the writer's officers. By warrant from the Earl of Northumberland of the 17th August, she was delivered to the said Dunkirker. After which re-delivery the ship and fish were sold at Plymouth by the Dunkirker to Richard Deane. On 2nd September last I received a letter from the Earl of Northumberland, expressing that the St. Luke was claimed by some French, and that I was to arrest her, which was done. Since I have been here I have received information that some French who claimed the ship repaired aboard, picked the oakum out of the seams, and by boring holes occasioned the water to overflow the fish, so that to save it from perishing and the ship from sinking they were enforced to sell it. The French being thereof accused and found guilty, were imprisoned by the mayor. [1½ p.] Enelosed,

17. Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia to Sir Thomas Roe. At Rhenen I could send you no news but of the death of hares and which horse run best, which, though I say it that should not say it, was mine. The joy of the taking of Breda was much abated by the loss of the brave Landgrave [of Hesse] which troubled me not a little. You know how much cause I have for it, but we must not lose courage, and my son has now more cause than ever to make himself considerable, and therefore he is desirous to take the Landgrave's army, and sent Hornece, one of his gentlemen, to sound the officers and the Landgravine, who show themselves willing to have him, so that he can find means to make them subsist. Therefore he has given Sir Richard Cave order to beseech the King that he will bestow something upon him to help his beginning. Cave will tell you all his reasons; pray let him have the best counsel and advice. I know not what to think of the treaty or where it hangs. They say it is to be here, and Sec. Coke writes to Sir William Boswell that he shall have commissions to treat, but he cannot believe it, since all the rest are ambassadors and he only agent. I hope you shall be sent. If you and Boswell were joined in commission, it were a fine thing. I have let most of my friends know how welcome you would be. The Prince of Orange is not yet returned, but is looked for every day.

Oct. 21. 22. Sir Henry Marten to the Lords of the Admiralty. Report under an order of the Lords of the 18th instant, made upon the petition of Jacob Brames, his Majesty's customer at Dover. In April last, Mr. Brames bought at Dunkirk two busses or pinks, which he caused to be brought to Dover, where he furnished them with nets, and set them upon a voyage for the North Seas to fish. They performed their voyage, returned to Dover and discharged their lading, and then were set forth again in the like manner. On that second voyage, whilst fishing to the northward of Newcastle, and when they had got between them 240 barrels of fish, they were violently taken by a frigate of Dunkirk, carried thither, and, notwithstanding the correspondents of Brames alleged the facts before stated, the masters and companies were spoiled and imprisoned, a ransom of 380*l.* was put upon them, and within 3 or 4 days the busses and fish were confiscated and sold. If upon his Majesty's letter to that State for restitution and satisfaction the same be denied, I leave it to his Majesty whether he will hold letters of reprisal sufficient, or also think it necessary to stay all Dunkirk men-of-war, until they give caution for the better security of his subjects employed in fishing. Oct. 21. 26. Petition of William Godsell alias Smith to Archbishop Laud. The chapel of Royden has been beyond the memory of man, and is a member of the church of Boyton, Wilts, having a glebe, a burying-place, and other parochial rights, consisting of 30 households and 200 people. The same has been for many years much profaned, the bell being sold away and now employed in a private house, tombstones laid for a chimney-place or hearth, the footstone used for a cheese press, the bones of buried corpses digged up and the place converted into a garden, the chapel itself inhabited as an ordinary tenement, and the parishioners on Sunday either staying at home or straggling to several churches, being seven miles distant from the mother church. Petitioner being as a neighbour and a Christian greatly scandalized, represents the matter to the archbishop, whom he had found propitious concerning the demolished chancel of Co[r]sley, in Wilts, and prays a commission to examine the particulars aforesaid. of Sec. Windebank, which was probably intended to form part of the intended proclamation. Its effect was that his Majesty, finding that the Roman Catholic party upon that ease they have lately enjoyed had forgotten themselves, and had taken that liberty to themselves that his Majesty never intended and is directly against the laws, thought good to declare that he is resolved to maintain the government of the Church of England and will punish all such as commit anything contrary to the same. Oct. 23. 32. Sir John Pennington to the Lords of the Admiralty. The Swiftsure, 17th the Unicorn set sail for Dieppe, but is not yet come back. in the Downs. The Greyhound pinnace has stopped her leak and has come out to me. On the 20th two Hollanders chased in a Dunkirk prize, a French bark of 40 or 50 tons, laden with small hedge wines, but so soon as he stood in the Hollander stood off again to sea. The same day a Dunkirk frigate took a great Holland merchant ship that was come out of the Straits, rich. The Hollanders had likewise a great loss by the Dunkirkers some three weeks since at the Isle of Rhé, as I am informed. They took seven of their merchant ships and burnt seven, and put 20 more ashore. Though the French and Hollanders have had good fortune by land, the Dunkirkers plague them both daily by sea. The 21st I received a complaint by a small English bark that a French picaroon had taken some bread and other trifles from him near the Ness. I sent out the Expedition and Greyhound to see if they could meet with him. The former has returned without finding him. [1 p.]

You are to give warrant to the Victualler to send aboard the said ships a fit quantity of victuals unto the 1st April next. This supply is to be taken out of the remains of victuals formerly provided for this year's Great Fleet. You are to cause them to be surveyed, and such only to be sent aboard as are wholesome. The Falcon, whereof Thomas Irish is master, has hovered about the Isle of Wight, intending some directions from merchants here to go for Hamburgh. If she come through the Downs, I pray that she may be boarded and sent up carefully to the port of London, or good bond taken for her due arrival here, whereby his Majesty may be answered the duties. His Majesty's other farmers have written to Capt. Percival to acquaint you herewith, which I thought should not go without this particular of my own. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

35. Commissioners for Buildings to the Council. Certificate of such new buildings of base condition as have been of late years erected upon new foundations contrary to proclamation, and inhabited by persons of very mean quality within the city and liberty of Westminster. The places mentioned are Long Acre, Hartshorn Lane, Lincoln's Inn Fields, Bedford Street, Covent Garden, King Street, Westminster, Duck Lane, Long Ditch, "Peckadilly," Neat Houses. Seven dwelling-sheds in Long Acre, erected by William Joyce, one of his Majesty's guard, are the subject of special comment. [3 pp.]

David Edwards having a farm in Salop not worth above 8*l.* per annum, out of which he pays 4*l.* rent, for the maintenance of himself and the other petitioners, being his sons and servants, unmarried, and several other small children, was at the former assessments assessed 6*s.* 8*d.* towards the ship-money. Afterwards, in the time of Sir Paul Harris, late sheriff, petitioner, out of ill will borne to him by Sir Paul and by compact with the assessors, was assessed 20*s.*, yet being unwilling to contend he paid the same. Whereupon you directed your letters to Sir John Bridgeman, chief justice of Chester, to afford them redress. Sir John signified that 16*l.* of the said 20*l.* should be abated; 4*l.* was thereupon divers times tendered to the sheriff. He refused to accept the same, but in the end did so; but after caused David Edwards to be assessed anew in 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, and the other petitioners at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* apiece, being persons of little worth, and formerly not assessed at all. And Sir Paul has distrained a cow of David's, and the like of John the younger, and has committed petitioner William to prison, and threatens to do the like to Thomas. Pray relief. 42. Petition of Richard Bulkley, clerk, vicar of Bromfield, Salop, and in the diocese of Hereford, to Archbishop Laud. Was very conformable, and had lived 17 years in the said diocese without ever having been questioned before his ordinary. Of late, being a witness to the will of Francis Foxe, and examined in a legal way concerning the same, a gentleman of that county, of power and wealth, was so much offended against him as that he had preferred articles against him in the High Commission on pretence of quarrelling, playing at tables and cards, neglecting his cure upon week-days, and vexing his parishioners with suits in law. Petitioner having a wife and five children, and his living being worth but 50*l.* per annum, is like to be undone with charges. Prays a reference to the Bishop of Hereford. 46. Richard Kilvert to Sec. Windebank. On the 12th instant, at the entreaty of the Bishop of Lincoln, I went to him in the Tower, and he told me that he was resolved to compound with the King for his fine, and that he would either pay it by 1,000*l.* a year, which he would secure whether he should live or die; and he told me that the Lord Treasurer sent him word before I went down with the extents that his Majesty would accept that payment, but his sureties were not then ready. His second bargain was, that in case his Majesty would abate him the interest, then he would pay down all the rest in ready money. And he told me that he had made two leases of his estate, one to Rice Williams of his lands in Wales, and the other to Walker and Powell of his lands in Huntingdonshire; and that if the King would accept 1,000*l.* a year, then he would drown those leases, otherwise he would plead them against his Majesty in the Exchequer, and keep him from having one penny of the fine for above two years. He desired me to give assistance in procuring these bargains to be accepted, and for my pains promised to pay me 1,000*l.* of my 1,500*l.* in ready money, and to secure the rest to be paid in a short time, with a further gratuity of 20[0?]l. I have made known to his Majesty his Lordship's desires, and he commanded me to attend you with Mr. Middlemore, who was present at the bishop's offer, and his Majesty's will is that you receive information from Middlemore, whether the bishop has given me commission to make such offer as above mentioned, whether there be any such leases, and whether he will really pay and secure my 1,500*l.*, and then his Majesty will signify his pleasure. I pray that Middlemore may not discover that the bishop's offers are not likely to be accepted. [1 p.]

51. Report of a visitation of the church of All Saints, Northampton, made by Dr. [Samuel] Clarke and Dr. [Robert] Sibthorpe, commissaries of the Bishop [of Peterborough]. The chancel was found seated with benches and desks, which were all ordered to be removed; the communion table to be placed at the east end of the chancel, and to be cancelled in with a rail extending downwards 10 foot; and a kneeling bench for the communicants to be affixed to the cancelling. Many things were found to be defective in other parts of the church which were ordered to be repaired or supplied. Among other things which are especially noticeable are the following:—"The communion cups are like common drinking bowls, and are to be made chalice-fashion. . . . It doth not appear that either the minister or people do reverently bow at the name of the Lord Jesus in time of divine service. . . . The minister doth not bid holy days. . . . It doth not appear to us that the minister doth turn his sermons in the afternoon into a catechetical way of questions and answers, but doth preach according to his own fancy. There is a company of cobbling, patched boards, clamped together, which serve as a seat at the upper end of the church under the belfry, which deface that beautiful church, and is fit for nothing but to hide sleepers. . . . The pavement of the church is uneven in most places, and broken in divers places, most part of it of a rough stone; a great deal of it fitter for 'the gripp' of a cow-house than the house of God." - Oct. 28. 64. Sir John Pennington to the Lords of the Admiralty. The Unicorn landed the French Ambassador in Dover Road on the 25th, at night. They were much put to it, and lost a cable and anchor, and their pinnace. Four French vessels laden with the ambassador's provisions came out with them from Dieppe, but only one of them came into Dover with them. One put in at Hastings, and the other two put back, as the ambassador now receives intelligence, but he was very fearful that he had lost in them near 30,000*l.* in plate, money, and jewels. On his request I have sent the Second Whelp to Dieppe to fetch them over. The six Zealand men-of-war met with some Dunkirk men-of-war, and between them there has been a sore fight here in the Channel. The Zealanders have taken three of them: two of them ships of the King of Spain. The 20 sail of Holland men-of-war are ready to come out under the command of a skipper of Rotterdam that never was employed in the States service. Our victualling ends the 14th December. I have sent the bark Portsmouth. that took in the saltpetre for London, the master and owner, Edward Capell, being very willing, who must have gone to Dunkirk else. As I formerly certified, there is a false packing, and, as I doubted, so this honest master can tell you, he is reckoned a Jew. He compounded with Capell to give him 25*l.* for his freight, to be paid him before he unshipped the goods, and now he has been stayed ten days. I was forced to take his own security to bring his bark about. [1 p.]

the county, but there arising a surplus, and he being applied to by the city for some contribution, he, by consent of the committee, sent such part as they had rated him to pay in the country (with some addition), by way of gratuity to the city. They seeking to make a precedent of this, it is argued that it is more reasonable he should bear part with the county, whence he receives great part of his revenues, than with the city, where all he receives is 40s. a year, for which they rate him 20 nobles. For Gloverstone, it is contended that for general service it is ever accepted as part of the county, and in the city charter is expressly excepted as no part of the city. In a similar case at Winchester the inhabitants have been ordered to pay with the county. For Sir Thomas Aston. No other farmers of customs are assessed in any port of England, and in that port neither the farmers of the great farm, nor those of Spanish wines, nor Sir John Trevor for the coal farm, nor Mr. Maxwell for calves' skins, are assessed in the city, but only Sir Thomas for the French wines, which they conceive to be done in spleen and affront for certifying their abuses when sheriff. In all these cases the writers conceive the county much injured by the city, and solicit redress. [Signed by 29 of the principal persons of the county. 2 pp.]

73. Draft form of letter from the Council to the Sheriffs, in 1635, of the several counties still in arrear for ship-money for that year, together with the present sheriffs of the same counties. A late examination of the accounts having been taken in the presence of his Majesty concerning these arrears, it appeared that there was still unpaid for that year l. We require you, the late sheriff, upon pain of his Majesty's displeasure, and a severe proceeding against you, forthwith to pay to Sir William Russell so much as has been collected and not paid in, and to collect by distress or otherwise all the residue of the said arrear, for which we require the present sheriff to assist the late sheriff, so that all the arrears may be paid in by the first day of Candlemas term, or that you attend the Board the first Sunday in that term. [*Underwritten is a list of the 18 sheriffs to whom this form was addressed, with the amount in arrear in each case. Hereford was behind 180*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*; Somerset, 1,056*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.*; Buckingham, 278*l.* 1*s.* 11*d.*; Oxford, 600*l.*; Essex, 1,249*l.* 15*s.*; Middlesex, 347*l.* 7*s.* [$1\frac{3}{4}$ p.]*

74. Another draft form of a similar letter from the Council to the sheriffs of 1636 and the present sheriffs, with relation to the arrears under the last writ. The letter, with a few verbal alterations, was the same as the preceding. [*This list was addressed to 42 sheriffs and 2 bailiffs of towns. Among the county arrears Buckingham is stated at 2,230*l.*; Dorset, 1,200*l.*; Gloucester, 500*l.*; Hertford, 775*l.* 3*s.* 1*d.*; Leicester, 2,100*l.*; Middlesex, 1,151*l.*; Northampton, 1,680*l.*; Northumberland, 700*l.*; Oxford, 1,000*l.*; Somerset, 1,425*l.* 18*s.*; Stafford, 800*l.*; Warwick, 834*l.*; Wilts, 2,870*l.* 2 pp.]*

75. Bishop Pearce, of Bath and Wells, John Malet, and William Bassett, the last two sheriffs of Somerest, to the Council. Report on an inquiry respecting arrears of ship-money due in the shrievalty of Henry Hodges, Mr. Malet's predecessor, from ten hundreds of that county and the towns of Taunton and Langport. The result of this report is that five of the hundreds complained of had wholly or in part given satisfaction to William Coxe, under-sheriff to Mr. Malet, who was getting in these arrears, and that the other five with the two towns had rendered no account at all. 76. Richard Shuttleworth, late sheriff of co. Lancaster, to the same. He has paid in the 4,000*l.* taxed on that county for ship-money, though there is yet 4*l.* odd unpaid. Prays that he may have warrants to levy the said arrears. [1 p.] Enclosed,

Oct. 31. 78. An account by Edward Sherburne of powder sold out of his Majesty's magazine in the Tower, at the prices of 12*d.* and 18*d.* per pound, from Michaelmas 1635 to Michaelmas 1637. The total quantity sold was 147 lasts 10 cwt., and the amount in money 19,010*l.* [1 p.]

Oct. 31. 79. Certificate of such buildings as have been erected contrary to his Majesty's proclamations in the last vacation in several places in Middlesex, as they have been presented to us [i.e., the Commissioners for Buildings], on the view of the high and petty constables, we ourselves forbearing the personal view thereof, by reason that many of them have been lately infected with the plague. The places mentioned are those in the suburbs of the city as it then existed. The certificate enumerates 49 cases of the erection of presumed prohibited buildings, extending from "Old Street at the end of the town towards Islington to St. Martin's-in-the-Fields in one direction, and to St. Katherine's by the Tower in another." [3 pp.]

Oct. 31. 80. Petition of Thomas Thornewton to Edward Earl of Dorset, Chamberlain to the Queen. You yesterday committed Robert Newton upon information that he had erected a tenement in Green Arbour Court in the Old Bailey, upon a new foundation, which information is untrue, for the house is very well known to be built on an old foundation, and Sir Kenelm Digby, who has been in the same, can certify that it is so. As petitioner is tenant to Newton, holding the house by lease for a long time, and has bestowed a great deal of money upon it, he prays that Newton may be released and the house be viewed by the Commissioners of Buildings. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]
Underwritten,

80. I. *Certificate of Laurence Whitaker, one of the Commissioners for Buildings. Heretofore viewed this house. The lower part was formerly but a passage under a room built over it. It is now made a room of habitation, and if the third story, built at the top since my viewing it, be of timber (as I am informed it is), that doubles the offence. 31st October 1637. Oct. ? 81. Petition of the Mayor, Sheriff, and Inhabitants of Newcastle-upon-Tyne to the King. By letters from the Council of the 18th September last, petitioners were commanded to pay to the Treasurer of the Navy 700*l.* for ship-money for last year. The principal means of petitioners are their collieries in cos. Durham and Northumberland, which are cessed in those counties. Their estates otherwise are so poor, by reason of the heavy visitation of the plague, which still remains among them, that they are unable to pay the said amount. Pray a remission of part of the same, and time for payment of the remainder. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

83. Petition of the Inhabitants and Freeholders of the hundreds of Rothwell and Guilsborough, co. Northampton, to the Council. Recites order of the 30th April last (see Vol. cceliv., No. 132), whereby a complaint of the petitioners of an overcharge in their assessment to the ship-money. They state various proceedings of Sir Robert Banister, from which they infer his unwillingness to have the subject re-opened, and his ultimately obtaining the order of the 30th July last (see Vol. ccelxiv., No. 91), which prevented the bishop of Peterborough, who was the ultimate referee, from proceeding any further upon the reference just at the time when he had made a new assessment, which would have remedied the injustice done to petitioners. Pray that the reference may be proceeded in, and that the sheriff may be ordered to levy the surcharge upon petitioners according to the tax devised by the bishop; and that Sir John Hanbury, the present sheriff, may be ordered to tax these two hundreds according to the ancient assessments. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

84. Petition of Inhabitants of Isayron [Issayndre?], co. Cardigan, to the same. On complaint of petitioners, touching the great inequality of rates within the said county, the Justices of Great Sessions were directed to settle the same as they should see just cause. The justices at their last sessions ordered the payment of the said rates for the future. Pray that their order, which is annexed, may be confirmed by the Council Board, and that the present sheriff may observe the same. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Annexed,

84. I. Order of the Great Sessions for co. Cardigan of the 18th September 1637, that touching all loans, taxes, and other charges of the county, the division of Uchayron [Uchayndre?] shall bear two parts, and that of Isayron the third part, until further matter be showed to the contrary. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

[Oct. ?]

85. Petition of John Steedman, late sheriff of co. Cardigan, to the Council. The said county was charged with 654*l.* ship-money, whereof Cardigan was charged with 10*l.* Petitioner has paid 350*l.* to Sir William Russell, and the residue, in respect of differences touching the division of Isayron and Uchayron and some neglect of the assessors, remains unpaid. Prays time till Easter term for payment thereof, and authority to petitioner to compel the constables and collectors to make present payment. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

86. Sec. Coke to the Lord Mayor of London. His Majesty lately passing through the streets of the city, both saw and heard that, notwithstanding the orders given by the Council, there is not sufficient care taken in cleaning the streets and airing the houses, and using other means for prevention of contagion; and though he has heard of some who nourish a conceit as if the plague came only by Providence and not by infection, and that it is to no purpose to endeavour to prevent it by human means, yet he assures himself that none such are thought worthy to have any place in the government of the city. And, therefore, he conceives that the only cause of some slowness in using ordinary remedies is the long absence of the aldermen in the city, and the justices of peace in the suburbs, which are but lately come to town. Considering God's great mercy has in a manner ceased the mortality, that by our neglect those who come out of fresh air may not be drawn into danger, and that by good course taken for cleansing, both their Majesties may be invited to bring their Court back hither, that the terms may be kept here, and trade be renewed by the confluence of citizens and strangers, his Majesty has required me again to put you in mind of these things, not doubting but his lords will require an account of the directions they have given, but to incite you, in imitation of his royal care of you, to incite you to take care of yourselves. First, by causing the streets to be kept sweet, and to appoint in every street some to take order that in all lodgings where the infection has been the glass may be taken down, the rooms and stuff well aired, and fires made therein, with such other means as by the advice of the College of Physicians shall be thought necessary. And for the suburbs, to cause your ministers to observe what things are neglected, and if by friendly advertising no amendment follow, to give notice thereof to the Council. 87. Deputy Lieutenants of co. Lancaster to James Lord Strange, Lord Lieutenant of the same. Report that they have taken exact views of all the arms and trained forces of the county, and have caused them to be trained by Capt. Ralph Standish, their muster-master, and other able officers, regulating their proceedings by directions given on 27th April 1635, only that the Council have this year eased the county of the great charge of beacons' watching and of provost marshals. There is in staple at Liverpool 3,000 weight of powder, but it is something decayed. The late Lord Molyneux, on the 16th June 1635, undertook to get the same renewed, for which purpose there is yet 100 lbs. in his executors' hands, as to which they crave directions. Among defaulters, Lord Morley stands charged with three light-horses and three lance-horses, but has not showed any this long time, and now he affirms that he is charged in the south parts for his whole estate, which we leave to your consideration. 90. Articles exhibited by Walter Walker, official commissary for the Archdeaconry of Bedford, against Anthony Bourne and Edmund Hewitt, churchwardens of Knotting, co. Bedford. It is objected against them that they were bound to prevent all manner of profanations of the church of Knotting; and further, that they knew that upon Shrove Tuesday in the years 1634, 1635, and 1636, in the chancel of the said church, in or about the sacred place where the communion table stands, there were fighting cocks brought thither and cock fightings there held, and many persons assembled to behold the same, and to bet and lay wagers thereon; and particularly that they, Bourne and Hewitt, and a son of Bourne, and Mr. Alvey, minister of Knotting, and some of his sons, and many others, both youths and men and others, were present as actors and spectators, and laughed and sported thereat, and most profanely abused the said consecrated place. It is further objected that the defendants were bound to discover who were the persons present on those occasions and whose the cocks were, and that they had never prevented the premises, but wilfully concealed the same. [3 pp.]

91. Information as to scandalous and defamatory words spoken by Thomas Robinson, of Brinklow, co. Warwick. He stated that the Universities were sinks of sin and pits of iniquity, and that there never came thence but two good men, of whom Mr. Gardener was one; that all the conformable clergy were dunghill priests, and that they were termed pillars of the church, but were spillers of it; also, that before he would be a prey to any knave in the kingdom, he would receive the communion on his knees, though it were against his conscience. Being required to do reverence in Trinity Church, Coventry, he said there was no difference betwixt it and his hogstye, stable, or kitchen; and that he had assaulted the constable of Brinklow and his son, who assisted the messenger in attaching him. Prays for a "livery equal to Mr. White, the surveyor, which is 40*l.* a year," or if that be thought too much, ten pounds less, or if his service "cannot merit the title of a livery," that the Countess would move the Queen to bestow a suit of clothes upon him as a bounty. 97. Paper of advice with reference to the secret conveyance made by the Bishop of Lincoln of his lands to prevent their being attached by the King's extent for his fine. It is suggested that although the same might possibly carry some colour against the fine already imposed, which had reference to offences lately committed, yet it would be otherwise against a fine to be set upon him upon the first information which had been filed against him, and subsequently dropped, for the offences therein charged were committed and the information was exhibited before the conveyance was made. It was also suggested that in the first cause it is conceived he would be fined more than 10,000*l.* There were also other defendants to the second information who deserved exemplary punishment, and are of so good estates as that if prosecuted to sentence they would afford his Majesty 5,000*l.* fine at least. 1. Petition of the Inhabitants of the hundred of Horethorne, Somerset, to the Council. On a petition exhibited in the name of petitioners and the inhabitants of the hundreds of Bruton, Norton Ferris, and Catsash, and upon references and orders thereon, 80*l.* was deposited by Mr. Hodges, late sheriff of that county, until he should make it appear how the same should be raised otherwise, which he has failed to do. A warrant is made by the now sheriff for levying 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* on petitioners as an arrear of 240*l.* assessed by Mr. Hodges for the year that he was sheriff. Petitioners have already paid 213*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* for ship-money assessed by Mr. Hodges, and but 160*l.*, parcel thereof, was due for their proportion according to the general rate of the county; and if there be any arrear of ship-money assessed by Mr. Hodges, it is to be answered by the inhabitants of Bruton and Norton Ferris. 2. Sir Henry Marten to the Lords of the Admiralty. Report on the claim preferred through the French ambassador to a vessel called the Charles, taken by an English ship by letters of reprisal and brought to London. The ship and goods in her (being fish) were in the possession of Dunkirkers when the English took her. They had been in possession of her for four days, and were then carrying her to Dunkirk. The 30th June the English takers, Gregory Clement, Robert South and Company, entered a proceeding in the Admiralty against the ship and goods, and desired to have them adjudged to them as the goods of Dunkirkers. Then appeared a proctor from the French ambassador, and alleged that the same belonged to some inhabitants of Sables d'Olonne, without naming any particular person. It was ordered that the fish should be sold and the money brought into court, which was done, and on the 7th July it was further ordered that the takers should have possession of the money made of the fish, and that the ship should be appraised, and that the takers should have possession of her, upon caution not to carry her out of the Thames for two months, which was held a time convenient to bring witnesses out of France to depose to her identity. The two months being expired and no French proprietor appearing, upon the 8th September the ship was arrested at the suit of Francis Bresoneau and others, and on the 17th October an allegation was given into court on behalf of Bresoneau and the others claiming the ship and goods, which was admitted upon condition that, before the 21st of the same, they put in caution to pay charges if their claim proved unjust, but they have not done so. Sir Henry comments on the French version of the case, and concludes that the Court of Admiralty desires to do right to the French, if they would but seek it as they ought to do. The Swiftsure, commands of 25th October, for staying Dunkirk ships to make in the Downs. restitution for two busses of Mr. Brames's which they took, shall meet in the performance with all care and diligence. I have given warrant to all the captains under my command to that effect. But I shall find some difficulty in accomplishing the same, in regard there are few ships belonging to that town but men-of-war, which seldom come where we are, and at sea are too swift for us, our ships being very foul, and theirs kept clean by washing and tallowing every six weeks or two months. I am informed they have lately taken a ship of Scotland bound for France, but have no certain intelligence. [Seals with arms. 1 p.]

William Tower-son, deputy vice-admiral, and another of the town justices, lately deceased. After alluding to a somewhat similar case in which his unhappy brother and himself were concerned, he submits that this ship ought to have been sequestered according to the law merchant, besides that the sale of fish in that manner will come very short of forestalling. They are unlading the same into storehouses, and have dismissed the people that brought her in. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

17. Queen Elizabeth of Bohemia to Sir Thomas Roe. For the Polish Ambassador I am much bound to the King, the resentment he showed him for his master's foolish carriage towards me and mine, though you know he never cozened me. The King has put a good sound affront upon him in making him beg for an interview so long. I cannot imagine what good propositions he can make. He that could not have power to marry the sister, cannot have power to assist the brother by arms, and by treaty the Lord deliver us from entering again into that ugly old way; I am more afraid of that than of any plague. As to the treaty now in hand, I know not what to make of it. Camerarius tells me that there is a commission sent to Salvius, to Hamburgh, and that the chancellor's son is to follow. Camerarius's son is looked for here every day, and by him we shall know all. I will not fail to acquaint [you] with what he brings. I thank you for the good counsel you have written to my son; I hope he will follow it. He had gone instantly to the Landgrave's army, but [the] Prince dissuaded him. If he can get some good sum out of England, no doubt he may have troops. P.S.—I wish you were here with your wife to whip your daughter Mab, who is very good, and much in my good graces. I have a treason in hand against you to make you walk a little out of England. Ambassadors are always better than agents in treaties. [2 pp.]

18. Answer of the Eastland Merchants to two orders of the Council of the 2nd May (see Vol. ccclv., No. 17) and the 18th October last past (see Vol. ccclxix., No. 95). In obedience to the former order, divers of the company attended the then lord mayor to desire the present company of soapmakers to take off their potashes, and consult about providing potashes for the time to come. They made it most apparent that, without some fitting course were taken, the merchants could not subsist, one-third of their returns depending on that commodity, which if imported and sold here to one buyer, with liberty to make his own price, the merchant could not but suffer. Complain that the present soapmakers seek only their own ends, and pray that they may not in a case of so great consequence be left to the will and pleasure of those who, by their ruin, may raise their own fortune. Although they might be suitors to have liberty to sell to dyers, whitsters, and others who use that commodity, yet, if such be the pleasure of the Lords, they pray that the soapmakers may be enjoined (as petitioners must sell to none but them) to pay them moderate and fitting prices. Whitehall. Henry Hall, owner of the Blessing, of London, of 160 tons, to furnish

[Nov. 3.] 22. Certificate of Kenrick Edisbury, that Sir Robert Mansell, Lord General of the Fleet to Algiers, had for his entertainment in the Red Lion for 318 days, from 20th August 1620 to 3rd July 1621, 53s. 4d. per diem, 848l. [¼ p.]

Nov. 3. 23. The like of Edward Daniel and three others, that “this wool of these several colours” may be dyed with sea coal as well as with wood, or better, for “we here in London” dye wool, cloths, silks, and other stuffs with sea coals, by which we find many advantages both for profit and commodity. [½ p.]

Nov. 3. 24. Petition of Thomas Valentine, clerk, parson of Chalfont St. Giles, co. Buckingham, to Archbishop Laud. Petitioner being suspended by the Archdeacon’s Court, for that the book concerning recreations on Sunday was not then published in the said parish church, and the same being thereupon there published by petitioner’s curate, and petitioner absolved from that suspension, the said court has again suspended him ab officio for not doing the same, and threaten to excommunicate him. Petitioner prays the archbishop to stay the further proceedings of the said court, and to absolve petitioner from the said suspension. [¾ p.] Underwritten,

[Nov. 4.] 25. Petition of John Jenny, collector for poor persons infected with the plague in the liberties of Wentworth Street, Spitalfields, and Artillery Lane, Middlesex, to the Council. In September 1626, Sir Thomas Jay and Nathaniel Snape, justices of peace for Middlesex, by Statute 1^o Jacobi, made an assessment for relief of poor persons infected with the plague, and appointed petitioner and others to collect the same, and, if any should refuse, to distrain, and, for want of distress, to bring the refusers before the justices. Petitioner demanded of Susan Pearson (her husband being at sea) 6s., and although she paid all former rates assessed on her husband, she refused to pay; whereupon, not being able to come by any distress, petitioner with the constable carried her before Mr. Snape. In revenge whereof, by the persuasion of Miles Temple (who, for his miscarriage in this business, was by the Sessions bound to good behaviour), she has commenced an action of false imprisonment against petitioner, the constable, and James Dainteer, his assistant, and the cause being ready for trial, Mr. Temple (perceiving petitioner prepared with witnesses and counsel) refused to proceed, hoping by delays to extort some compromise, and giving out that Susan shall not take 300*l.* for her damages. Prays the Council to send for Susan Pearson and Temple, and make order herein. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

25. I. Reference to the Justices of Peace for Middlesex, at their next sessions at Hicks's Hall, to take order for petitioner's relief. At Star Chamber, 25th October 1637. [$\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

25. II. *Report of the said Justices of Peace, signed John Herne, Harbottle Grimeston, and George Long. We sent for Susan Pearson, who sent us answer by Miles Temple, her son-in-law, that she desired to go to a trial at law, to hinder which it not being in our power, we inform you of the state of the case. George Pearson was assessed at 6*s.* He being at sea, Susan his wife refused to pay, and offered to go to Mr. Snape to hear the difference. Mr. Snape finding her a feme covert, she was not liable to pay, wherewith the collectors rested content, but by the animation of Mr. Temple she brought an action, and carried the same before Lord Chief Justice Bramston, where the collectors were put to 10*l.* charges, and then the plaintiff did not put in her record. Recommend the just relief of petitioner to the Lords. 4th November 1637. [1 p.]*

Nov. 4. 26. William Paston, late Sheriff of Norfolk, to Nicholas. I have paid all the ship-money to Sir William Russell, but I have not levied so much as the sum amounted to. I beseech you petition the Lords to grant their mandate to my successor to collect the arrearage, 16*l.* 12*s.* 9*d.* [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Nov. 4. 29. Note of sums collected and remaining in the hands of the several sheriffs, 5,953*l.*, which makes the totals collected 1,799,721*l.*, and remaining 16,429*l.* [1 p.]

Nov. 4. 30. Notes by Nicholas of Admiralty business to be transacted this day. Letter from vice-admiral of North of Cornwall, Francis Bassett; petition of Capt. Rugge and some others; report of Sir Henry Marten concerning the Charles; the storekeeper tells me the powder in the Tower lies where it was wont, very dry and safe, and not in a cellar; settle pay of Capt. Rainsborough; Capt. Kettleby in his journal certifies that he received in Ireland but a third part of his pay, and desires your Lordships to give order for the remainder; letter from the Trinity House touching provisions sent for the ships in Ireland; consider Thomas Wyan's account and petition; also

31. Declaration ordered by the Lords of the Admiralty to be entered on the Admiralty register, that having attended his Majesty and spoken to him about the ships that are employed on the coast of Ireland and kept in harbour there, his Majesty told them that he intends that the ships and their officers, and also the jurisdiction of Admiralty in Ireland, should be still governed by the Lord Admiral of England's power and be subordinate in all things to the same ; and that his Majesty has in his cabinet a letter from the Lord Deputy, by which he submits in all maritime businesses to the authority of the Lord Admiral here. [Draft. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

32. Sir Henry Marten to the Lords of the Admiralty. Report respecting the value of the Nostra Senora de Concepcion, and whether any part thereof was deposited in the hands of Francis Creswick and Giles Ellbridge for his Majesty's rights and the admiral's therein. Sir Henry craves pardon for a former certificate, in which he had been misled into the belief that a sum of money had been so left, but now, upon examination of Thomas Colston, Hugh Brown, John Drayton, Edward Lewis, and others, he finds that the money was remitted for other purposes, but "cannot in a summary way dive into the deep bottom of that merchantly mystery." Finding the reasons for his former opinion no better justified, he expressed his sorrow for the charges and trouble of the Bristol merchants thereby sustained. [$2\frac{2}{3}$ pp.]

33. John Crane to the same. I have delivered to the Sovereign of the Seas and for the Prince Royal by petty warrant to the value of 500*l.*, for which I have received no money nor know not where to demand it. Lords of the Admiralty to Officers of the Navy. Nov. 4. 34. Order of the Commissioners for management of the King's estate before his accession to the crown. Thomas Talbot and Richard Allen presented a particular of a parcel of marsh ground called Jarrow Slike, containing 300 acres, lying near Jarrow, co. Durham, and desired to be admitted to compound for the same. The Lords ordered that they should pay 400*l.* for a fine to his Majesty, that they should pass their patent forthwith, and that there should be reserved on their patent a yearly rent of 4*l.* per acre. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Nov. 4. 35. William Dell to Sir John Lambe. These are to usher this lady to your presence, who is the forsaken mistress of Sir Edward Powell. My Lord desires you to take her examination, in doing whereof you will discover him to be a very beast, or her a notable quean, or both. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Nov. 4. 36. Bishop Mountague, of Chichester, to Archbishop Laud. Ralph Petworth. Nevill, Bishop of Chichester and Chancellor of England, at the beginning of the reign of Henry III., assigned the prebend of West Wittering in the church of Chichester, for a theological lecture to be delivered in Chichester cathedral, which Boniface, then Archbishop of Canterbury, confirmed. The present Bishop of Chichester desiring that the original ordinance should be maintained inviolate, and the present holder of the prebend, Aquila Cruso, a man of almost unequalled learning, being anxious to carry out the intention of the founder, the bishop appointed certain stated times at which the lecture should be delivered, with other regulations, and craved that the archbishop, after the example of his predecessor Boniface, would confirm the same. [Latin. 1 p.]

Nov. 4. 37. Thomas Gindrey to Lord Chief Baron Davenport. William Paston, late sheriff of Norfolk, has entered into his account, and was this day sworn to pass it according to the course of the Exchequer. In passing his account, his personal attendance is not required. It is always done by the under-sheriff. I conceive his travelling can be no prejudice to his Majesty, so long as his estate remains behind him. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Nov. 4. Nicholas to Sir Henry Marten. I am commanded by Sec. Coke to convey an enclosed letter from Francis Brookes, of Portsmouth (see No. 13), to you, that you may take such order in the business as you shall conceive best agreeable to justice and his Majesty's service. P.S.—I conceive the letter might have been proper to put into the hands of his Majesty's proctor of the Admiralty than to have troubled you therewith, but I have done as I am commanded. [*Copy. Nov. 5. 38. Lord Chief Baron Davenport and Barons Denham and Sergeant's Inn. Weston to Sec. Windebank. We have conferred with the ancient clerks of the Exchequer touching Mr. Paston's licence to travel; whereupon, and upon consideration of a certificate enclosed from the secondary of Sir Peter Osborne's office [probably the letter last but one calendared], we conceive that his travelling can be in no way prejudicial to his Majesty in his account. The King to the Brethren of the Trinity House and others his Majesty's subjects. We understand, by our ambassador residing at Constantinople, that edicts have lately been made in some foreign countries to prohibit the payment of consulage for goods freighted in foreign ports of the Levant in ships of our subjects, and to require other flags than the known crosses of St. George and St. Andrew to be borne by the said ships of our subjects so freighted by strangers. We have given directions to our ambassadors to negotiate for the dissolving of such edicts, and command all our subjects that they neither take freight nor make contract agreeable to such decrees, nor yield any consent thereto, as they will avoid our high displeasure; and upon like danger we require that they carry and bear the flags of St. George and St. Andrew respectively, and no other. [Copy. Signed "S. Crow," but mis-dated the 6th November in the 12th year of the reign, 1637. 1¼ p. See Vol. of Correspondence of Levant Company, 1590-1804, No. 96.]

The same to the High Treasurer and Admiral of England. Recites grants of Queen Elizabeth and King James, whereby Gilbert Lee was licensed to make and transport for certain terms of years all manner of pelts of sheepskins and lambskins, and to pull, clip, and spear such skins, not exceeding 200,000 in any year. The said terms of years having expired, the same licence is granted to Thomas Carleton for the term of 21 years, 20s. being paid for every thousand of the said pelts transported, together with all customs. 39. Information of various irregularities affecting the conduct of divine service, said to be committed by clergymen and others in the city of London. Divers curates have sub-curates, and those scarce licensed, by which themselves avoid the penalties of inconformity. Some preachers, and amongst them Mr. Fountaine, Mr. Burton's curate in St. Matthew's, Friday Street, pray before and after sermons loosely and factiously, as for the conversion of the Queen, for a neighbour minister in persecution, &c. The companies, when they are to dine with the Lord Mayor or sheriffs, use to meet at some neighbouring churches, to put on and off their gowns and cloaks. The wards on St. Thomas's Day in many parishes meet in the church "to make their outcries and brabbles" about the choice of their officers. The pews in churches are so made that men as much sit as kneel at prayers, which by taking away the lower ledge on which their knees rest would be remedied. Boys put on their hats in sermon time, which in their masters' shops they do not at any time.

Baptism is generally administered not after the second lesson but after the sermon in the afternoon. The Holy Communion is given to many in their pews, and those so made in some churches (for example, in Blackfriars) that those who are in them cannot receive it on their knees. Amongst several specific charges of irregularity against Mr. Goodwin, Mr. Genoa, Mr. Bifield, and Mr. Simmonds, it is alleged that Mr. Finch has a lecture in Christ Church on Sunday mornings, to which they come from all parts, which is maintained by collections at the church-door, one crying, "Pray remember the minister!" The sermons out of Lent at Mercers' Chapel are of late erection and draw many people to them, who therefore leave their own churches thin and naked. Mr. Palmer, vicar of St. Bride's, Fleet Street, at morning prayer at 7 o'clock, often omits the prayer for the bishops and the rest of the clergy, and reads divine service sometimes in his gown and sometimes without either surplice or gown, in his cloak. Many of the parish clerks, albeit the power given them in their late charter, are not suffered to gather their wages. Many communion tables in the city are not railed in, and some are placed in the middle of the chancel. [= 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ pp.]

40. Sir John Pennington to the Lords of the Admiralty. I shall be careful to send the ships you have ordered, and also for continuing here with the rest to perform such services as you shall command. The Expedition has twice put out with the Elizabeth, of Aldborough, for Ireland, and the Second Whelp thrice for Dieppe, to fetch the ambassador's things, and both forced back. The ambassador tarries still at Dover, and so will do till he gets his baggage over. I have manned and sent to the Custom-house two plantation ships, laden with tobacco, viz., the Paul, of London, from St. Christophers, and the William, of London, from Barbadoes, both these masters being stubborn fellows that refused to enter into bond. The Holland fleet cannot get out with these winds. They daily expect the Dunkirk fleet that is coming from the Groyne, which had 14 days since 1,800 chests of silver aboard, and expected more. It is conceived they will be the richest ships that have come into Flanders these many years. No news of English ships expected from St. Lucar these two months. [1 p.]

41. The same to Nicholas. You have infinitely obliged me by yours of the 4th, for I confess I am not so good a statesman or courtier as to place all things right and for my most advantage, but I go the ordinary plain way, and thought I had done well in returning to the Council an answer to their letter; but now you have opened my eyes, and I find my error, and shall be more cautious hereafter in writing in that kind, till I have acquainted my patrons with it. For the other caution for directing my letters to Sec. Windbank, I do not well understand, therefore shall go on in my former way till I hear again from you, and you resolve me how best to please them all and advantage myself, and that way I will follow.

42. Godwin Awdry to Nicholas, dwelling at the sign of the Golden Wheatsheaf in King Street. I know a course whereby there shall be bought out of his Majesty's stores 200 lasts of powder every year constantly, which will prove exceeding beneficial to the State, all which I will relate and accomplish, if the King will give me leave, paying 18*d.* per lb. In this way his Majesty, as at a sluice, may let out as much powder as may be spared and then shut the sluice. [1 p.] Annexed,

42. I. The same to his brother Barker. Entreats him to go to Nicholas to get an answer to the writer's petition delivered to the Lords of the Admiralty. He wishes the answer signed by the Lords' hands, for he shall be very doubtful to sell any powder to the soldiers or else, except he has good assurance to be free from danger. Lord Newport's secretary told him that the Deputy Lieutenants themselves could not give him liberty to sell the old powder out of the magazine in the county. [Copy. 1 p.]

43. Petition of David Biffin, of Cannington, Somerset, labourer, to the Archbishop of Canterbury. About a year and a half since Richard Grave, of Enmore, blacksmith, a man of good ability, moved petitioner to be a suitor in marriage to Joan Cole, his wife's sister, that lived in his house, and petitioner married her by Grave's procurement, but knew her not before marriage. Six months after marriage she was delivered of a daughter, living, and at her delivery, being in great danger of life, confessed that Grave was the father. Thereupon he was presented by the churchwardens to the Archdeacon of Taunton, in whose court he was enjoined purgation, and on failure thereof was ultimately excommunicated. He thereupon appealed to the Court of Arches, and made petitioner and his wife (who has done penance in several churches) parties to the appeal, and got them both excommunicated for not appearing, to their utter undoing. Prays order for the absolution and discharge of the suit. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

Petition of Walter Aston to the King. Your Majesty bestowed on petitioner's father, in consideration of his long service, a pension of 100*l.* a year. time your Majesty has forbidden the payment of the pension. Pray that the arrears may be paid, that petitioner may be preserved from ruin. [Copy. See Vol. cccxxiii., p. 179. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

Petition of Margaret Kirby, widow, on behalf of herself and her children, to the King. She is possessed of 3,500 acres of land, parcel of Sutton Marsh, co. Lincoln, for which her husband and herself have expended in embanking 6,500 acres, in purchase of part of the 3,500 acres, and other charges, about 37,631*l.*, taken up at interest, for 19,000*l.* whereof there are three executions against her. Much of this expenditure was occasioned by assisting the patentees against the opposition of the country, and maintaining the rights of the Crown against their encroachments. But now petitioner's grants have been overthrown in a legal course in his Majesty's name in the Court of Exchequer. Prays the King to hear and judge the cause by that rule of equity whereby to his glorious fame he has ever guided himself, or to refer the same to whomsoever he shall think fit. [Copy. Ibid., p. 180. $1\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

The like of Sir John Tyrrell to the same. Petitioner about 13 years since was advanced in marriage by Sir John Tyrrell, his uncle, who received petitioner's wife's portion of 3,000*l.*, and settled upon petitioner and his wife 400*l.* per annum in present, and agreed to settle 800*l.* per annum more after his said uncle's death, and 100*l.* per annum more after the death of Thomas, petitioner's father and his mother, but reserving in his uncle's own power to dispose of 600*l.* per annum, which he often declared he intended to confer on petitioner's father and mother for their lives, and to charge it with 2,000*l.* for petitioner's younger children. But Sir Henry Browne and Lady Eyres, persons of strait fortunes, have put themselves upon petitioner's uncle, he being aged, blind, and otherwise infirm. They cohabit with him, and, upon pretence that he was indebted 1,000*l.*, have removed him to a cottage in Hampshire, where they have obscured him these two or three years, have caused the 600*l.* per annum to be sold away, the timber to be felled, the coppice wood to be destroyed, the fences to be laid waste, and have received his rents, sold his plate, and great part of his household stuff. To restrain this waste, tending to the destruction of the seat of an ancient gentleman, the Lord Keeper in June 1635 wrote his letters, which prevailed for some respite, but are now forgotten. Petitioner being unwilling to incense his uncle by a suit, appeals to the King's Petition of Christiana Maria Shelley and Charles her son, an infant of the age of nine months, to the King. On petitioner's late marriage, the manor of Combe, in Sussex, was made [over] to her in the name of friends in trust, as part of her jointure, which remained to her late husband for life, with remainder to his first son in tail, with the reversion in fee to Sir John Shelley. One parcel of marsh, on the west side of the river Brambe, containing 20 acres, was valued to petitioner as part of the said manor, which on a late commission of inquiry is found to be land gained from the sea, and your Majesty conceived entitled thereto. Petitioner submits herself and her title to your Majesty, praying you to take her and her son into your consideration. [Copy. Ibid., fol. 187. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten,

The like of George Lord Goring and Sir Henry Hungate to the same. Petitioners have, by virtue of your letters patent, issued many commissions out of the Court of Exchequer for discovery of abuses in the unlawful transporting of butter out of this kingdom, and have found out many great offenders in that kind in Bristol and in Wales. The Commissioners have been much disgraced in the execution of their commissions, your officers of the port shamefully beaten off with arms, and so much money raised by the delinquents to smother their offences that a speedy prosecution cannot be had. Pray your Majesty to order the examination of the said offences by some of the Council. [Copy. Ibid., p. 188. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

- I. The Lord Treasurer, the Earl of Dorset, and Sec. Windebank are to call before them the commissioners who have inquired at Bristol, and such of the offenders as they shall think fit, and certify the whole state of the business with their opinions. [Copy. Ibid. $\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

III. Report of Sir Robert Heath and Sir Abraham Daves. We conceive the unlawful transportation of butter will be proved against some of the transporters, and some of the officers who should have hindered the same. The particulars are expressed in two sheets of paper stated to be annexed. They have not heard any of the parties complained of, because they were not in town. They would hardly have confessed, and their denial would have moved them but little against such evident proofs. It will be fit that they be proceeded against in a round way either in the Exchequer Chamber or in the Star Chamber, at the King's own suit. [Copy. Ibid., p. 215. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

IV. The Lord Treasurer, the Earl of Dorset, and Sec. Windebank to the King. Report on the preceding reference. Transmit the above report of Sir Robert Heath and Sir Abraham Daves, and recommend that the officers of the customs who have broken their trust and connived with the offenders be proceeded against in the Exchequer Chamber, and that the mayor and other public officers who should countenance your service, but have not, should be proceeded against in the Star Chamber. 5th December 1637. [Copy. Ibid., p. 216. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

V. Reference to the Attorney-General to proceed in the prosecution of the offenders as the referees have advised; and he is to make known to the officers of the several courts in which these prosecutions shall be, that his Majesty owns these suits as prosecuted by the petitioners for his immediate service, and that the said officers demean themselves accordingly. Whitehall, 21st December 1637. [Nov. 7?] Petition of [Capt.] Edmund Bradshaw to the King. Petitioner was sent with your Majesty's letter, as also with orders from the Council, to treat with the King of Morocco for peace, freedom of trade, and liberty of your subjects in captivity. All which I performed, and if I have not carried myself [free] from offence to all men, let all the punishments that can be inflicted upon a man be done unto me. Notwithstanding, upon the false accusation of Robert Blake, that I was not sent from the state but had counterfeited your letter, the business of the state was altogether hindered, petitioner defamed, his life subject at the will of the King, and he was also hindered the recovery of a great sum of money. 44. Petition of Emanuel Horton, Christopher Shunner, and Thomas Horton, poor seamen late employed to burn the ships in Sallee, to the Lords of the Admiralty. Petitioners being employed as before mentioned, to the uttermost of their power endeavoured to perform the same, and had accomplished the same upon their entry into one of the ships, but for the barking of the ship-dog, which caused the watch and ship's company, who were asleep, to come up to take them, whereupon they were fain to skip overboard to swim for their lives, by which the two Hortons escaped, and Shunner was taken prisoner, and should have been burnt by the Sallee men, as they threatened him every day. Pray the Lords to extend to them their charitable benevolence. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Annexed,

46. Petition of Sir John Thornhill to Archbishop Laud. The promoters of the cause prosecuted against petitioner in the High Commission have had several times assigned them, since May last was twelve months, to prove their objections. On a late petition by Mr. Kilvert (the real promoter of this cause), the Court granted a restitution of the term probatory; to which order, although in confidence of his innocency, petitioner submits, yet, in regard such informations as are deduced in the said petition are wholly fictitious, and intended merely to win time and raise an ill opinion of petitioner, he states that he never desired Sir Thomas Walsingham, or any other, to treat with Mr. Kilvert concerning the composing of this cause, but that Kilvert solicited them to mediate the same; that in their conference Kilvert not so much as mentioned anything to be given towards St. Paul's Church, but first demanded 200*l.*, and afterwards fell to 50*l.* for his own pains and charges; and that petitioner refused to give anything, and has not dealt with any of the witnesses, as by one of the promoters is pretended. Prays that the suggester may be enjoined to prove the said informations to be true, or that petitioner may be admitted to prove them false. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Underwritten,

Nov. 7. 47. Affidavit of Richard Pearce, of Wallingford, Berks, that on the 5th inst. Robert Pearson, in the presence of deponent, delivered a letter from the commissioners for brewing and malting to Francis Smith, of Wallingford, willing him to forbear to brew in the George Inn, and "carry it forth at his gate;" and that he read the letter in the presence of deponent and others, and said he cared not, &c. for the said letter, and that he would brew in his inn as he had formerly done; and on Monday last (since the receipt of the letter) deponent saw him go forward with his brewing at the said inn. [$\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

Nov. 7. 48. Receipt of Sir William Russell for 20*l.* paid by Lawrence Osbaldiston on behalf of Richard Shuttleworth, sheriff of co. Lancaster, in full of 4,000*l.* ship-money for that county under writ of 12th August last. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Nov. 8. 49. Petition of Thomas Bad, of Fareham, Hants, to the Council. Petitioner, together with Robert Rigge and four others of Fareham, were appointed by John Button, late sheriff of Hants, to assess 50*l.* towards the shipping upon that parish. The assessors (except Rigge) met together, made and signed the rate, and sent it to the sheriff by the constable. Rigge intercepted the rate, and of his own authority altered the same, without the privity of the sheriff or the assessors, and therein raised petitioner 10*s.*, and so obtained a confirmation of the same from the sheriff. Petitioner, and others grieved in the same kind, intended to have petitioned the Board; but, to prevent the same, Rigge complained of petitioner, and thereupon petitioner has been served with a subpœna out of the Star Chamber, at the suit of the Attorney-General, petitioner never refusing to pay the money which was duly rated upon him, but always offering the same when demanded. Prays to be discharged, having paid all the money assessed, with that which Rigge most unjustly added. [1 p.] Endorsed,

49. I. Reference to the Attorney-General to certify the true state of this complaint, with his opinion. Star Chamber, 8th November 1639. [$\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

Nov. 8. 51. Petition of Sir John Meldrum to the Council. Upon a complaint of the Trinity House at Deptford Strond against William Bulleck, for an error in the collection of duty for the light at Dongeor Nesse [Dungeness], in taking the penny due by the merchant owners from the master of the ship, the Lords, upon a reference to the Attorney-General, and an agreement settled by him, gave order for rectifying the error and establishing the collection. Petitioner being guilty of the same mistaking, is most willing to submit himself to the like order, in the execution of his letters patent for the lights at the North and South Forelands. Prays an order to settle his business according to the said order stated to be annexed. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Annexed,

51. I. Reference to the Attorney-General to certify how he finds the petitioner's case to agree with that mentioned in the said order, with his opinion as to granting petitioner's request. Star Chamber, 8th November 1637. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

51. II. *Report of Attorney-General Bankes. Finds petitioner's case to be the same for the North and South Foreland lights with that of Mr. Bullock for Dungeness. Having called some of the Trinity House, they know no better way for payment thereof than that taken for Mr. Bullock's lights, which is, that the duty be paid at the return home of the voyage only, and then the one half by the owner, and the other half by the merchant. 2nd March 1637-8. 52. Thomas Wigmore, late Sheriff of co. Hereford, to Nicholas. Although he used all ways, he could only collect 26*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.*, which he is ready to pay over. Richard Browne, chief constable of the hundred of Grimsworth, has collected the whole assessments thereupon, amounting to 60*l.*, but has refused to account; and on further search has wholly obscured himself. Nicholas to each of the late sheriffs of 27 counties in England and Wales. You were required by instructions from the Council, sent to you last year with the writ for ship-money, to send, within a month after the assessment made, a certificate of what was set upon each parish in your county, and particularly upon every clergyman. His Majesty and the Lords take notice that you have not sent any such certificate. I am, by their command, not only to let you know that your neglect is not well taken, but to pray you, without further delay, to repair the same. [*Underwritten a list of the 27 counties. 54. Sir Anthony Irby to the Council. Craves further directions concerning laying the rates for the ship-money. There are divers wapentakes to which there have belonged great commons, in respect whereof those divisions have, in their usual rates, been rated at a higher proportion than other wapentakes, much of which common has lately been taken from them, partly by draining, partly by way of improvement, so that now there is a very small proportion of common left to them, for which they complain that they are not able to pay their usual charges, except those grounds contribute with

55. Petition of Robert Challenor, his Majesty's post of Stone, co. Stafford, to Secs. Coke and Windebank. Petitioner for 40 years has been postmaster in the said place, which office he has always faithfully executed in his own person, until visited with a long sickness, as by an annexed certificate appears. Mr. Witherings endeavours to put another in petitioner's place, upon pretence that petitioner had put in a deputy, being his son, who, about a year and a half since, in the time of petitioner's sickness, gave his assistance for performance of his Majesty's service; and on 17th March 1636-7, petitioner, during his illness, disposed of his estate by will, and then assigned his arrears due to him for his post wages to his son, towards discharging petitioner's debts, and benefit of his wife and children. Mr. Witherings, in regard petitioner would not give him 100*l.* for petitioner's place (over and above the carriage of the merchants' letters twice every week), has, for 40*l.*, given orders for the said place to another, whose parents have been great recusants. Petitioner being still able and willing, and his arrears 368*l.* (that stage being the longest between London and Chester, and yet is allowed only 20*d.* per diem), prays order that he may be continued in his place, and may receive the said 368*l.* [1 p.] Annexed,

55. 1. *Certificate of Justices of Peace of co. Lords of the Admiralty to Officers of the Navy. The same to Montjoy Earl of Newport. We have received information that his Majesty's gunpowder, as soon as it is brought into the Tower, is put into a dark room under the King's magazine of powder, and there stands, before it be proved, with the heads of the barrels open, where the cooper cannot see how to make up the barrels without candle, and that it is easy for any ill-affected or careless person to fire it. We pray you to take present order that such gunpowder as is brought in may be put either into the long room which is by the Earl of Northumberland's walk in the Tower, as formerly it used to be, or in some other safe place. - Nov. 9. 58. Sir Thomas Cotton, late Sheriff of co. Huntingdon, to Nicholas. Letter had been received from the Council claiming arrears of ship-money for last year of 10*l.* from Huntingdon, 10*l.* from Godmanchester, and 4*l.* from the county. The whole sum assessed on the county was long since paid in, and also that on Huntingdon; the arrear is from Godmanchester, which was assessed at 80*l.*, but on complaint reduced to 74*l.*, whereof they have paid 50*l.* Did not conceive this sum belonged to him. - Nov. 9. 59. Officers of the Navy to the Lords of the Admiralty. The Merhonour and Dieu Repulse, being old ships complained of by the Earl of Northumberland to his Majesty, for their age and ill quality, we have advised with the shipwrights whether to proceed with their repair, or render an account for their disposal to his Majesty's most advantage. The Merhonour was rebuilt in 1614; her timbers are generally decayed between wind and water, and many other defects have been discovered since the last employment, wherefore the shipwrights think she should be brought into Woolwich Dock, and there opened on each side, before an estimate be made. For the Repulse they are of opinion that, it being 43 years since she was built, and her mould altogether imperfect, she be continued on the ordinary charge of repair until a new ship be built in her room, and then her hull to be sold. We discern that a far greater charge than is set down in the estimate will not repair these ships fit to serve for a few years, which makes us present their true state for your disposal. [1 p.]

60. Account rendered by Robert Reade of moneys received and paid for Sec. Windebank, from the 11th April 1637 to this day. The receipts consist principally of gratuities given the Secretary on the passing of any grant or licence or any other favour procured by his means. The common payment was 5*l.*, but a person of dignity or a public body ordinarily paid more. The following are examples:—for Mr. Stampe's presentation, 5*l.*; for Sir Richard Bul-ler's licence, 5*l.*; of the men of Dover, 10*l.*; for Mr. Stourton's licence to travel, 5*l.*; of Mr. Moyle, the parson, 5*l.*; for the reference concerning Shrewsbury, 5*l.*; of my Lord of Southampton, 10*l.*; of Mr. De la Barre, 10*l.*; of my Lord Carlisle's creditors, 5*l.*; of the six clerks, 8*l.*; of Dr. Rawley, 5*l.*; of Mr. Lowe for the reference for the Merchant Adventurers, 10*l.*; for Sir Henry Jernegan's [Jer-ningham's] protection, 10*l.*; of the merchants of Dover, 10*l.*, (second payment), 10*l.*; for the Countess of Banbury's pass, 10*l.*; of Mr. Lambe at several times, for the pardons of Mr. Bish, Gore, and Pickering, 42*l.*; of my Lord Goring, 20*l.*; for Mr. Duffield's par-don, 10*l.* Total receipts, 648*l.* 15*s.* 9*d.* The payments were of a very miscellaneous character:—for a pair of garters, 10*s.*; to Mr. As-ton's man that brought a velvet bag, 5*s.*; paid for an estuy [étui?], 5*l.* 7*s.*; for a pair of silk stockings, 1*l.* 14*s.*; to the man that brought sturgeon from the Eastland merchants, 5*s.*; to the porter that carried it, 2*s.*; for going to Greenwich by water and returning, 6*s.*; for crossing from Lambeth, 6*d.*; to my Lord of Newburgh's man that brought venison, and to the waterman, 16*s.*; for a pair of spurs, 10*s.*; for a hat for my cousin John, 3*l.* 16*s.*; to the man that brought the letter from Fulham, 5*s.*; for a pair of black silk stockings for my cousin Thomas, 1*l.* 7*s.*; to Sir William Elliott's man that brought pheasants, 5*s.*; to my cousin Thomas for books, 8*s.* Total payments, 468*l.* 3*s.* 10*d.* The balance of 180*l.* 11*s.* 11*d.* was paid over to Sec. 61. Form of letter of [Sir Thomas Roe] addressed to each of certain Knights of the Garter. Reminds them of a statute whereby every earl should pay 50*s.* to the Treasury at Windsor for pious uses, upon the death of any knight of the order, and the money, if unpaid, should be increased one third part. Also, that every knight should pay 20*l.* to the use and ornament of the altar of the chapel of St. George at Windsor, according to which there having been lately made divers pieces of rich plate presented and consecrated in that chapel, to the near value of 800*l.*, the Dean of Windsor and registrar of the order, being the statute collector of such moneys, brought in his account to his Majesty the Sovereign and the knights at the feast of St. George held on the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th of October, upon view whereof, you being found behind, I then received command from his Majesty,

62. Sir John Lambe to his daughter Barbara. Thanks her for her sweetheart's letter. "If he have but as much skill in the pedigree of the calves as of the Lambes, he might make a good Essex herald. He derives from Poole and Cotton, and I well believe he is a fool, and that his business will not cotton. But better louse in pot than no flesh, and if other sweethearts do forsake you, yet this will stick to you like —— or a bur to your heels." He then comments on what he terms her more serious business, an offer from some young nobleman whose estate was much encumbered. An interview had been had, in which Barbara's behaviour had not been according to her father's previous directions. The subsequent progress of the matter remained in doubt, and Sir John was only anxious that, if it came to an end, it should seem not as if the lady had been rejected, but that she and her father found it not fit to go on. 65. William Walter, late sheriff of co. Oxford, to Nicholas. Finding the arrears of ship-money from his county so great, thinks fit to acquaint him with the carriage of the business. When he was made sheriff it was signified to him that it stood with his Majesty's pleasure that he should continue Lewis Harris as under-sheriff, having been approved in the collection of ship-money formerly. But finding no way of expedition in him, the writer undertook that part of the shire which lies beyond Oxford, and ordered the other side of the county, where he had not understood of any reluctancy, to be despatched by Harris. But on the writer's side are some eminent in their adverseness to this business, and some whole hundreds utterly refused assessing. Yet all the writer's money he has collected and paid in, and now finds that Harris has paid in but 300*l.*, and that there remains unpaid for Harris's side of the county above 700*l.* Entreats that this arrear may neither be made the writer's blame nor charge. Recites letter of 3rd May last, whereby he conveyed to them his Majesty's pleasure, in a complaint of the Dean of Windsor and Registrar of the Order of the Garter against Thornhill, a saltpetremen; and that a certificate of his defence had been returned, which consisted only of a denial that his work was the cause of the ruin ensuing. These being related at a chapter of the order lately held, his Majesty had resolved to protect the Dean of Windsor as his officer of the Garter, according to a statute of that order which is here quoted, and to that purpose had given order to the Lords now addressed, together with the Earls of Arundel, Pembroke, and Dorset, knights of the order, to convene again the accused Thornhill, and to write their letters to persons near Knoyle Magna to view and testify the truth and to hear any other proofs on behalf of either party, and thereupon to give judgment, so that a tedious suit in law may be prevented. Nov. 11. 78. Sir John Skeffington, Sheriff of co. Stafford, to Nicholas Fisherwick. Being at Skeffington in Leicestershire on receipt of the writs for ship-money, he has transplanted himself for the better performance of his duty, and having sought conference with the head constables and others, whether from jealousy that he would not give them the same connivance as his predecessors, whereby a great part of the collection is yet ungathered, or from what other reasons he cannot guess, he received from them directions which would have led him into error and there kept him if he had not redeemed himself. Proposes two points for further directions from the Council, one relating to his power in the assessment of the corporations, and the other as to contributions from the bishop and clergy in the assessment of the close of Lichfield. Upon explication of his doubts on these two points hopes to save the writing of many letters. [$1\frac{1}{3}$ p.]

I therefore desire another vessel in her room, or that I may keep one of the Sallee pinnaces. The Providence is the fittest, which Capt. Slingsby desires he may be put into in place of his Whelp. Ships from St. Sebastians bring word that the French had regained St. Jean de Luz, and that the Portugals have revolted and massacred many of the Spaniards that were amongst them. The Holland fleet cannot get forth, nor the Dunkirk fleet come from the Groyne. They remained ashore three months, working the carriages in the heat of summer, the climate being very hot, having no drink but water, and many times constrained to travel eight miles up the country to cut timber, where they were forced to drink unwholesome stinking water, and were vexed by mosquitoes to the prejudice of their eyesight, by which they were brought into diseases, to their great expense and danger, and have not been rewarded for their pains, tools and apparel spent, lost and worn. Order of the Lords of the Admiralty on the petition of Humphrey Slaney, Nicholas Crispe, and others of the Guinea Company, showing that John Crispe and other interlopers had fitted out the Talbot for the above-mentioned purpose, and praying directions to Sir Henry Marten to stay that ship until the merchants that set her forth give good caution that they will not come into any of the parts granted to petitioners by their patent. The Lords ordered Sir Henry Marten to examine the truth of the petition, and, if he find cause, to take the security desired, and to certify the Lords, who had stayed the ship until they heard from him. Lords of the Admiralty to the Council for management of the Revenues of the Prince. We understand by the Vice-Admiral of the North of Cornwall (See Vol. ccclxx., No. 14. ii.) that you have required him to deliver to Thomas Gewen, havenor of the Duchy of Cornwall, all wrecked goods in his custody, or to appear before you on the 3rd of this instant November. We cannot but marvel that you would send such a warrant for a prime officer in the Admiralty without first acquainting us, especially since you cannot but know that the office of Lord Admiral of England is now executed by commission in his Majesty's name and for his benefit. More respect has been shown by the Prince's Council to the Admiralty when the office was in a private person. If there be any matter of right or profit belonging to the Prince which you conceive to be prejudiced by any officer of the Admiralty, upon notice thereof, we shall be as ready to take order to rectify it as you can desire, therefore we pray you henceforth to forbear to send to any of our subordinate ministers without our privity. The same to Montjoy Earl of Newport. We send you a petition of the captain of the fort in Holy Island concerning the decay of the same, praying you to appoint some fit persons near the same, to examine whether the money alleged to have been formerly disbursed for repair has been expended to that purpose, as also to survey the present state thereof, and make an estimate of the necessary reparations, and to take account of the ammunition. VOL. CCCLXXI.

Nov. 12. Petition of the lamentably distressed inhabitants of St. Edmund's Bury to the King. The said town is very populous, principally consisting of tradesmen, mechanics, and labourers, of whom the multitude of poor has been such, as the weekly contribution out of the inhabitants' purses amounts to 300*l.* per annum, besides the town lands and billeting a great number of poor three days in a week. Since the 5th May, by reason of the heavy visitation of the plague, their market and all commerce has ceased, insomuch that 3,075 persons not visited, and 103 families shut up, are supported at the common charge; 439 have been cured, 598 have died, and 263 families have been infected. Pray for letters patent to collect a charitable benevolence. [Copy. See Vol. cccxxviii., p. 184. $\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

Nov. 12. Petition of Valentine Clarke, one of her Majesty's servants, to the same. In 1632 there was an agreement made with Richard Bouchier by Attorney-General Noy on your Majesty's behalf for 100 acres of land, parcel of the manor of Newton, co. York, for which Bouchier was to pay into the Exchequer 300*l.* and the yearly rent of 16*s.* 8*d.* Bouchier has not paid the 300*l.*, nor the rent, and yet enjoys the land. Petitioner prays grant of the said land in consideration of 300*l.* fine and 16*s.* 8*d.* rent, and to allow the 300*l.* as part of 1,200*l.* due to petitioner's brother Edward Clarke as a groom of your Majesty's Bedchamber. Nov. 12. Petition of Richard Solme and others, inhabitants of Yately, Hants, to the King. The oppressions complained of in the petition of John Mainwaring, Arthur Watts, and others, stated to have been annexed, are only for that rates are made in that parish according to an ancient form used time out of mind, and confirmed within these three years by several orders made by the judges of assize and at the quarter sessions. Nov. 12. 83. Petition of Samuel Cordewell, his Majesty's gunpowder-maker, to the Lords of the Admiralty. By virtue of the contract you made with petitioner, he has now wrought a full year, ending with October last, wherein he has delivered into his Majesty's stores in the Tower of London 240 lasts of gunpowder at the price of 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. per pound, whereby his Majesty has saved in one year 1,200*l.*, besides near about 300*l.* in refining foreign powder at a cheaper rate, and he is ready for the time to come to make 300 lasts yearly at the same price, if he may have a fit proportion of petre. Prays that Mr. Poole may give him his charge for last year, and that the Officers of the Ordnance may certify what quantity of gunpowder petitioner has had proved since the beginning, so that if it shall appear that petitioner has made his proportion, he may have his discharge. him 15 children, yet he lives with and maintains in his house one who was some time a maid-servant there, he being a man of 150*l.* land and having had 200*l.* portion with petitioner. About 14 years since he refused to give her any means, whereupon she was compelled to sell her clothes and sue him in the High Commission Court. The cause being ready for sentence he desired to have the differences ended by friends, to which petitioner consented, and he promised to turn away his said maid-servant, and so for two years he performed, but ever since has refused to give her any means at all. For 12 years she has been relieved by friends, who are now dead, so that she is like to perish, having neither clothes, bread, nor credit, and much indebted, and her husband still living with the said woman and keeps her in his house, albeit she is wife or widow of his own son, Richard Esteourt, to whom he married her and presently sent him to the East Indies, where he died, and Thomas keeps her, viz., Joan Edwards, styled now widow. Prays relief or a reference to the Lord Mayor or Dr. Reeve. *Mr. John Shute and Mr. Richard Cooke endeavoured an end and certified the archbishop. 87. Roger Vaughan, late Sheriff of co. Hereford, to the Council. Presents an account of his service done in the business of ship-money. The total charge was 3,500*l.*, of which, by reason of various arrangements which he explains, he held himself accountable for 3,315*l.*, and the late mayor of Hereford for 185*l.* Of the 3,315*l.* he states the payment of several sums, which with the arrears, being 60*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.*, made up the amount. He sends a roll of the arrears with the names and places of abode of the defaulters, with the reason for not levying every sum as each chief constable presented the same. Of the arrears, 13*l.* 8*s.* 5*d.* rested in difference between the city of Hereford and the out-parishes of Hampton [-Bishop] and Holmer, which difference being still pending before the Lords, he forbore to levy the amount. Has annexed to the roll of defaulters a list of the persons who have not paid by reason of this difference. Prays their favourable construction of his service. [Seal with arms. 2 pp.] Enclosed,

89. Officers of the Navy to the Lords of the Admiralty. We received your letter requiring an estimate for keeping in harbour till the end of December his Majesty's two royal ships, the Sovereign of the Seas and the Prince Royal. For the Sovereign we have his Majesty's command that she should be carried down to Erith, for which purpose there is a demand from her master for an addition of 100 men to the 200 she has already on board. Mr. Cooke is afraid she may receive prejudice by the ice in that place, two ships last year being so cut therewith, riding there, as they sank. In a matter

90. Petition of Thomas Urry and Richard Roman, Churchwardens of Gatcombe, in the Isle of Wight, to Archbishop Laud. In respect of great decays of the church of Gatcombe, there lately was by direction of Dr. Mason, chancellor of the diocese, a meeting appointed for making a rate towards repair, whereat John Worsley and others imposed on themselves and him proportionable rates, to which all of them, except Worsley only, consented and paid. There has also been for time beyond the memory of man a church-house, and garden belonging to Gatcombe; Mr. Worsley has by mere power usurped the same and converted it to his own use. Mr. Worsley being a litigious man and potent in estate (his farm being one half of the parish), not only refuses to pay the last rate, but two former also, so that the reparation of the church is hindered and the fabric endangered. Pray letters missive or monition to him to re-deliver the church-house, and garden, and satisfy the rates due by him or appear before the commissioners ecclesiastical. 91. Petition of Philip Butler, clerk, to the same. Having been curate for ten years past of the chapels of East Putford and Bulkworthy, belonging to the parish church of Buckland-Brewer, Devon, he has received 5*l.* yearly of the vicar, and 5*l.* more of the parishioners, which payments have been made time out of mind and confirmed by the Bishop of Exeter. But of late, Mr. Humphrey Prideaux, having a barton near one of the chapels, refuses to pay any part of petitioner's stipend, saying that he pays tithes to the vicar and impropiator; the vicar conceives that he, discharging the cure in the mother-church, ought not to pay for the parishioners' ease; so that petitioner is unpaid and knows not by whom to be relieved. Prays order to Mr. Prideaux and the other parishioners to pay the stipend. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

91. I. Reference to Sir John Lambe to draw up some form for settling this business, to be sent to the Bishop of Exeter, "for there is no reason (and I think the law is so too) but that those who have the benefit of such chapel should pay for their ease." 13th November 1637. [$\frac{1}{4}$ p.]

therefore, with consent of petitioner and the better sort of the parishioners, put the biggest of them to a bellfounder to make two tuneable bells to the other three, which being done, yet there would be overplus metal to make the saint's bell, that was so small that it could not be heard half through the parish, bigger. But some of the town would have had that metal sold to defray the charges of casting and making frames. Petitioner replied he would at his own charge make a sixth bell of it rather than it should be sold. Whereupon they violently and riotously abuse him, and with threatenings so daunt him that he fears his life, means, and reputation. Prays the protection of the archbishop, and that Abraham Ireland, William Hawkins, and Matthew Manning may be presently sent for to answer, petitioner being now ready to attend his Grace, and the weakness of his body being such that he shall not be able to take another journey. Nov. 13. 93. Petition of Richard Bures to Archbishop Laud. In the 11th of King James, petitioner bought of John Prigeon, late registrar of Lincoln, the rectory impropriate of Canwick, in Lincoln, and paid 700*l.* for it. Not long after, petitioner being willing to have the said rectory returned to the church, sold the same to the Company of Mercers for 550*l.*, which was part of a legacy of Mr. Fishborne to buy in impropriations. The company disposed the said rectory accordingly, and have quietly enjoyed the same for 24 years. But Prigeon, in 6th James, had granted to William Gulson an annuity of 20*l.* out of the said rectory for Gulson's life and his wife's. Prigeon concealed the same from petitioner and the company, and paid the annuity during his life, but being now dead, Gulson claims his annuity, and John Prigeon, the son, to whom his father surrendered his registrarship of Lincoln, is very well able to pay the same, but the company intend to sue petitioner, a poor blind man. One Hoog-anhuysen, a Dutchman, being heretofore complained of in the High Commission for importing books printed beyond the seas, was bound not to bring in any more. One Vlack has kept up the same agency and sold books in his stead, and is lurking here, observing what is most useful and vendible, and causes it forthwith to be printed abroad. Petitioner having lately brought from Frankfort mart to Rotterdam four great vats of books to the value of 500*l.*, Hoog-anhuysen, upon untrue suggestions, caused them to be seized and sold to Vlaek for 100*l*. Vlaek is now preparing to go beyond seas to avoid answering his late bringing over nine bales of books contrary to the decree of the Star Chamber, and procures some persons to pretend that he is indebted to them (as formerly Hooganhuysen did), thereby to get the books into their possession. Petitioner prays order to bring the bales to Stationers' Hall, there to remain till Vlaek shall re-deliver to him the said four vats of books, or at least at the same price he bought them. 95. Petition of Cornelius Bee, bookseller, to Archbishop Laud. About three years since at Amsterdam there was translated into English and printed a large book called Atlas Major, 350 of which books, about five months ago, and before the publication of the late Star Chamber decree, petitioner bought for the use of this kingdom, and Michael Sparkes made a contract with petitioner for a third part of the said 350, whereupon petitioner deposited 100*l*. in part for the same, and engaged for the remainder, and now Sparkes has flown from his contract. Prays the archbishop's favour for the importation of the said books, being neither offensive to church nor state. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

He brought me word that his master likes him well, and that he is beloved by all the servants. He is in the 5th book, and has four juniors by his master's favour to him. He likes the school well. He was very brag, that in an exercise of 20 verses his master found not one fault, or would not seem to find it. Indeed Mr. Pinekney has taken pains with him, and made him so perfect in his rules, that he is much encouraged by it. Heard from Ned on Saturday last. He is quite well. I am sorry for your son George's infirmity. Cold is the cause of all. [2 pp.]

97. Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia to Sir Thomas Roe. If this reverend bearer should return without my letter to you it were not to be pardoned, therefore he will deliver you this, and looks that you shall receive him as my ambassador, which the gravity of his face and years does well deserve, therefore do not fail to receive him with as much knavish gravity and ceremony as you can, and as I know you are good at. He has gained much love and reputation here. The Prince of Orange esteems him very much, and he has not a friend wishes him better than I do. He can tell you how things pass here, where we have a new French Ambassador, who professes himself much my friend, though the French grow more uncivil to my son every day. They will not let their Ambassador give him so much as the title of Highness, which every little Prince has. Their vanity is so great since they gave the Prince of Orange that title, that none must have it but as a gift from them. By the French Ambassador's and the Prince of Orange's advice, my son has sent again to the Landgravine and Milandre that he will make levies to join with them and their army, desiring them to appoint him some good place of rendezvous. This my son is resolved upon, and I hope my brother will assist him in it. I wish you were going to this assembly at Hamburgh or here. Let me freely know which way I shall take to have you sent. Write it to me, and none shall know it comes from you. The Polish Ambassador is here. I have taken no notice of him, following my brother's example. His chief business is to persuade the States to be content with the new toll his master desires to make at Dantzick, which I believe they will not be. [2 pp.]

Nov. 14. 102. Answer of William Taylor, of the parish of Christ Church, London, stationer, to articles objected against him in the High Commission. A little before Easter, Gregory Dexter, examinant's fellow-servant, showed him a letter from Mr. Prynne with the copy of an epistle therein to be printed, and told examinant they should be well paid for it. The schedule showed to him is part of the copy. It contained 8 pages. He and Dexter printed 1,000 of one half of the said epistle, and 500 of the other half. Dexter composed the whole, and after they had printed a fair proof, Dexter threw the written copy in the fire. Some 5 or 6 weeks before Easter there was a letter sent from Mr. Prynne by Nathaniel Wickens, his man, to Dexter, and therein was a little book called "Instructions to Churchwardens," which examinant and Dexter printed. They printed 1,000 of them. After they were printed, Dexter sealed them up in cap paper and carried them to Mr. Wickens's house in Newgate Market. About a time articulate, Nathaniel Wickens came to the back door by the press, to which he was appointed by Dexter to come, and after some little parley Dexter went forth and stayed about half an hour. Examinant believes that he went into Newgate Market to the house of Mr. Wickens, a checsemonger, to meet with Mr. Prynne, and showed him a proof of the scandalous epistle aforesaid. Some day or two after the copy was brought to Dexter as aforesaid, he showed examinant a letter of the matter aforesaid, being a great C, very curiously cut in box-wood, which he said was sent by Mr. Prynne close sealed up, and was to be used for the first letter of the said scandalous epistle, which they used accordingly. Mr. Prynne sent that letter because the same was new and not known among the printers of London. It was cut of purpose for this use, it being

Nov. 15. 106. Officers of the Navy to Lords of the Admiralty. When they delivered the late breviae of the charge of repairs, the Leopard, the Mary Rose, the Roebuck, and the First Whelp had not come in. Their repairs amount to 629*l.* 10*s.*, for which the writers desire a warrant. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

Nov. 15. 107. Officers of Ordnance to Montjoy Earl of Newport, Master of the Ordnance. Report on the case of Rice Thomas, late gunner of the Tenth Whelp, and in reference to the letter of the Lords of the Admiralty thereon of the 30th October last (See p. 503.) On his return from sea they found him short nine barrels of powder, which they certified to the Lords of the Admiralty. Whether his punishment have been sufficient to expiate his offence, they think most proper to be determined by those Lords. In the art of gunnery they conceive him a very able man, and could they be assured of his honest demeanour they would recommend him. For his wages, if the Lords think his two years' imprisonment punishment sufficient, they would do a work of charity to allow him the same. [1 p.]

Nov. $\frac{1}{2}$ 5. 108. Colonel George Goring to Sec. Windebank. Thanks for favours. As to accidents which have fallen out there to the prejudice of his Majesty's subjects, his weakness has made him unfit to report upon them; but he finds such appearance of his recovery that he hopes shortly to deliver the Secretary an account of them by word of mouth. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]

Nov. 15. Lords of the Admiralty to the Officers of the Navy. Having received your letter of the 13th instant, we pray you to forbear stirring the Prince from Chatham until further order, for such is his Majesty's pleasure. As concerning the Sovereign of the Seas, you are to carry her down to Erith, pressing such men as may be requisite. As to the [Red] Lion, you are to stay any further proceeding on her reparations till his Majesty shall have seen her himself, or you receive further order from us. We expect your attendance at our meeting on Saturday next. [Copy. See Vol. cccliii., fol. 65. $\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

Petition of Edward Warren to the King. John Warren, petitioner's late father, borrowed of Sir Robert Banister 4,000*l.* upon mortgage of the manor of Woodlump-ton, co. Lancaster, being the ancient inheritance of petitioner's ancestors. Petitioner's father failed in payment; Sir Robert Banister took advantage of the forfeiture, and soon after petitioner's father was imprisoned for debt and died in prison, leaving petitioner an infant and in ward to your Majesty, all his evidences being in strangers' hands, whereby he was disabled from seeking relief against Sir Robert Banister. About a year since petitioner happened to find out the counterparts of the writings concerning the mortgage, and has made suit to Sir Robert to redeem the said manor. At first Sir Robert seemed willing to yield thereunto, but he now pretends that he so estated the manor at the marriage of his son, as that his interest therein is settled upon an infant, which is purposely to defeat your petitioner. Prays a reference to some of the Privy Council and the judges to direct a course for petitioner to have again his land. [Copy. See Vol. ccxxviii., p. 191. 1½ p.] Underwritten,

The like of Sir William Brouncker and Allen Boteler to the same. Sundry good laws have been made concerning all sorts of cloth and kerseys, as for viewing, searching, and sealing the same, and against such as become false makers and workers thereof, or shall mix or stiffen the same with oatmeal or other deceivable stuff, or shall transport cloth and oatmeal or other grain beyond seas not being at certain prices, and against ill carding, weaving, dressing, dyeing, and colouring of cloth and kerseys, and against jobbers, which are such as buy yarn and do not convert the same into cloth, and against many other offenders. Nevertheless offenders daily increase, and, if not timely remedied, tend to the overthrow both of trade and traffic in clothing. Pray a commission authorizing commissioners by petitioners to be nominated to compound with those who have incurred penalties within three years past, and to prosecute such as are guilty and will not compound. Nov. 16. 109. Petition of Bartholomew Warner, clerk, to Archbishop Laud. Petitioner, by prosecution of William Hewett, of Dunton-Basset, co. Leicester, impropiator of the church there, is brought into the High Commission, and also sued at the common law on the same pretended occasion. Pleads his poverty (the vicarage not being worth above 20*l.* per annum), large family, and inability to wage law with so potent and malicious an adversary, and that the matters objected are not worthy the trouble of so high a court. Prays a reference for determination to Sir John Lambe, Sir Nathaniel Brent, and Dr. Rives. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

114. Petition of Dame Alice Fulwood to the King. It has been the miserable fortune of Roger Fulwood, my younger son, and Richard Bowen to be found guilty at the King's Bench bar yesterday, upon an old statute, for taking away and marrying Sarah Cox. If the matter had been found so barbarous as general report had famed it, I durst not have taken upon me to supplicate your grace. But the matter upon full examination neither appeared so foul, nor accompanied with such circumstances of aggravation, but that they may be rendered fit subjects for mercy, which petitioner, with her unfortunate and distressed child, most humbly beseech. 115. William Walter, late Sheriff of co. Oxford, to Nicholas. Understanding that the Lords desire to know what security I have taken of Lewis Harris for the performance of the office of under-sheriff, these are to inform you that I had delivered three bonds, one from himself and his brother, a vintner in Oxford, for 600*l.*, another of 200*l.* from Egerly [Edgerley?], the carrier of Oxford, and another of 100*l.* from a baker in Oxford, for performance of covenants for the execution of the office, but whether they extend to this particular service or no I dare not say. The testimony of his approbation in his Majesty's service formerly, made me receive him and his security without delay of examinations, he being otherwise unknown to me. [Seal with arms. 1 p.] and brewers, and by your instructions you have signified that all such persons as desire to make composition for those trades shall first bring in the true contents of their steeping-vats, cisterns, or mash-tuns, whereby they may be contracted for with more or lesser sums of money. Divers covetous dealers have already given in less dimensions than their vessels are of, intending to defraud your revenue. Pray a grant to petitioners of the office of surveying all such cisterns, vats, and tunns, with such fee as your Majesty shall think fit. [Copy. See Vol. cccxxiii., p. 194. 1 p.] Under-

- Nov. 18. Wells. 120. Bishop Pierce, of Bath and Wells, to the Council. Recites letter of the Council of the 30th September last, whereby he was directed to investigate the practices of William Gilbert alias Yeaton, of Priestleigh, in the parish of Doulting, Somerset, in undertaking various cures by his seventh son, called Richard, of the age of about 5 years. (See Vol. ccclviii., No. 88.) Reports at large thereon, first setting forth who and what William Gilbert was, and that the opinion that his seventh son (never a girl being between) had the power of curing the king's evil, wens, and other swellings, was first spread abroad by the child's grandmother, who did the office of a midwife at his birth. Upon her persuasion, John Norton had a wen stroked with the hand of the child on the morning after its birth, the touch being deemed more salutary before the child was christened.

VOL. CCCLXXI.

Other people took up the notion, and Henry Poynting adduced in its favour a book entitled "A Thousand Notable Things," printed at London in 1612, in which the power of healing by touch was stated to be a natural gift possessed by such children as well as by kings and queens. The bishop describes the manner in which the child touched, which he did every Monday morning, saying "I touch and God heals." The number of persons who came to be touched before last spring was not more than 20 in the whole, but from that time they had gone on increasing, until at length they came out of divers counties, some being persons of quality, and filled the inns, alehouses, and private houses in and about Priestleigh. Neither the child nor his father received any gifts, save fruit, sugar, points, garters, scarves, and such like trifles, nor had they used any imposture or deceit, but had been merely carried away by a simple credulity, which made them a little vainglorious. The bishop had commanded the father not to suffer his child to touch any more, and he had promised obedience. [7 $\frac{3}{4}$ pp.]

(See Vol. ccclviii., No. 65.) The bishop renders thanks to the Lords for their noble favour unto him, and certifies that Mr. Strode had given him full satisfaction by an ingenuous acknowledgment of his fault. Barbary, stayed by your order. Consider petitions of divers pursers of the navy. I have attended Sir Henry Marten concerning the form of discharge to be given to accountants in the Admiralty, and he approves of those I have to present to you, which please to despatch. Consider Capt. Kettleby's petition. Mr. Railton knows of no money sent over from Ireland to pay Capt. Kettleby. Sir Henry Marten having considered Mr. Bassett's certificate touching encroachments on the Admiralty in those parts, conceives a messenger should be sent for such of Mr. Arundel's servants as took goods seized for his Majesty out of the Marshal's deputy's hands. Appoint a boatswain for the Nicodemus. Resolve what shall be done with the foreign gunpowder brought in by Mr. Cockcroft since the proclamation. Peruse letters from the Earl of Newport and Officers of Ordnance; also from the Dean of Windsor. Order of the same Lords on the petition of Louis de Bois, Francis and Manuel Ramiros Pina, Anthonio Galles and others, merchant strangers. Petitioners had laden aboard the Pelican, of Hamburgh, goods to a great value, among which the Queen-mother of France had certain sugars for her own use, which were taken within sight of Dover by letters of reprisal granted to Robert South, Gregory Clements, &c., and Sir Henry Marten has given sentence on behalf of the captors. Petitioners immediately appealed, but notwithstanding the appeal, South and Clements disposed of the goods. Petitioners pray an inhibition to appoint a time when all proceedings before the Judge of Admiralty be brought in, and that in the meantime the moneys may be deposited. The Lords ordered the registrar of the Court of Delegates to receive the appeal and to issue an inhibition, the Court of Admiralty to stay further proceedings and decree for the transmission of the same as prayed. 2. Christopher Wren, Dean of Windsor, to Nicholas. It was no piece of my petition to his Majesty that letters should be directed by Sir Thomas Roe to the Lords of the Admiralty for my relief against Thornhill, or that others be joined in assistance with them. They were directions from the Sovereign mero motu. I have therefore entreated Sec. Windebank to present this my just apology, and to desire that their letters be directed to any of those gentlemen whose names I have set down to certify the truth of my allegations. I hope to close up our chapter at Windsor, where I am now tied, and to wait on you before the term go out for these letters. [Seal with arms. $\frac{2}{3}$ p.]

3. Denis Rolle, late Sheriff of Devon, to the same. I have with much difficulty collected 111*l.* of the arrear of 130*l.*; the residue I cannot yet collect, it being in part payable by such as are either dead or gone out of the country, or such as in pity of their poverty my bailiffs have forborne to distrain, and some part is due from constables who have not yet paid in at full; yet I have given order to pay Sir William Russell the whole arrear. I hope the Lords will pardon my late payment. [Seal with arms. $1\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

4. Petition of Roger Forte, one of the churchwardens of South Petherton, Somerset, to Archbishop Laud. Petitioner being a plain man, and having notice that the clerk or sexton of the parish had in making a grave in one aisle of the church digged up a sheet of lead, wherein a corpse had been (by conjecture) 200 or 300 years ago buried, but neither inscription nor any ground-stone or monument, and the body all consumed to dust, and the leads of the church being in great need of reparation, petitioner with the minister, his fellow-churchwarden, and all the chief of the parishioners, caused the said lead to be employed therein, not converting any of it to his own or any other use. Yet James Beale has questioned petitioner before his ordinary for the same, and petitioner putting in an unskilful proctor is excommunicated for not doing a very extreme penance. Prays the archbishop to hear or refer the cause, and if he shall find petitioner's innocent simplicity proved, he begs the archbishop's favour. [$\frac{3}{4}$ p.] Underwritten,

Nov. 20. Sir Thomas Roe to the Prince Elector Palatine. I hope you will not doubt that all means have been used to his Majesty for some supply to raise you on your wings, but you know what has been ever the difficulty to engage his Majesty, whereof he is so wary that he will not counsel that which shall of necessity engage him in honour, especially before the conclusion of the treaty. If he were in any way engaged, that is all France expects, and might perhaps cool them to accomplish the treaty. If you had gone up without any consultation to the Hessian army, and from thence written, you had obtained your desires. My opinion is that you put it yet to adventure, and though it will not be fit to engage the name of the King, yet you may give sufficient assurance to them, by showing them the reasons why you first address them, as the only way to engage his Majesty, and that when you shall be in action of honour you shall find friends and means to support them. Your reasons to stay a trial are such as might justly have retarded any condition but yours. You must lay the first corner-stone yourself. Offer yourself to action; if not as a general, as a confederate; and leave the rest to time, occasion, and the merit of your own virtue. Unless you do this, I fear all other men's persuasions will have little power. In this I have written more largely to Sir Thomas Ferentz. Concerning the West India design I have delivered my opinion, but to hope to work anything here by the archbishop or any other great man, where it is held to be of greatest importance to preserve his Majesty from engagement, is labour lost. I am informed that the French reproach us in the treaty as negligent to bring the Swedes into the business. I hear they are now content to send an ambassador, but with such limitations that I suspect the issue. It is the treaty which must maintain your action, and yourself that must work the treaty, both by your friends and by being engaged. For your pension here I wrote in my last. Suggests a mode of raising money upon it in Holland. [Copy. See Vol. ccclxix., No. 4. 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ p.]

7. Sir Thomas Roe to Colonel Thomas Ferentz. Concerning the West Indies I can say little more than I did in my last letters to the Elector Palatine and to yourself, but this, that after so much solicitation as made me seem a dreamer, yesterday the Lord Marshal moved it to his Majesty, and it is ordered that himself will hear me next week. There will be two rocks to get over; the first, that his Majesty will endure the consequence of a breach with Spain; the second, how the diffidence between the King and subject in these times may be so removed that the one may offer to encourage and be sure not to be refused, the other to adventure courageously and be sure to enjoy their privileges. I have sounded these things, and conclude that though there be nothing more safe than to put a bridle in the teeth of the House of Austria, nothing more honourable, no time so opportune, no work more easy and profitable, yet this action must be left to more generous times, and another age, who will wonder at our blindness and want of courage. Not that I am not assured his Majesty's judgment and will is right, as the head, but all the members are so out of joint, and there is no trust among ourselves, thereupon there is no trust for you upon us. One exception I make. If the treaty necessitate a breach with Spain, that will reunite all jealousies. The King will need his people, and the people must defend their King and all his righteous quarrels; so that no confederacy, no war; no war, no invasion of the Indies. What is others' misery must be our cure. What then is to be done? It is not enough that the States of the Provinces say they are ready, passively. They must provoke and quicken the confederacy. If the French make peace, and the Swedes come only to hear what shall be proposed for themselves, the States must bear the fury of the war alone; so that it is they only must clear up this mist. For the treaty, it is here expected that Mons. Bellievre has brought some conclusion, but he has been here three weeks, and some days arrived in London, attending, as is pretended, his papers that were embarked with him and beaten off at sea: malum omen! Commissions are sent for our part, one to Mr. Avery, another to Sir William Boswell, but seeing they are not sure of the place, I am afraid they are as unsure what they will resolve. The French reproach us as able to bring the Swedes. I have two advices respecting their disposition, the first agreeing with Camerarius that Dr. Salvius has commission at Ham-burgh, but erroneous or deceiving that the chancellor's son shall follow after. My correspondence assures me that he is designed not for Germany but for the King of Hungary. His father will never send him again to us, having taken himself once affronted, but he will seek to recover his credit by making him the instrument of peace. The later advice is that the French treaty having been communicated to the Swedes they have deputed one of the Council of State to assist in the treaty, because they will not be the first to desert the cause, and to declare that, unless his Majesty will assist them with money, or make his nephew considerable by an army, they will have no interest in the war. So that I conclude there is little hope of the treaty with their concurrence, and not much with ours. The death of the Landgrave of Hesse you well know that I have heard, and what my opinion upon it was. I was moved by the Prince's own spirit to get into his possession that army. It was not probable that his Majesty would give the counsel that would engage him, which yet he would assist, being done. The Prince ought to put that to hazard which wisdom cannot always warrant. I was not of the counsel that he should put the King to such an approbation, much less to communicate to the French Ambassador that his Majesty had been so far consulted, but to have begun there, to have laid the obligation upon the French King, as most interested in that army. But now it is too late to recall, and I fear that business is embroiled. What answer his Highness shall obtain for money I dare not determine, but if it be not too late, my advice is that, with what volunteers and gentlemen that will follow his person, he show himself in the army, and offer according to conjunctures, and that he intimate to the French his obligation to them for his first action, and that he is assured his uncle will own him there; to the Hessians that he comes to spend his life in honour, and that he will bring to them what he has, which may oblige the King of England to take them into his care and protection. If there be better counsel, I shall be glad to learn it. Thus much zeal for truth has exacted from me, which I dare not write to the Queen or Prince, because there is due to them a tender decorum of style, and truth may be rude. You may deliver as much as you find agree with their service, or burn it, at your discretion. [Copy. 4 pp.]

About ten years since petitioner married with his now wife, one of the daughters of John Lord Boteler, lately deceased, who by his promise was to pay to petitioner 2,000*l.* for a marriage portion, whereof 1,000*l.* only is paid. On petition of the said Lord Boteler in May last, in respect of the weakness of understanding of William his only son, you gave him leave to nominate Francis Lord Dunsmore and Endymion Porter, two other of his sons-in-law, and now executors of his will, to have the management of the said William and his lands, with power to the master of the Court of Wards to settle the same according to the rules of that court; whereupon it was ordered in that court on 23rd May last that a commission should go out to inquire of the idiocy of the said William. Petitioner, in regard of the nearness betwixt him and the executors, desires that suits may be avoided between them, and yet that he may not be barred of his 1,000*l.* by means of his long forbearance. Prays direction to the Court of Wards that his 1,000*l.* may be paid. [Copy. See Vol. cccxxiii., p. 195. 1½ p.] Underwritten, Windebank divers things were by them ordered touching the restraint of petitioner from an immoderate transportation of lampreys. Since which, upon a petition of divers fishermen of the Thames to the Council, and a reference to the Lord Mayor and Sir Henry Marten, a price was certified and ordered, which petitioner is content to pay for so many as he shall transport. But now the fishermen having a great price, go about to enforce petitioner to take from them, and to pay for, more lampreys than he can transport, which will utterly undo him. Prays a reference to settle these differences or certify to the Council. [¾ p.] Underwritten,

About
[Nov. 21 ?] 10. Petition of Capt. Thomas Bardsey to the King. Having taken into your consideration the sufferings of your subjects inhabiting near the city of London by the intrusion of aliens and unprofitable persons, whereby many robberies are committed, principally by want of government in those places, your Majesty for remedy of these abuses incorporated all places within three miles of London, and appointed justices of peace for punishment of offenders, which cannot be duly performed for want of a provost-marshal to seek for such offenders, for which purpose the city of London is provided with one. Petition of John Weston and George Weston, and others of the tenants of the manor of Reigate, to the King. Upon a quo warranto brought by the Attorney-General against William Lord Monson, Viscount Castlemaine, Margaret Countess of Nottingham, and others for usurping free warren in the said manor, a verdict was obtained against the defendants upon error in pleading, by reason whereof the Countess and Sir Charles Howard her son petitioned for a new trial, which was referred to the Lord Keeper and Lord Privy Seal, who ordered that such new trial should take place. Notwithstanding, the Countess and her son re-petitioned your Majesty for a surcease of the new quo warranto, which being referred to the Attorney-General, he advised that Lord Monson should bring his action of trespass quare warrenam intravit, which he brought accordingly, and was non-suited therein; notwithstanding which, Lord Monson prosecutes other actions for maintaining his pretended free warren, to the great prejudice of petitioners. Petitioners pray that the former reference may stand, and that the Attorney-General may proceed with the new quo warranto, against Lord Monson, to the end that one fair trial may be had upon the said right of free warren. Nov. 23. 24. Petition of the inhabitants of Foston, in the parish of Long Bennington, co. Lincoln, to Archbishop Laud. In Foston there is an ancient chapel at which the vicars of Long Bennington have used to say divine service, administer the sacraments, and bury the dead. Henry Moore, clerk, who for 11 years past has been vicar of Long Bennington, about six years since refused to do service at the said chapel, and upon complaint to the bishop it was ordered that he should allow the inhabitants of Foston 9*l.* yearly, and they procure a sufficient minister, which they did for five years, and allowed him 20*l.* a year, and the inhabitants were to have all the tithes and church dues during the life of Mr. Moore, they paying him 16*l.* per annum. There has been formerly in the church of West Rasen an organ, some of the woodwork and pipes in decay remaining in the chancel. Also there has been time out of mind paid at harvest to the churchwardens a portion of corn called church-corn, viz., one sheaf out of every land let at 18*l.* or 20*l.* per annum, which church-corn is now converted by the inhabitants to payment of swine-herds and neat-herds, and other secular uses. Petitioner will pay to such as will repair the organ 5*l.*, and give towards the organ and organist a tenth part of the church-corn, by giving way to the churchwardens taking one sheaf out of every land there untithed. Prays order to repair the organ (there being at Plough Monday next a whole year's rent to be paid for the corn), and that 20 marks per annum be allotted out of the church-corn to

Before that time the business was discharged by the six clerks, who, being attorneys retained in causes in the court, were not indifferent parties to set down orders. No fees were ever settled. The six clerks in the 40th Elizabeth presented the fees whilst the employment was in them, but greater fees had been taken for 28 years by the patentees. On the present commission upon exacted fees, petitioner has looked into the same, but can find no other settlement than the usage of 66 years. Whereas also he stands questioned by means of John Waterson, stationer, on pretence of bringing over 12 books of Owen's Epigrams, printed beyond seas, and dealing in prohibited books, which he has upon oath denied, and no promoter appearing or proof offered, he prays order for dismissal. Other persons besides Anne Mercer drank of the Alicant, which was not ordered for her, and she was hurt in the neck with a brazen ladle before she drank of it. The Court was divided as to the sentence. Lords Cottington, Lord Chief Justice Bramston, Sec. Windebank, Sir Henry Vane, Lord Newburgh, the Earl of Dorset, and the Lord Treasurer were for acquitting the defendants, and most of them for fining the plaintiff 40*l.* pro falso clamore. But Brookes, being then the Bishop of Lincoln's domestic chaplain, and non-resident at Fen-Stanton, hath of late, since the bishop's stay in London, taken the tithes into his own hand, and put petitioner to 10*l.* per annum stipend, wherewith he is not able to subsist, Brookes being still non-resident, and supplying another cure at Buckden, which he leases and hires at yearly rent of another clerk. Upon the market day there is such resort of bakers from the country round, uttering such great quantities of bread as serves to supply the town for the most part of the week following. If any more were made free of the town it would impoverish the two that live here. Having proposed your request to the corporation, we found them altogether unwilling to consent. [1 p.]

- Nov. 29. 82. Sir John Pennington to Sec. Windebank. The Bonaventure
The Downs. is fitted for the employment to the Groyne, and stays only for the gentleman that is to go along with him, whose fault it will be if the business be divulged, for before he came aboard to me with your letter, he had acquainted Sir Henry Mainwaring, whom he met ashore, with the contents of it and the employment, which I did not take well from him. I desire you to acquaint his Majesty therewith, whereby I may not suffer in his good opinion. I protest I have acquainted no man living with it, but the captain of the Bonaventure whom I designed for the service, and with caution to him to impart it to no man. [Seal with arms. 1 p.]
- Nov. 29. 83. Officers of the Navy to the Lords of the Admiralty. We have required his Majesty's master shipwrights' opinion concerning the hulls of the Prince and the Merhonour. They estimate the charge of opening both ships in dry dock to make a perfect survey of their defects at 1,000*l.* at the least, which must be done before they can give a particular charge of the new building or repair. They guess the Prince will require $\frac{3}{4}$ and the Merhonour $\frac{2}{3}$ of the expense of building two such ships new. We collect that the Prince will require in all kinds of timber 1,866 loads, and the Merhonour 1,200 loads. Where to have such principal stuff we cannot as yet conceive. Capt. Pett is of opinion that they will not require so great a quantity. [1 p.]
- Nov. 29. 84. The same to the same. Having received your order to press ten or twelve ships as near as we could to the burthen of those employed the last year, we have made stay of the undermentioned. There are appended the names of thirteen merchant ships, with their tonnage, ordnance, numbers of men, and masters' names. The tonnage ranges from 220 to 600 tons, their ordnance from 20 to 32 guns, their men from 88 to 240. [1 p.]

85. Petition of Dr. Richard Holdsworth, Archdeacon of Huntingdon, in behalf of the churchwardens of Aldenham, co. Hertford, in the jurisdiction of Huntingdon, to Archbishop Laud. On a petition to his Majesty by the churchwardens of Aldenham, 12th March 1634-5, concerning troubles sustained about levying rates for repair of the church, his Majesty gave order to the archdeacon to take some course for the relief of the churchwardens, which he accordingly did. Since the compounding of that business, Henry Coghill, inhabitant in the said parish, who is the only man who has refused to conform to the order for payment of rates, has put in an allegation into the Arches against John Warner and Edward Rhodes, churchwardens, to their new molestation. Prays order that the churchwardens may be freed from trouble, and that Henry Coghill may pay his rate which the poor men have been deprived of these four years. [1 p.] Endorsed,

"*Mr. Archdeacon of Huntingdon hath taken a great deal of pains in this business, and therefore I desire Sir John Lambe to be very careful of this petition, and to see that his Majesty's reference be not eluded by the wilfulness of any man, and that the cause may receive a speedy hearing and end, according to equity and justice, in case Coghill will not submit to the archdeacon's order. Petitioner Jane is daughter and heir of Sir Robert Butler and Dame Frances, his wife, late deceased, and by reason of the wardship of petitioner Jane, and the debts of her father and mother, petitioner's estate is in danger to be much impaired. Petitioners hope your Majesty will think it just that the same debts be paid out of that estate, which cannot be during petitioner Jane's minority, she being at this time under 21, unless your Majesty grant them your privy seal to the Lord Chief Justice and other judges of the Common Pleas to permit petitioners to levy fines and suffer recoveries of her lands, thereby to enable them to give security for the present payment of the said debts. that some words therein contained may be prejudicial to your Majesty in point of tenure of the 95,000 acres of land thereby decreed to petitioner, if your Majesty's assent be given thereto. Order of the same Lords upon petition of Richard Jolliffe, Benjamin Newland, Edward Pratt, Edward Bostock, and others. Petitioners had petitioned the King, showing that in May 1632 they set forth for [from?] the Isle of Wight a bark called the Unity, laden with tobacco, bound for Flushing, which in her way was taken by a man-of-war of Dunkirk, and carried thither and sold, by reason (they said) that tobacco was victual. Petitioners demanded a copy of the sentence, which they utterly refused, and petitioners sent to Brussels for counsel, and the doctors said they had made an edict amongst themselves, and that must go for law. Whereupon petitioners prayed his Majesty to grant them the like commission to be issued out of the Admiralty Court as was formerly issued to Soweth and Thompson. On the 6th May 1637, his Majesty referred the petition to the Lords of the Admiralty; and petitioners, by a further petition, showed the said Lords that Sir Henry Marten would not certify their losses without direction from the said Lords. The Lords thereupon this day referred it to Sir Henry Marten to examine the facts of the said case, and certify the same under seal; and also to certify whether the Lords might not take order for letters of reprisal. Nov. 30. 95. Capt. James Duppa to Sir Dudley Carleton. Please to peruse the order made by Sir Abraham Williams and myself, not without the knowledge of others, as soon as the sickness gave us leave to come together. Of late a silly fellow, no inhabitant or brewer, desires also to be admitted, and, as I conceive, only to disturb the business. If the Lords hold it fit that there should be one more, we desire it may be a freeman. [$\frac{1}{2}$ p.] Annexed,

95. 1. *Order of Sir Abraham Williams and Capt. 99. Petition of Noah Clyffe to the Council. Petitioner is possessed for five or six years to come of a cottage in Long Acre, which was erected about 20 years past, and for 16 years has been in the tenure of — Read. A complaint has been exhibited to the Lords against petitioner for the said cottage, which he conceives to proceed upon a discontent of the tenant in reversion, because petitioner would not agree to sell to him at the price offered. As petitioner has lately paid a great fine to his Majesty for the said cottage, which money he borrowed, and will secure the parish against the said Read, he prays to be dismissed from further attendance. 100. Sir John Coventry, Sir Robert Phillips, and John Symes, referees of a petition of William Walrond, presented against John Isham and William Bicknell, to the same. Report that Isham did receive certain persons into his house coming from Westminster in July 1636, which were his own children. Whereupon Walrond commanded Isham to contain himself and his family in his house, according to his Majesty's orders. Isham and his family conformed, saving one Luff, who went out by persuasion of Bicknell, who used him to carry his corn and conversed with him. Walrond, on complaint of the neighbourhood, sent a warrant of good behaviour against Bicknell and Luff. Whereupon the tithing-man coming to serve the warrant, Bicknell took the warrant and kept it, refusing to come before Walrond, and used very undecent and vile words both of Walrond and his warrant. All which we humbly certify. [1 p.]

101. Petition of Lewis Harris, late under-sheriff of co. Oxford, to the same. The late sheriff's for two years of that county being complained of for being in arrear of the ship-money, petitioner was sent for by a messenger, in whose custody he remains. Within three weeks petitioner will undertake to pay in all the moneys he has collected, and before Candlemas term will perfect the accounts, and collect the remainder of the money, so that the now sheriff make him a warrant to do the same, and that the under-sheriff of Sir Peter Wentworth may be joined with him in the service for the arrears on his account. His Majesty, by his instructions to the sheriff of co. Leicester for assessing ship-money, provided that where any clergyman shall find himself grieved by any inequality or pressure put upon him, upon complaint to his diocesan, the sheriff, with such persons as the diocesan shall appoint, shall hear the complaint, and, if there be cause, shall relieve the complainant, or, if the complaint be frivolous, punish him. 106. Christopher Dighton to the Council. Answer to a petition of Capt. Roger Haughton. Petitioner complains that he brought his soldiers to Gravesend about noon on the 2nd inst., and that they were detained there until noon on the following day. The answer is that the captain did not deliver his warrant till about 4 o'clock, when Dighton denied clearing the ship, because after his clearing they not presently departing might in the night-time take in goods and passengers, and so depart without warrant for them, the like having been attempted and acted. The next morning Dighton went aboard and cleared the ship at 8 o'clock, which might then have departed, but they wanted provisions for the voyage [to Calais], which afterwards were carried aboard, therefore it is unlikely they would have departed over-night. The 6*d.* for every passenger, which he took from them, was the accustomed fee, and detaining the captain's warrant and giving him a copy was the usual course. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ p.]

109. Articles objected in the High Commission against Henry Tailer, of Hardingham, Norfolk, and Susan, his wife. They are charged with being persons very factiously and schismatically disposed, and with having uttered railing and slanderous speeches against certain bishops and clergymen. Francis Briggs, a minister of the diocese of Norwich, having been degraded by the Bishop of Norwich; Henry Tailer said it was an absurd, ridiculous, and foolish thing, and that the bishop used to Briggs many scurvy idle words. On another occasion, some one reproving Henry Tailer for speaking in a derogatory manner of the Archbishop of Canterbury and Bishop of Norwich, he said, "Why, what good did you ever hear of them, or know by them? It is a pity they were made bishops." Again, that Henry Tailer endeavoured to insinuate into the minds of divers persons that the Archbishop of Canterbury is a favourer of popery; and speaking of his speech on the condemnation of Bastwick, Burton, and Prynne, he said that it was a most ridiculous thing, and that his Grace was but meanly thought of for it, and that his Grace maintained therein that there ought to be done real adoration, worship, and reverence to the very communion table, and that upon this opinion of his Grace the papists bought up the speech, so that they grew scarce and dear. Of the Antidotum Lineolnienſe by Dr. Heylin, Henry Tailer said it was full of rage, choler, and malice, and a simple piece, and that the doctor was an unworthy fellow. Again, Henry Tailer said that when clergymen grew bishops they all grew lazy. Also Susan Tailer, being at Mr. Thwayte's at Hardingham, jeered at the service of the Church of England, and said she wished she was at London, and that it were as good be at mass as at such service. Also, that she had denied the right of the clergy to tithes, and affirmed that it was utterly unlawful for priests to have wives. [$2\frac{1}{4}$ pp.]

As far back as the year 1800, a Committee of the House of Commons recommended that Indexes and Calendars should be made to the Public Records, and thirty-six years afterwards another Committee of the House of Commons reiterated that recommendation in more forcible words; but it was not until the incorporation of the State Paper Office with the Public Record Office that the present Master of the Rolls found himself in a position to take the necessary steps for carrying out the wishes of the House of Commons.

On 7 December 1855, he stated to the Lords of the Treasury that although “the Records, State Papers, and Documents in his charge constitute the most complete and perfect series of their kind in the civilized world,” and although “they are of the greatest value in a historical and constitutional point of view, yet they are comparatively useless to the public, from the want of proper Calendars and Indexes.”

Acting upon the recommendation contained in the Reports of the House of Commons above referred to, he suggested to the Lords of the Treasury that to effect the object he had in view it would be necessary for him to employ a few persons fully qualified to perform the work which he contemplated.

Their Lordships assented to the necessity of having Calendars prepared and printed, and they further empowered the Master of the Rolls to take such steps as might be necessary for this purpose.

The following Works have been already published under the direction of the Master of the Rolls :—

CALENDARIUM GENEALOGICUM ; for the Reigns of Henry III. and Edward I. Edited by CHARLES ROBERTS, Esq., Secretary of the Public Record Office. 2 Vols. 1865.

This is a work of great value for elucidating the early history of our nobility and landed gentry.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, DOMESTIC SERIES, OF THE REIGNS OF EDWARD VI., MARY, and ELIZABETH, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by ROBERT LEMON, Esq., F.S.A. 1856-1865.

Vol. I.—1547-1580. | Vol. II.—1581-1590.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, DOMESTIC SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF ELIZABETH (continued), preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by MARY ANNE EVERETT GREEN. 1867.

The first, second, and third volumes are published, extending from 1547 to 1594.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, DOMESTIC SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF JAMES I., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by MARY ANNE EVERETT GREEN. 1857-1859.

Vol. I.—1603-1610.

Vol. III.—1619-1623.

Vol. II.—1611-1618.

Vol. IV.—1623-1625, with Addenda.

Mrs. Everett Green has completed a Calendar of the Domestic State Papers of the reign of James I. in four volumes. The mass of historical matter thus rendered accessible to investigation is large and important. It throws new light on the Gunpowder-plot; the rise and fall of Somerset; the particulars connected with the Overbury murder; the disgrace of Sir Edward Coke; and other matters connected with the reign.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, DOMESTIC SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF CHARLES I., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by JOHN BRUCE, Esq., F.S.A. 1858-1868.

Vol. I.—1625-1626.

Vol. VII.—1634-1635.

Vol. IX.—1635-1636.

Vol. IV.—1629-1631.

Vol. X.—1636-1637.

Vol. V.—1631-1633.

Vol. XI.—1637.

Vol. VI.—1633-1634.

This Calendar is in continuation of that of the Domestic State Papers of the reign of James I., and comprises the first thirteen years of the reign of Charles I., but is in active progress towards completion, and will extend to the Restoration of Charles II. It presents notices of a large number of original documents of great value to all inquirers into the history of the period to which it relates. Many of these documents have been hitherto unknown to men of letters.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, DOMESTIC SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF CHARLES II., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by MARY ANNE EVERETT GREEN. 1860-1866.

Two volumes, of Irish State Papers, between 1509 and 1585, have been published under the editorship of Mr. Hans Claude Hamilton ; and another volume is in progress.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, COLONIAL SERIES, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, and elsewhere. Edited by W. NOEL SAINSBURY, Esq. 1860-1862.

Vol. I.—America and West Indies, 1574-1660.

Vol. II.—East Indies, China, and Japan, 1513-1616.

The first volume of a Calendar of Colonial Papers relating to America and the West Indies, from 1574 to 1660, was published in 1860. The second volume, relating to the East Indies, China, and Japan, from 1513 to 1616, appeared in 1862. The above portion includes an analysis of all Papers from the three great archives of the Public Record Office, the India Office, and the British Museum. The third volume is in the press. The regular series of the East India Papers in the Public Record Office are calendared to the year 1623 ; those relating to the same subject in the Domestic Correspondence to 1625 ; and in the Foreign Correspondence to 1620 ; the Court Minutes of the East India Company to 1621, and the Original Correspondence in the India Office to 1620. Many undated Papers have been dated and arranged.

CALENDAR OF LETTERS AND PAPERS, FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC, OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, the British Museum, &c. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1862-1867.

Vol. I.—1509-1514.

Vol. II. (in Two Parts)—1515-1518.

Vol. III. (in Two Parts)—1519-1523.

These volumes contain summaries of all State Papers and correspondence relating to the reign of Henry VIII., in the Public Record Office, of those formerly in the State Paper Office, in the British Museum, the Libraries of Oxford and Cambridge, and other public Libraries ; and of all letters that have appeared in print in the works of Burnet, Strype, and others. In short, whatever authentic original material exists in England relative to the religious, political, parliamentary, or social history of the country during the reign of Henry VIII., whether despatches of ambassadors, or proceedings of the army, navy, treasury, or ordnance, or records of Parliament, appointments of officers, grants from the Crown, &c., will be found calendared in these volumes.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, FOREIGN SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD VI., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, and Correspondant du Comité Impérial des Travaux Historiques et des Sociétés Savantes de France. 1861.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, FOREIGN SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF MARY, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, and Correspondant du Comité Impérial des Travaux Historiques et des Sociétés Savantes de France. 1861.

The two preceding volumes exhibit the negotiations of the English ambassadors with the courts of the Emperor Charles V. of Germany, of Henry II. of France, and of Philip II. of Spain. The affairs of several of the minor continental states here find various incidental illustrations of much interest.

A valuable series of Papers descriptive of the circumstances which attended the loss of Calais merits a special notice; while the progress of the wars in the north of France, into which England was dragged by her union with Spain, is narrated at some length. The domestic affairs of England are of course passed over in these volumes, which treat only of its relations with foreign powers.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, FOREIGN SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF ELIZABETH, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, &c. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham. 1863-1867.

Vol. I.—1558-1559.

Vol. II.—1559-1560.

Vol. III.—1560-1561.

Vol. IV.—1561-1562.

Vol. V.—1562.

These five volumes contain a descriptive catalogue of the foreign correspondence of Queen Elizabeth, from her accession in 1558, to 1562, of which the originals, drafts, or contemporary copies, are deposited in the Public Record Office. These documents are of the greatest value as exhibiting the position of England at one of the most interesting periods of history, in regard to its relations with France, Scotland, Spain, and Germany. They are of especial importance as illustrating not only the external but also the domestic affairs of France during the period which immediately preceded the outbreak of the first great war of religion under the Prince of Condé and the Duke of Guise.

CALENDAR OF THE CAREW PAPERS, preserved in Lambeth Library. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London; and WILLIAM BULLEN, Esq. 1867-1868.

Vol. I.—1515-1574.

Vol. II.—1575-1588.

The Carew Papers relating to Ireland deposited in the Lambeth Library are not only unique in themselves, but are of great importance. Two volumes of the Calendar of these valuable Papers have already been published, extending from 1515 to 1588, which cannot fail to be welcome to all students of Irish history. Another volume is in the press.

CALENDAR OF LETTERS, DESPATCHES, AND STATE PAPERS, relating to the Negotiations between England and Spain, preserved in the Archives at Simancas, and elsewhere. Edited by G. A. BERGENROTH. 1862-1867.

Vol. I.—Hen. VII.—1485-1509.

Vol. II.—Hen. VIII.—1509-1525.

Mr. Bergenroth is engaged in compiling a Calendar of the Papers relating to England preserved in the archives of Simancas in Spain, and the corresponding portion removed from Simancas to Paris. It has been deemed essential to the completion of his work that Mr. Bergenroth should visit Madrid, and examine the Papers there, bearing on the reign of Henry VIII. The first volume contains the Spanish Papers of the reign of Henry VII., and the second volume the Papers of the first portion of the reign of Henry VIII.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS AND MANUSCRIPTS, relating to ENGLISH AFFAIRS, preserved in the Archives of Venice, &c. Edited by RAWDON BROWN, Esq. 1864-1867.

Vol. I.—1202-1509.

Vol. II.—1509-1519.

Of the Papers in the Venetian archives, Mr. Rawdon Brown has already published two volumes of his Calendar, extending from 1202 to 1519, and has made considerable progress in the third volume. Mr. Brown's researches have brought to light a number of important documents relating to the various periods of English history, and his contributions to our historical literature are of the most interesting and important character.

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

[ROYAL 8vo., half-bound. Price 10s. each Volume or Part.]

On 25 July 1822, the House of Commons presented an address to the Crown, stating that the editions of the works of our ancient historians were inconvenient and defective; that many of their writings still remained in manuscript, and, in some cases, in a single copy only. They added, “that an “ uniform and convenient edition of the whole, published under His Majesty’s “ royal sanction, would be an undertaking honourable to His Majesty’s reign, “ and conducive to the advancement of historical and constitutional know“ ledge; that the House therefore humbly besought His Majesty, that He “ would be graciously pleased to give such directions as His Majesty, in His “ wisdom, might think fit, for the publication of a complete edition of the “ ancient historians of this realm, and assured His Majesty that whatever “ expense might be necessary for this purpose would be made good.”

The Master of the Rolls, being very desirous that effect should be given to the resolution of the House of Commons, submitted to Her Majesty’s Treasury in 1857 the plan above referred to for the publication of the ancient chronicles and memorials of the United Kingdom, and it was adopted accordingly. In selecting these works, it was considered right, in the first instance, to give preference to those of which the manuscripts were unique, or the materials of which would help to fill up blanks in English history for which no satisfactory and authentic information hitherto existed in any accessible form. One great object the Master of the Rolls had in view was to form a corpus historicum within reasonable limits, and which should be as complete as possible. In a subject of so vast a range, it was important that the historical student should be able to select such volumes as conformed with his own peculiar tastes and studies, and not be put to the expense of purchasing the whole collection; an inconvenience inseparable from any other plan than that which has been in this instance adopted.

Of the Chronicles and Memorials, the following volumes have been published. They embrace the period from the earliest time of British history down to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

1. THE CHRONICLE OF ENGLAND, by JOHN CAPGRAVE. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

John Capgrave was prior of Lynn, in Norfolk, and provincial of the order of the Friars Hermits of England shortly before the year 1464. His Chronicle extends from the creation of the world to the year 1417. As a record of the language spoken in Norfolk (for it is written in English), it is of considerable value.

2. CHRONICON MONASTERII DE ABINGDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1858.

This Chronicle traces the history of the great Benedictine monastery of Abingdon in Berkshire, from its foundation by King Ina of Wessex, to the reign of Richard I., shortly after which period the present narrative was drawn up by an inmate of the establishment. The author had access to the title-deeds of the house, and incorporates into his history various charters of the Saxon kings, which are of great importance as illustrating not only the history of the locality but that of the kingdom at large. The work is now printed for the first time.

3. LIVES OF EDWARD THE CONFESSOR. I.—La Estoire de Seint Aedward le Rei. II.—Vita Beati Edvardi Regis et Confessoris. III.—Vita Æduuardi Regis qui apud Westmonasterium requiescit. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1858.

The first is a poem in Norman French, containing 4,686 lines. It is addressed to Alianor, Queen of Henry III., and was probably written in the year 1245, on the occasion of the restoration of the church of Westminster. Nothing is known of the author.

The second, also by an anonymous author, was apparently written for Queen Edith, between the years 1066 and 1074, during the pressure of the suffering brought on the Saxons by the Norman conquest. It notices many facts not found in other writers, and some which differ considerably from the usual accounts.

The third is an anonymous poem, containing 536 lines, written between the years 1440 and 1450, by command of Henry VI., to whom it is dedicated. Though it does not throw any new light on the reign of Edward the Confessor, yet it is valuable as a specimen of the Latin poetry of the time.

4. MONUMENTA FRANCISCANA ; scilicet, I.—Thomas de Eccleston de Adventu Fratrum Minorum in Angliam. II.—Adæ de Marisco Epistolæ. III.—Registrum Fratrum Minorum Londoniæ. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1858.

This volume contains the original materials for the history of the settlement of the order of Saint Francis in England, the letters of Adam de Marisco, and other papers connected with the foundation and diffusion of this great body. It has been the aim of the editor to collect whatever historical materials could be found in this country, in the British Museum, or elsewhere, towards illustrating a period of the national history for which only scanty materials exist. None of these works have been before printed.

5. FASCICULI ZIZANIORUM MAGISTRI JOHANNIS WYCLIF CUM TRITICO. Ascribed to THOMAS NETTER, of WALDEN, Provincial of the Carmelite Order in England, and Confessor to King Henry the Fifth. Edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, M.A., Tutor and late Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. 1858.

This work derives its principal value from the fact that it is the only contemporaneous account of the rise of the Lollards. At the time when it was written, the disputes of the schoolmen had been extended to the field of theology, and they appear both in the writings of Wycliff and in those of his adversaries.

Wycliff's little bundles of tares are not less metaphysical than theological, and the conflict between Nominalists and Realists rages side by side with the conflict between the different interpreters of Scripture. The "Fasciculi Zizaniorum" gives a good idea of the controversies which were carried on at the end of the 14th and the beginning of the 15th centuries.

6. THE BUIK OF THE CRONICLIS OF SCOTLAND ; or, A Metrical Version of the History of Hector Boece ; by WILLIAM STEWART. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. 1858.

This is a metrical translation of a Latin Prose Chronicle, and was written in the first half of the 16th century. The narrative begins with the earliest legends, and ends with the death of James I. of Scotland, and the "evil ending of the traitors that slew him." Strict accuracy of statement is not to be looked for in such a work as this ; but the stories of the colonization of Spain, Ireland, and Scotland are interesting if not true ; and the chronicle is valuable as a reflection of the manners, sentiments, and character of the age in which it was composed.

The peculiarities of the Scottish dialect are well illustrated in this metrical version of Boece's work, and the student of language will here find ample materials for comparison with the English dialects of the same period, and with modern lowland Scotch.

7. JOHANNIS CAPGRAVE LIBER DE ILLUSTRIBUS HENRICIS. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

This work is dedicated to Henry VI. of England, who appears to have been, in the author's estimation, the greatest of all the Henries. It is divided into three distinct parts, each having its own separate dedication. The first part relates only to the history of the Empire, and extends from the election of Henry I., the Fowler, to the end of the reign of the Emperor Henry VI. The second part is devoted to English history, and extends from the accession of Henry I. in the year 1100, to the year 1446 which was the twenty-fourth year of the reign of King Henry VI. The third part contains the lives of illustrious men who have borne the name of Henry in various parts of the world.

Capgrave was born in 1393, in the reign of Richard II., and lived during the Wars of the Roses, for the history of which period his work is of some value.

8. HISTORIA MONASTERII S. AUGUSTINI CANTUARIENSIS, by THOMAS OF ELMHAM, formerly Monk and Treasurer of that Foundation. Edited by CHARLES HARDWICK, M.A., Fellow of St. Catharine's Hall, and Christian Advocate in the University of Cambridge. 1858.

This history extends from the arrival of St. Augustine in Kent until 1191. Prefixed is a chronology as far as 1418, which shows in outline what was to have been the character of the work when completed. The only copy known is in the possession of the Master and Fellows of Trinity College, Cambridge. The author's name does not occur ; but the internal evidence in the Chronicle shows that he was a monk of St. Augustine's, Canterbury, and treasurer of that foundation. He was connected with Norfolk, and most probably with Elmham, whence he derived his name.

9. EULOGIUM (HISTORIARUM SIVE TEMPORIS) : Chronicon ab Orbe condito usque ad Annum Domini 1366 ; a Monacho quodam Malmesbiriensi exaratum. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by F. S. HAYDON, Esq., B.A. 1858-1863.

This is a Latin Chronicle extending from the Creation to the latter part of the reign of Edward III., and written by a monk of the Abbey of Malmesbury, in Wiltshire, about the year 1367. A continuation, carrying the history of England down to the year 1413, was added in the former half of the fifteenth century by an author whose name is not at present known. The original Chronicle is divided into five books. It contains a history of the world generally, but more especially of England down to the year 1366. The continuation extends the history down to the coronation of Henry V. The Eulogium itself is chiefly valuable as containing a history, by a contemporary, of the period between 1356 and 1366. The notices of events appear to have been written very soon after their occurrence. Among other interesting matter, the Chronicle contains a diary of the Poitiers campaign, evidently furnished by some person who accompanied the army of the Black Prince. The continuation of the Chronicle is also the work of a contemporary, and gives a very interesting account of the reigns of Richard II. and Henry IV. It is believed to be the earliest authority for the statement that the latter monarch died in the Jerusalem Chamber at Westminster.

10. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE SEVENTH: Bernardi Andreae Tholosatis Vita Regis Henrici Septimi; necnon alia quædam ad eundem Regem spectantia. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1858.

The contents of these volumes are—(1) a life of Henry VII., by his poet laureate and historiographer, Bernard André, of Toulouse, with some compositions in verse, of which he is supposed to have been the author; (2) the journals of Roger Machado during certain embassies on which he was sent by Henry VII. to Spain and Brittany, the first of which had reference to the marriage of the King's son, Arthur, with Catharine of Arragon; (3) two curious reports by envoys sent to Spain in the year 1505 touching the succession to the Crown of Castile, and a project of marriage between Henry VII. and the Queen of Naples; and (4) an account of Philip of Castile's reception in England in 1506. Besides these, other documents of interest in connexion with the period are given in an appendix.

11. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE FIFTH. I.—Vita Henrici Quinti, Roberto Redmanno auctore. II.—Versus Rhythmici in laudem Regis Henrici Quinti. III.—Elmhami Liber Metricus de Henrico V. Edited by CHARLES A. COLE, Esq. 1858.

This volume contains three treatises which more or less illustrate the history of the reign of Henry V., viz.: A Life by Robert Redman; a Metrical Chronicle by Thomas Elmham, prior of Lenton, a contemporary author; Versus Rhythmici, written apparently by a monk of Westminster Abbey, who was also a contemporary of Henry V. These works are reprinted for the first time in the present volume.

12. MUNIMENTA GILDHALLÆ LONDONIENSIS; Liber Albus, Liber Custumarum, et Liber Horn, in archivis Gildhallæ asservati. Vol. I., Liber Albus. Vol. II. (in Two Parts), Liber Custumarum. Vol. III., Translation of the Anglo-Norman Passages in Liber Albus, Glossaries, Appendices, and Index. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1859–1862.

The manuscript of the Liber Albus, compiled by John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the City of London in the year 1419, a large folio volume, is preserved in the Record Room of the City of London. This work gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of that City in the twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, and early part of the fifteenth centuries.

The Liber Custumarum was compiled probably by various hands in the early part of the fourteenth century during the reign of Edward II. The manuscript, a folio volume, is also preserved in the record room of the City of London, though some portion of it, in its original state, borrowed from the City in the reign of Queen Elizabeth and never returned, now forms part of the Cottonian MS. Claudius D. II. in the British Museum. This work gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of the City of London in the twelfth, thirteenth, and early part of the fourteenth centuries.

13. CHRONICA JOHANNIS DE OXENEDES. Edited by Sir HENRY ELLIS, K.H. 1859.

Although this Chronicle tells of the arrival of Hengist and Horsa in England in the year 449, yet it substantially begins with the reign of King Alfred, and comes down to the year 1292, where it ends abruptly. The history is particularly valuable for its notices of events in the eastern portions of the kingdom, which are not to be elsewhere obtained, and some curious facts are mentioned relative to the floods in that part of England, which are confirmed in the Friesland Chronicle of Anthony Heinrich, pastor of the Island of Mohr.

14. A COLLECTION OF POLITICAL POEMS AND SONGS RELATING TO ENGLISH HISTORY, FROM THE ACCESSION OF EDWARD III. TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1859-1861.

These poems are perhaps the most interesting of all the historical writings of the period, though they cannot be relied on for accuracy of statement. They are very various in character; some of them are upon religious subjects, some may be called satires, and some give no more than a court scandal; but as a whole they present a very fair picture of society, and of the relations of the different classes to one another.

The period comprised is in itself very interesting, and brings us, through the decline of the feudal system, to what may be considered the beginning of our modern history. The songs in old English are of considerable interest to the philologist.

15. The "OPUS TERTIUM," "OPUS MINUS," &c., of ROGER BACON. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1859.

This is the celebrated treatise—which, up to this time, had never been printed—so frequently referred to by the great philosopher in his works. It contains the fullest details we possess of the life and labours of Roger Bacon. The volume also contains a fragment by the same author, supposed to be unique, the "Compendium Studii Theologie."

16. BARTHOLOMÆI DE COTTON, MONACHI NORWICENSIS, HISTORIA ANGLICANA. 449-1298. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1859.

The author, a monk of Norwich, has here given us a Chronicle of England from the arrival of the Saxons in 449 to the year 1298, in or about which year it appears that he died. The latter portion of this history (the whole of the reign of Edward I. more especially) is of great value, as the writer was contemporary with the events which he records. An Appendix contains several illustrative documents connected with the previous narrative.

17. BRUT Y TYWYSOGION; or, The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales. Edited by the Rev. J. WILLIAMS AB ITHEL. 1860.

This work, which is also known as "The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales," has been attributed to Caradoc of Llancarvan, who flourished about the middle of the twelfth century. It is written in the ancient Welsh language, and begins with the abdication and death of Caedwala at Rome, in the year 681, and continues the history down to the subjugation of Wales by Edward I., about the year 1282.

18. A COLLECTION OF ROYAL AND HISTORICAL LETTERS DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY IV. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1860.

This volume, like all the others in the series containing a miscellaneous selection of letters, is valuable on account of the light it throws upon biographical history, and the familiar view it presents of characters, manners, and events of the time. The period (1399 to 1413) required much elucidation; and the volume will materially contribute to that desirable end.

19. THE REPRESSOR OF OVER MUCH BLAMING OF THE CLERGY. By REGINALD PECOCK, sometime Bishop of Chichester. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1860.

The "Repressor" may be considered the earliest piece of good theological disquisition of which our English prose literature boast. The author was born about the end of the fourteenth century, was consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in the year 1444, and translated to the see of Chichester in 1450. While Bishop of St. Asaph, he zealously defended his brother prelates from the attacks of those who censured the bishops for their neglect of duty. He maintained that it was no part of a bishop's functions to appear in the pulpit, and that his time might be more profitably spent, and his dignity better maintained, in the performance of works of a higher character. Among those who thought differently were the Lollards, and it is against their general doctrines that the "Repressor" is directed. Pecoek took up a position midway between that of the Roman Church and that of the modern Anglican Church; but his work is interesting chiefly because it gives a full account of the views of the Lollards and of the arguments by which they were supported, and because it assists us to ascertain the state of feeling which ultimately led to the Reformation. Apart from religious matters, the light thrown upon contemporaneous history is very small, but the "Repressor" has very great value for the philologist, as it tells us what were the characteristics of the language in use among the cultivated Englishmen of the fifteenth century. Pecoek, though an opponent of the Lollards, showed a certain spirit of toleration, for which he received, towards the end of his life, the usual mediæval reward—persecution.

20. ANNALES CAMBRIÆ. Edited by the Rev. J. WILLIAMS AB ITHEL. 1860.

These annals, which are in Latin, commence in the year 447, and come down to the year 1288. The earlier portion appears to be taken from an Irish Chronicle, which was also used by Tigernach, and by the compiler of the Annals of Ulster. During its first century it contains scarcely anything relating to Britain, the earliest direct concurrence with English history is relative to the mission of Augustine. Its notices throughout though brief, are valuable. The annals were probably written at St. David's, by Blegewryd, Archdeacon of Llandaff, the most learned man in his day in all Cymru.

21. THE WORKS OF GIRALDUS CAMBRENSIS. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vols. V. and VI. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1861–1868.

The first three volumes contain the historical works of Gerald du Barry, who lived in the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., and John, and attempted to re-establish the independence of Wales by restoring the see of St. Davids to its ancient primacy. His works are of a very miscellaneous nature, both in prose and verse, and are remarkable chiefly for the racy and original anecdotes which they contain relating to contemporaries. He is the only Welsh writer of any importance who has contributed so much to the mediæval literature of this country, or assumed, in consequence of his nationality, so free and independent a tone. His frequent travels in Italy, in France, in Ireland, and in Wales, gave him opportunities for observation which did not generally fall to the lot of mediæval writers in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, and of these observations Giraldus has made due use.

The Topographia Hibernica (in Vol. V.) is the result of Giraldus' two visits to Ireland. The first in the year 1183, the second in 1185–6, when he accompanied Prince John into that country. Curious as this treatise is, Mr. Dimock is of opinion that it ought not to be accepted as sober truthful history, for Giraldus himself states that truth was not his main object, and that he compiled the work for the purpose of sounding the praises of Henry the Second. Elsewhere, however, he declares that he had stated nothing in the Topographia of the truth of which he was not well assured, either by his own eyesight or by the testimony, with all diligence elicited, of the most trustworthy and authentic men in the country ; that though he did not put just the same full faith in their reports as in what he had himself seen, yet, as they only related what they had themselves seen, he could not but believe such credible witnesses. A very interesting portion of this treatise is devoted to the animals of Ireland. It shows that he was a very accurate and acute observer, and his descriptions are given in a way that a scientific naturalist of the present day could hardly improve upon.

The Expugnatio Hibernica was written about the year 1188, and may be regarded rather as a great epic than a sober relation of facts occurring in his own days. No one can peruse it without coming to the conclusion that it is rather a poetical fiction than a prosaic truthful history.

Vol. VI. contains the Itinerarium Kambriæ et Descriptio Kambriæ.

22. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE WARS OF THE ENGLISH IN FRANCE DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY THE SIXTH, KING OF ENGLAND. Vol. I., and Vol. II. (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1861-1864.

The letters and papers contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from originals or contemporary copies extant in the Bibliothèque Impériale, and the Depôt des Archives, in Paris. They illustrate the line of policy adopted by John Duke of Bedford and his successors during their government of Normandy, and such other provinces of France as had been acquired by Henry V. We may here trace, step by step, the gradual declension of the English power, until we are prepared to read of its final overthrow.

23. THE ANGLO-SAXON CHRONICLE, ACCORDING TO THE SEVERAL ORIGINAL AUTHORITIES. Vol. I., Original Texts. Vol. II., Translation. Edited and translated by BENJAMIN THORPE, Esq., Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Munich, and of the Society of Netherlandish Literature at Leyden. 1861.

This Chronicle, extending from the earliest history of Britain to the year 1154, is justly the boast of England ; for no other nation can produce any history, written in its own vernacular, at all approaching it, either in antiquity, truthfulness, or extent, the historical books of the Bible alone excepted. There are at present six independent manuscripts of the Saxon Chronicle, ending in different years, and written in different parts of the country. In the present edition, the text of each manuscript is printed in columns on the same page, so that the student may see at a glance the various changes which occur in orthography, whether arising from locality or age.

24. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGNS OF RICHARD III. AND HENRY VII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1861-1863.

The Papers are derived from MSS. in the Public Record Office, the British Museum, and other repositories. The period to which they refer is unusually destitute of chronicles and other sources of historical information, so that the light obtained from these documents is of special importance. The principal contents of the volumes are some diplomatic Papers of Richard III. ; correspondence between Henry VII. and Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain ; documents relating to Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk ; and a portion of the correspondence of James IV. of Scotland.

25. LETTERS OF BISHOP GROSSETESTE, illustrative of the Social Condition of his Time. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1861.

The Letters of Robert Grosseteste (131 in number) are here collected from various sources, and arranged in chronological order. They range in date from about 1210 to 1253, and relate to various matters connected not only with the political history of England during the reign of Henry III., but with its ecclesiastical condition. They refer especially to the diocese of Lincoln, of which Grosseteste was bishop. These Letters have not hitherto been collected, and the greater portion of them are now printed for the first time.

26. DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF MANUSCRIPTS RELATING TO THE HISTORY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND. Vol. I. (in Two Parts) ; Anterior to the Norman Invasion. Vol. II. ; 1066-1200. By THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, Esq., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1862-1865.

The object of this work is to publish notices of all known sources of British history, both printed and unprinted, in one continued sequence. The materials, when historical (as distinguished from biographical), are arranged under the year in which the latest event is recorded in the chronicle or history, and not under the period in which its author, real or supposed, flourished. Biographies are enumerated under the year in which the person commemorated died, and not under the year in which the life was written. This arrangement has two advantages : the materials for any given period may be seen at a glance ; and if the reader knows the time when an author wrote, and the number of years that had elapsed between the date of the events and the time the writer flourished, he will generally be enabled to form a fair estimate of the comparative value of the narrative itself. A brief analysis of each work has been added when deserving it, in which the original portions are distinguished from those which are mere compilations. When possible, the sources are indicated from which such compilations have been derived. A biographical sketch of the author of each piece has been added, and a brief notice has also been given of such British authors as have written on historical subjects.

27. ROYAL AND OTHER HISTORICAL LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGN OF HENRY III. From the Originals in the Public Record Office. Vol. I., 1216-1235. Vol. II., 1236-1272. Selected and edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, D.D., Regius Professor in Ecclesiastical History, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. 1862-1866.

The letters contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from the ancient correspondence formerly preserved in the Tower of London, and now deposited in the Public Record Office. They illustrate the political history of England during the growth of its liberties, and throw considerable light upon the personal history of Simon de Montfort. The affairs of France form the subject of many of these letters, more especially in regard to the province of Gascony. The entire collection consists of nearly 700 documents, the greater portion of which is now printed for the first time.

28. CHRONICA MONASTERII S. ALBANI. — 1. THOMÆ WALSINGHAM HISTORIA ANGLICANA ; Vol. I., 1272-1381 : Vol. II., 1381-1422. 2. WILLELMI RISHANGER CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1307. 3. JOHANNIS DE TROKELowe ET HENRICI DE BLANEFORDE CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1296 ; 1307-1324 ; 1392-1406. 4. GESTA ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, A THOMA WALSINGHAM, REGNANTE RICARDO SECUNDO, EJUSDEM ECCLESIAE PRÆCENTORE, COMPILATA ; Vol. I., 793-1290 : Vol. II., 1290-1349. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge ; and of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1867.

In the first two volumes is a history of England, from the death of Henry III. to the death of Henry V., written by Thomas Walsingham, precentor of St. Albans and prior of the Cell of Wymundham, belonging to that abbey. Walsingham's work is printed from MS. VII. in the Arundel Collection in the College of Arms, London, a manuscript of the fifteenth century, collated with MS. 13 E. IX. in the King's Library, in the British Museum, and MS. VII. in the Parker Collection of Manuscripts at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

In the third volume is a Chronicle of English History, from 1259 to 1306, attributed to William Rishanger, monk of Saint Albans, who lived in the reign of Edward I., printed from the Cottonian Manuscript, Faustina B. IX. (of the fourteenth century) in the British Museum, collated with MS. 14 C. VII. (fols. 219-231) in the King's Library, British Museum, and the Cottonian Manuscript Claudius E. III., fols. 306-331 : Also an account of transactions attending the award of the kingdom of Scotland to John Balliol by King Edward I., 1291-1292, from MS. Cotton. Claudius, D. VI., attributed to William Rishanger above mentioned, but on no sufficient ground: A short Chronicle of English History, from 1292 to 1300, by an unknown hand, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: A short Chronicle from 1297 to 1307, Willelmi Rishanger Gesta Edwardi Primi Regis Angliæ, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library, and MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., with an addition of Annales Regum Angliæ, probably by the same hand: A fragment of a Chronicle of English History, 1299, 1300, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: A fragment of a Chronicle of English History, 1295 to 1300, from MS. Claudius D. VI.: and a fragment of a Chronicle of English History, 1285 to 1307, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library.

In the fourth volume is a Chronicle of English History, by an anonymous writer, 1259 to 1296, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: Also Annals of King Edward II., 1307 to 1323, by John de Trokelowe, a monk of St. Albans, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: A continuation of Trokelowe's Annals, 1323, 1324, by Henrius de Blanford, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: Also a full Chronicle of English History, by an anonymous writer of St. Albans, 1392 to 1406, from MS. VII. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge: and an account of the past benefactors of St. Albans, written in the early part of the fifteenth century, from MS. VI. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

In the fifth volume begins a history of the abbots of St. Albans, from 793 to the close of the fourteenth century, compiled by Thomas Walsingham, præcentor of St. Albans, from MS. Cotton. Claudius E. IV., in the British Museum. This is continued in the sixth volume.

29. CHRONICON ABBATIE EVESHAMENSIS, AUCTORIBUS DOMINICO PRIORE EVESHAMIE ET THOMA DE MARLEBERGE ABBATE, A FUNDATIONE AD ANNUM 1213, UNA CUM CONTINUATIONE AD ANNUM 1418. Edited by the Rev. W. D. MACRAY, M.A., Bodleian Library, Oxford. 1863.

The Chronicle of Evesham illustrates the history of that important monastery from its foundation by Egwin, about 690, to the year 1418. Its chief feature is an autobiography, which makes us acquainted with the inner daily life of a great abbey, such as but rarely has been recorded. Interspersed are many notices of general, personal, and local history which will be read with much interest. This work exists in a single MS., and is now for the first time printed.

30. RICARDI DE CIRENCESTRIA SPECULUM HISTORIALE DE GESTIS REGUM ANGLIÆ. Vol. I., 447-871. Edited by JOHN E. B. MAYOR, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1863.

Of the compiler of this work, which is in four parts, very little is known. In the prologue he calls himself Richard, a monk of Westminster, and at the end of the first part, Richard of Cirencester, a monk of St. Peter's, Westminster. One volume only, containing the first three books, has at present been published, the remainder is in the press, and will shortly appear. There is a continuation of the work down to the year 1348, which in due time will also be printed.

31. YEAR BOOKS OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD THE FIRST. Years 20-21, 30-31, and 32-33. Edited and translated by ALFRED JOHN HORWOOD, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1866.

The volumes known as the "Year Books" contain reports in Norman-French of cases argued and decided in the Courts of Common Law. They may be considered to a great extent as the "lex non scripta" of England, and have been held in the highest veneration by the ancient sages of the law, and were received by them as the repositories of the first recorded judgments and dicta of the great legal luminaries of past ages. They are also worthy of the attention of the general reader on account of the historical information and the notices of public and private persons which they contain, as well as the light which they throw on ancient manners and customs.

32. NARRATIVES OF THE EXPULSION OF THE ENGLISH FROM NORMANDY, 1449-1450.—Robertus Blondelli de Reductione Normanniæ: Le Recouvrement de Normandie, par Berry, Hérault du Roy: Conférences between the Ambassadors of France and England. Edited, from MSS. in the Imperial Library at Paris, by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham. 1863.

This volume contains the narrative of an eye-witness who details with considerable power and minuteness the circumstances which attended the final expulsion of the English from Normandy in the year 1450. The history commences with the infringement of the truce by the capture of Fougères, and ends with the battle of Formigny and the embarkation of the Duke of Somerset. The whole period embraced is less than two years.

33. HISTORIA ET CARTULARIUM MONASTERII S. PETRI GLOUCESTRÆ. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. H. HART, Esq., F.S.A., Membre correspondant de la Société des Antiquaires de Normandie. 1863-1867.

This work consists of two parts, the History and the Cartulary of the Monastery of St. Peter, Gloucester.

The history furnishes an account of the monastery from its foundation, in the year 681, to the early part of the reign of Richard II., together with a calendar of donations and benefactions. It treats principally of the affairs of the monastery, but occasionally matters of general history are introduced. Its authorship has generally been assigned to Walter Froucester, the twentieth abbot, but without any foundation.

34. ALEXANDRI NECKAM DE NATURIS RERUM LIBRI DUO ; with NECKAM'S POEM, DE LAUDIBUS DIVINÆ SAPIENTIÆ. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1863.

Neckam was a man who devoted himself to science, such as it was in the twelfth century.

In the "De Naturis Rerum" are to be found what may be called the rudiments of many sciences mixed up with much error and ignorance. Neckam was not thought infallible, even by his contemporaries, for Roger Bacon remarks of him, "this Alexander in many things wrote what was true and useful; but he neither can nor ought by just title to be reckoned among authorities."

Neckam, however, had sufficient independence of thought to differ from some of the schoolmen who in his time considered themselves the only judges of literature. He had his own views in morals, and in giving us a glimpse of them, as well as of his other opinions, he throws much light upon the manners, customs, and general tone of thought prevalent in the twelfth century.

The poem entitled "De Laudibus Divinæ Sapientiæ" appears to be a metrical paraphrase or abridgment of the "De Naturis Rerum." It is written in the elegiac metre; and though there are in it many lines which violate classical rules, it is, as a whole, above the ordinary standard of mediæval Latin.

35. LEECHDOMS, WORTCUNNING, AND STARCRAFT OF EARLY ENGLAND ; being a Collection of Documents illustrating the History of Science in this Country before the Norman Conquest. Vols. I., II., and III. Collected and edited by the Rev. T. OSWALD COCKAYNE, M.A., of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1864-1866.

This work illustrates not only the history of science, but the history of superstition. In addition to the information bearing directly upon the medical skill and medical faith of the times, there are many passages which incidentally throw light upon the general mode of life and ordinary diet. The volumes are interesting not only in their scientific, but also in their social aspect. The manuscripts from which they have been printed are valuable to the Anglo-Saxon scholar for the illustrations they afford of the Anglo-Saxon orthography.

36. ANNALES MONASTICI. Vol. I.:—Annales de Margan, 1066–1232; Annales de Theokesberia, 1066–1263; Annales de Burton, 1004–1263. Vol. II.:—Annales Monasterii de Wintonia, 519–1277; Annales Monasterii de Waverleia, 1–1291. Vol. III.:—Annales Prioratus de Dunstaplia, 1–1297; Annales Monasterii de Bermundeseia, 1042–1432. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, and Registry of the University, Cambridge. 1864–1866.

The present collection of Monastic Annals embraces all the more important chronicles compiled in the different religious houses in England during the thirteenth century. These distinct works are seven in number, and the extreme period which they embrace ranges from the year 1 to 1432, although they refer more especially to the reigns of John, Henry III., and Edward I. Some of these narratives have already appeared in print, but others are now printed for the first time.

37. MAGNA VITA S. HUGONIS EPISCOPI LINCOLNIENSIS. From Manuscripts in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and the Imperial Library, Paris. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1864.

This work contains a number of very curious and interesting incidents, and, being the work of a contemporary, is very valuable, not only as a truthful biography of a celebrated ecclesiastic, but as the work of a man who, from personal knowledge, gives notices of passing events, as well as of individuals who were then taking active part in public affairs.

The author, in all probability, was Adam Abbot of Evesham. He was domestic chaplain and private confessor of Bishop Hugh, and in these capacities he was admitted to the closest intimacy. Bishop Hugh was Prior of Witham for 11 years before he became Bishop of Lincoln. His consecration took place on the 21st September 1186; he died on the 16th of November 1200; and was canonized in 1220.

38. CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD THE FIRST. Vol. I.:—ITINERARIUM PEREGRINORUM ET GESTA REGIS RICARDI. Vol. II.:—EPISTOLÆ CANTUARIENSES; the Letters of the Prior and Convent of Christ Church, Canterbury; 1187 to 1199. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Vicar of Navestock, Essex, and Lambeth Librarian. 1864–1865.

The authorship of the Chronicle in Vol. I., hitherto ascribed to Geoffrey Vinesauf, is now more correctly ascribed to Richard, Canon of the Holy Trinity of London. The narrative extends from 1187 to 1199; but its chief interest consists in the minute and authentic narrative which it furnishes us of the exploits of Richard I., from his departure from England in December 1189 to his death in 1199. The author states in his prologue that he was an eye-witness of much that he records; and various incidental circumstances which occur in the course of the narrative confirm this assertion.

The Letters in Vol. II., written between 1187 and 1199, are of value as furnishing authentic materials for the history of the ecclesiastical condition of England during the reign of Richard I. They had their origin in a dispute which arose from the attempts of Baldwin and Hubert, archbishops of Canterbury, to found a college of secular canons, a project which gave great umbrage to the monks of Canterbury, who saw in it a design to supplant them in their function of metropolitan chapter. These letters are printed, for the first time, from a MS., belonging to the archiepiscopal library at Lambeth.

39. RECUEIL DES CRONIKES ET ANCHIENNES ISTORIES DE LA GRANT BRETAGNE A PRESENT NOMME ENGLETERRE, par JEHAN DE WAURIN. From Albina to 688. Edited by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864.

40. A COLLECTION OF THE CHRONICLES AND ANCIENT HISTORIES OF GREAT BRITAIN, NOW CALLED ENGLAND, by JOHN DE WAURIN. From Albina to 688. (Translation of the preceding.) Edited and translated by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864.

This curious chronicle extends from the fabulous period of history down to the return of Edward IV. to England in the year 1471, after the second deposition of Henry VI. The manuscript from which the text of this work is taken is preserved in the Imperial Library at Paris, and is believed to be the only complete and nearly contemporary copy now in existence. The work, as originally bound, was comprised in six volumes, since rebound in morocco in 12 volumes, folio maximo, vellum, and is illustrated with exquisite miniatures, vignettes, and initial letters. It was written towards the end of the fifteenth century, having been expressly executed for Louis de Bruges, Seigneur de la Gruthuyse and Earl of Winchester, from whose cabinet it passed into the library of Louis XII. at Blois.

This work has also been translated into English.

41. POLYCHRONICON RANULPHI HIGDEN, with Trevisa's Translation. Vol. I. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Senior Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1865.

This is one of the many mediæval chronicles which assume the character of a history of the world. It begins with the creation and is brought down to the author's own time, the reign of Edward III. Prefixed to the historical portion of the work is a chapter devoted to geography, in which is given a description of every known land.

To say that the Polychronicon was written in the fourteenth century is to say that it is not free from inaccuracies. It has, however, a value apart from its intrinsic merits. It enables us to form a very fair estimate of the knowledge of history and geography which well-informed readers of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries possessed, for it was then the standard work on general history.

The two English translations, which are printed with the original Latin, afford interesting illustrations of the gradual change of our language, for one was made in the fourteenth century, the other in the fifteenth. The differences between Trevisa's version and that of the unknown writer are often considerable.

42. LE LIVRE DE REIS DE BRITTANIE E LE LIVRE DE REIS DE ENGLETERE. Edited by JOHN GLOVER, M.A., Vicar of Brading, Isle of Wight, formerly Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1865.

These two treatises, though they cannot rank as independent narratives, are nevertheless valuable as careful abstracts of previous historians, especially "Le Livre de Reis de Engleterre." Some various readings are given which are interesting to the philologist as instances of semi-Saxonized French.

It is supposed that Peter of Ickham must have been the author, but no certain conclusion on that point has been arrived at.

43. CHRONICA MONASTERII DE MELSA, AB ANNO 1150 USQUE AD ANNUM 1406. Vols. I. and II. Edited by EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOND, Esq., Assistant Keeper of the Manuscripts, and Egerton Librarian, British Museum. 1866-1867.

The Abbey of Meaux was a Cistercian house, and the work of its abbot is both curious and valuable. It is a faithful and often minute record of the establishment of a religious community, of its progress in forming an ample revenue, of its struggles to maintain its acquisitions, and of its relations to the governing institutions of the country. In addition to the private affairs of the monastery, some light is thrown upon the public events of the time, which are however kept distinct, and appear at the end of the history of each abbot's administration. The text has been printed from what is said to be the autograph of the original compiler, Thomas de Burton, the nineteenth abbot.

44. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM, SIVE, UT VULGO DICITUR, HISTORIA MINOR. Vols. I. and II. 1067–1245. Edited by Sir FREDERIC MADDEN, K.H., Keeper of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1866.

The exact date at which this work was written is, according to the chronicler 1250. The history is of considerable value as an illustration of the period during which the author lived, and contains a good summary of the events which followed the Conquest. This minor chronicle is, however, based on another work (also written by Matthew Paris), which gives fuller details, and which has been called the ‘Historia Major.’ The chronicle now published, nevertheless, gives some information which is not to be found in the greater history.

45. LIBER MONASTERII DE HYDA: A CHRONICLE AND CHARTULARY OF HYDE ABBEY, WINCHESTER, 455–1023. Edited, from a Manuscript in the Library of the Earl of Macclesfield, by EDWARD EDWARDS, Esq. 1866.

The “Book of Hyde” is a compilation from much earlier sources, which are usually indicated with considerable care and precision. In many cases, however, the Hyde chronicler appears to correct, to qualify, or to amplify—either from tradition or from sources of information not now discoverable—the statements which, in substance, he adopts. He also mentions, and frequently quotes from, writers whose works are either entirely lost or at present known only by fragments.

There is to be found, in the “Book of Hyde,” much information relating to the reign of King Alfred which is not known to exist elsewhere. The volume contains some curious specimens of Anglo-Saxon and Mediæval English.

46. CHRONICON SCOTORUM: A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, from the EARLIEST TIMES to 1135; with a SUPPLEMENT, containing the Events from 1141 to 1150. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1866.

There is, in this volume, a legendary account of the peopling of Ireland and of the adventures which befell the various heroes who are said to have been connected with Irish history. The details are, however, very meagre both for this period and for the time when history becomes more authentic. The plan adopted in the chronicle gives the appearance of an accuracy to which the earlier portions of the work cannot have any claim. The succession of events is marked, year by year, from A.M. 1599 to A.D. 1150. The principal events narrated in the later portion of the work are the invasions of foreigners and the wars of the Irish among themselves. The text has been printed from a MS. preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, and written partly in Latin, partly in Irish.

47. THE CHRONICLE OF PIERRE DE LANGTOFT, IN FRENCH VERSE, FROM THE EARLIEST PERIOD TO THE DEATH OF EDWARD I. Vol. I. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1866.

It is probable that Pierre de Langtoft was a canon of Bridlington, in Yorkshire, and that he lived in the reign of Edward I., and during a portion of the reign of Edward II. This chronicle is divided into three parts; in the first of which is an abridgment of Geoffrey of Monmouth’s “Historia Britonum,” in the second a history of the Anglo-Saxon and Norman kings, down to the death of Henry III., in the third a history of the reign of Edward I. The principal object of the work was apparently to show the justice of Edward’s Scottish wars.

The language in which the chronicle is written is singularly corrupt, and is a curious specimen of the French of Yorkshire.

48. THE WAR OF THE GAEDHIL WITH THE GAILL, OR, THE INVASIONS OF IRELAND BY THE DANES AND OTHER NORSEMEN. Edited, with a Translation, by JAMES HENTHORN TODD, D.D., Senior Fellow of Trinity College, and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University, Dublin. 1867.

The work in its present form, in the editor's opinion, is a comparatively modern version of an undoubtedly ancient original. That it was compiled from contemporary materials has been proved by curious incidental evidence. It is stated in the account given of the battle of Clontarf that the full tide in Dublin Bay on the day of the battle (23 April, 1014) coincided with sunrise; and that the returning tide in the evening aided considerably in the defeat of the Danes. The fact has been verified by astronomical calculations, and the inference is that the author of the chronicle, if not himself an eye-witness, must have derived his information from those who were eye-witnesses.

The contents of the work are sufficiently described in its title. The story is told after the manner of the Scandinavian Sagas, with poems and fragments of poems introduced into the prose narrative.

49. GESTA REGIS HENRICI SECUNDI BENEDICTI ABBATIS. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF HENRY II. AND RICHARD I., 1169-1192; known under the name of BENEDICT OF PETERBOROUGH. Vols. I. and II. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, Oxford, and Lambeth Librarian. 1867.

This is a chronicle of the reigns of Henry II. and Richard I., known commonly under the name of Benedict of Peterborough, and is one of the best existing specimens of a class of historical compositions of the first importance to the genuine student.

50. MUNIMENTA ACADEMICA, OR, DOCUMENTS ILLUSTRATIVE OF ACADEMICAL LIFE AND STUDIES AT OXFORD (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. HENRY ANSTEY, M.A., Vicar of St. Wendron, Cornwall, and lately Vice-Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. 1868.

The purpose of this work is to supply materials for a History of Academical Life and Studies in the University of Oxford during the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries.

51. CHRONICA MAGISTRI ROGERI DE HOVEDENE. Vol. I. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1868.

This work has long been justly celebrated, but not thoroughly understood until Mr Stubbs' edition. The earlier portion, extending from 732 to 1148, appears to be a copy of a compilation made in Northumbria about 1161, to which Hoveden added but little. From 1148 to 1169—a very valuable portion of this work—the matter is derived from another source, to which Hoveden appears to have supplied but little, and not always judiciously.

From 1170 to 1192 is the portion of the work which corresponds with the Chronicle known under the name of Benedict of Peterborough (see No. 49); but it is not a copy, being sometimes an abridgment, at others a paraphrase of it; occasionally the two works entirely agree, showing that both writers had access to the same materials, but dealt with them differently. From 1192 to 1201 may be said to be wholly Hoveden's work; it is extremely valuable, and an authority of the first importance.

WORKS PUBLISHED IN PHOTOZINCOGRAPHY.

DOMESDAY BOOK, or the GREAT SURVEY OF ENGLAND OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, 1086 ; fac-simile of the part relating to each county, separately (with a few exceptions of double counties). Photozincographed, by Her Majesty's Command, at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., &c., Director. 35 Parts, imperial quarto and demy quarto (1861-1863) boards. Price 4s. 6d. to 17. 1s. each part, according to size ; or, bound in 2 vols., 18l.

This important and unique survey of the greater portion of England* is the oldest and most valuable record in the national archives. It was commenced about the year 1084 and finished in 1086. Its compilation was determined upon at Gloucester by William the Conqueror, in council, in order that he might know what was due to him, in the way of tax, from his subjects, and that each at the same time might know what he had to pay. It was compiled as much for their protection as for the benefit of the sovereign. The nobility and people had been grievously distressed at the time by the king bringing over large numbers of French and Bretons, and quartering them on his subjects, "each according to the measure of his land," for the purpose of resisting the invasion of Cnut, King of Denmark, which was apprehended. The commissioners appointed to make the survey were to inquire the name of each place ; who held it in the time of King Edward the Confessor ; the present possessor ; how many hides were in the manor ; how many ploughs were in demesne ; how many homagers ; how many villeins ; how many cottars ; how many serving men ; how many free tenants ; how many tenants in soccage ; how much wood, meadow, and pasture ; the number of mills and fish-ponds ; what had been added or taken away from the place ; what was the gross value in the time of Edward the Confessor ; the present value ; and how much each free-man or soc-man had, and whether any advance could be made in the value. Thus could be ascertained who held the estate in the time of King Edward ; who then held it ; its value in the time of the late king ; and its value as it stood at the formation of the survey. So minute was the survey, that the writer of the contemporary portion of the Saxon Chronicle records, with some asperity—"So very narrowly he caused it to be traced out, that there was not a single hide, nor one virgate of land, nor even, " it is shame to tell, though it seemed to him no shame to do, an ox, nor a cow, " nor a swine was left, that was not set down."

Domesday Survey is in two parts or volumes. The first, in folio, contains the counties of Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Chester and Lancaster, Cornwall, Derby, Devon, Dorset, Gloucester, Hants, Hereford, Herts, Huntingdon, Kent, Leicester and Rutland, Lincoln, Middlesex, Northampton, Nottingham, Oxford, Salop, Somerset, Stafford, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick, Wilts, Worcester, and York. The second volume, in quarto, contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

Domesday Book was printed verbatim et literatim during the last century, in consequence of an address of the House of Lords to King George III. in 1767. It was not, however, commenced until 1773, and was completed early in 1783. In 1860, Her Majesty's Government, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, determined to apply the art of photozincography to the production of a fac-simile of Domesday Book, under the superintendence of Colonel Sir Henry James, R.E., director of the ordnance survey, Southampton. The work was completed in 1863.

Part I., with translations and notes (William the Conqueror to Henry VII.), 1865.

Part III. (Mary and Elizabeth), 1867.

The first Part extends from William the Conqueror to Henry VII., and contains autographs of the kings of England, as well as of many other illustrious personages famous in history, and some interesting charters, letters patent, and state papers. The second Part, for the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI., consists principally of holograph letters and autographs of kings, princees, statesmen, and other persons of great historical interest, who lived during those reigns. The third Part contains similar documents for the reigns of Mary and Elizabeth, including a signed bill of Lady Jane Grey.
